Drenth race records set

Several records were set in the ninth annual Venetian Festival Jeff Drenth Memorial foot race.

The races attracted more than 300 runners, said Pete Spieles, general chairman and coach of the sponsoring Charlevoix High cross country team.

For the first time, medals bearing the likeness of Drenth, All-American runner who died last year, were given to the top three runners in each race.

Those who set records in the one-mile, 5-kilometer and 10-kilometer events were:

– Geoff Goolsby of Royal Oak in the men's 19-29 10K, breaking a record held by Drenth;

– Tim Bolema of Grand Rapids in the men's 35-39 age division in the 10-kilometer;

– Mary Peruski of Dearborn in the women's 19-29 10K;

– Cliff Dwell of Lake Orion in the men's 14-18 5K;

– Glen Taylor of Charlevoix in the men's 50-over 5K;

– Krista Kommusaar of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., in the women's 13-under 5K;

– Kimberly Sanchez of Beulah in the women's 19-29 5K;

– Beverly Noirot of Gaylord in the women's 50-over 5K;

– Travis Hartman of Petoskey in the men's 14-18 one mile;

– Ken Plude of Charlevoix in the men's 19-29 one mile;

– Mark Schaberg of Charlevoix in the men's 30-over one mile;

– Gina Glover of Kingsley in the women's 13-under one mile;

– Michelle North of Charlevoix in the women's 14-18 one mile;

– Leila Griffin of Petoskey in the women's 30-over one mile.

The top three finishers in each age category follow:

Yachting Notes

A. NONY MOUSE

Gary Gleason's Schock 35, Sorcerer, continued to cast its magic spell over the fleet Wednesday, July 22, as that azure blue sail with the mouse in its center cut through the smaller boats and crossed the finish with a corrected time of 1:11:50 for the windy night. Miss Piggy was four minutes behind, followed by Goteha, Slapshot, Night Moves, Merry Hell, Wingnut, Mint Julip and Mr. Breeze.

The wind that those P-26 skippers have looked for all year finally arrived and held throughout the race, allowing two of them to do what the entire fleet had previously been able to do – "Beat Barnes." This had become a rallying cry of this fleet as night after night Josh "Black Bandit" Barnes has played water spider and cheerfully demonstrated "horizon jobs" on his fleet.

But not Wednesday night. For on Wednesday night, Michael "Mikey Likes It" Carland and that old veteran salt, Karl Jurries, were giving the lessons and Josh was taking notes. Carland's Tireless finished in 1:17:49 followed by Jurries, Blasen III at 1:18:57. Barnes was only 23 seconds off the pace in third with Foxy Lady, San-Sue-She, Cygnus, Kittiwake, Nulli-Secundus and Phoenicia following.

The JAM Fleet has a new owner of a veteran boat. Sandpiper previously sailed by John Gaskin will now be under the held of David Campbell. Many of us remember Sandpiper as Cramped Quarters and foldly recall the dog fights when she sailed in the spinnaker division. Welcome aboard, Campbell, and now unpack the chute.

Flash took honors in the fleet at 1:15:40 followed by Sandpiper, Tigger, Maureen, Canusa, Apotheeary, Cabaret, Hot Mustand, Stalworth, Cool Whip, Mud Duck and Sunrise.

The club urges skippers and crew to attend the post-race get-together at the clubhouse. Grab some refreshments and come on down.

'Til then, watching the western skies.

Coach picked for girls basketball

Stan Martin has been named head coach of the girls varsity basketball team at Charlevoix High.

The season begins Sept. 3 at Ellsworth.

Martin succeeds Henry "Butch" Wagner who resigned after holding the position for several years. Martin served as JV coach under Wagner.

Martin has been a teacher in Charlevoix for 15 years. He teaches second grade at Charlevoix Elementary.

He is a 1962 graduate of Charlevoix High where he played basketball and of Central Michigan University with a major in elementary education.

He has been involved in the basketball program since joining the faculty, coaching at elementary, middle school boys and girls, and, more recently, junior varsity girls.

A junior varsity coach will be named prior to the season.

Basketball meeting slated

A meeting to set up practice schedules for girls basketball teams has been set for Tuesday, Aug. 4, at the high school study hall.

Coach Stan Martin is asking for all candidates, grades 9 through 12, who can to attend the meeting and for those who cannot to call him at home.

He also reminds candidates they are responsible for obtaining physical examinations prior to the first practice session Monday, Aug. 10. Examination sheets available at the high school office are to be filled out by a doctor and returned to the office.

Drenth memorial plaque installed with help from area volunteers

A memorial plaque honoring Jeff Drenth has been erected thanks to the volunteer efforts of many individuals and businesses.

The plaque, with information and a likeness of the late All-American distance runner, is contained in a wooden showcase in front of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce office.

To be inscribed on the plaque are the names of the winners in the divisions of the Venetian Festival Jeff Drenth Memorial foot races.

The race name was changed this year to honor Drenth, who died suddenly a year ago at an Oregon training facility.

The plaque was built by Doug Bergmann, a member of the Charlevoix High cross-country team, and the case was furnished by Frank Cook of the Woodwright's Shop.

The plaque is made of walnut and the case is made of teak, to match the benches and newspaper stand in front of the chamber.

Bergmann, Cook and Rusty Bennett of Cook's firm installed the lighted case and plaque on Friday, a day before the Venetian race.

Also involved in the project were: Wojan Aluminum, which provided the safety glass; The Trophy Case, which provided the inscriptions; the city of Charlevoix, which provided the wiring and electricity for the lighting.

Also, Medusa Cement, which provided the steel, and Bob Geer and Mike Raecke, who fashioned the steel into the stand; Randy DeYoung, who cleaned the metal, and LexaLite International, which painted it.

And, KHQ radio, which is paying expenses; Bellinger Marine, which donated materials; Bill Stevens, who poured the cement.

The information about Drenth was written by his mother, Maxine, with the help of Rosemary Horton. It was inscribed in metal by a Pennsylvania firm.

Cheboygan team wins tournament

The Knights of Columbus of Cheboygan edged Budget Rent-A-Car of Petoskey 2-1 to win the 12th annual Venetian Festival Fastpitch double-elimination tournament hosted by the Charlevoix Recreation Department.

George Wheelock, on the mound for the victors, allowed six hits while Gordy Hetrich of Budget also gave up six.

Budget came out of the loser's bracket after being shut-out earlier by the same team 4-0.

In the finals in the winner's bracket, George McGovern allowed five hits in sending Budget to the loser's bracket. Hetrich, who took the loss, gave up two hits.

Budget disposed of Cheboygan Co-op-Century 21 7-0 to get a second chance at Cheboygan in the finals.

Co-op's pitcher, Clayton McGovern, gave up seven hits and Hetrich allowed three in the six-inning game.

On opening night, Charlevoix Foot Clinic defeated Strictly Business of Petoskey 4-1; Budget beat Cheboygan Co-op-Century 21 2-1; Cheboygan Knights of Columbus defeated Carpet Country of Coldwater 2-1.

Continuing in the winner's bracket, Budget beat High Kicker Saloon of Pontiac 6-2, Cheboygan K. of C. defeated Black Label of Vassar 6-3, Apex Polishing of Caledonia beat Akron Merchants 3-2, Budget defeated Charlevoix Foot Clinic 8-0, Cheboygan K.C. beat Apex Polishing 6-1 and beat Budget 4-0.

In the loser's bracket, Cheboygan Co-op-Century 21 beat Strictly Business 8-1, Akron Merchants beat Carpet Country 4-2, Co-op beat Black Label 2-0, High Kicker Saloon beat Akron Merchants 3-2, Co-op beat Charlevoix Foot Clinic 21-3, Apex Polishing beat High Kicker Saloon 5-2, Co-op beat Apex 5-2 and Budget beat Co-op 7-0.

Building a framework for democracy

This is the essay that earned Sean Henne third place in the statewide U.S. Constitution Bicentennial Essay Contest. Story on page 1.

by SEAN HENNE

"The accumulation of powers, legislative, executive, and judiciary, in the same hands, whether of one, a few, or many, and whether hereditary, self-appointed, or elective, may justly be pronounced the very definition of tyranny." Ephram Haines' bull-like voice rose to a thundering exultation upon reading that last line, and he slapped his copy of The Federalist down upon the tavern table with a victorious slap. "There you are, William; it's tyranny to have a legislature like England's!"

The small, dark man sitting opposite Ephram set his mug down cautiously.

"Perhaps it is, but it still seems to me less an evil than giving so much power to an executive, as the delegates in Philadelphia are bent on doing," he quavered.

Ephram snorted derisively. "Still worried about the executive power are you?" He shifted his bulk down further in the wooden chair so as to speak more "on William's level" as he liked to put it. "Do you think the boys in Philadelphia aren't aware of the danger that one all powerful man can present to liberty? Remember Madison himself wrote 'whether of one, a few, or many?' They're not only trying to ensure that the legislature doesn't gain control of government, but the executive as well! Notice that the new legislature will have the power to remove an overly ambitious president."

"It's all very well for them to assure us that their system will work now," replied William, "but it's a nation they're experimenting with, and, well, this Impeachment process sounds like a pretty precarious system. Who can be sure that a strong president, wielding that terrible weapon of the veto, couldn't seize power?"

"Oh, I can't argue with you in here," said Ephram, shaking his head with disbelief at his friend's objections to what he saw as a perfect system. "The smoke and noise won't let me think; pay up and we'll walk down to Wall Street and debate in the cool, night air."

Although William would have preferred to remain in what he considered the cozy atmosphere of the Pipe and Bowl Tavern, he, as usual, agreed to his friend's suggestion and the two stepped out into the New York street to continue their arguments. They formed a rather interesting sight as they strolled along, Ephram's tall, somewhat stout build contrasting sharply with his companion's rather slight appearance. Their frequent debates on the nature of politics formed a pleasant source of entertainment for the lower intellectual circles of New York that summer, and the two friends were in high demand at most evening parties.

"Well then," began Ephram as the night's chill breeze revived his flushed countenance. "How would you suggest we control the power of this powerful executive?".

"Make the legislature the source of his power..."

"And turn him into a Prime Minister! Can't you ever see that we are no longer part of the Empire? We fought a war to that purpose, in case you can't remember!" William, taken aback by this outburst, remained silent and shivered a bit in the cool air.

"No, the source of the president's power, and that of each of the other branches, must come straight from the constitution itself," continued Ephram, "the dominion of one over the other would be tyranny, as Mr. Madison so wisely said." The larger man was much pleased with this argument and strode along at a faster pace, forcing his smaller companion into a trot to keep up.

"Then the impeachment process has to be trusted to keep the executive under control," William sighed. "But what of the Judicial branch of government? The president would choose the judges, whereas other members of government are to be independently elected. The interpretation of the law seems a weak point in the new system."

"Even though the president chooses the judges, the senate must confirm such appointments - and once confirmed, Federal judges would serve for life, while all other government employees have differing terms of office," Ephram explained, slowing down to allow his lagging audience to keep up. "You also seem to have forgotten that the Judiciary has control over the other branches by being able to declare both congressional laws and presidential acts unconstitutional."

"Something still seems wrong to me," William quavered uncertainly. "Perhaps the whole idea of each branch serving as a watchdog over the other sounds too simple in theory and is impractical in application."

"How so?" Amused disbelief registered on Ephram's broad face.

"Well, the congress can impeach the president or the judges, the president appoints those judges and can veto congressional bills, and the judiciary can declare both of the other two's work unconstitutional. Doesn't it seem confusing and rather disorganizad to you to have each branch able to interfere with, and even to some extent take part in, the affairs of the other?"

Ephram stopped and mildly examined his friend's earnest expression. "Perhaps a degree of inefficiency does exist in a completely balanced governmental system," he agreed, "but it seems a small price to pay for security against tyranny! Not ten minutes ago you were the one worried about executive power; a small amount of delays and minor hinderances ensures that your fears are groundless!"

The two friends continued on in silence for quite a way after that, both oblivious to the night time activity or the street as Ephram prepared in his mind new arguments, and William mulled over what the other had said.

It was the smaller man who finally spoke.

"Ephram, maybe I was wrong."

Ephram grunted in satisfaction.

"Maybe this new constitution, with a healthy degree of separation of the powers of government, and a system of checks and balances that may prove efficient in curtailing ambition, will work. But I doubt that the people of New York will listen to that mad man Hamilton with his fanatical views on a strong government; they love liberty too much. I don't think that New York will pass this constitution."

"Come, come, William," admonished the contented Ephram. "Alexander Hamilton merely suggested such a strong government, so the states rights people would be slightly shamed to suggest another incredibly weak one. And I believe that the medium reached between the two factions will be passed by New York, but we can argue that point at the Meriweather's. We're expected there in ten minutes!"

As the two friends dashed off to the party that evening, the stage was being set for the dramatic New York Convention where, by the narrow margin of thirty to twenty-seven, William's fears that the state would not ratify the new constitution proved, as Ephram had predicted, groundless. In ratifying the constitution the people of New York, and of the other twelve United States, proved their support of a system that has lasted for two hundred years. No longer is this constitution "new"; it is now an integral part of one of the oldest working governments in the world, a "model" government looked up to by the people everywhere.

EVELINE TOWNSHIP BOARD MINUTES
JULY 14, 1987

The regular meeting of the Eveline Township Board was held on July 14, 1987 with all board members present and eight guests.

In the Hamilton litigation, Judge Pajtas upheld Eveline Township's Zoning Ordinance and ruled against a Bed & Breakfast Enterprise at Charlevoix Shores Estate, a residential zoned area.

Other zoning issues were discussed.

The culverts at Washington and Second in Ironton were discussed; no action.

In other matters discussed, it was decided to send a letter to the County Board of Commissioners stating that Eveline Township opposes any consideration of lands in Eveline Township which are not zoned commercial to be included in the new solid waste plan; a copy of said letter to also be sent to the Solid Waste Planning Committee.

Fire and Ambulance agreements were approved with the City of East Jordan and also with the City of Charlevoix with payment of $16,842.79 approved also.

A letter will be sent to the County Road Commission concerning their policy for "Children Playing" signs.

Payment of check #1790 through Check #1811 amounting to $102,844.96 were approved unanimously.

Meeting was adjourned at 11:26 p.m.

Readers' views on developments

dominiums than is desirable already. They serve only a few people, not the thousands who come to see Charlevoix's natural beauty."

Should limits be placed on further development of multiple-family dwellings? Why?

"The present property under discussion by the planning commission is less than an acre. I feel limits should be placed on the basis of density."

"Some limits, of course, as development has already gotten out of hand. There has to be more control. Can't anyone see what this town will be like if this type of development goes on unchecked?"

"You must stop piling people on top of people."

"Better to move slowly so that we know we're moving forward than to allow developers who profit by the multiple family dwellings influence us for their own benefit."

"Multiple family dwellings should be placed in locations (edge of town) where they will not detract from natural beauty that Charlevoix was blessed with."

"Absolutely need low density residences on Lake Charlevoix. We must protect our wetlands."

"Limiting the condominiums is the only way not to have too many of them. Surely a compromise is better than a confrontation."

"We are beginning to look like every other downstate town."

"Let's preserve a little of the good ol' days and its scenic beauty – which you are destroying."

"I would like to know how many units stand empty for how many weeks, with hopes they will be rented. The 180-day moratorium should be adopted until surveys can be made."

"To stop blocking what view of our beautiful area is left."

"Yes, around the waterfront. Development as needed could be allowed elsewhere."

"Enough already."

Should more hotel-motel rooms be provided downtown for overnight guests? Why?

"Certainly, but created only with good judgment – to preserve the special quality of this area, what there is left of it."

"If I'm not mistaken, one of our downtown motels closed this winter because of bad business."

"During poor seasons (cold summer, warm winter) you have too many rooms now."

"It is unreasonable to think we should provide more downtown accommodations for our visitors. The people who live in Charlevoix don't live downtown. People want to stay in places that are clean, comfortable, affordable and accessible to downtown."

"How many people and buildings are the city fathers going to crowd into downtown?

"With U.S. 31 the only north-south traffic artery, we already are slowly strangling ourselves. Charlevoix merchants and real estate interests are not the only interests to be considered."

"When realtors cite the old gracious hotels, they fail to mention that those hotels were tastefully located away from downtown."

"Too much congestion."

"There are enough accommodations in this vast area without trying to squeeze out the beauty that makes 'Charlevoix the Beautiful' beautiful. We may be changing our familiar logo to something different if we do not call a halt now."

"Do the motels on Bridge Street on outer edges of town supply the market? What is the demand for overnight lodging in Charlevoix both summer and winter?"

The Edgewater Inn has caused considerable comment – both from those who see it as an eyesore and from those who see it as a boon to the local economy. What do you think?

"An insult to the town. Most people are embarrassed by it, even those who are just passing through."

"I do not like the size of Edgewater Inn. Nor do I like the feel that it is so close to the road. Why didn't they stop with Phase 1?"

"It's an eyesore. I have heard very little local help built that place."

"I think Edgewater is ungainly, threatening and tasteless."

"I do not believe that bricks and mortar enhance Charlevoix's shorelines. Soon we will look like 'Little Chicago' around Round Lake and Lake Michigan."

"What in the world happened to the 'Long Range Plan Development' paid for years ago? We must cease granting variances so frivolously."

"Are you suggesting that a building, any building can replace the sight of green trees, sparkling water, busy boats and happy productive activity? Fie on anyone for that suggestion."

"What has made our town so fair for so many decades? People came here to enjoy this area long before condos came on the scene. I, for one."

"The ugliest structure I've ever seen.... One positive thing. Its gaudy ugly design contrasts so with those beautiful buildings designed and built by Earl Young and tucked into the hillside (well away from the lake) adjacent to the Inn that Earl's genius and respect for the environment becomes even more evident to the observer."

"The traffic backup at the bridge is already nearly intolerable and when (and if) this building fills up and shops are in use, and the new (Rysberg) inn is built, the traffic jamming will be a disaster. Already some north siders are shopping in Petoskey or Boyne City rather than try to get downtown."

Obituaries

Straw

Lawrence W. Straw, 79, died Wednesday, July 22, at his Marion Township home.

Funeral services were held Friday, July 24, at Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. David W. Yingling of the United Methodist Church officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Born in Pasadena, Calif., March 5, 1908, the son of William K. and Genevieve (Dykema) Straw, Mr. Straw returned to the family homestead in Marion Township at an early age. He graduated as valedictorian of the Class of 1925 at Charlevoix High.

He operated the family farm in Marion Township where he raised certified seed potatoes and received many awards from the Top of Michigan Potato Association. He also raised hogs.

He had been employed as a machinist at Ford Motor Co. in Detroit and Motor Wheel Co. of Lansing. He was a U.S. Army veteran of World War II. He was justice of the peace in Marion Township 1947-61 and served on the township zoning board 1960-69.

He was a member of the United Methodist Church. He was the third generation of the family to occupy the farm.

He is survived by several cousins. His only sister, Beatrice Straw, preceded him in death May 27, 1987.

Memorials to the United Methodist Church are suggested. Envelopes for this purpose are available at Winchester Funeral Home.

Elected to three-year terms on the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board last week are (from left) Derrel Linder and Walter Hufford, both of Charlevoix, and Mark Kowalske of Boyne City. Hufford begins his fourth term on the Board and Kowalsko hes second while Linder is a newcomer.

CONDOS: Limits asked

by DON DIBLEY

Two amendments aiming to reduce future condominium growth are ready for consideration by the city.

And a block-by-block campaign is under way by supporters of the mayor's effort to halt condo-type developments. They are attempting to drum up a large following to show support for the actions.

The two amendments to the city zoning ordinance are scheduled to go before the planning commission at its 5:30 p.m. meeting Monday, Aug. 10. That meeting will be in city hall.

"We'll have a big crowd if the weather is not too hot," says Mayor Ralph McRae, who has been pushing for a slow-down of townhouse construction since before his election last year.

Although he would prefer a 180-day moratorium on construction around Round Lake and along the Pine River Channel, McRae supports the amendments.

The two proposed changes were drawn up by the city planner at the request of planning commissioner Barbara Fels.

They are considered "overlay" zoning restrictions because they apply in any property zone category regardless of other allowed uses or restrictions for those areas.

One proposal would restrict uses within 200 feet of Lake Charlevoix, Round Lake, Pine River Channel or Lake Charlevoix to single-family dwellings or marine and fishing service uses.

The second would reduce the maximum height of a new building in that 200-foot limit to 32 feet. The citywide limit is now 35 feet.

Fels originally asked for one amendment, but with her approval it

OPINIONS: Readers call for halt in multiple-family units

The second wave of questionnaires on condo development brought the same results as the first – a flood of negative comments.

Since last week's Courier was published, the number of responses to the call for public input has nearly doubled.

But the percentages have remained about the same – just about everyone responding to the informal survey is against further waterfront development of multiple-family dwellings.

One change in the second batch of responses, though – a few nice words about the Edgewater Inn hotel, although those nice words were mixed with complaint.

There were also a few good words for condo development, although they were tempered, too, with complaint.

Here are the questions again and some of this week's responses:

Is this type of harbor-front development desirable or isn't it?

"It was desirable in the beginning when development was in the proper scale for this very beautiful small community. It has now grown into a monster."

"I agree with Mayor McRae that there should be a 180-day moratorium on the condo development proposals. Why should the city rush into this matter?"

"The beauty of Charlevoix is being walled-off, only to be enjoyed by those new residents who can afford to live in the 'castles.'"

"Traffic is horrendous now. The beautiful view for tourists and local people is gone. Stop."

"Why can't the city planners and council see what they are doing to this little town?"

"No good will come from further 'developing.'"

"It may have had some merit in 1968 but it has been carried to outrageous extremes."

"It seems condo popularity is going to kill the goose that laid the golden egg. Natural beauty is what keeps people returning and spending money here."

"It is desirable if done with in-

GOLF COURSE: Houses would sit along fairways

A championship golf course and residential development is being proposed for a portion of Charlevoix and Hayes townships.

Called Charlevoix Country Club, the 300-acre complex would include an 18-hole golf course, country club facilities and home sites along the course.

The proposal is being made by Richard Lobenherz, who emphasizes the plan is in the preliminary stages and could change depending on the public reception it receives.

"If Charlevoix wants a country club, then I can't think of a more appropriate place for it to go," he says, "but if Charlevoix doesn't want it, we won't do it."

Right now Lobenherz – operating under the name Charlevoix Country Club – is asking for rezoning of about 200 acres in Charlevoix Township.

A rezoning request in Hayes Township could follow.

The land where he would like to put the country club is generally referred to as a portion of the Shanahan property north of the city, but is owned by four parties.

The bulk is owned by Edward and Phila Shanahan of Charlevoix, while other pieces are owned by Dr. John Richards of Ann Arbor, by Helmut and Leora Forbrig of Charlevoix and by Hagen Manker and Sulane Hamilton of Charlevoix.

The property is bounded generally by Old Orchard Road, Waller Road, Meander Lane and the township boundary.

Lobenherz has options on the land while he tries to develop the golf course and residential community.

He says he does not know yet how many housing units would be put on the property, but says it would be a mix of multiple-family and single-family structures.

"Most of the buildings would be single-family homes," he says.

AROUND THE TOWN

Future development of apartments in the second story of Bridge Street buildings may hinge on a discussion under way at city hall.... At issue is a proposed ordinance change removing requirements for downtown businesses and apartments to provide parking along with new construction....

The planning commission endorsed the move as a way to entice building owners to develop unused second-floor space.... The city administration estimates up to 30 apartments may be added along or near Bridge Street if parking spaces are not required.

Among the possible alternatives under consideration by city council are a permit system to allow apartment dwellers to park in city lots for a fee and establishing a permit-only parking lot.

A good way to lose weight has been found by Jesse King, who is helping Keep Charlevoix Beautiful weed the petunia beds along U.S. 31 this year.... In the past two months, King has taken off 20 pounds while working in the flower beds....

With the unusually hot weather this year, several people have been working extra hard on the petunias, besides Dale and Marilyn Boss, who spread 15,000 gallons of water on the beds nearly every day.... Recent recipients of KCB's broken hoe award for extra weeding effort are the crew at the city golf course, Helen Juillerct, Marge Dinwiddie (who Bruce MacArthur says dreamed up the idea in the first place) and Dorothy and Chuck Metzger....

Barbara MacArthur of the city Shade Tree Commission reminds residents, too, that large trees as well as small plants have taken a beating in the heat.... While the city is watering trees on rights-of-ways, MacArthur suggests residents give trees in their yards a healthy drink.

This summer's unusually hot weather has created crowds at the Charlevoix area's many beaches. This group found the diving raft at Depot Beach elbow-to-elbow, but that didn't keep them from having fun.

Times set to change class line-up

Charlevoix High School has scheduled times for students enrolling for the first time or those who need to change class schedules.

David J. Smith, principal, said students whose schedules are satisfactory need not attend.

Seniors are asked to enroll or make changes between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Monday, Aug. 10. Juniors at the same hours Tuesday, Aug. 11; sophomores Wednesday, Aug. 12 and freshmen Thursday, Aug. 13.

The hours at 1 to 3 p.m. will be open to all grades Monday through Thursday and from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Friday, Aug. 14.

Counselors will be available to assist in completing schedules. Students are asked to check class schedules carefully to see if changes are necessary.

Parents of students who will be enrolling in the middle (6-8 grades) and elementary (K-5) schools may register their children beginning Monday, Aug. 24.

If parents have any questions regarding these schools prior to Aug. 24, they may call the superintendent's office.

Elementary new student sign-up set

Parents of children not registered for classes in kindergarten through fifth grade are asked to stop at the elementary school office starting Monday, Aug. 24 to register.

The office will be open daily from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. If enrolling a kindergartner, take the child's birth certificate and an up-to-date immunization record.

The Charlevoix Board of Education recommends children entering kindergarten be five years of age by Sept. 1.

The elementary school phone number is 547-3215.

Immunization clinic moved by holiday

Due to the Labor Day holiday, the September immunization clinic in Charlevoix will be held 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 8 instead of Monday, Sept. 7.

The clinic is held in the Charlevoix County Annex building behind the county office building. For further information call 547-6523.

Fox switches to club-like homes

by PEG OHLE

What was a good use for the shoreline of Lake Charlevoix 100 years ago should be a good use today.

That seems to be the philosophy of William Fox of Fox and Associates, a downstate development corporation, which is seeking to build 28 individual houses and a marina on the 338 acres of property with 2,800 feet of shoreline he owns on Oyster Bay on Lake Charlevoix in Hayes Township.

The property was formerly owned by Camp Charlevoix.

Off-again, on-again development plans for this large parcel of land seem to be on again, although only in a preliminary stage.

The plans became public after Fox inquired to Hayes and Charlevoix townships and the City of Charlevoix about extending city sewer lines to his property.

In a letter to local officials, Fox wrote, "We intend to improve the property in accordance with existing zoning regulations to a 28-home development with a 28-boat marina."

The houses would be under condominium ownership and the lake frontage would be under common ownership.

Such a development is similar in concept to the Belvedere and Chicago Clubs in Charlevoix which were built before the turn of the century.

This proposed single-family residential development of the property replaces earlier development plans for 126 condominium units which were rejected by Hayes Township based on its zoning ordinance.

Fox sued the township, charging that the zoning ordinance was "capricious, discriminatory, and a confiscatory taking of (Fox's) property and propety rights."

That case is still in the hands of the Michigan Court of Appeals.

Fox also told local officials he is continuing to work with John Campbell of Site Planning Development in Charlevoix who "has the necessary authority to present our plans as well as any engineering concepts."

Campbell told the Courier all plans are in a preliminary stage.

"What we are working on now is getting approval for extension of the city's sewer line," he said.

The idea of a sewer line extension has received informal approval from the Charlevoix City Council.

However, the sewer line would have to cross Charlevoix and Hayes Township lines to reach the Oyster Bay property, so approval from those units of government is also necessary.

If they approve the extension, then the City of Charlevoix would make a final decision.

A spokesman for District Health Department No. 3 told the Courier that at one time or another the health department has approved on-site sewage systems for building sites for 13 houses on Fox's Oyster Bay property, and there is probably room for a few more.

This sparse use of the land is occasioned by the fact that much of it is cedar wetlands.

Because the property is partially wetlands, it will be necessary for Fox to receive a permit from the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the Army Corps of Engineers before he can start building on the property.

According to Brad Wilkins of the Gaylord office of the DNR, a request for such a permit was received by the Lansing office of the DNR on May 18, covering roads, drives, culverts, a marina, and other construction on the property.

The request was turned over to the Army Corps of Engineers for review. After noting that no wetlands boundaries were indicated on the project site plans, the Corps made a personal survey of the property to show Fox which parts of his property were suitable for development.

That is where the project stands now, awaiting advice from Fox as to whether he intends to proceed with developing the areas designated as suitable for development.

As far as Hayes Township is concerned, Ethel Knepp, zoning administrator for the township, told the Courier that when zoning permits are sought for properties which are even partially wetlands, it is her policy to ask the applicant to obtain a wetlands permit before she starts processing a zoning permit.

The Charlevoix Aree Garden Club's arrangement by Phyllis Block stands before "Venus Ordering the Armor from Vulcan for Aeneas" at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Garden club helps decorate art museum

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club participated in a Detroit Institute of Arts event and has received a national award.

The club was invited by the Founders' Society of the art institute to participate in its Arts and Flowers Festival.

The club asked Phyllis Block to create an arrangement for the painting "Venus Ordering Armor from Vulcan for Aeneas" by Gondolfi, an 18th century Italian painter.

Block said she realized the painting – which in its heavy frame measues 5 by 6 feet – would need a very large arrangement.

She said there was little record of flowers being used in Italy in that era so she decided on an arrangement in the Dutch Flemish manner, a mass oval and somewhat airy.

The painting itself was in reds, deep maroon and very dark shades set against a wall covered with gold velvet. She used red carnations, gold mums, daisies, purple statice, wheat and ferns, all in vibrant colors for the arrangement.

The club received the Caroline Gray Award of Merit for its work with sixth grade students at Charlevoix Middle School.

With the club's assistance, students developed and planted new gardens at the school. The club's youth committee assisted in maintenance.

During the Home Tour sponsored by Kappa Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority for the benefit of Charlevoix Area Hospital, the club provided arrangements by Block, Nancy Fowler and Derith Lane at the Jervis home.

Club meeting set at home in Norwood

The Charlevoix Garden Club will meet at the Norwood home of Dorothy Rothschild for a potluck luncheon at noon Tuesday, Aug. 13.

Co-hostesses will be Inge Ledahl and Mary Helen Riggle. "Summer in a Jar" will be the subject of the program.

Members are asked to gather in Glen's parking lot at 11:45 a.m. to car pool for the trip to Norwood. They are asked to take a covered dish to share, place setting, lawn chair and a camera, if desired.

Unknown factor in dump debate: How long until landfill is full?

by PEG OHLE

There's no way of telling how long it will be before the Charlevoix County Landfill is filled to capacity.

That's because the operator can pile up layer after layer of solid waste until it reaches an indeterminate height that might rival some ski hills.

That was the answer given a county resident last week when he asked the Charlevoix County Solid Waste Planning Committee how much time the county had before it would run out of space to dump its solid waste.

The committee was holding its sixth monthly meeting as part of its assignment to write a plan indicating how all solid waste generated within the county is to be disposed of.

Such a plan is mandated by state law, and the need for a new county plan arose when the one it is operating under became obsolete because some of the disposal facilities indicated in it no longer exist.

So far, the committee has spent most of its time talking about the Charlevoix County Landfill, a privately operated landfill in Eveline Township, which is receiving most of Charlevoix County's waste as well as waste from several other northern Michigan counties.

Some people, including members of the county board of commissioners, think the landfill is filling up too fast, but others, confronted with answers like the above, say they just don't know.

Some want to limit the landfill to accepting only Charlevoix or Charlevoix and adjoining county waste; others say "take it all."

At last week's meeting, the committee considered two motions.

One was to "not include additional land in the Charlevoix County Solid Waste Management Plan for use in disposing of Type II (garbage and trash) solid waste within Charlevoix County at this time." The motion passed 10-2, with committee chairman Tom Wieland and Dawson Way, a committee member and operator of the landfill, voting against it.

The other called for permitting other counties to use the landfill but only with "binding acceptance of specific conditions set forth in the plan." This motion was defeated 10-2, with Nancy Ferguson and Jamie Hass casting yea votes.

The first motion was presented by committee member Larry Levengood in recognition of the pleas of Eveline Township residents and officials that the landfill not be permitted to enlarge.

The motion prevents that for the time-being, but it also prevents the establishment of another landfill anywhere in the county for some time, County Planner Larry Sullivan said. Other matters slated for consideration which did not reach a vote stage at the meeting were: – Should use of the landfill be restricted on a geographical and-or waste-type basis?

– Should the landfill be permitted to operate as-is without any changes?

– Should surcharges payable to the county be added to the cost of using the landfill to build up a fund for studying other forms of waste disposal?

– Should the county continue to pursue alternate means of disposing of solid waste?

So far, in its six meetings, the Solid Waste Management Committee has prepared a statement of its goals and objectives and studied figures on solid waste generation within the county at the present time and estimated figures for the near future.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, which appointed the committee, has requested that a final plan for disposal of Charlevoix County's solid waste be completed by October.

Letters to the editor:

Miniature golf course developer thanks community

Editor,

Representing the ownership of "Captain's Cove" Adventure Golf, I'd like to take this opportunity to thank the many people of the Charlevoix area who played such an important role in helping us complete the project.

"Captain's Cove" is proud to be a part of the Charlevoix Community and we look forward to providing a family entertainment service that exemplifies the quality tradition of the area.

A special thanks goes out to Mr. Ivan Witthoeft of Charlevoix Electrical Service. Mr. Witthoeft's professional standards and assistance have been invaluable. The Witthoeft family must be saluted for making us feel so much a part of the Charlevoix community.

To the city's administrative office, the county's building inspectors, the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club, Advance Plumbing and Heating and all the other subcontractors, downtown and Captain's Corner businesses and those individuals that have been so supportive... thank you.

To our many neighbors, Charlevoix citizens and out-of-town guests which have shared so many positive comments with us during our first weeks of operation... thank you. Our staff has worked hard to provide you a friendly, quality environment and your patronage and support has been heartwarming. We look forward to serving you with distinction.

Help keep petunias growing

Editor:

When we speak or others may speak of Charlevoix the Beautiful, we assume that this statement refers to our lakes, trees, city and most importantly our petunias.

However, it is incomprehensible that citizens and businesses along Bridge Street, Michigan Avenue, and Petoskey Avenue could be so callous, unfeeling, and exhibit a lack of civic pride as to allow persons who do not live on their particular street or avenue to come to the rescue of the beautiful petunias which are being strangled by weeds.

I, personally, cannot and do not believe there persons and businesses, which do not prepare the area, fertilize the soil, or provide and plant the petunias, are so busy they cannot spend an hour or so per week to make their place attractive.

Thousands of dollars are donated and spent each year to beautify the approaches through Charlevoix. Also, the water and the watering "to maintain this beauty" is provided free of charge.

Why can't persons who reap a definite benefit at least participate. I will not dwell on which persons or businesses have little or no civic pride for they display to the entire populous there view by allowing a deplorable weed infested petunia bed to exist on their properties.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if just for once everyone could exert effort to support something beautiful and beneficial and without political overtones? Help make Charlevoix "The Beautiful."

Kind people help on holiday

Editor,

Recently, I brought a group of teenagers to Charlevoix for a retreat. It was an ideal environment for all our needs. However, on the 4th of July at 5 p.m. we lost our van keys at Mt. McSauba beach. Given the day and time and Chicago concert, we were operating under distinct disadvantages.

Thanks to the wonderful help, humor and hospitality of the entire Denny Wojan family and then the willingness of Harvey Cole and Ron Gates of Ron's service station to help us, we were repaired and ready to roll on.

The Lord really answered our prayers through the generous attitudes of these local people. Again, I see that "Charlevoix the Beautiful" goes deeper than the visual landscape.

Hold your tongue

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

What do you do when you see a perfect stranger committing an unsafe act in public?

I suppose the wisest course would be to remain silent.

But after raising four kids and chewing them out for all kinds of nonsense on the streets of Charlevoix, I can't seem to hold my tongue.

Take Saturday morning, for example. Judy and I were walking downtown and the bridge was up for boat traffic. As we waited on the sidewalk, some young people approached us from behind and a woman — maybe 20 years old — ran past us and jumped on the bridge as it started to come down.

I had seen dogs and cats try this stunt, but never before a human being.

"Get off that bridge this instant!" I shouted, without even realizing I had never seen the woman before in my life.

The woman stopped and turned around.

"Get off that bridge — now!" I repeated and the woman obviously was stunned to be spoken to so sharply by a stranger.

Of course the bridge tender was unaware of the little drama taking place on the opposite bank, because the open bridge blocked his viewn.

"If the bridge tender sees you he will stop the bridge," Judy explained. Without a word the woman jumped back onto the sidewalk and rejoined her companions. She probably hadn't been rebuked so sharply since she was a kid.

As we continued downtown, Judy chided me for butting into somebody else's business. I maintained that it was my business because, as a Michigan taxpayer, I would be among those paying the hospital bills if the woman got hurt, which she easily could have done. After all, the bridge is not a carnival ride.

But that afternoon, the shoe was on the other foot. Judy and I were returning home from grocery shopping in the Ford when we got stuck by heavy traffic and several red lights at the corner of Clinton and Bridge streets.

Finally, we were first in line and got a green light only to have a group of pedestrians step in front of us, walking against the light.

This time it was Judy's turn to blow her top. She rolled down the window and read them the riot act. They back-tracked to the curb as I chuckled at her spontaneous response to another unsafe act.

I don't know if it's the heat, the humidity, or the humongous crowds, but tempers are easily frayed this steamy summer.

A FEW YEARS ago, denizens of the city garden had to fight off an invasion of gophers which were eating seeds and destroying crops.

It was all-out war, complete with water cannon (garden hoses), heavy artillery (rakes, hoes and pitch forks) and armored cavalry (garden cultivators.)

But the gardeners won and the surviving gophers staged a rapid retreat to a less nerve-wracking neighborhood.

Two weeks ago I was dismayed when Alva (Sonny) Nolrot called over from his garden to say that the gophers were back and had eaten the tops off his beets.

Although my garden hadn't been hit, I braced for the worst. Then on Saturday Sonny told me not to worry. It wasn't a gopher than had gotten his beets. It was a deer. He had found hoofprints.

For some inexplicable reason, I was relieved to hear it was a deer — not a gopher — that was paying nocturnal visits to the city garden.

Gophers are such sneaky little fellows, traveling underground like they do to avoid detection. But there's something about having a deer in your garden that is sort of romantic, although a deer can do more damage than a gopher.

I guess I just have a lot of respect for a deer with enough bravado to stalk majestically into the city garden — within view of the busy U.S. 31-M66 intersection — just to steal beet greens.

But I'm glad they were Sonny's greens and not mine.

'Round Town

Black tie parties return to Charlevoix

EDITH GILBERT

Last Saturday night, Chuck and Joan MacGillivray turned back the clock for daughter Erika MacGillivray. Turtle Hill was the gorgeous setting for one of the most beautiful parties I have ever attended! And most of the men from Charlevoix, Chicago, New York and Flint wore black ties! I've checked around and this is the first summer there's been a black tie affair in our town since the closing of the famous Colonial Club gambling casino! Could this be the beginning of a new trend?

Everone agreed the party was heavenly, and there were many spangled dresses under the tents, complete with the stars above. The Jelly Roll Blues band played around the pool area and the popular trio the Chirrells sang much to the delight of the predominantly young crowd. The midnight cloudburst didn't put a damper on the evening. I got home at three, but I understand a small group celebrated until dawn.

At the black tie party, from left: Douglas Stewart of Rochester, N.Y., Curtis Gilbert of Webster, N.Y., and Charlevoix, Abby Vandyne of Flint and Charlevoix, and Odile Muran of Ville d' Arvay, France.

The dedication of Hoffmann Park at the foot of Park Avenue to be held soon, also brings back a flood of memories. Not many people have heard this amusing and true story about the late dentist, Walter Hoffmann. It's so typical of Charlevoix, please bear with me while I fill you in.

Dr. Hoffmann was one of the investors in The Lodge and he used to come in every morning for his coffee and sweetroll, as well as a social visit with the late Julius Gilbert, a major stockholder. During the conversation the Doctor complained he couldn't sleep, so Julius suggested that since The Lodge was looking for a night clerk, perhaps the Doctor would help the manager out for awhile.

That's how come Walter Hoffmann was managing the desk at The Lodge when a honeymoon couple checked in. During the night, the switchboard lit up and it was the groom complaining about a terrible toothache. Dr. Hoffmann told the groom not to worry, the desk clerk would bring something right up to ease the pain. Hoffmann dashed home across the bridge, a block away, picked up some medicine and took it up to the groom with instruction to take two pills now and visit the dentist at 9 a.m. in the morning. Then he handed him his card.

It was some puzzled groom that opened the door to Dr. Hoffmann's office the next morning. Here was the desk clerk from The Lodge dressed in a white coat ready to go to work on his tooth. Well, Hoffmann, did what dentists do to fix teeth, the bewildered groom thanked him and went off to spend the rest of his honeymoon blissfully with his little bride.

There must still be some nagging doubts in the corner of that man's mind, when he reflects on his honeymoon in Charlevoix at The Lodge.

It would be especially nice, were he to return here this summer. He could sit on the property that Dr. Hoffmann so generously donated to the city and watch the boats sail through the channel. Dr. Hoffmann would like that!

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

There was a little boy who enjoyed walking along the beach every day. His favorite part about those walks was picking up starfish that had been stranded by the tides and throwing them back into the sea.

A tourist staying along the beach caught on to the boy's daily routine and decided one day to walk with him. "Son, why are you throwing them back? Don't you realize this seashore goes for hundreds of miles? There are thousands of those starfish washed ashore every day. How can you hope to even make a difference by what you do?"

The little boy stopped. He thought for a minute then picked up another starfish, showed it to the man and threw it back in the water. "See," he said as he did it, "it makes a difference to him."

Have you ever wondered why you should be a Christian? Why when there are billions of people in this world and you can't possibly have an impact on enough of them to make a difference? Why, when if anything, you have days were you feel like one of those starfish stranded by the tide?

If you are able to touch only one life in your entire walk with God, then it is worth it. That's why you should be a Christian. And while there may very well be more people in this world than you or I will ever see, you must believe that every day your witness, your attitude, and your spirit touch far more people than you realize.

I would hope you remember the joy of our being rescued from the rockbound shore of sin and doubt and set free by Christ to know the fullness of life. There are others that have washed ashore on that same painful place that you can help. Will you? What you do can make a difference for eternity.

Weddings

Michelle and A.J. Witthoeft

Caturia-Witthoeft

Michelle Marie Caturia and A. J. Witthoeft exchanged marriage vows on Saturday afternoon, June 13, in the Lutheran Church in White Bear Lake, Minn.

The bride is the daughter of Raymond E. Caturia of North St. Paul, Minn., and Barbara M. Caturia of White Bear Lake. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan J. Witthoeft of Charlevoix.

The Rev. Heyd officiated at the double-ring ceremony before approximately 200 guests.

Escorted down the aisle on the arm of her father, the bride wore a satin bridal gown and carried a bouquet of calla lilies and pink roses.

She was attended by Paula Reynolds as maid of honor and Janet Parsons, Tamara Griffin, Chris Anderson, Lisa Caturia and Jenifer Caturia as bridesmaids. They wore tea-length black satin dresses with pink bows in back. Troy Witthoeft served as ringbearer.

Shawn Hartnett assisted the bridegroom as best man, with Shawn McLelland, Norman Carlson, Dan Ramon, Dane Tollas and Marvin Witthoeft serving as groomsmen. Jack Quick, Marc Perna and Charlie Witthoeft were ushers.

Following the wedding ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception at the White Bear Country Inn. The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at Lee Ann Chins in St. Paul.

After a wedding trip to the West Indies, the newlyweds are at home in Marquette, where both are students at Northern Michigan University.

Kathryn and Timothy Hoffman

Richardson-Hoffman

Kathryn Richardson and Timothy R. Hoffman exchanged marriage vows Saturday, July 18, at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Richardson of Mattawan, and the bridegroom is the son of Robert L. Hoffman and Joan Hoffman, both of Charlevoix.

The Rev. David Yingling officiated at the double-ring ceremony witnessed by approximately 100 guests. For the occasion, the church was decorated with white daisies and blue delphinium.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of ivory rose bud lace and satin fashioned with a boat neckline with satin bow. A matching veil and Juliet cap adorned with ivory miniature pearls and lace completed her ensemble. She carried a bouquet of ivory roses and mini carnations.

Lisa Hoffman and Carla Hoffman, sisters of the bridegroom, attended the bride. They wore tea-length gowns of powder blue in an off-the-shoulder style. Corrine Hoffman, as flower girl, wore a long pink lace dress.

Paul Hoffman served his brother as best man, and Jeff Baillargeon of Holland was groomsman. Mark Simard and Hans Yentz were ushers.

Music for the ceremony was provided by organist Robin Maurer.

The bridegroom's parents hosted a reception at One Water Street in Boyne City following the ceremony. The rehearsal dinner was held at the Parkside Restaurant in Charlevoix, hosted by the bridegroom's father.

The newlyweds will make their home in California, where both are employed by McDonnel Douglas Aircraft, he as a technical flight test engineer and she as a systems analyst.

Florida-E. Jordan picnic scheduled

The East Jordan-Florida picnic will be held at the East Jordan Evangelical Lutheran Church Fellowship Hall, 301 Nichols St., at noon Thursday, Aug. 13. Take a dish to pass, table service, and beverage.

Episcopal women sponsor luncheon

The Women of Christ Episcopal Church will host their annual gourmet chicken salad luncheon at the church at Clinton and State streets on Saturday, Aug. 8.

The luncheon will be served from 11:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. during the 29th annual Waterfront Art Fair. Tickets are $3.50.

Engagements

Decker-Rosenthal

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Decker of East Jordan have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Michelle (Shelli), to Walter Rosenthal of Charlevoix.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Rosenthal of Charlevoix.

The wedding will be an event of Aug. 15 at Assembly of God Church in Charlevoix.

The bride-elect is a 1986 graduate of East Jordan High School and attended North Central Michigan College. Her fiance, a 1983 graduate of Charlevoix High School, is self-employed at Rosenthal's Orchard.

Elzinga-Holland

Judy K. Elzinga and Mark K. Holland have announced they will be married Oct. 3 in Charlevoix.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of James Elzinga and Mrs. Lois Garver Elzinga, both of Charlevoix, and the intended bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Holland of Bellaire.

She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1976 and is self-employed at Judy's Restaurant. He graduated from Bellaire High School in 1975 and is employed by Northern Michigan Dairy.

Grey Gables leads slowpitch

Grey Gables, with a 14-0 record, continues to lead the Men's Slowpitch League as the team edged Davis Chevrolet 6-5.

Paul Bunyan Lanes (7-8) moved into a fifth place tie with Townhouse and Little Caesar's after beating Connie's Place 4-2, and Richard's Topside Cafe trounced Coast Guard 19-2.

Jim Marsh allowed 12 hits including a home run by Ron Hoxie as he pitched Grey Gables to its 14th win of the season. Alex Niedzialkowski, who took the loss, gave up 11 hits.

Paul Bunyan had 10 hits off Dave Novotny as Davis beat Connie's Place. The winning pitcher, Brad Behrendt, allowed six hits.

Dave Cole and pitcher Phil Skeel had home runs, the latter's an inside-the-park run, as Topside beat Coast Guard. Skeel allowed seven hits while Mark Simmons gave up 16 in taking the loss.

Richard's Topside edged Davis 6-5 and Pine Hill Nursery crushed CPI 18-1.

Phil Skeel gave up nine hits to Dave Melke's 13 as Topside took a close one.

Ralph Naples was on the mound for Pine Hill. He allowed six hits while the losing pitcher, Bob Daunter, gave up 24.

Paul Bunyan downed Townhouse 6-4; Little Caesar's defeated CPI and Davis dumped Coast Guard 23-3.

Bob Alexander allowed seven hits as he pitched Paul Bunyan Lanes to victory. Brad Behrendt, the losing pitcher, gave up seven hits.

Little Caesar's Bill Gauthier, the winning pitcher, allowed six hits to Bill Green's 15.

Davis scored 23 runs on 26 hits given up by Mark Simmons of Coast Guard. The servicemen scored three runs on six hits off Dave Melke.

More than 100 participants took part in the Charlevoix North American Boardsailing Games. The three-day event over the weekend was held at Ferry Beach.

Last week for sports physicals

Potential athletes and cheerleaders at Charlevoix middle and high schools are reminded this is the last week physicians at Charlevoix Area Hospital will offer physical examinations.

Family physicians are giving physicals without charge to their registered patients and others are giving examinations at a charge of $15.

Students must pick up examination sheets at the high school office before keeping appointments.

Examinations are necessary before a student can participate in any sport or become a cheerleader. This is a requirement of the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

Anyone with questions may call 547-3222 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Davis finishes 4th in tourney

Davis Chevrolet placed fourth in the Ellsworth Open Tournament.

After an opening round loss, Davis won three straight games before being eliminated.

Davis lost to Country Kitchen 5-4, then beat Viking Foods 5-3, Pour Arts of Grand Rapids 8-2 and East Jordan Cleaners 11-7.

It took extra innings for Boyne City Lanes to defeat Davis 7-4 and eliminate the local entry from the tourney.

Yachting Notes

A. NONY MOUSE

For the third Wednesday in a row, nice winds blessed the boats of the Charlevoix Yacht Club. Winds from the west of about 15 knots pushed the boats around the race course in fine style.

Sorcerer continued domination of the A fleet with a victory, her fifth straight. She was followed by Pygmalion, Wingnut, Slapshot, Gotcha, Night Moves, Merry Hell, Babe and Mr. Breeze.

In the B fleet Bandit is back in the winning column, something Mikey Carland said wouldn't happen when the wind came up. Tireless did beat Blasen III, followed by Cygnus, Foxy Lady, San-Sue-She, Kittiwake and Nulli Secundus.

Main and Jib saw Flash first, Tigger second, Canusa, Sandpiper, Maureen, Stalworth, Cheemaun, Apothecary, Hot Mustard, Sonrise, Cabaret and Coolwhip.

More folks attended the post-race Yacht Club gathering last week but we still must continue to push use of the club. Results are announced after each race and plans for a weekend series in the fall will be announced this Wednesday evening.

Readers say limit construction

telligence and taste. Charlevoix has done a poor job on density planning for people and cars."

"First step to overpopulation."

"Lake Charlevoix could have the same problem in the future."

"In 1968 I was not too concerned about Round Lake condo development. First, it didn't shut off my view of Round Lake. Secondly, I was sure the darn condo was going to slip into Round Lake eventually anyway. I hoped the tenants would escape or could swim."

Should limits be placed on further development of multiple-family dwellings? Why?

"We cannot turn developers loose to do as they please. Their concern is to take as much Charlevoix beauty as they can get for as much profit they can make."

"If these limits are not put in effect, Charlevoix will lose its right to call itself Charlevoix the Beautiful."

"A well-planned city includes areas of multiple-dwelling zoning that does not detract from the desired image of the city and does not create municipal problems of traffic, security, noise pollution, utilities, etc."

"Variances are too easy to get. Stop and smell the roses if it isn't too late now."

"Develop waterfront for the public, not individuals."

"We need more low rentals – also jobs for our young people."

"If no limits are set, disaster for this beautiful town is right around the next 'landscaped' driveway."

"There should be no more condominiums built on the few areas of lake frontage that remain."

"More thought needs to be given to the future. Rushing approval gives little time for planning."

"Further development should be limited to the perimeter of the community."

"Multi family development is regression to 200 years ago in Philadelphia, Pa. Healthy people cannot live close together partying every day, resulting in pollution."

"Maybe the property is not ours, but the view belongs to the people of Charlevoix."

"Charlevoix needs housing for blue collars."

Should more hotel-motel rooms be provided downtown for overnight guests? Why?

"One motel owner says that for 10 months of the year he is not busy – so I don't think more rooms are necessary."

"It is not necessary in this age of transportation to provide lodging in downtown Charlevoix."

"Charlevoix can never compete with other winter resorts – the hotel-motel season can only operate to capacity for a few months each year."

"There are too many people already. Venetian night was a disaster. Too many punks."

"The No Vacancy sign isn't on that much in existing places. How about some figures on this?"

"No. There just plain isn't any room, that's why."

"The hotel-motels should be built in the outer areas along the main roads."

"No. Transients are not to be valued as long-term summer residents and renters are."

"Only if we cater to business meetings with banquet space. Let those same developers gamble on that decision. Bet they will not."

"Ours is not a city, but a town. We don't want it to be a 'city.'"

The Edgewater Inn has caused considerable comment – both from those who see it as an eyesore and from those who see it as a boon to the local economy. What do you think?

"It is true the Edgewater is not a pleasingly designed building. It is monotonous with rows of smoke chimneys, balconies, air vents, same material, same colors. Much stone and hardness. No greenbelt or softness. It's too bad. But in its overwhelming scale it no doubt will be a boon to the downtown economy."

"I think it is too tall."

"The Edgewater Inn is a monument to the kind of mentality of the city government that voted for this project and the forthcoming project across the street."

"Destroying the view of Round Lake from the north was unforgivable. Council was duped."

"That corner will sure be a mess when the other side of the corner (Rysberg Inn) is built."

"Undecided. Let's be sure there's a Star of Charlevoix next season."

"We know it is no boon to local economy. Let's get something in here to put people to work."

"As a resident who sees that blankety-blank building every day, I see it as a monument to greed – the kind that will ruin Charlevoix sooner than you think."

"Everyone that I have listened to or talked to thinks the Edgewater Inn is a disgrace to Charlevoix, due to its location, size and the fact that someone allowed it to block the view of the Lodge. Who allowed this?"

"The air space it uses is something they should pay tax for, as in New York City."

"I dread the building to be built across the street. What a tunnel effect."

"I still can't believe the city allowed this monster and did not obtain an injunction to stop construction when there was a question of whether they violated the height of the building."

"No doubt it helps the economy but the project should have been scaled down."

"I think the city fathers should be ashamed of allowing this."

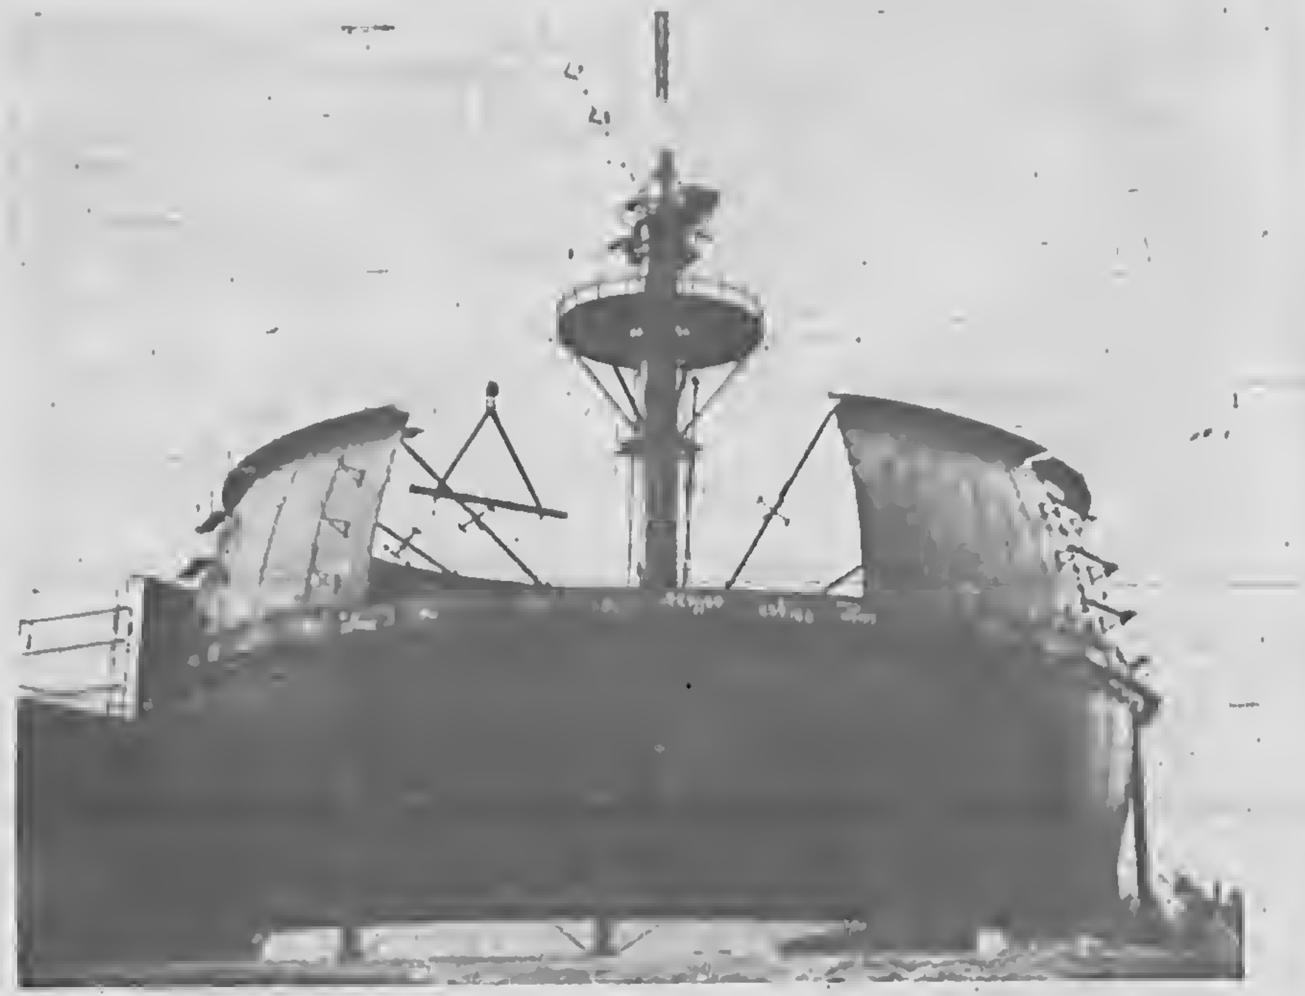
The concept of putting homes along the golf course is not new in other parts of the country, Lobenherz says, pointing to Hilton Head, S.C., and Florida as places where the practice is commonplace.

The multi-million dollar costs of developing a championship golf course make it impractical to try to build the course without accompanying land uses, he says.

If construction of the golf course could get under way in the spring, Loberherz says, it would be a couple years before the course was completed.

And course construction must come before home construction, he says.

The Charlevoix Township zoning board will hold a public hearing on the proposed rezoning at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 19.



This is what the familiar green dome at Big Rock Point nuclear power plant looked like during construction of the facility. Big Rock, one of the oldest operating nuclear plants in the country, is celebrating its 25th anniversary this month by offering tours from Monday, Aug. 10, through Friday, Aug. 21. People must be 10 years or older and have some sort of identification to take the tour. Tickets are available at the chamber of commerce office.

was split into two. "To have them together might be the downfall of them both," McRae said in a handout supporters are distributing.

"We're right back where I started," McRae told the Courier. The mayor has been to the planning commission repeatedly in recent weeks seeking a waterfront condo ban or a 180-day moratorium on review of projects to give the city time to develop new rules.

The planners in July defeated 4-2 a motion by Fels that approximated her amendment to ban condos within 200 feet of the water.

At a later meeting, the planning commission did not act on McRae's request for a moratorium after receiving an opinion from the city attorney that Michigan law does not allow for such an action.

"The moratorium would have been better," said McRae, because it would have given the city time to consider its alternatives.

The controversy over condominium development in the city has continued for nearly two decades. Though the word condominium legally refers to a joint type of property ownership, it is commonly used in Charlevoix to refer to any apartment or townhouse development or any complex with a similar look.

The two most-recent developments to feel the heat of anti-condo forces are the Edgewater Inn, a condominium-ownership hotel under construction on Round Lake, and a proposed 21-unit Pine River Inn hotel on Park Avenue overlooking the Pine River Channel.

The Pine River Inn proposal may resurface at the planning commission meeting if all members are present.

After a request concerning the zoning of the Park Avenue properties was rejected on a tie vote, owner Don Berlage asked for a hearing before the full board.

That hearing was not granted at the last planners' meeting because one member was absent, and city planner Gerry Harsch said it could be brought up anytime there is a full commission present.

Berlage contends his hotel is an allowable use under the present scenic commercial zoning and says he should not have to go through the rezoning process.

FORECLOSURE SALE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made the 10th day of December, 1971, by Robert J. Schotts and Ethel L. Schotts, husband and wife as mortgagor(s), to the United States of America, as mortgagee, and recorded on December 13, 1971, in the Office of the Register of Deeds for CHARLEVOIX County, Michigan, in Liber 131 of mortgages on pages 208-211; AND, Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made the 28th day of May, 1980, by Gladys K. Murray (now known as Gladys K. Murray-Lyons) as mortgagor(s), to the United States of America, as mortgagee, and recorded on May 28, 1980, in the Office of Register of Deeds for CHARLEVOIX County, Michigan in Liber 160 of mortgages on pages 288-291; on which mortgage there is claimed to be due and unpaid at the date of this Notice Thirty Thousand Two Hundred Sixty-Two and 74-100 Dollars ($30,262.74) principal and Twelve Thousand Five Hundred Fifty-Seven and 21-100 Dollars ($12,557.21) interest; no suit or proceeding at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt, or any part of the debt secured by said mortgage, and the power of sale contained in said mortgage having become operative by reason of such default;

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is Hereby Given that on September 2, 1987 at 10 o'clock in the forenoon at the East door of Courthouse in Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place for holding the Circuit Court for the County of CHARLEVOIX, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder, at public sale, for the purpose of satisfying the amounts due and unpaid upon said mortgage, together with the legal costs and charges of sale provided by law and in said mortgage, the lands and premises in said mortgage mentioned and described, as follows, to wit:

That property located in the City of East Jordan, County of CHARLEVOIX in the State of Michigan. THE WEST FORTH (40) FEET OF LOT NUMBER SIX (6) OF BLOCK FIFTEEN (15) OF NICHOLL'S SECOND ADDITION TO VILLAGE OF SOUTH LAKE (NOW CITY OF EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN) AS PER RECORDED PLAT.

The redemption period will be six months from the foreclosure sale.

Property may be redeemed by paying the amount of the bid at the foreclosure sale plus interest and any unpaid encumbrances on the property from date of sale. For additional information, contact UNITED STATES OF AMERICA acting through Farmers Home Administration, 231 State Street, Petoskey MI 49770, mortgagee.

LEGAL NOTICE 207

PUBLIC NOTICE
Date: July 31, 1987
Permit No. MI 0001431
CPCo - Big Rock

The Michigan Water Resources Commission proposes to modify a discharge permit for: Consumers Power Company, 212 West Michigan Avenue, Jackson, Michigan 49201. The applicant operates the Big Rock Point Plant, 10269 US-31 North, Charlevoix, Michigan. The applicant generates electricity at this 75 megawatt nuclear steam electric power plant and discharges noncontact cooling water, low volume wastes, and stormwater runoff to Lake Michigan, in Section 8, T34N, R7W, of Charlevoix County.

The draft permit includes the following modifications to the previously issued permit: 1.) Monitoring for oil and grease in the sand filter backwash, make-up demineralizer backwash, neutralizer tank wastewater, radwaste system wastewater, and chemical waste tank wastewater (internal outfalls OOB, OOC, OOD, OOE, and OOF respectively) is being eliminated. The applicant has successfully demonstrated (as per provisions of the current permit) that this monitoring is no longer necessary and has requested that it be dropped as a condition of the permit. 2.) Removal of language allowing for discharge of treated sanitary sewage and plant heating boilerdown to the groundwaters via the plant's septic tank tile field system. On February 20, 1986 the Water Resources Commission adopted Determination No. 223 which exempts Consumers Power Company from being required to obtain a permit for the discharge of plant heating boiler blowdown to the groundwaters from this facility. The sanitary discharge by itself is smaller than required to have a permit from the Water Resources Commission.

Comments or objections to the draft permit received by August 31, 1987, will be considered in the final decision to issue the permit. Persons desiring information regarding the draft permit, procedures for commenting, or requesting a hearing, should contact: Jeffrey L. McManus Permits Section, Surface Water Quality Division, Department of Natural Resources, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing, Michigan, 48909, Telephone (517) 373-8088.

Copies of the public notice, fact sheet, and draft permit may be obtained at the Surface Water Quality Division District Office located at P.O. Box 128, 8717 North Roscommon Road, Roscommon, Michigan 48653, Telephone: (517) 275-5151, or at the DNR District 5 Office located at P.O. Box 667, 1732 West M-32, Gaylord, Michigan 49735, Telephone (517) 732-3541.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage made by DAVID E. PEVERLY and PATRICIA A. PEVERLY, husband and wife, to CHARLEVOIX COUNTY STATE BANK, a Michigan banking corporation of Charlevoix, Michigan, dated 29 November 1973, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, on 30 November 1973, in Liber 137 of Mortgages, Page 666; said Mortgage was thereafter assigned by Charlevoix County State Bank to First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Lenawee County by Assignment dated 15 April 1974, recorded 17 April 1974 in Liber 138, Page 598, Charlevoix County Records; said Mortgage was thereafter assumed by Grantees in Warranty Deed, being GARY P. KANOFF and MERI LYN KANOFF, husband and wife, as disclosed in Warranty Deed dated 4 September 1975, recorded 9 September 1975 in Liber 237, Page 207, Charlevoix County Records; said Mortgage thereafter was assigned by First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Lenawee County to the CHARLEVOIX COUNTY STATE BANK through an Assignment of Mortgage dated 18 November 1986, recorded 1 December 1986 in Liber 189, Page 636 of Charlevoix County Records. As of the date of this Notice, there is claimed to be due on said Mortgage for principal, interest and late fees, the sum of $21,536.86, and no proceedings at law having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said Mortgage has become operative;

NOW, THEREFORE, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described, or so much thereof as may be necessary, at a public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the County Building in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place of holding the Circuit Court in and for said county, on Wednesday, 2 September 1987, at 10:00 o'clock a.m. in the forenoon of said day, and said premises will be sold to pay the amount so as aforesaid then due on said Mortgage, together with 10.25 percent interest per annum, legal costs, attorney fees as provided by law and any taxes and insurance that said Mortgagee, Charlevoix County State Bank, does pay on or prior to the date of said sale, said premises being described as follows:

Land located in the Township of Marion, County of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan, described as: Commencing at an iron stake at the North quarter corner of Section 10, Town 33 North, Range 8 West; thence Southerly along the North and South quarter line of said Section 201. feet, being the point of beginning of this description; thence continuing Southerly along said North and South quarter line 201. feet; thence Westerly, parallel with the North line of said section, 433.43 feet to an iron stake; thence Northerly, parallel with said North and South quarter line 201. feet to an iron stake; thence Easterly 433.43 feet to the point of beginning; being a part of the Northeast Quarter of the Northwest Quarter of Section 10, Town 33 North, Range 8 West.

The length of the redemption period of said Mortgage as made and provided by statute is six months from the time of the sale.

Charges to be filed in melee involving 100 at Castle Farms

Charges will be filed against participants in a melee at Castle Farms Music Theater last week, says Sheriff George Lasater.

Lasater said Tuesday he was unable to say just what the charges would be or how many people would be charged.

Up to 100 people were involved in the parking lot ruckus, which followed a Whitesnake concert at the outdoor facility on July 28.

Five people were treated for injuries at Charlevoix Area Hospital, an automobile was destroyed and four other cars were damaged.

About 40 people were originally involved in the fracus, the sheriff's department said.

But when William Wilkins, 17, of Sault Ste. Marie attempted to flee in his 1978 Chevrolet Monte Carlo, he struck four parked cars and a person, according to police reports.

Chad Wallace, 18, of Alpena, was dragged by Wilkins' car, according the police, which prompted a crowd of about 100 to converge on Wilkins.

They pulled him and three passengers from the car and assaulted them. They also smashed his car.

The three passengers were Ronald Neal Jr. 18, Rachel Cousley, 15, and Lori Atkinson, 18, all of Sault Ste. Marie.

They were taken with Wilkins by ambulance and private car to Charlevoix Area Hospital, where they were treated for lacerations, abrasions and bruises.

Wallace was treated for lacerations, burns and abrasions and kept overnight at the hospital.

Seven members of the sheriff department, two state troopers and a Castle Farms security guard were involved in dispersing the crowd and restoring order in the parking lot.

Substance Abuse unit workload rises

Northern Michigan Substance Abuse Services served over eight percent more persons in 1986 than in the year before, according to a report given the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

The report, presented by Dennis Priess, executive director, showed the following levels of activity:

–The agency served 5,283 persons last year, 455 more than the previous year.

--Charlevoix County ranked seventh among the 23 counties served in numbers of persons treated for substance abuse (279). Three hundred and 12 persons from adjoining Emmet County and 189 from adjoining Antrim County were treated.

–The 5,283 persons treated received 56,766 units of services, more than in any previous year.

–Of the persons served, 88.5 percent were treated for alcoholism.

–Men accounted for almost 80 percent of those treated.

–By age groups, 25.71 percent of those treated were between 30 and 39 years old; 22.45 percent were between 21 and 25 years; 27.21 percent were between 26 and 29; and 25.72 percent were between 40 and 54. Although the percentage figures are low, 45 children under 13 were treated, as were 205 children between 14 and 17. At the other end of the scale, 181 persons over age 60 were treated.

–Referring to the latter figure, the agency has received special funding for a project to develop a model for substance abuse treatment and prevention services for senior citizens.

–Last year, Northern Michigan Substance Abuse Services received funding in the amount of $2,646,543 for its work in 23 counties. Of this amount, $1,512,233 came from the State Office of Substance Abuse Services, $725,384 from fees paid by persons treated, $303,024 from local sources, $72,271 from federal sources, and $33,630 from other sources.

Ex-resident featured in library book

by FRAN MARTIN

Barbara Sugden is pictured on the cover of "A Day in the Life of a Librarian" being held by Marybeth Wallick, librarian at Charlevoix Public Library.

Barbara Sugden, former resident living in Barrington, Ill., is the central figure in a book, "A Day in the Life of a Librarian."

The text was written by David Page and is illustrated with photographs by Roger Ruhlin.

Sugden says the book is one in a series relating to various professions and careers written especially for children by Troll Associates.

The Barrington Library was selected because it is comparatively new, having been opened in 1978, and because it is located near the home of the photographer for the series.

The library has about 90,000 books, hundreds of records, tapes and film strips, periodicals and daily newspapers from many major cities.

It has facilities to rebind books, visual and audio rooms, facilities for workshops and equipment available to the public.

"Our library," she says, "is the largest of seven within a library district of approximately 72 square miles. It has a population of approximately 28,000 in a very affluent suburb of Chicago. We have everything you could ask for in a library. If you look at the book, you will see what I mean."

A copy of the book can be found in the children's section of Charlevoix Public Library. Sugden gave it to the library as a tribute to her second grade teacher Frances Milner and to Florenz Milner, who was librarian when Sugden was in school.

"I can still remember Miss Milner marching us off to the old library," she says, "explaining about the library and getting library cards for all of us and taking out our first books.

"The other Miss Milner was the librarian. She allowed us to explore the shelves, suggested books, helped us when we needed help and made our visit to the library a pleasant experience.

"That was my introduction to libraries. It was also when my interest in libraries was born."

After graduating from Charlevoix High School, she earned a bachelor's degree in library science at Western Michigan University and a master's in library science at Univeristy of Pittsburgh.

She was employed briefly at a children's library in the east before becoming chief librarian at the Barrington library in 1975.

Priest honored at going-away party

The Knights of Columbus and the Rosary Altar Society of St. Mary's presented Fr. Casey with a wristwatch.

His new assignment will be St. Mary's Church of Hannah in Kingsley, Mich.

About 300 St. Mary's Church parishioners said "good-bye" to Fr. Casey Zawacki at a farewell dinner.

Among cards and gifts he received were two sweatshirts with the imprint "Charlevoix".

School board decides to organize foundation

The Charlevoix school board Monday approved establishment of an educational foundation.

After discussing the advantages of the foundation, the board voted to sign a contract with Educational Foundation Consultants of Williamsburg for $7,000 to have the firm establish the foundation.

Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren said there are local groups interested in this approach of obtaining funds for items not included in the general fund budget.

Among these would be funds for scholarships for such things as fine arts and special equipment for such things as a theater.

The foundation would be oeprated by a board of trustees who would seek funds through grants and other means.

A change approved in the Student Handbook raises the requirement to participate in graduation to 20 credits. In the past 19½ credits were necessary.

State Rep. Ralph Ostling presents a resolution to Barbara Toton, widow of former county commissioner and Boyne City commissioner Cass Toton. The resolution, passed by the state Senate and House, was presented at an Ostling fundraiser which drew 85 people to the Weathervane restaurant.

Townships being reassessed

Over 100 property owners in Charlevoix, Norwood and Hayes townships have received notice their property assessments will be increased by approximately 50 percent beginning in 1988.

Assessor Bob Potter has sent them letters advising that "the Health Department code in Charlevoix County has been changed to allow for a mound system for septic tank fields," and, because of this change, "all assessment reductions that have been granted because the Health Department would not give a septic tank permit will no longer be honored."

Co-op workers become sheriff's helpers

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and Top O'Michigan Electric Co. have joined forces in an effort to deter rural crime.

Under the "Good Neighbor Watch" program, rural electric employees will use two-way radios to report suspicious activities, crimes, accidents and other potentially dangerous situations to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department through the co-op dispatcher, said Sheriff George T. Lasater.

The crime prevention program, founded by the Michigan Sheriff's Association (MSA) and the Michigan Electric Cooperative Association (MECA) will include the co-op and the Charlevoix, Antrim, Otsego, Kalkaska and Crawford County sheriff's departments.

"Good Neighbor Watch will supplement the efforts of other successful community programs, such as the 'Eyes and Ears' program of Consumers Power Co. and Detroit Edison," said the sheriff.

"The difference," he said, "is that this program will focus specifically on the rural areas of Charlevoix County, which are patrolled primarily by sheriff department deputies."

Raymond Kuhl, general manager of MECA, said this program will eventually be coordinated with sheriff departments in 51 Michigan counties.

"The rural electric co-ops are pleased to participate in this program as a community service," Kuhl said. "Because their crews travel hundreds of miles through rural areas every day, they can be an extremely helpful resource for law enforcement."

Co-op employees are not authorized to pursue or apprehend a suspicious person, but are trained to observe and report suspicious behavior, according to Lasater.

Blue and white Good Neighbor Watch decals will be displayed on rural electric cooperative vehicles participating in the program. Citizens who need police or emergency help can approach co-op employees in designated vehicles for assistance.

Doug Fuller follows the shoreline in a boat as he plots vegetation on a map in an effort to determine wetlands.

6 areas on Lake Charlevoix pinpointed as prime wetlands

by PEG OHLE

As the Goemaere-Anderson Wetlands Act continues under fire by some land owners, real estate people and legislators, the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council is busy evaluating the wetlands along the major lakes and streams in three northern Michigan counties, including Lake Charlevoix.

Under a grant from the C. S. Mott Foundation, wetland surveyors Doug Fuller and Mike Rekowski are closely following the shoreline of the lake, using a small boat.

Vegetation which indicates wetland areas is plotted on large-scale maps using a DNR classification system, and other land uses, cover types and important features are recorded.

They also make vehicle surveys of the areas and utilize aerial photos in the mapping process.

Information gained through the wetland surveys will be made available to local governments, lake associations and land trusts to assist them in protecting these sensitive areas from destructive development, according to Martha Lancaster of the Watershed Council.

The Watershed Council has prepared a partial list of "priority wetlands" around Lake Charlevoix which it plans to use to "initiate voluntary landowner protection programs," a report from the Watershed Council indicates.

The four "priority wetlands" singled out are:

– The former Camp Charlevoix property, a large forested wetland with a stream running through it, emptying into a marshy area of Lake Charlevoix in Hayes Township.

"This wetland is a beautiful cedar swamp with important water regime functions, wildlife values, and shoreline stabilization capacity," the Watershed Council reports.

– The Horton Creek Watershed is a large valuable cedar swamp located on the north shore of the main arm in Horton Bay.

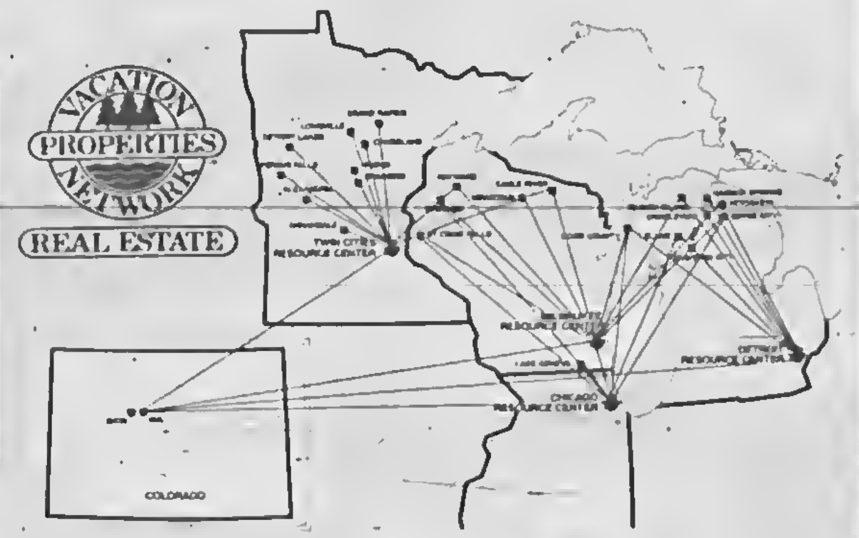
A portion of the wetland is protected by the Horton Bay Club. An Adamus report (thorough study of the area by maps as well as field investigation) is available on this area.

– North of the Sequanota Club on the south shore of the main arm is a forested wetland owned by Jane Sooy. It is a cedar swamp and is undisturbed.

– The Jordan River "Spreads" is a valuable marsh located at the mouth of the Jordan River in East Jordan. It is a valuable wildlife area and also serves to filter sediments and nutrients entering Lake Charlevoix.

Further information about these priority wetlands and other areas of Lake Charlevoix shoreline may be obtained from the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council.

Market Exposure



It's the name of the game in effectively selling your condominium or waterfront home and property. And there is no brokerage firm better equipped to maximize that exposure, in the appropriate marketplace, than Vacation Properties Network.

Obituaries

Della M. Stover

Della M. Stover, 87, former Charlevoix resident, died Saturday, Aug. 1, at Cambridge Nursing Home in Madison Heights.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton of Community Chruch of God officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Born in Iron River June 10, 1900, the former Della M. Peaslee came to Charlevoix in 1905 when she was adopted by Ernest and Mary Peaslee of Hayes Township. She attended Charlevoix schools.

On April 7, 1920, she married Jospeh A. Stover in Charlevoix, where they lived until moving to Rochester in 1941. She was employed at McAllers Manufacturing Co. in Rochester until she retired in 1964. They moved back to Charlevoix at that time.

Mr. Stover preceded her in death Feb. 23, 1970. Since 1974 she lived in Lake Orion with her daughter, Margaret Partrick. She was a member of First Baptist Church of Charlevoix.

Surviving are a son, Joseph A. Stover Jr. of Pontiac; two daughters, Mary E. Miller and Margaret Partrick, both of Lake Orion; eight grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Lincoln A. Cappell

Former Charlevoix resident Lincoln A. Cappell, 64, died July 30, 1987, at his winter home in Clearwater, Fla.

A memorial service was held 1 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 5 at Bethany Lutheran Church, Charlevoix. Pastor Robert Piller will officiate.

Mr. Cappell was born July 26, 1923, in Detroit. The family later moved to Saginaw where Mr. Cappell attended Saginaw schools and graduated from Arthur Hill High School in 1941. He served with the U.S. Army in Europe for three years.

While working for Consumer's Power Co. for 38½ years, Mr. Cappell began work with the company in Saginaw. He then became region office supervisor in Traverse City from 1950-1966. At that time he again returned to Saginaw, serving in the same capacity until 1975 when he became administrative supervisor at the Big Rock Nuclear Plant in Charlevoix. Ill health forced his retirement in 1979.

On Jan. 7, 1946, Mr. Cappell married the former Phyllis E. Miessner in Saginaw.

Mr. Cappell was an avid golfer and belonged to the Charlevoix Golf Club. He was past president of the Traverse City Exchange Club and a charter member of the Wig Wam Club. He also was a life member of the VFW of Marion, Mich. and the American Legion Post, Charlevoix. He was a past president and board member of the Hillcrest Villas Condominium Association in Clearwater. He had served in many offices for the Chez Charlevoix Condominium Association and was currently secretary-treasurer.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Cappell is survived by three sons, Timm H. Cappell of Saginaw, Robert P. Cappell of Zilwaukee and Verne C. Cappell and his wife Judith of Grand Rapids; six grandchildren, Timm and Todd Cappell of Freeland, Blake and Blair Cappell of Saginaw and Jennifer and Sarah Cappell of Grand Rapids; two brothers, George W. of Saginaw and John V. of Florida.

The family suggests memorials to the Bethany Lutheran Church, 1407 Bridge St., Charlevoix, Mich. 49720.

Lovell 'Dub' Spence

Lovell 'Dub" Spence, 81, of East Jordan, died Tuesday, July 29, at Little Traverse Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey.

Funeral services were held Friday, July 31, at Paullin Funeral Home in East Jordan. The Revs. Michael Allen and Richard Sommer of Grace Bible Church officiated. Interment was in Morehouse Cemetery, Echo Township.

Born in Boyne City Nov. 5, 1905, to Edward and Mary Ann (Murphy) Spence, Mr. Spence moved to Canada with his parents in 1912. In 1924 he joined the U.S. Navy. In 1936 he moved to Detroit.

On Feb. 24, 1940, he married Kathleen Graves at Windsor, Ont. They made their home in Detroit until 1962 when they moved to East Jordan following his retirement as a machine repairman at Oakman Manufacturing Co. in Detroit.

Mr. Spence attend Grace Bible Church in East Jordan. He enjoyed fishing and tinkering.

Surviving are is wife; one son, Dennis of Charlevoix; three grandchildren, Cathy Shupert of Vestal, N.Y., Shannon Spence of Challis, Idaho and Steven Spence of Charlevoix; two brothers, John of Boca Raton and Earl of Ridgetown, Ind.; and two sisters, Hattie White of Ridgetown, Ont., and Evelyn Kennedy of Canton; and many nieces and nephews.

The family suggests memorials to the American Cancer Society or Grace Bible Church in East Jordan. Envelopes are available at the funeral home.

Grant Wheater

Grant Wheater, 95, of Charlevoix, died Friday, July 31, at Bortz Health Care Center in Petoskey.

Funeral services were held Monday, Aug. 3, at Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Bruce Hamilton of Community Church of God officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Born in Muskegon April 13, 1892, Mr. Wheater was raised in the Muskegon area. He married Edith Gilbert at Muskegon in 1911. She died in 1943. On Oct. 14, 1944, married Ova N. Everson at Muskegon, where they lived until coming to Charlevoix in 1972.

Mr. Wheater was a pattern maker and was employed at Anderson Pattern Co. for many years until he retired.

Survived are his wife, Ova N., of Charlevoix; two sons, Paul R. of Manistee and Alfred G. of Fruitport; five grandchildren; 20 great-grandchildren and 10 great-great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the Alzheimer's Disease Foundation. Envelopes are available at Winchster Funeral Home.

29TH ANNUAL CHARLEVOIX WATERFRONT ART FAIR

SPECIAL SUPPLEMENT TO THE CHARLEVOIX COURIER AUG. 5, 1987

29th annual event features artists from region, nation

The Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair celebrates its 29th anniversary this year with its annual one-day show on Saturday Aug. 8.

The show opens at 10 a.m. Serious buyers and gallery owners arrive and buy early. The fair closes at dusk.

As a direct result of the art fair's influence, there are three art galleries in downtown Charlevoix, a dozen professional artists have established themselves and opened studios in the area, and buyers and collectors come to Charlevoix throughout the year to search out contemporary Michigan and national artists.

But on the day of Charlevoix's Waterfront Art Fair, this community bursts at the seams with artists, buyers and collectors, not to mention thousands of art lovers who come to browse. Police estimate that Charlevoix's year-round population of 3,200 is swollen by an additional 30,000 people on art fair day.

Charlevoix's art fair is a carefully juried exhibit of works by some 150 fine artists who work in varied media. It is not a crafts fair.

The painters, sculptors, weavers, fabric designers, jewelers, many of whom have exhibited repeatedly at Charlevoix, are selected through a several-week process in early spring, when jurors review slides of their work.

"The reputation we have established at Charlevoix is essential to both our artists and those who come to buy or view," said art fair committee member Suzi Reis.

"Gallery owners and private buyers count on finding quality work here or they would not come. If we did not hold to our standards we'd lose the buyers and then we'd lose our artists," Reis explained.

The art fair is a panoply of color, shape and form, spread across Charlevoix's downtown park. Each artist has an allocated space, numbered and mapped, so visitors may easily find their way amongst the exhibitors. Art fair committee members and high school students direct visitors through the fair.

Among the artists to watch for this year is watercolorist Margaret Longthorne from East Lansing. Her works have a wide following in the midwest and she was awarded a first prize by the Chinese Water Color Society in 1982 when she won an all-expense-paid trip to the Republic of China.

Carlyle Crisler's theatrical use of colors in her pastel drawings reflect her experience in theater. Crisler, who is from Ann Arbor, creates what she calls "non-literal costume portraits" using the colorful patterns of textiles.

Uganda-born Mathias Muleme has been an exhibitor at Charlevoix for several years. Now living in Ontario, Muleme focuses his printmaking on mother and child reflections, using strong black, and white contrasts.

The evolution of Mike McDonnell's work has fascinated Charlevoix art fair followers. He has moved from landscapes and detailed studies of old Michigan barns, to mood works, using shapes and tones in unusually abstract works for a watercolorist.

Art fair exhibitor Terri Haugen of Benzonia's batik work was featured in a Detroit News magazine column "Who's Hot" this month. Haugen's work has been featured on the cover of both the Reader's Digest and Yankee magazines.

Dee Knot, of Flushing, and Randall Higdon of Coloma are both members of the American Watercolor Society. Both are highly regarded Charlevoix art fair participants.

Another watercolor artist, Harris Holt III, of Pineville, N.C., is a newcomer to the fair this year. His scenes from the south, middle and New England Atlantic states are in such corporate collections as Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith Inc.

Well-known Charlevoix artists Russell and Sue Bolt, who work together on ceramics and individually in sculpture, paintings and printmaking, have a large following of private and gallery collectors.

Lori Bolt, who was awarded a scholarship for the study of art three years in a row by the Charlevoix art fair committee, is now a professional artist living in Denver. She is returning to northern Michigan this year to exhibit her intricate fabric designs in pillow, hangings and quilts.

Ceramacist Barbara Godwin, whose fine white on white procelain works are in constant demand, is also bringing a whimsical seies of "Michigan Mermaids" – mermaids of rainbow trout and white fish – in ceramics to Charlevoix this year.

Gallery owners agree the growth of a year-round artistic community in the Charlevoix area is a barometer of the art fair's success.

Quilt maker featured artist

This year's featured work at the Waterfront Art Fair will be a quilt of Charlevoix scenes created by Bonita Siders of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Siders, who will be present at the 29th annual event, will have her quilt on display on the East Park bandstand.

The award-winning quilt is 5 feet by 4 feet and is owned by Caroline and Don Perry of Fairport Marine.

It contains squares with familiar sites in Charlevoix: Houses along Michigan Avenue, Juilleret's, La Croft, Belvedere houses, the Coast Guard station, Vickers Farm, the Belvedere boat house, the Coast Guard cutter Sundew and the Star of Charlevoix cruise ship.

Siders has been self-employed, handpainting needlepoint canvases and creating original quilts and quilt designs, since 1981. Before that, she worked in retail sales in fabric stores and as a seamstress for an interior decorator.

Several of her quilts have been displayed in regional and national shows and have been published in quilting magazines.

Her "Molly's Baskets and Bows" was exhibited at the first annual American Quilters Society show in 1985 and at the National Quilters Association show that year.

At the latter show, it received the Founder's Award for best first quilt and third place overall in the applique division.

The quilt was published in The Quilt Digest 4 in April 1986.

"One Year's Passing" received the Judge's Special Recognition Award at the National Quilters Association show in 1986. and first place at the first annual Back Home in Indiana Quilting Party that year.

The quilt was published in Ladies Circle Patchwork Quilts in February-March 1987.

Siders has taught and lectured regularly in the Fort Wayne area since 1985, has lectured at the Central Ohio Quilters Guild and has taught in Indianapolis, Auburn, Ind., Belt Buckle, Tenn., and Columbus, Ind.

2 art students receive scholarships from fair

The two recipients of this year's Waterfront Art Fair scholarships have been selected.

Receiving the $1,000 scholarship will be Jeffrey Kelly and receiving the $500 scholarship will be Mary-Margaret McLenon.

This is the 15th year the art fair has given out scholarships, said Suzi Reis of the committee. She believes no other art fair in the country supports local art students in a similar way.

Kelly has completed two years at Kendall School of Design in Grand Rapids and is aiming to obtain a bachelor of fine arts degree with a major in illustration and possibly a minor in fine arts.

In 1986 he received the Zondervan Award in a school competition for Bible covers of a New International Version being published by Zondervan Publishing in Grand Rapids.

He had three pieces shown in the college Art Gallery exhibit with one piece in 1985 used in a traveling show of juried student work.

He has also done freelance artwork as an illustrator and has done some paintings for people in Charlevoix.

After completing school, Kelly thinks he would like to work as an illustrator, then move into fine art illustrating and begin his own business.

His scholarship money will be used to cover tuition costs at the private school.

McLenon is attending Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, where she intends to obtain a bachelor of science degree in in art education with emphasis on textile design and art history.

She has designed period costumes for local restaurants, designed and sold garments and art work through several local shops and galleries and done display window work for local businesses.

McLenon has taken several art courses in high school and college, including those in fashion illustration, life drawing and design principals.

After receiving her degree, she wants to obtain a master's degree in fine arts and teach at the college level.

Her scholarship money will go to help by tuition at the state university.

In a tough year, an advertising cutback is the easy way out.
(out of business that is).

New cruise ship prepares to sail

From the ashes of the Star the Spirit has arisen.

A new cruise ship is expected to begin operating tourist trips Thursday, Aug. 20, according to its backer.

Mark L. Thompson of Petoskey, who is a partner in the endeavor with Jack Schmidt of Charlevoix, told city council of their plans Monday.

Thompson, who has 20 years of experience in the maritime industry, says they have a ship, a captain and part of a crew already.

Once a contract is approved with the city for use of the dock once earmarked for the new Star of Charlevoix paddlewheeler, he says, they will be ready to go.

The new boat will be called the Spirit of Charlevoix, Thompson says, partly because they wanted a name similar to that of the Star and partly because they want to "be a part of the community and return something very positive to the community."

The Spirit will be a former Arnold Lines ferry that was mothballed when Arnold put a catamaran in service to Mackinac Island this year.

The 93-foot, 400 passenger boat is Coast Guard-inspected and ready to go, he says.

Operators expect to run four tour cruises a day, with lunch and dinner cruises similar to those on the Star and two family-oriented cruises featuring a narration about the Lake Charlevoix community.

The meal cruises, which would be catered out of Hugo's, a Schmidt-operated eatery which closed earlier this summer, would cost about the same as Star meal cruises have in past years, Thompson says. Dinners will probably be $23 and lunches $18, he says.

The family cruises will probably cost $7.50 to $8 a person with a $25 cap per family, he says. The narration, being prepared by Russ Wood, would contain information about the Charlevoix area, Beaver Island, Great Lakes shipping, and the northern Michigan childhood experiences of authors Bruce Catton and Ernest Hemingway.

Thompson says the Spirit of Charlevoix is prepared financially to properly advertise the ship's presence for the rest of the season.

"We're going into this with our eyes open," he says. "We know what we have to do and we will do it."

Thompson says he has dreamed for years of running a cruise ship and wanted to operate one in Charlevoix. But the Star was already here.

When Star Lines announced in June that its new ship would not be ready for this season, Thompson says, he saw his opportunity.

"After he (Star Line owner John McGoff) pulled out, there was a void here," says Thompson. "I knew someone else ought to be able to run a comparable operation."

Thompson is not afraid the Spirit is starting operation too late in the summer.

"Star Line did 50 percent of its business after Aug. 15," he says, with 35 percent coming in October for fall color tours.

The company is also looking to get a foothold in for next year and is asking the city for a right of first refusal in 1988 on the pier at the end of Clinton Street.

The Spirit is trying to reestablish the market left behind by the Star, he says.

The Star is a big draw for Charlevoix, even though it is not even here, says Jacquie Merta, executive director of the chamber of commerce.

Looking at art works was not the only activity worth undertaking during the 29th annual Waterfront Art Fair. East Park was packed with one of the largest crowds in art fair history. For a pictoral review, turn to page 3.

City council to consider condo limits

A twice-rejected ban on waterfront multiple-family development is headed to city council.

The limitation of "condo"-type development has been turned back twice by the planning commission.

At the insistence of Mayor Ralph McRae, a prime backer of the limits, the matter will now be taken up by council.

A public hearing will be scheduled on the zoning ordinance amendment planners voted down Monday by a 4-2 margin.

That amendment would have limited land uses to single-family houses and marine-fishing businesses within 200 feet of Round Lake and Pine River Channel.

Exemptions attached to the proposal by McRae would have excluded the downtown area and Lake Charlevoix property, which is already protected by scenic reserve zoning that allows no residential uses.

Voting for the restrictions were planning commission members Barb Fels, who proposed the ban, and John Friedly. Casting negative votes were Walt Hufford, Dave Novotny, June Cross and Al Ranger. Don Meggison was absent.

Supporters of the limits gathered about 800 signatures on petitions.

"What you have in front of you are the petitions of almost 800 people in the community who are concerned about what happens in town," said Doris Lundteigen, who was among those spearheading the petition drive with McRae. . . .

Lundteigen was joined in supporting the ban by Jerry Puhl, president of WATCH, who said his organization's 700 members were in favor of development limits.

Don Berlage, who has been proposing a hotel on Park Avenue overlooking Pine River Channel, presented a map showing existing uses along the waterfront.

His map showed that about 73 percent of the shoreline is occupied by public and private recreational,

AROUND THE TOWN

The hills could be alive with color thanks to a proposal by City Manager Mike Wiesner.... He would like to see some sort of community project that would brighten the banks of the hills on both sides of the Pine River Channel....

Wiesner envisions flower-covered hillsides to rival the attractive, community-attended hillside in Alanson.... With new south walkway construction slated for this year, Wiesner reasons, the channel could become another shining example of Charlevoix the Beautiful.

The city is moving ahead on the next installment in the development of more parking space downtown.... Council has given its OK for purchase of the house owned by Betty White next to the new Erber parking lot on Clinton....

The city signed an option several weeks ago and has until May 1 to purchase the house.... Some council members forecast tearing down the house and using the whole lot for parking, others predict parking in the rear of the lot and continued use of the house – either by sale or lease....

It will cost the city $70,000 with $10,000 down and the rest paid over five years at 11 percent interest to acquire the property.... The money is coming from the Downtown Development Authority, which gets its cash from the special two-mill tax on downtown businesses.

Sidewalk repairs may move up a year in the city's five-year plan to restore streets, sewers and sidewalks.... City Manager Mike Wiesner says he has had several calls from residents about the poor condition of sidewalks all over town....

The problem seems to be worse this year, he says, noting that one youngster lost three baby teeth in a fall.... Sidewalk work is scheduled for the third year of the program, but could be moved up to next year, he says ....

Under the city's sidewalk policy, residents pay 60 percent of the replacement costs and the city pays 40 percent.... Only bad sections of sidewalks would be replaced, Wiesner says.

Live, from Charlevoix... it's the '6 O'clock News'

Must be something big going on in town. Both Channels 7&4 and 9&10 have arrived.

Oh, the guy from The New York Times is here, too, but he can't compete with the lights and cameras.

What they're here for, of course, is a juicy story – resort community says no more condos. What they get is a little less.

The story's so hot Channels 7&4 even brings along its newest gadget – the Starbeam-mobile, a mobile unit with a satellite dish on top to lead off the 6 o'clock news with a live report from the meeting.

But The Glitch That Stole Christmas almost ruins the coup. With reporter Dave Fortin standing just outside the meeting room doors, anchor Dave Walker delivers the lead-in.

There's the picture, a remote camera shot from the back of the meeting. But where's the sound? Fortin is speaking in hushed tones, but the Starbeam is hushing them too much.

A little later, a second try. A few words. Silence. A pause, then Fortin's report.

As he finishes talking, the door to the meeting room is closed behind him.

Meanwhile, in the council chambers, Marilyn Taylor of 9&10 tries to slip around the room as unobtrusively as someone lugging a video camera, camera bag and spotlight can.

First she's by the door, then on the floor in front. Next a few crowd shots, then into another corner.

She sits and listens, taking some notes.

In awhile, Fortin enters. Standing front stage center, he videotapes crowd reactions to a speaker.

Moving from one side of the room to the other, he captures the expressions of the planning commissioners, then exits.

Eventually discussion ends and a vote is taken. The issue is decided.

A five-minute break, time to relax -- and tape a few stand-up interviews.

The principals are trooped into the hall and up against a wall. Later, they will be able to see themselves on TV – Doris Lundteigen, Don Berlage, Walt Hufford.

Fortin packs up his Starbeam and heads off to prepare his 11 p.m. story. Taylor sticks around for awhile.

The guy from The New York Times slips out quietly.

Marilyn Taylor of Channels 9&10 videotapes the audience as planning commissioners Dave Novotny (left) and Walt Hufford listen to a resident's comments on condo limitations.

Charlevoix Yesterday

The photo above was taken almost a century ago -- in either 1889 or 1890, according to Lora Quick of Lansing who shared it with the Courier. Both photos are of the Ironton school, which she attended through eighth grade. The photo of the school was taken in 1923. Some people she can identify: DeWitt Hammond (third from left in back row), Bert King (fifth from left in back row), Nuki Coblentz (fifth from right in back row) and Celia Hammond (second from right in first row of standing girls at right). Celia Hammond was Lora Quick's mother.

3½-mile paving project ready to start

Work is set to begin on paving 3½ miles of local roads in the city.

The city has awarded a $101,925 bid to Peninsula Asphalt of Traverse City to do the work on 18 streets.

The paving is part of the first-year projects in the $1.6 million city infrastructure repair program being funded by a 4-mill tax hike approved by council in June.

Peninsula submitted the lowest of three bids. Also bidding were H&D Inc. of Petoskey and Traverse Asphalt of Traverse City.

To be paved are:

- Burns for 450 feet from Crouter to Auld.
- Carpenter for 1,200 feet from Charlo to Norwood.
- Central for 300 feet from Cherry to Elm.
- Eaton for 1,200 from May to the top of the hill near Leonard.
- Ferry for 2,270 feet from Eaton to the curb section approaching Belvedere.
- Grant for 400 feet from Park to the fish hatchery.
- Grant for 1,270 feet from Antrim to Garfield.
- Green for 450 feet from State to Bridge.
- Lake for 1,320 feet from Park to Garfield.
- May for 1,300 feet from Garfield to Carpenter.
- Park Row for 300 feet from Cherry to Dixon.
- Nettleton for 450 feet from Petoskey to Crouter.
- Newman for 2,100 feet from State to Sheridan.
- Norwood for 1,000 feet from Carpenter toward Garfield.
- Robinson for 450 feet from State to Bridge.
- Sheridan for 650 feet from Garfield to Westwood.
- Sunset Drive for 800 feet from Circle Drive to Michigan Beach.
- Westwood for 930 feet from Sheridan to Beacon.
- Wood for 450 feet from State to Bridge.

City Manager Mike Wiesner had contemplated having several alleys paved, but found that it would take about 10 years to come out even on costs.

Maintenance of the gravel alleys, he says, costs about $1,800 a year and it would have cost about $17,000 to resurface them with asphalt.

Reunion set

A reunion of Clark School students will be held Wednesday, Aug. 19, at the Norwood Fellowship Hall.

Dinner will begin at noon. Participants are asked to take a table service and a dish to pass.

Clark School was open from 1901 to 1945. The building remains standing, now converted into a house.

Band deserves a hand

Editor,

In appreciation: to Terry Isenberger and all the members of the volunteer band who gave so freely of their time and talent this summer that we might enjoy a relaxing hour on Wednesday evenings surrounded by beautiful scenery, people and music.

I would hope for their sakes as well as the audience's that the P.A. system for announcements could be improved in the future; that a mural could be painted on the north wall of Wharfside Market for an attractive background (perhaps by a high school art class?) and what has become of the plans for a covering for the "Odmark Pavilion"?

Don't let locusts take over

Editor,

I would like to thank the year-round residents of Charlevoix for making this lovely place so wonderful for those of us who are summer people. Not only is Bridge Street relatively free of cheap tourist shops that so often clutter and hide the real town, but it is a business district that continues to serve the needs of the local people. Shopkeepers and grocery clerks are friendly and gracious. The postal clerks are unfailingly cheerful. The library opens its doors to residents and transients alike. And, it is wonderfully obvious that the general population loves the city for all the residential areas are beautifully maintained with well-tended homes, manicured lawns and lovely gardens.

My one hope for all residents (year-round and summer) is that the swarms of developers who are descending on this beautiful town are controlled by strong town support for sane and careful development of the entire area. Like locusts in a Kansas wheatfield, they will fly in laying waste to vast and prime pieces of land, departing shortly thereafter with fat wallets and leaving behind cheaply made and unsightly condominiums that mar the views and stress the enviornment.

There are many ugly places in this world that once were beautiful but destroyed by greed, the fast and dirty buck. Please don't let this happen to Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Thanks for bridge warning

Editor,

I think Mr. Clock deserves a big thank you for stopping that girl from climbing on the bridge during an opening.

Few people realize the possibility of a lawsuit against the State of Michigan should an accident occur, regardless how careless he or she may have been.

We do our best to prevent this but without cooperation from local citizens like Bob, it is very hard. If local citizens set an example for strangers, think how much easier it would be for everyone.

The folks at Horton Bay — the glittering capital of the Banana Republic — have ready explanations for every contingency.

The other day Bill Stewart, who lives in nearby Hayes Township, was surprised to find an ancient floatboat, flagship of the Banana Republic navy, tethered to his dock in Lake Charlevoix.

He reported his unusual find to his nextdoor neighbor, Tom Dammann, who maintains diplomatic relations with the Banana Republic.

Dammann immediately called Jon Hartwell, a member of the Horton Bay junta, to tell him where he could find his floatboat — the same craft that staged successful invasions of Harbor Springs, Sault Ste. Marie and other northern ports earlier this summer.

"The boat was commandeered by terrorists from Walloon Lake," Hartwell explained matter-of-factly. "Their jets have been buzzing us all day."

It was a beautiful explanation, certainly worthy of the Banana Republic.

However deeper probing revealed that another member of the junta, Moon Mullins, had been cruising up the lake with some honey when the screw fell off the floatboat. He managed to reach Stewart's dock, where he tied up and left a note explaining what had happened. But the note apparently blew away.

Or the Windigo ate it. Last spring, the Banana Republic militia conducted a fruitless search for a Windigo — a giant ape-like creature with bloodshot eyes — which reportedly had been seen prowling the lakeshore.

So much for terrorism at Horton Bay.

I WOULDN'T BE surprised if survivors of "The Great Traffic Jam" band together and form some sort of organization to commemorate the catastrophy.

And I would like to recommend a name: The Charlevoix Bridge Club.

In case you haven't heard, the highway drawbridge, which spans Pine River Channel and is the only link connecting the north and south sides of the city, was stuck in the "open" position for about 45 minutes at 12:30 p.m. Friday during a power failure.

Traffic was backed up for literally miles on both sides of the bridge, and, from what I hear, a great deal of camaraderie developed among the strandees.

Ever since, the old town has been divided into two factions: Those who were stuck by the bridge and those who weren't.

And those who were don't hesitate to flaunt it over those of us who weren't. To hear them tell it, you'd think they had survived the sinking of the Titanic or the San Francisco Earthquake.

So I think it is only fitting that the veterans of this calamity take immediate steps to preserve its memory — lest we forget. I visualize some sort of organization with elected officers, an honorary board of directors based on their position in the traffic jam, and regular weekly or monthly meetings to talk about how long they had to wait, who tried to cut in line and any permanent physical disabilities they may have suffered as a result of the delay.

I am sure any number of marriages will result from the mishap. You can't make big eyes at the girl in the next car for 45 minutes without something happening.

I also see such a group being politically active, supporting such worthy causes as better roads and repeal of the drunk driving laws.

Then once a year — on Aug. 7 — they could all get together at the bridge and blow their car horns to celebrate the anniversary.

For honorary membership, I'd like to nominate the enterprising young lad who ferried pedestrians across the channel in his dinghy while the bridge was up.

Prosperity, progress go hand-in-hand

Letters to the editor:

Editor,

Congratulations on the way that your newspaper continues to demonstrate excellent responsibility to our community. Specifically, I refer to your latest public service of printing the questionnaire regarding condos and the Inn, and the responses.

Permit me to add a few comments, but first let me qualify myself. I speak as a person that lives downstate and married a girl from the Charlevoix area and who has spent as much time here as possible. Our children and grandchildren continue to spend "all season" time here. In fact, one son lives here with his family and has businesses in Charlevoix. My wife's grandparents were early settlers, so that adds up to five generations of interest in, and paying taxes to, the community.

About traffic – It will get worse. But that has little to do with local condo development. True, the hills around town are crested by, and the valleys and lake shores are dotted with many, many homes that were not there 20 years ago. But I believe that most of the traffic is generated out of town. Traverse City's huge expansion of tourist facilities has resulted in traffic headed north. That combined with traffic headed south from the Petoskey and Boyne City areas has more to do with the Bridge Street traffic jams than our local increased population.

Traffic is particularly heavy during Charlevoix's tourism promotions. Jeff Drenth's Memorial race, the Hobbycraft Fair, Boardsailing, Venetian Festival, the Art Fair all contribute to more traffic. Who would step forth and say let's eliminate those summer events because we don't want so many people in town? Beautiful? Yes! Charlevoix is one of the tiny, rare jewels of beauty in the world, and I can speak with some authority. But more important, it has always been noted as a community of good hospitality and warm friendliness. A community whose people have regard, respect and deep affection for their town. A good, good place to be.

So instead of complaining about summer traffic, lets enjoy it as a sign of summer prosperity and try to solve the problem. Why not consider routing southboud traffic over to State Street for the summer as we do during parades? Or perhaps eliminate parking on Bridge Street? Because it is four lanes, the bridge itself is no major tie-up, except on the half hour. And isn't that another of Charlevoix's charm?

Charlevoix is a very prosperous community and looks it. It is progressive. The citizens and city fathers should be proud of the progress that is being accomplished but especially in the core area. Street after street has well-kept homes and yards, many with new paint or improvements. Look at the new parking lots. Look at how old houses have been fixed up like Elizabeth's with its beautiful flower garden next to the post office. Look at Mont Wither's old place, how it has been transformed into a quaint looking, colorful jewel – this should be encouraged – and the little businesses on Park Street, or the arcade where the Courier office is. Look at what the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful group has done. And, of course, the great contribution that the Dale Bosses have made with the petunia project. Even Breezy is in town. Much of the area's prosperity that pays for these improvements is a result of developing our tourist infastructure and the Chamber of Commerce's smarts to market the area.

About Round Lake – The suggestion that it should be preserved for marine activities should be followed, I believe, even to the extent of putting the surviving boat houses, marinas, fish shanties, Earl Young's houses, et al, in the National Register as an Historical District. Also, the island by the Coast Guard Station should be preserved in its natural state. I believe that we should support the city fathers for that goal.

About the channel – The options seem status quo with the old houses remade into more rentals, a small hotel, new single families of some undetermined architecture, or an extension of Hoffmann Park. Speaking of parks, the increased beach are by Irish's is great. Now, let us think about how to best develop public facilities at the old Inn location.

About the views – On Bridge Street going south, other than a few outside modifications, basically, little has changed in the shopping district from LaCroft to McDonald's except for the new Edgewater Inn, and even then, only about 17 units out of 40 in the Lodge cannot see the lake directly in front of them. Southbound travelers have now traded the sight of the high fence of the old lumber yard for extremely attractive, well-landscaped gardens in front of the new commercial stores being built at the Inn. As a matter of fact, this promises to be the most attractive commercial part of Bridge Street and should provide an example that will be hard to beat.

Going north – Again, little has changed except the trade of the weathered lumber yard buildings, which did have a certain old time charm, for the new Inn. Yes, The Inn does cut off the sight of the Lodge and one of the houses on Thistledown Lane, and it does dominate that corner of the bridge. From an architectural view, Jack Begrow's style makes a nice counterpoint to Earl Young's Weathervane Restaurant.

About tourism – It is important to Charlevoix. It always has been, from before automobiles in the heyday when trainloads of people came to the old hotels, clubs and local rooming houses, even until today. The summer money influx has added to the community's economic stability.

About the Edgewater Inn – From a year-round tourist and economic standpoint, this is probably one of the most significant single projects to be built in Charlevoix during the past 50 years, and very likely for a long time to come. Because the Inn will have the largest single space for conferences and meetings between Petoskey and Grand Traverse, it will be a focal magnet for bringing convention business to town in the off seasons. If more hotel rooms are built near the Inn, that will help, too.

The Inn is not a new idea. It is my understanding that a hotel project had been considered even when Jim Hiller owned the property. And when McGoff proposed a hotel there, he asked for tax concessions and federal assistance. Outsiders have considered the project. At last, local folk, Mr. and Mrs. Jon Hisey, are completing the task. They should be congratulated for taking the financial risk that will benefit the area for years to come. They did it with no tax breaks or federal assistance. Many people have told me how pleased and proud they are to have Jon and Carol and their work in the community.

About seeing the Calcite – Yes, it is really something to see. After parking, I walked to the edge of the channel and watched it come through and later after the bridge went back down, I walked over and watched it work through Round Lake. That certainly is something to watch.

Two things that I wish had not been torn down, The Carnegie Library and the Railroad Bridge.

Thank you for providing a community sounding board. Keep up the good work.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared
by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Have you ever considered what's in a name? Before coming here, we lived in northeast Alabama. There were some places with really unique names down there.

Speckled Hen, Ala. was so named because a speckled hen would ride to church each Sunday with the town's most prominent family. Just down the road a piece was Frog Mountain. No, there weren't a lot of frogs there. It was named after Chief Frog, a local Indian.

Well, have you ever considered what's in a name? From the first moment of our lives, our names are drilled into us virtually every waking moment. They give us a sense of who we are, a feeling that we belong, sometimes they even help us decide what our life's work will be. But there is another name...

Paraphrasing a gospel song of a few years back, it won't be Buddha that sits upon the throne. It won't be Hare Krishna that's calling people home. And old Confucious, well, he died confused. But Jesus Christ, now there is a name! The name that all power of heaven and earth has been given to. The name that marks the only way by which man can be saved. The name that lights the true pathway to peace.

Are we taking full advantage of what God has given us in the name of Jesus? Are we enjoying the full freedom from sin that the name of Jesus entitles us to claim? Are we practicing the power that is ours as children of God, brothers and sisters together in the name of Jesus, and growing in our faith? Much of what troubles us and holds us back could be solved more and more by learning to lean on the name of Jesus.

In the name of Jesus, your past can be forgiven and forgotten. In the name of Jesus, the present and future can't help but hold a brighter promise. What's in a name? If that name is Jesus, everything!

Hotel alternatives submitted

A second attempt by Don Berlage to convince planning commissioners his motel proposal fits present zoning has met the same fate as his first – a tie vote.

Berlage wants to build a 21-unit Pine River Inn on Park Avenue overlooking the Pine River Channel.

He has now submitted three alternative site plans for the property which he wants the planners to pass judgment on.

The site plans were not submitted in time to appear on Monday's planning commission agenda, but Berlage was assured by city planner Gerry Harsch they would be considered at the next meeting.

Berlage has asked for reconsideration of his request after a tie vote in July. He wanted the entire board to be present.

An attempt to drop the full-board requirement was rejected by chairman Walt Hufford at the previous meeting, but approved this week.

At issue was whether Berlage's plan is compatible with the uses allowed in a commercial-scenic zone.

Among those uses, besides several retail and office possibilities, were multiple-family residential units.

Berlage argues that hotel-motel use fits that definition and also that his proposal is a better use than many others that would be allowed.

"Under all circumstances, this is the best development for that parcel, best for the land, best for me, best for the neighborhood ... and best for the town," Berlage says.

He compares his proposed use with allowed uses providing lodging – a private club, condo apartments and bed and breakfast operations.

Harsch says bed and breakfast is allowed on some portions of State Street but not in commercial scenic zoning.

Jack Begrow, who designed the proposed inn, said the channel was once lined with lodging units, listing several that existed in the 1930s.

And a man in the audience said condo units can be rented in the same way as hotel rooms if the rules of the specific condominium association are not written to prevent it.

The planning commission deadlocked on allowing the use, with Al Ranger, Walt Hufford and June Cross voting for Berlage's request. Voting against it were Barb Fels, John Friedly and Dave Novotny. Don Meggison was absent.

Following the denial, Berlage said he had options such as again asking for a vote of the full board or possibly appealing to the zoning board of appeals.

He also said he wanted consideration of his three site plans so the project can move ahead.

One plan is for a 21-unit private club, he says, with no difference in the layout of the inn – just in its use and ownership.

The second, he says, is for an 11-unit condominium-ownership residential building. In this layout, he says, the size of the units is double those in the hotel but the overall configuration of the building remains the same.

His third alternative, he says, is for a nine-unit condominium with a reduced building shifted further east on the property.

He says he wants the planning commission to pass judgment on all three plans separately.

City planner Gerry Harsch points out the area under consideration for limits on development.

Planners reject condo ban nondeveloped land.

Another 16 percent houses single-family residences, for a total of 89 percent not multiple-family or available for multiple-family.

That leaves about 10 percent now occupied by multiple-family, including hotels.

Berlage said only one percent – by his count, three parcels with a total of 148 feet of waterfront – can be developed under its present zoning as multiple-family.

Two of those pieces he owns and the third is next to them.

Berlage later noted that much of the multiple-family construction has replaced older buildings and has not taken up "new, vacant, pristine land."

Carol Sullivan, a city resident and an urban planner who has Berlage among her clients, said the restriction would be a stopgap without long-term positive gains for the city.

"Limiting development to single-family homes is not going to protect our view corridors," she said, pointing out that the 10,000 square foot Anderson house on Lake Charlevoix is a single-family residence but is readily visible through the lower Pine River Channel and across Lake Charlevoix from many vantage points.

R.J. Button, who said he was speaking as an outsider, said multiple-family housing is much more desirable from land use and taxation purposes, requiring fewer services and paying higher taxes. Button said he is a developer in Flint and Dallas but has not built condos.

Planning commission member Ranger said change is going to take place, even though people may not want it to, and the city should insist on quality development. For that reason, he said, he favors considering each project on its own merits rather than adopting a blanket prohibition.

Commissioner Novotny said the city already has prohibitions in its zoning laws to restrict unwanted uses and said much of the condo development took place before the present zoning ordinance was in place.

"It's time," said Fels. "We've been talking about this since I've been on the planning commission," while admitting the proposal may not have all bases covered.

Hufford, the planning commission chairman, said other than on Berlage's property, the proposal would have no effect.

When the city council takes up the amendment, four positive votes among the six council members would be needed to adopt it. The mayor would not have a tie-breaking vote as he does in other matters.

No date is yet set for the public hearing. Some council members wanted the proposal put on a work session agenda for discussion, but McRae insisted it be scheduled for a council meeting where a vote could be taken.

The planning commission is an unpaid, voluntary advisory panel. The city council has final say on zoning and planning matters.

Cruise ship

Between 20 and 50 percent of the people who stop at the chamber office are looking for the Star, she says.

Star Line did extensive advertising before the season was scrapped. And the Spirit of Charlevoix operators plan to go after the fall color tour business with heavy advertising, says Thompson, who has been advertising and special projects director for Seaway Review magazine.

Having the cruise ship here during the autumn should help city businesses which were concerned about end-of-season trade without the Star, Merta says.

She says some motel owners have reported that some bookings for this fall have been cancelled since the it was announced the Star would not sail this year.

Rock-filled barge overturns in lake

A 180-foot barge loaded with white stone capsized in Lake Michigan in heavy seas 10 miles south of Beaver Island early Friday resulting in the loss of 250,000 tons of white rock and a small crane according to Charlevoix County sheriff's deputies.

The barge was being towed by the tug Gregory Busch, owned by Barry Busch of Saginaw.

There are views to be seen from the brushed aree off Park Avenue, but it takes e little effort to find them.

Beach view restoration asked

In a city where complaints over lost views are common, one may have been found.

The city has been asked to reestablish a vista along Park above Michigan Beach.

The area of tall trees is filled with undergrowth that blocks the view of the beach below and of North Point and beyond to western Emmet County.

Sidney Feldman, who lives across from the city land, calls the parcel the "last unbuildable, unencumbered view of the lake... but there is no view."

He has asked city council to remove some of the undergrowth to open a view near the east end of Park near Grant.

The area would be an ideal place for picnickers and sightseers to stop, he says, with its wide grassy area along the road.

The city of St. Joseph, says council member Shirley Roloff, has opened a similar area and created a beautiful setting.

City Manager Mike Wiesner says he has looked at the area with Michigan State University forestry graduate student Ken Larison, who is working the city this summer.

They concluded, Wiesner says, that "from Michigan Beach to the water plant probably could be a good view corridor."

The area was cut back for years, Wiesner said, but hasn't been recently. An expert in soil erosion would have to be consulted before cutting could take place on the slope, he says.

The city has no money in the budget to take on such a project this summer, council member Bill Bellows says, but could look at it for next year.

Wiesner says he will look into the costs and problems involved so council can decide what it wants to do.

Bob Gill, who also lives across from the bluff, is concerned that the cuttings not disturb long-growing trees in the area.

The area includes "one of the most beautiful stands of white pine in this part of the country outside of Hartwick Pines" near Grayling, Gill says.

☐ Large vulture of the southwestern United States.
☐ Building where Yuppies live.
☐ Popular sailing port in Maine.
☐ Thin protective sheath for the penis, usually of rubber, used to prevent venereal infection or as a contraceptive.

IF YOU HAD TO THINK ABOUT THAT ONE before answering, you're probably not alone. For years, much of society has been hush-hush about the whole question of birth control and sexually transmitted disease, afraid someone might be offended on moral or religious grounds.

But suddenly, everybody's promoting condom use. It's in the papers and on TV. Even the Surgeon General (who we used to only hear from on cigarette packs) is pushing for more and earlier sex education, and wider condom availability.

It's no wonder, when you consider that more than 179,000 Americans will die of AIDS by 1991, and that this year alone more than a million U.S. teens will become pregnant — nearly 3,000 each day.

Planned Parenthood has worked for years to bring talk about sexuality and birth control out in the open where it belongs — in the family room, at church, and in the classroom.

We're also the oldest and most trusted voluntary family planning agency in the country. It's not surprising that when people think of convenient, affordable and strictly confidential reproductive health care, they think of us.

At Planned Parenthood, we believe now more than ever the time has come for honest, open discussion. Young people need to know how pregnancies happen, and how to prevent them. They need to know how sexually transmitted diseases are spread, and that short of abstinence, a properly used condom is the best protection against them.

Sure, some people think the answer is to continue trying to hide the facts from young people, but there's just too much at stake. Today, keeping young people in the dark could literally cost them their lives.

Sports

Dr. Tai-Hee Kang (left) of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Benefit Golf and Dinner organizing committee and Dennis Kuslna of Kuslna Motors display the 1987 Cadillac Cimarron that will be awarded to the first golfer in the tournament to sink a hole-in-one on the Antrim Dells No. 13 during the Aug. 23 event.

Hole-in-one will aid golfer, hospital

A 1987 Cadillac Cimarron will be awarded to the first golfer to sink a hole-in-one on Antrim Dells' No. 13 hole during the second annual Charlevoix Area Hospital Benefit Golf and Dinner Sunday, Aug. 23.

Reservations for the event are being accepted at the hospital. Those interested can call the administration office at 547-4024.

Tickets for the golf tournament and dinner are $50 each. That includes the golf entry fee, a motorized cart and a steak dinner.

Non-golfers are also welcome for supper, the tickets for which are $15 each. Hors d'oeuvres and cocktails at a cash bar will be available at 5 p.m. and serving will begin for dinner at 6 p.m.

The golf tournament gets under way with a shotgun start at 2 p.m. Participants should report to the registration table no later than 1:30 for their starting hole assignment.

The format is a four-person scramble scored on the Peoria System which gives foursomes of almost any skill level a good chance to win. Both men and women may enter.

The winning team will receive a first place prize of $200 in cash. There will also be prizes awarded for longest drives and closest-to-the-pin competitions on selected holes.

As in last year's event, "Thirst Aid" mobile units wil be roving the course with refreshments.

Kusina Motors of Charlevoix will present a new Cadillac Cimarron to the first participant to score a hole-in-one on the 159-yard No. 13. The car is on display this week on the Charlevoix Area Hospital lawn and next week at the Antrim Dells clubhouse.

Proceeds from the golf and dinner benefit will go toward the purchase of new and replacement equipment for the hospital. The cost of tickets for the event is tax deductible.

Island team wins island tourney

McDonough's Market came through the winner's bracket to capture the title in the 12th annual Beaver Island Bud McDonough Memorial tournament played during the annual homecoming festivities at St. James, Beaver Island, over the weekend.

McDonough's defeated Villager Pub of Charlevoix in the finals 19-11 with Don Willis on the mound. Phil Skeel took the loss.

Jim McDonough, Tom McDonough, Rusty Gonsor and Cory Einhardt had home runs for the victors. Brent Cole and Skeel had roundtrippers for Villager.

After winning the opening game in the tournament by a 9-8 score in 10 innings over Diekever's Roofing of Grand Rapids, Villager Pub was sent to the loser's bracket by Townhouse of Charlevoix in a 4-0 shutout.

Villager fought back to take the next three games before running head-on into the team that sent them to the bottom bracket.

This time Villager edged Townhouse 9-8 in eight innings with Skeel claiming the win. Cole hit two homers and Skeel one.

Bob Alexander took the loss. Gordy Block had the team's only homer.

Tim McDonough of McDonough's Market was named most valuable player; Jim Werner of Townhouse won the batting title with a .667 average and Cole of Villager the home run title with six.

Lake plan hearings scheduled

Dates have been set for public hearings on the report of the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee.

The committee has been working for 2½ years on the recommendations to prolong and limit use of the lake.

The Charlevoix hearing will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 1, in the county annex building on Antrim.

The Boyne City hearing will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 2, in the Boyne City city hall.

A hearing in East Jordan may be held Tuesday, Sept. 8, but rescheduling is possible because the city council also meets that night.

County planner Larry Sullivan, who has worked with the 15-member board, said people interested in hearing a presentation on the report and making comments on it may attend any of the hearings.

Written comments are also welcome, Sullivan said.

Sullivan and Rod Cortright, Charlevoix County agent for the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service, have been presenting the report to city and township boards around the county.

The committee will meet again on Monday, Sept. 14, to consider comments made at the hearings and possibly alter the report to reflect those comments.

Sullivan hopes to have as many committee members as possible attend each of the public hearings.

Based on formulas worked out by the committee, a July survey of the lake indicated use has reached about one-third of the recommended capacity.

This conclusion was reached by counting the "boat-equivalents" parked around the lake.

Sullivan's boat trip on July 2 showed 5,328 boat equivalents parked at private and public facilities around the lake. The committee's formula says the lake can withstand about 17,000 boat equivalents.

Sullivan found 2,343 equivalents at private homes, 1,946 at public and private marinas and 1,039 in Round Lake.

Boat equivalents are determined by assigning multiplication factors to larger and faster vessels so they can be counted as small boats.

For example, a small fishing boat is one equivalent, a sailboat is two and a fast, sleek "cigarette" boat is 10 based on how much space is needed to operate the vessels safely and happily.

The committee concerned itself with more than just the lake, though, taking into consideration the entire watershed.

Included in the report are recommendations on density of housing, how far back from the water and how far above normal water levels dwellings should be built, expansion of sewer systems and wetlands protection.

Establishment of an authority to oversee lake use is also recommended. Such an authority would be made up of government, resident and business representatives.

For any of the recommendations in the report to be enforced, they would have to be adopted by the townships or cities within the watershed.

Elementary pupil registration set

Parents of Charlevoix Elementary School students who have not been registered for classes in the first through the fifth grades are asked to stop by the school after Monday, Aug. 25 to register.

The office will be open daily, effective that date, from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Monday, Aug. 31, is the date for registration of kindergartners not registered during the spring round-up.

Those parents unable to attend on Aug. 31 may register the kindergartners anytime after Aug. 24.

Parents enrolling a kindergartner must take a valid birth certificate and an up-to-date immunization record.

The Charlevoix board of education recommends children entering kindergarten be five years of age by Sept. 1.

Yachting Notes

"A Pearson-air night" said one salt as he looked into his glass and tried to foget his disappointing finish. "When it blows like that, I see too many sterns."

His companion nodded in agreement and added, "Whether I was to windward or in front of them, they just seemed to move by me like I was dead in the water."

The CYC racing fleet is liberally sprinkled with Pearson yachts, but rarely have they put on such a show as they did Wednesday night with winds holding at 10-12 knots for the 7.9 mile course.

In the JAM Fleet, John Gordon's Flash, a bright red P-30, caught the cannon followed by John Hall's Pearson Flyer, Tigger, with a couple of P-26's, Sandpiper and Apothecary right behind. Next came Stalworth, Cheemsun, Maureen, Cabaret, Canusa and Sunrise.

In the smaller of the spinnaker fleets, it was a near command performance as the P-26's took the first five (count 'em, five) places with Tireless, Blasen, Foxy Lady, Phoenecia and Cygnus cruising in with Bandit, Nulli Secundus, San-Sue-She and Kittiwake making up the fleet.

In the large boat chute fleet, Gary Gleason had his previously unbroken string of first place finishes snapped by Sally and Grant Hawkins in Night Moves, and S-2 yacht, with Gleason right behind in his new Schock-35 Sorcerer. Completing the finish were Wingnut, Miss Piggy (whose skipper undoubtedly had his mind on his newest crew member, a daughter, Ann Strawbridge), Gotcha, Babe, Slapsbot (did Orlow ever play hockey?), Merry Hell, and Mr. Breeze.

The applications have been mailed for the annual Red Rox Regatta. If you haven't received yours, try opening your mail once in a while.

And for you sailors wondering why you spend fall Sundays watching the Lions lose, Dave Strawbridge has arranged a Fall Sunday Race Series.

Official Notice

Regular Meeting-Eveline Township-July 28, 1987-all board members present and 11 guests.

Minutes read and additions were made.

Several items of old business were discussed-dry hydrants, culverts, zoning litigations.

Connie Martin from Northern Cable T.V. updated the board on new construction projects slated for this year in our area. Also B.C. Cable T.V., a new company in the area, was represented.

Correspondence from Sheriff Lasater was read and discussed-concerning buoys for a swimming area in Ironton and also concerning the usage of foul language used at the concerts at Castle Farms.

A motion was made that Ambulance and Fire Protection be prohibited from exceeding 5/10 of 1 mill from Charlevoix, Boyne City or East Jordan-unless extra millage is voted in by residents; motion tabled until the Sept. meeting of the board.

A complaint and correspondence from William Brereton was discussed at length.

Eveline Township Planning Commission members and Township Board members worked on possible zoning ordinance amendments and the proper procedures for handling violations. A motion was made supported and carried to adhere to procedures listed in the ordinance and a motion pertaining to fines on Feb. 10, 1987 is now rescinded.

Zoning fees were reviewed and revised: Sign Permits-$25, Zoning Permits-$25, ZBA-$60, Regular Planning Meeting-$50.

Meeting was adjourned at 12:07 a.m.

Island holds blood drive

The Beaver Island EMS and Rescue and the American Red Cross will hold a Beaver Island Blood Drive from 1 to 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 1, at the Community School.

This will be the first time an island community-wide blood drive has been held.

Several island businesses are working with Island EMS and Rescue to overcome logistical challenges an island program presents. Summer population swells as high as 4,000 in a community with a winter population of less than 400.

Beaver Island EMS and Rescue challenged sponsors of a Mackinac Island Blood Drive Aug. 27 to collect more blood. The winner will receive Mackinac Island fudge or Beaver Island white fish. Mackinac has accepted the challenge.

Bible school set to begin

Final plans are now being made for Charlevoix's Community Vacation Bible School. The sessions will be conducted from 9:30 a.m. until noon Monday through Friday, Aug. 17-21, at the Assembly of God Church of M-66.

Children who will be four years old by August through those who have just completed fifth grade may register. The school committee asks that registrations be turned in as soon as possible, although registrations will be taken at 9 a.m. Monday, Aug. 17, at the church.

Bus transportation to and from the church will be provided. Adult-supervised stops include: elementary school, Reformed church, Methodist church, Catholic church, Southside Apartments on May Street, and corner of Lincoln and Sheridan Streets.

The morning pick-up time will be 9:10 a.m.

Registrations forms can be found displayed in grocery stores and other businesses. For further information, call Cheryel Yingling at 547-2654 or 547-5168.

St. Mary holds parish carnival

The third annual festival sponsored by St. Mary's Parish will be held Saturday, Aug. 15.

Events will start at noon and continue until midnight.

Colorful tents will contain live entertainment ranging from Las Vegas-type games of chance to music by Renaissance, a local band. A drink tent will sell soft drinks, beer and wine.

There will be games for kids, games for teens, a dunk tank and bingo games. Prizes up to $1,000 may be won in a drawing.

All houses in Charlevoix will be reappraised

All residential properties – except condos and apartment buildings – in the city will be reappraised for tax purposes in the coming weeks.

The city has hired Great Lakes Appraisal Service of Lansing to determine the current market value of houses.

It has been about 10 years since city residences were appraised, says city assessor Bob Potter, who has expressed concern about the accuracy of some of the work done then.

A letter is being sent to property owners by Potter, explaining that the reappraisal is under way. Appraisals are used to figure the current sales value, which by state law is twice the assessed value used in determining tax bills.

As properties are sold or built, they are recorded by the assessor's office to keep records fresh.

If properties have not changed hands, though, current value may not be reflected in city records. Often, assessments are increased by across-the-board percentages which may inaccurately reflect the value of individual properties.

"The purpose of this reappraisal is to assure that each property is assessed according to its market value," Potter's letter states. "Its purpose, however, is not to raise property taxes."

The appraisers – who work for Great Lakes but are approved individually by the city – will be examining every residential property except condos and apartments attached to businesses.

Potter appraises commercial properties – which include large apartment complexes – and says sales of condo units provide an accurate track of their value.

The reappraisal, Potter says in the letter, "will lead to more equitable assessments throughout the city."

Included in the work will be reappraisal of the Belvedere and Chicago clubs. The city and Chicago Club have been at odds for years over its assessed value and recently resolved an argument that had reached the state court of appeals.

There are 1,470 parcels – including 124 in the clubs – to be appraised, Potter says. This includes 132 vacant parcels.

There will be at least nine employees of Great Lakes involved in the reappraisal. They will each have an identification card from Great Lakes and a letter of introduction from the city.

They will be seeking to obtain building measurements and any other information about the interior and exterior of the house that will help them determine an accurate value.

As part of their work, they will be seeking entry to observe and measure the inside of the house, but it is up to homeowners to decide whether to let them in.

Realtor Bob Kern worked for a large appraisal firm in Ohio, where reappraisals are mandated every 10 years. He suggests allowing the appraiser to enter.

"They should let them in. Otherwise, they might value it far more than they should," he says.

Potter is concerned about the accuracy of the decade-old appraisals because the work was done by employees in the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act program.

In at least one instance, Potter said, it was later determined that the information gathered in the appraisal was listed under the wrong address.

Council member Shirley Roloff questioned bringing in an outside firm, saying she thought Potter should be able to keep up with the assessing work himself.

City Manager Mike Wiesner responded that all residential appraisals should be completed within a short time to ensure market conditions are equal when all are appraised.

Roloff and Earl Muma voted against hiring Great Lakes; council members Bob Timms, Bill Haggard, Norm Probert and Bill Bellows voted to pay the firm $28,000 for the work.

Dispute over use of city land ends in property swap

For several weeks officials and residents complained city property was being used for private purposes.

While that was true, so was the opposite – the city was using the same property owner's land.

With this in mind, council has resolved a summer-long dispute with Jim Holmes over a chunk of property behind Tom's Mom's Cookies and Cotton Harbor.

At the center of the dispute was a deck built by Holmes off a renovated apartment behind the cookie shop. Stairs from the second level ended on city property.

The city parcel was a piece about 20 by 15 feet that abutted the alley midway down the block of Bridge between Clinton and Mason and the parking lot on Mason.

The land forms the fourth quarter of a rectangle created by the two stores and the vacant land.

Holmes improved the property – adding shrubs, replacing (with city crew help) broken concrete – in the eyes of council members, but his request to buy the piece of property upset those who noted he made the request after beginning construction.

After the dispute bounced around among the city manager's office, planning commission and council for six weeks, it was returned to the council.

During discussion of possible solutions, it was noted that the city had paved up to the back of the building and was using that as part of the parking lot.

A new survey done because of a request to build apartments above Kouchy's Gallery next door indicated a strip about 3½ feet wide belonged to Holmes, however.

A compromise initiated by council member Bob Timms trades the portion of the city property Holmes wanted for the piece the city is using.

The city piece is cut by the swap into two abutting triangles, with Holmes receiving the one closest to the buildings and the city retaining the other to aid turning trucks.

Holmes will be paying all legal and surveying fees and any other costs involved in the land swap.

The deal was approved by council on a 4-3 vote with Mayor Ralph McRae casting a tie-breaking vote.

A parking question remained, though, because the city zoning ordinance requires five parking spaces for the apartment and an existing apartment.

Holmes presented a letter from First State Bank of Charlevoix allowing him use of bank property across from City Hall for parking three cars.

Council member Bill Haggard said Holmes still had two parking spaces on the site because it was physically possible to park two cars on the lower level of the deck.

Again it took a tie-breaking vote from a reluctant McRae, who said he did not like the solution but wanted the issue resolved.

Voting against both the land swap and the parking waiver were Shirley Roloff, Norm Probert and Earl Muma. Voting for them were Haggard, Timms and Bill Bellows.

Traffic begins moving after the Memorial Bridge was lowered after an hour delay.

No way to bridge gap as span is stuck up

It was bound to happen sometime and at 12:30 p.m. Friday in the midst of summer noon hour traffic it did – the bridge was locked open by a power outage.

The bridge was up for approximately 65 minutes as traffic piled up as far back north and south as the city limits, marine traffic came and went at will and stranded motorists cussed chief bridge tender Carl Soblaskey.

The outage, according to Ed Whitley, supervisor of the city's utility department, was caused by an over-loaded transformer at Ferry Avenue and Eaton Street which feeds the north side from Meech Street west to Lake Michigan downtown from Bridge to Grant Street.

Whitley said the transformer was carrying 250 amps, 50 above its normal 200, causing a switching unit to malfunction and resulting in a fire.

Meanwhile, Soblaskey recruited volunteers, including Police Chief Dennis Halverson, to manually lower the bridge. A second crew was recruited, including workmen at Edgewater Inn, to lower the north section.

Soblaskey said eight men were required for each "team."

The bridge was lowered to its normal position when the power was restored at 1:30 p.m. so it was opened again to allow marine traffic to pass. This created more irate motorists.

Soblaskey said this is the first time he knows of that traffic was halted at mid-day during the summer. About six years ago, he said, an outage caused a two-hour delay during the "off" season.

To add to the confusion, the fire department received a call – but it was to a garage on Clinton.

Donations grow for petunia auction

There's a mystery weeder on the loose.

It's not Jerry Knudtson or Robert Hooper, both of whom have been taking care of petunia beds on the north side lately.

And it's not Nancy DeHollanders of Windy Hill, the latest recipient of the Broken Hoe award from Keep Charlevoix Beautiful.

But it's a well-dressed gentleman with a black retriever last seen in front of the Lodge. The mystery weeder says he is legally blind but that doesn't stop him from helping out.

This year's unusual summer weather has made weeding a major chore for Operation Petunia volunteers.

And it has prompted KCB to consider installing a weed blanket along the 5-mile route next year. A plastic weed blanket has been tried out this summer on part of the golf course portion of the petunia bed.

Besides volunteer help from many residents, KCB has had to hire outside help to keep up with the weeding.

Weeding can be a chore. Last year a young lady was working off a $40 court fine by helping in the petunia beds. When the morning was over, she handed KCB president Bruce MacArthur a $20 bill and said she had had enough punishment.

The extra cost of weeding is just one of the expenses the organization is trying to raise funds for with its annual auction, which will be held on Labor Day.

Other expenses include paying for the first-prize car in the annual drawing and for work done on the petunia watering truck purchased last year.

Besides the Mustang convertible drawing prize, KCB hopes to have about 40 items to auction.

Right now it has 25, including a trip to Frankfurt, West Germany; two trips to Mackinac Island – one to the Grand Hotel, the other to the Mackinac Hotel; a Hawaii trip; and get-aways to the Windward condos and the Harbor Cove condos in Harbor Springs.

The trips might be good items for area businessmen to bid on, says MacArthur, for a post-season vacation.

Sealed bids on these and the other auction items will be accepted, but KCB still has about 45 tickets on the car left for sale.

The $100 tickets allow the buyer and one guest to attend the auction festivities at the Weathervane and at the new Edgewater Inn conference room.

There will be more than $1,000 in door prizes, MacArthur says, along with hula dancers, flowers for the ladies and a party atmosphere.

The 25 auction items already acquired have a retail value of more than $14,000.

Included is a painting by William John Whitmore, which was appraised last week by Ernest DuMouchelle, well-known Detroit art dealer, at $2,000.

The 2½- by 3-foot oil painting of two sailboats was finished in 1952, when Whitmore was 92 years old.

Whitmore works have been sold at auction at the famous London auction houses -- Sotheby's and Christy's – for from $500 to $4,500.

Electric firm celebrates 50th year

The public is invited to tour the Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Co. offices and warehouse in Boyne City on Saturday, Aug. 15, in an open house to celebrate the company's 50th anniversary.

Open house hours are 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the company's headquarters at 1123 East Division (M-75 south) next to Carter's Food Center.

A cake cutting ceremony will be held at noon. Other events planned are an equipment display and safety demonstrations. Food and refreshments will be served until 1:45 p.m.

Following the open house, Top O' Michigan members may remain at the site for the annual business meeting at 2 p.m. at the company warehouse.

Three directors are to be elected at the meeting. Incumbents William Korthase Jr. of Boyne City and John Tanner of Kalkaska are joined by challengers Harold McCaughrin of Petoskey and Patrick A. Morrison of Cross Village in the directors' race. The third director whose term expires this year, Martha Drake of Petoskey, did not seek re-election.

Annual meeting guest speaker is author-humorist R.G. "Dick" Byers, who has spoken at more than 300 annual meetings of rural electric cooperatives in recent years. Byers "the electric world's Billy Graham," is also author of "Death in the Sky over the Middle East," a recount of his military experiences during World War II.

Top O' Michigan is a non-profit, rural electric cooperative established by rural residents in 1937 to bring electricity to rural Northwest Lower Michigan.

Right-to-Life holds social

An ice cream social and concert sponsored by Charlevoix-Emmet Right to Life will be held from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Friday, Aug. 14, in East Park.

There will be music from several area singers, and the emcee will be Dave Molin, station manager of WPHN radio.

In case of rain, the event will be held at Charlevoix Church of God, 202 W. Hurlbut.

The public is invited, and there is no charge.

Appraisers checking city houses

The appraisers have arrived.

A team of nine employees of Great Lakes Appraisal Service of Lansing began work Monday on a citywide reassessment of houses.

The reappraisal is being performed for the city, which is paying about $28,000 for the work.

The reappraisal will help achieve equity in home taxation, Mayor Ralph McRae says. It has been about 10 years since the last appraisal.

Only homes will be included in the appraisal. Businesses, condos and apartment complexes are appraised by the city assessor.

It's to the homeowner's advantage to cooperate with the appraisers, say city officials and a company spokesman. Then the appraisers don't have to estimate the value based on incomplete information.

A visit by the appraiser takes about 15 minutes, says Felicia Hulliberger of Great Lakes Appraisal.

The first thing the appraiser will do, she says, is knock on the door and present a letter of introduction from the city and a photo identification card.

If the homeowner is not there, the appraiser will call again. If the second visit is also unsuccessful, a card will be left asking the homeowner to set up an appointment through the city.

The appraisers will be attempting to enter 85 percent of the houses in the city.

They will be recording information about the house on a card that will later be used in conjunction with a state appraisal manual and a local economic factor to determine the current market value of the property.

These cards will contain information about the building's construction, age, condition, depreciation and land, along with a sketch of the building.

Noted will be the general quality of construction; type of floor, roof, basement, foundation, heating system and plumbing fixtures; and such other things as fireplaces, number of rooms, interior finish and sales or rent information.

Photographs of principal improvements will be taken and attached to the card, which is the property of the city.

The appraisers will be measuring the outside of the house, but not the inside, Hulliberger says. If a homeowner asks the appraiser to

Teacher contract talks go on; school begins with p.m. half-day

Negotiations between the Charlevoix School District and the Charlevoix Education Association are continuing as the school year approaches according to spokesmen for the two groups.

The teachers' contract in effect for the past three years expired with the end of the 1986-87 school year. Negotiations for another three-year contract have been under way since May.

Supt. Gordon W. Van Wieren said, "We are working together and trying to settle the contract."

Said teachers' spokesman Barry Anderson, "I feel we are making progress. We are presently trying to update the contract which has not been done for the past 10 years. Taking it page by page and reviewing it is what is taking time."

Anderson said meetings have been held on an average of once a week as they continue work on the contract.

Negotiations with the support staff is also under way.

Van Wieren said the school calendar has been approved. Every effort, he said, was made to have a common calendar with Char-Em Intermediate School District.

School will open Tuesday, Sept. 8, with teachers meeting at 8 a.m. for a morning session and students attending classes at noon.

Wednesday, Nov. 25, would likely be an in-service day for teachers with Thanksgiving Day and Friday as the usual Thanksgiving recess.

School would close at the end of the school day on Wednesday Dec. 23, and students would return on Jan. 4 for Christmas.

Spring break would be the first full week in April, 4 through 8.

AROUND THE TOWN

It looks as if Hoffmann Park won't be ready for a dedication ceremony this fall after all... Michigan Bell has made a proposal to the city that could put the park project on hold....

Bell has to put a new cable under Pine River Channel and has borrowed technology from the oil drilling industry to make the job easier.... With special drilling techniques, Bell will be able to drill at an angle under the channel and end up at a pre-determined spot on the other side....

Where Hoffmann Park comes in is that the only place Bell has found where it can apply the technology near where it presently has a cable crossing – laying on the bottom of the channel – is in the park.... The city might be willing to delay work on the park if Bell is willing to pay for some of the delayed work, plus give the city one of the seven conduits under the channel.... Negotiations are continuing.

News about the level of Lakes Michigan and Charlevoix in the coming months continues to be good.... The July level was 14 inches below the July 1986 level, and the forecast is that at the end of August it will about three inches below the end-of-July figure....

The six-month forecast is that the lakes will continue to be above the long-term average levels, but at the end of January they are expected to be about 22 inches below what they were at the same time in 1987.... The forecast comes from the Detroit District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

NETS GENERATION

Albert Arnold, born in Charlevoix in 1881, was one of the Michigan Bears.

Charlevoix fishermen taught Easterners

Gillnetting – a practice not always appreciated in Northwest Michigan – became a mainstay of the fishing industry in the oldest fishing port in the United States because of netters from Charlevoix. The story of how Great Lakes fishermen introduced the ancient methods to 300-year-old Gloucester, Mass., was recounted in the Gloucester Daily Times this spring and brought to the Courier's attention by Mrs. James May of Eastport. Here, reprinted with permission, are portions of Grace Schrafft's story in the Times:

It was 35 years ago that Robert the Rodent got his name.

"I was down my father's wharf behind the old East Gloucester drug store," he said. "It was low tide and I was poking around the mud in my hip boots. Tommy Morse was looking down at me from the wharf, and he said, 'Robert, you look like a rodent'."

"The name has stuck ever since," said Robert Arnold, the 64-year-old gillnetter from east Gloucester. "To this day, it's what all the neighborhood kids still call me."

According to Robert the Rodent, gillnetting is a method of fishing that's as old as the Bible.

Peter, Andrew, and Zebedee's two sons, James and John, went gillnetting out of Galilee until they forsook their nets for the bigger fish.

"And they did it the same way as us," said Robert the Rodent, "even to using the same kind of twine we did when we started out."

Be that as it may, gillnetting didn't get to Gloucester in any appreciable way until 1910.

That was the year some fishermen from the northern Lower Peninsula of Michigan decided to try out their luck in the North Atlantic.

They were in their teens and 20s, and like all the others who came here to fish before and since, there was a kind of wildness about them – born of having little to lose.

They were close friends from around Charlevoix, the sons of trappers, lumberjacks, fur traders and fishermen who had peopled that area for hundreds of years. Their bloodlines traced back to the oldest native families in all of North America, the Chippewa, and to the later French adventurers. A couple of them were of Norwegian stock, comprising the most recent arrivals to the Great Lakes, the gillnetting fishermen.

They had names like Arnold, Tysver, Shoares, Lafond, Lasley, Beaudain, Dahlmer, Zager, Leveille, Jones and Place. And just as gillnetting today is assumed to be as old as Gloucester, those Great Northern names are now considered old East Gloucester.

Albert Arnold, Robert the Rodent's father, was born into a Charlevoix family in 1881. At about the turn of the century, the young man turned his hand to fishing. It was a life that suited him until a strange kind of eel began to suck the livers out of Lake Michigan's schools of whitefish, trout and chub.

Albert Arnold's neighbor to the north was John Lafond, who at one time had ventured west in search of gold. In 1898, on a somewhat circuitous route home, Lafond landed in Boston and traveled up the coast to Gloucester, where he had seen a vital fishing industry.

Lafond told the younger men how odd it was that the largest fishing port in the world didn't have one gillnetter in the fleet.

"So my father and Mike Shoares and two Tysver brothers; 'Cy' (Oliver) and Herm, left there for here in 1910," said Robert the Rodent of his late father and the others who became Gloucester's gillnetting pioneers.

They were the first of the immigrants who came to be known as the Michigan Bears among their East Gloucester colleagues. How they got that name is somewhat unclear because taken as a whole, says Peter Shoares, Mike's grand-

Waste panel considers surcharge

The Charlevoix County Solid Waste Committee will hear public comment on the county's garbage and trash problems at its 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 20, meeting in the county building annex.

The committee is writing a plan for the disposal of the county's solid waste in accordance with state regulations.

At present, most of it is deposited in the Charlevoix County Landfill, a privately operated facility in Eveline Township.

Among matters to be considered at the meeting is whether deposits of waste into the landfill should be restricted by geographic area, waste type or volume.

Also under consideration will be the idea of a surcharge on solid waste deposited in the landfill – whether one should be placed on all waste, on only garbage and trash, on only waste generated outside of Charlevoix County, or on waste from all areas.

Addington begins second run for state House seat

by PEG OHLE

Ellen Addington, who lives just outside of Charlevoix County on Ellsworth Road, has announced her candidacy for representative from the 103rd district to the state House of Representatives.

This is Addington's second try for the job. A Democrat, she ran against incumbent Republican Ralph Ostling in the 1986 general election and garnered 44 percent of the vote as a relatively unknown first-time candidate.

As she did in 1986, Addington is stressing social issues as the mainstay of her platform. She is a retired teacher of emotionally impaired children and has served on various international, national and local committees working for causes of peace and hunger.

At present Addington serves as treasurer of Charlevoix County Hospice and is director of music for Charlevoix Congregational Church and conductor of the Charlevoix Chorale and Orchestra.

Organization memberships include the Michigan Education Association, Detroit Federation of Teachers, League of Women Voters, Business and Professional Women's Club, and American Association of University Women.

The candidate speaks in terms of the needs of the "4-E's" – the elderly, energy, education, and the environment.

The primary need of the elderly is some kind of insurance to cover the costs of catastrophic illnesses, Addington believes.

Ellen Addington

"A widow or widower should not be left with debts that wipe out their life savings," she says.

Elderly persons living on farms should not lose their farms because they can't pay the taxes that are levied on the basis of speculative values, she says.

"Farm property should be assessed on the basis of its use, not taxed out of business."

Addington suggests retired people could be used in teaching positions in the schools.

"We are rich in retired people up here, from toolmakers to teachers to nurses, to carpenters. They could all enrich our schools."

Of the shortage of jobs for young people in the area, Addington says, "If we want to attract business, we have to have an educated work force. Our schools must offer courses that teach skills."

She also believes there must be some kind of tax reform to support schools to make them equal statewide.

"condom"

THERE IT IS AGAIN. That word. You know, the one nobody used to say out loud, and certainly not in front of the kids. All of a sudden it's everywhere. Even on TV.

Maybe it's because more than a million teenagers in the United States will become pregnant this year. For many, that means shattered dreams and the beginning of a lifetime of welfare dependency.

Or it could be because, according to the National Centers for Disease Control, five million Americans will be carriers of the AIDS virus by 1991. It's no longer just a disease of homosexuals and drug abusers.

And maybe it's because short of abstinence, a properly used condom is the best protection there is against AIDS. Or because, with dwindling contraceptive options for women of all ages, the condom is a safe, effective method of birth control.

Planned Parenthood has been educating people about the health benefits of condoms for years, even though some folks would have you believe that talking about birth control right out in the open like that is downright evil, and that problems like teen pregnancy and AIDS will go away if we all just try hard enough to ignore them. In fact, some folks are shocked and outraged that women have the right to use birth control at all.

Fortunately, those folks don't make your health care decisions. You do.

Planned Parenthood offers a full range of convenient, affordable and strictly confidential reproductive health care services. Naturally, we carry a wide selection of condoms and other birth control supplies at reasonable prices.

We believe every individual has the right to make well-informed decisions about their health care. So if you want straight answers and quality medical care, call or visit your nearest Planned Parenthood. You see, unlike some folks, we believe that what you don't know can hurt you.

Council split on condo ban

City council members are split on what type of restrictions, if any, should be placed on multiple-family dwellings along the waterfront.

During an informal polling at Monday's meeting, council members gave their views on a proposed amendment to the zoning ordinance.

The proposal, as rejected by the planning commission, would restrict land uses within 200 feet of most of Round Lake, Pine River Channel and Lake Michigan to single-family residential and marine-fishing businesses.

Shirley Roloff said she at first supported the proposal, but later decided there may be portions she would like to see changed.

"We better be right in what we do," she said, adding that the proposal should be written for the long-term rather than as a stopgap.

Planned growth, she said, is good for the city.

Earl Muma said the proposal does not go far enough in some areas. He would like to see the area expanded to a 500-foot rim around the lakes.

He suggests development proposals near Round Lake and Lakes Charlevoix should be considered first by the Lake Charlevoix management advisory committee.

Muma also thinks the western end of Round Lake should be re-included in the ban. That portion of the lake was removed at the suggestion of the mayor before the planning commission voted the second time.

Bill Haggard says laws already on the books already provide controls on development. To add more, he said, would confuse the issue.

Bill Bellows said the city does not need any more high-density housing.

An altered amendment in the works, he said, should cover construction near the lakes "and there will not be high-density."

Bellows noted that condo-type units pay 32 percent of city taxes without adding pressure to services, especially schools.

Norm Probert pointed out that the city master plan calls for continued water views from substantial portions of the city.

He reiterated an earlier call for protection of view corridors throughout the city.

Bob Timms said restricting development is a good idea, "but we do have to have a legal way to go about it."

He supported Probert's proposal for controls on view corridors.

Mayor Ralph McRae said he is working with city attorney Jeffrey VanTreese and city planner Gerry Harsch on a revised amendment, which he said would be up for a vote in two weeks.

Berlage: Weigh 4 plans for site

There are now four plans for development of two lots on Park Avenue.

Attorney Don Berlage, who owns the property, has submitted three alternative plans to the original hotel development he sought.

"I have to get off dead-center," he said after the planning commission refused to let him build the hotel under the land's current zoning.

Berlage is asking the planning commission to pass judgment on each of the three new plans separately and also to proceed with consideration of the fourth plan.

In a letter to the city, he contends two votes of the planning commission should be considered as one vote because the panel is a "continuous body."

That would give Berlage a 4-3 affirmative vote by counting the votes of planning commissioners who were absent during the two votes.

City attorney Jeffrey VanTreese disagrees with that assessment. There is no basis in law, VanTreese says, for adding votes from one meeting to another.

Berlage's proposals will be on the Wednesday, Aug. 26, planning commission agenda, apparently as informational items.

Berlage said in another letter to the city that he is requesting consideration of the four site plans "since it is not known at this time, based on economic conditions, which development plan will be utilized by the developer."

His first plan is for a 21-unit hotel overlooking the Pine River Channel. The planning commission, on two 3-3 votes, has rejected his argument that that use is compatible with the property's commercial-scenic zoning.

A second plan is for a private residential club, with a non-profit corporation of members holding title. The club would have 21 units.

A third proposal is for an 11-unit residential condominium, and a fourth is for a nine-unit condo.

All plans show parking for 33 cars.

Opinion

Condo ban won't cure ills

The proposed "condo ban" going before city council is not the proper medicine in its present form. The proposal has too many ailments itself to seriously be considered a cure.

First off, the diagnosis isn't yet clear – is the malady loss of land, loss of view, traffic, jealousy, greed?

Secondly, the flying wedge approach backers are using to try to reach their goal is not in keeping with the orderly, reasoned approach the city should take – and has in the past taken – to creating law.

Thirdly, the proposal itself is flawed.

The dispute over multiple-family style buildings, which simmered for years, boiled over when construction of the Edgewater Inn condominium-ownership hotel began.

Caught in the backlash have been the Pine River Inn hotel proposal, the city planning commission and the property rights of individuals.

The primary question of whether something should be done remains unanswered. But proponents of the ban say the controversy has gone on too long.

The debate has continued for 20 years, though, because there are many sides to be considered and no clear-cut answers.

Mayor Ralph McRae – who introduced the proposal to the planning commission and repeatedly was rebuffed – and his backers are trying to ram-rod a ban through any door that will buckle.

They are attempting to turn a personal dislike for lakefront condos into public policy. And they are attempting to transform land use from a practical, financial decision into a political one.

The mayor has even pledged to make a political appointment to fill a vacancy on the planning commission.

While there is some latitude in their decision-making process, the planning commission and zoning board of appeals follow specific language – language aimed at preserving the character of the city as well as protecting the rights of land owners and their neighbors – in the zoning ordinance in making their decisions.

In order for everyone to be treated fairly, amendments to the zoning ordinance must be well-formulated and thoroughly dissected. There is ample evidence the condo ban as last proposed fails the test.

In their haste, McRae's group is trying to rush through a law even they can't agree on the wording of.

After nearly 800 people signed petitions supporting the zoning ordinance amendment, proponents thought of something else. So they tacked on exemptions that exclude half of the waterfront from its grasp.

How can anyone be sure the amended amendment is the one the people who signed the petitions want?

The proposal has taken on different forms in the past two months, ranging from a 180-day moratorium on consideration of multiple-family dwellings to an outright ban within 200 feet of any water.

In its last-seen form, the proposal would limit uses within 200 feet of Pine River Channel, three sides of Round Lake and Lake Michigan to single-family dwellings and marine or fishing service uses.

Now, McRae is working with the city attorney and planner on a revised revision. Council members rightfully are reminding the mayor they want a voice in writing ordinance changes and don't want to just have a proposal thrust in their laps.

As last seen, the "overlay" zoning raises questions about excluded areas, about future land uses other than multiple-family and about parcels which are caught in a no-man's-land by its all-encompassing wording.

It also could create some unintended headaches because wording allows single-family and marine in the limited area. Owners of single-family homes along the north side of Round Lake are already asking city officials if they can lease or rent their docks?

While these sorts of wrinkles can be ironed out, none have been. This is not a case of what you see is what you get. It's a case of nobody knows what you'll get.

The biggest question about the proposal has been raised by planning commissioners, the city planner and an affected property owner. Yet it is continually ignored by ban backers.

Does this proposal do what it professes to do?

Backers say it will halt the spread of multiple-style buildings. Backers say it will keep developers from stealing any more of the city's beautiful views.

In fact, the proposal will deny multiple-family use of one 100-foot lot. And, in fact, that parcel does not have a view of the water for anyone to steal.

While planning commission chairman Walt Hufford and property owner Don Berlage have stated they can see only three parcels the condo ban would apply to, city planner Gerry Harsch says that is now down to one.

Since McRae first proposed his ban, Berlage has submitted site plans and other requests for two of the lots. Those plans must be dealt with under current ordinances, Harsch says, and not under a law passed later.

The only lot left that is zoned so multiples could be built on it without a rezoning by city council is the Miles' home on Park.

For any other parcel in the affected area to be used for multiple-family housing, a lengthy process involving public hearings, consideration by the planning commission and approval by the city council is necessary.

This process provides sufficient protection for both the property owner and neighbors. The proposed ban in present form ignores the rights of the property owner.

Now that the proposal is in flux, this is a good time to slow down and make sure it doesn't cause more problems than it solves.

If the proposal has any merit, it will have merit when properly constituted and properly considered.

There's no sense prescribing a pill when we don't know the side effects.

Memorable theater

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

If you remember the days of Juan Peron's dictatorship in Argentina in the 1940s and '50s and the grandstanding of his tempestuous young wife, Eva, you will enjoy the musical "Evita" as an experience in deja vu.

But even if you are too young to remember Juan and Eva, the musical is powerful enough to stand by itself, thanks to super performances by Carlene Peregrine (Eva), Tom Schill (Peron), Lesley Kranz (Peron's mistress), Brian W. Dungjen (Magaldi, Eva's first lover) and Michael Norton (Che, an interlocutor modeled after Cuba's Che Guevara.)

In the second act, Peregrine emerges from her adolescent cocoon and appears as the Eva Peron I remember from the days of Movietone newsreels. The resemblance between Peregrine and the real Eva is striking and her powerful voice, particularly when she sings "Don't Cry for Me, Argentina," is memorable theater, anticipating Eva's untimely death to cancer at age 33.

Dressed in splotchy camouflage fatigues, the bearded Norton comes through as the prototype of so many Latin American revolutionaries — beguiling, articulate and critical of the status quo, but unable to find satisfactory solutions to the social inequality he abhors.

Lesley Kranz as Peron's amply endowed mistress does a plaintive rendition of "Another Suitcase in Another Hall."

The musical will run through Aug. 22 at the Traverse City Opera House, a beautiful old edifice on Front Street which is in the process of being restored to its former grandeur.

Built in 1891, the opera house was the focal point of the city's cultural activities until it closed in 1945. In 1972, the building was placed on state and national Registers of Historic Places in recognition of its cultural and historic value. Restoration has been under auspices of the City Opera House Heritage Committee.

"Evita" was produced by Tempest Productions, Inc., which will close the current season with "Jerry's Girls" Aug. 26-29 and Sept. 2-6.

THE OTHER DAY I called the view from the top of Mt. McSauba "stunning" and Judy winced. But I don't know how else to describe it.

Sunday I stopped at the Dale Glass home at North Point to scratch the Glasses' dog, J.D., behind the ears and assure him his masters would soon be home from a brief vacation in the Upper Peninsula. J.D. was happy to see me, but said he would like to take a little walk, if I had the time.

So I hooked J.D. to his leash and headed up nearby Mt. McSauba which I hadn't climbed since I gave up downhill skiing 20 years ago.

Thanks to J.D. pulling on the leash, the climb was easier than I expected and when we neared the top I was struck by the "stunning" aerial view of land and sea on all sides.

The last time I was on the top of the mountain, forest obliterated the view toward Charlevoix. Not any longer. The southern exposure has now been cleared for skiing and the climber (or skier) is rewarded with a panoramic view of the Charlevoix Harbor, Lake Michigan and the entrance to Little Traverse Bay.

Climb it yourself and see if "stunning" isn't the right word. And when the trees turn crimson and gold, it will be even "stunninger."

I may even take up skiing again, if I can find a pair to fit J.D.

'Round Town

Let's see if this idea flies

EDITH GILBERT

If I were running for president of the United States, I have the perfect platform to suggest. Aid to the airlines!

Forget aid to the Contras, aid to the tankers in the Persian Gulf, aid to Star Wars program, aid to the hostages. What we need is help here and now, especially those of us, who fly in and out of Traverse City or Pellston.

There are some informal statistics that I've gathered for starters. Last month twenty guests visited me from both coasts. Sixteen flew to Detroit, rented cars and drove to Charlevoix. No problem. No lost luggage, no delays, no near misses and much cheaper! Out of the twenty, only two single passengers and one couple flew north. The one couple was delayed four hours in Detroit and said that next time they, too, would drive.

Flying used to be fashionable, even luxurious, remember? Manufacturers introduced airplane luggage, seats were spacious and comfortable, flying was dependable, and service was gracious. People even dressed differently. I came across a picture of myself at the Honolulu airport about 25 years ago, and I was wearing a navy blue suit, high heels, a hat with a veil, and a gardenia pinned to my shoulder. Today's travelers dress for combat! Sweat suits and Reeboks, nor do I blame them.

My platform, if I were running for president, would be to attack the public's fear of flying our unfriendly skies; improve safety and comfort; eliminate inconveniences; and insure that both Republicans and Democrats would be treated equally well. Anyone who heartily agrees with this visionary approach, and wishes to endorse my candidacy, please mark the ballot below and mail it to the Courier office. Who knows? There may be a Charlevoix groundswell of popular support that will lead this voter straight to the White House.

Good news for Charlevoix High School seniors only! There will be three full scholarships available to Warren Wilson College, effective in the fall of 1988. Located in the Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina, this small college of 500 students in one of 5 select colleges in the U.S. that offers a work program to students to help them pay for room and board. The full $5,800 tuition will be offered every year to three students, who will be nominated by the following three organizations: The Congregational Church, Little Traverse Conservancy and Chip Counseling Center.

The nice idea for these scholarships comes from Mrs. Woodbury Ransom, who has summered for many years on the Belvedere Club. The scholarships are given in memory of her husband, who first visited the college 25 years ago.

Warren Wilson College is strong in environmental studies, English, social work and education. It was founded in 1895 by a group of Presbyterians on 1,000 acres. The school has attracted one-third local students, one-third students from the northeast, and one-third students from all over the world.

Anyone, who is interested in visiting the campus, may join a group of Charlevoix supporters on Oct. 23. I'm told you can visit an archeological dig, go white water rafting and also do a bit of mountain climbing, if you're so inclined.

People are still talking about the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair. They're saying it was the best ever! The quality of work was high (and so were the sales!), it was well displayed, easy to walk around, and the weather was perfect!

Even though I am no longer on the Art Fair Committee, I feel a sense of pride when I review its impact on the community. Before the Art Fair, there were no art teachers in our schools. Now we have one in each of our three schools. Before the Art Fair, there were no galleries in town. Now there are three excellent galleries on Bridge Street alone. Not to mention those numerous artists, who first came to Charlevoix to exhibit at the fair, and have since settled here to work out of their studios.

Little did Max Hosmer realize, when he first planted the idea of an art fair with the board of the Chamber of Commerce, how this seed would flourish! A lot of people along the way deserve a lot of credit, including the present Art Fair Committee. This is one area we like the way Charlevoix is growing.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared
by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Americans are a poll-conscious people. George Gallup took a poll among church people that surprised me. He sent his workers to the various denominations to ask how many of you believe in God?

I would have thought that everyone who at least went to church believed there was a God whether they were saved or not. But, well, 95 percent of all Baptists believed in God. The Presbyterians slipped a little with 92 percent. I was shocked at the Methodist's results of 85 percent.

A preacher friend of mine gave me his interpretation of the poll by saying that the Baptists have to be number one in everything. That John Calvin would tell you the other eight percent of the Presbyterians were predestined any way. That Wesley would weep over the loss of grace in Methodism.

Got you thinking? It should concern us that even one percent of people who set foot in churches regularly don't believe in God. It should be a cause for prayer and deep soul-searching about our own ties to God.

Someone I visited put it another way. They asked whatever happened to the Holy Spirit? They wondered where the "amens" had gone and were afraid to cry if a song moved them for fear of what others might think.

Nothing has happened to the Holy Spirit. He has not changed His desire to warm and fire men's hearts one bit. It is we who have changed in our feelings and our openness to Him. By the same token, it must also be said the "amens" or tears flowing are not the sole gauges of His presence. The fruit our lives bea, the witness we share both in and out of church is where His power is really shown.

Jesus began his public ministry by declaring "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me." Any public walk for the Lord that we have must begin with the realization that the 'Spirit of the Lord is upon us. He gives us power for living. He brings the wonder to our hearts.

Nothing has happened to the Holy Spirit. He is simply waiting for you to give Him the freedom to express His power and love in your life.

Letters to the editor:

Majority not fairly represented

Editor,

Give us a break! In reporting on the public hearing of the planning commission you quoted all the spokesmen who were against the proposed "limiting" of condo development on waterfront property and failed to give "equal print" to spokesmen who favor limits. The majority by far of those attending and speaking were for limiting building. Numerous speeches favoring limits were applauded.

To my memory only three voices in the audience spoke for more building: Mr. Berlage who is proposing future building, Ms. Sullivan (who is employed by Mr. Berlage) and Mr. Button who also is a developer.

In addition to the 800-signature petition favoring limits, which was joined by Watch's support, the former mayor of Charlevoix spoke favoring limits. Among other voices wanting protection of water views was a woman who said "I hear you speaking through your pocketbooks." Why did you choose not to quote her? Or other speakers who urged the planning commission to hear their voices? Regardless of how well designed these buildings are, the people do not want any more of them.

Let us hope the City Council will remember that they are elected by the people to follow the wishes of the majority of people through the law. The people have made their wishes known through your public hearings, and the letters sent into the Courier on this matter. The referendum on Water's Edge showed the people do not want more condominiums. "Progress' is sometimes knowing when to leave well enough alone.

Your editing of meetings should not "red pencil" out the voices of the people who cannot afford condo views of the waterfront.

R. Elmann

Stop the blasted foghorn!

Editor,

Not so many years ago the United States Coast Guard had a Life Guard Station on the channel. It was a fine station, with two rescue boats at the ready on marine railways. There was a shingled tower that flew weather flags. A lookout was always alert in the tower, and as the weather thickened or cleared the lookout would turn on or off the sonorous, basso profundo fog horn.

The old life guard station is gone now. The old fog horn that was part of every Charlevoixian, native or resorter, is gone, too. In its place is a whining, single-noted, headache provoking, automated horn. This perverse horn seems unable to shut itself off. On nights so clear one can see Beaver Island with the naked eye, the thing beeps its head off. On cloudless afternoons it whines away.

All of this, of course, is but a preamble to the question – why can't the United States Coast Guard get its fog horn under control?

We can't blame the Coast Guard for Medusa or for our fast-breeding condos or for the traffic on Bridge Street – but we can expect them to run their fog horn in a sailor-like fashion.

Add 3 lots to park site

Editor,

Although no longer a resident of Charlevoix the Beautiful, I do have an interest in the fate of the park which my husband and I donated to the city in 1983. The thought was that it would be an ideal spot for viewing channel traffic from a beautiful shaded location. I wonder if the city council realizes that proposed construction next door would effectively block the view of the channel out to Lake Michigan.

I applaud "Name withheld's" suggestion (Courier Aug. 12) to extend Hoffmann Park. Let's buy those next three lots!

Continue to voice opinions on lakefront development

Editor,

On behalf of the members of Watch, Inc. I would like to express our concern over the recent decision of the Charlevoix City Planning Commission to reject a ban on multi-family construction along the waterfront.

Charlevoix's beauty lies in the unique aspect of the three lakes which surround it. Residents and visitors to Charlevoix have a deep appreciation for the beauty of the lake front. If controls are not adopted that lake front beauty will have been destroyed and people will no longer come to Charlevoix. They can see condominiums anywhere.

The citizens of Charlevoix have expressed their desire to place a ban on multi-family construction along the waterfront through petitions, attendance at meetings and the recent newspaper survey. We would like to encourage those citizens to continue to strongly voice their opinions to their councilmen and planners and to continue to attend the meetings so that future decisions regarding this issue reflect the desires of the people of Charlevoix.

Venetian court says thank you

Editor,

To the Venetian Queens Committee:

On behalf of the 1987 Venetian Queen's Court, I would like to thank the committee as a whole for all the hard work and time that each person put into the contest. A special thank you goes to Jacquie Merta, Kelly Mathews, Pamela Way, Yvonne Englér and Georgia LaBlance for every last-minute detail that was involved.

Thanks again for making the festival fun for each of the girls. I hope next year a lot more young ladies decide to go out for it.

TV covering news not making it

Editor,

Just one question... what was the point of the article in last week's edition of the Charlevoix Courier, headlined "Live, from Charlevoix...it's the '6 O'clock News'?

After being at the Charlevoix Planning Commission meeting in a professional capacity – reporting the news, you can imagine my surprise to find I was the news. Pardon my ignorance, but what is newsworthy about a television reporter at a public meeting? Wasn't the meeting the news? You were there.

It is my opinion that when the media, both print and electronic, become the news story, an injustice is done to the public. I think you owe your readers an apology.

It's double-decks in the Charlevoix Humane Society, as dogs are boarded two deep in the shelter.

No-vacancy sign out at animal shelter

The Charlevoix County Humane Society shelter is over-populated as the shelter enters its busiest season.

Last week several animal had to be put to sleep because of the absence of space for them.

This is done only after every effort has been made to find the owner or adoptive owners, says Verniece Smith, who is in charge of the facility.

Smith keeps a list of animals that people are looking for, and she calls them if the desired dog or cat comes to the shelter.

She also keeps reports of lost or found animals so she can return them to their owners if they are picked up and taken to the shelter.

Now through early fall is the busiest time of the year for the humane society, according to Smith, because summer residents and visitors too often decide to leave their pets in northern Michigan instead of taking them back to more-populous metropolitan areas.

Some people just turn them loose while others take them to the shelter, she says.

Last Friday there were 10 dogs, three puppies, four cats and eight kittens in the small shelter.

Animals can be seen at the shelter on Grant near Garfield, next to the sheriff's department, Monday through Friday from 1 to 5 p.m.

Seniors centers operate differently

by PEG OHLE

There are reasons the Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center is treated differently than others, a city councilman has been told by the Commission on Aging.

Councilman Norm Probert asked the commission about its operations, especially about the Charlevoix meal site and senior activities center in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall on U.S. 31 North.

A representative of the center recently asked council for a grant to help operate the Charlevoix center, which prompted council members to wonder why Boyne City and East Jordan were not being approached to help support the senior centers in those cities.

Members of the Commission on Aging explained that East Jordan was donating the use of a large part of its community center downtown for the exclusive use of the commission and that Boyne City donates a room in its City Hall exclusively for senior citizens to use.

Charlevoix has no extra room in its City Hall or anywhere else to donate to senior citizens, which made it necessary for the commission to acquire space in the VFW building and spend over $9,000 remodeling it.

Even though the space is available to senior citizens for noon meals and other daytime activities, it is small and is used evenings by other groups, which means all senior equipment has to be put away each day.

There is no place for the seniors to call their own for handicrafts, card-playing, instruction or just visiting, Probert was told.

The Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center was not opened until the winter of 1985, long after the Boyne City and East Jordan centers were established.

Before moving to the VFW Hall, Charlevoix senior citizens ate their noon meals at the high school cafeteria, an arrangement which they found unsatisfactory because of the short time the facility was available and because of noise and confusion created by student activities.

By the time the Charlevoix center was opened, there were no Commission on Aging funds available to pay for a part-time site coordinator to plan and manage activities, commissioners said.

In recent months, the Department of Social Services has been supplying a person. However, her term of service will soon run out and the center could be left without staffing.

The $1,000 contributed by the City of Charlevoix and another $1,000 contributed by Hayes Township will be used to pay for staffing as long as the funds last, Probert was told.

Through July, 3,675 noon meals had been served this year at the Charlevoix center and 297 meals were delivered to shut-ins and handicapped persons in the Charlevoix area.

These are considerably fewer than the 6,408 sitdown meals and 5,350 home-delivered meals served in Boyne City and 10,246 sitdown meals and 5,468 home-delivered meals served in East Jordan.

Sherry Black of the Straits Area Community Education faculty teaches classes in the VFW Hall and has helped with the senior citizens program.

She has set up a flea market for Friday, Aug. 21, as a fund-raising project and tells of the needs of the senior center to whomever will listen.

The Commission on Aging meal program will be in the red at the end of its fiscal year, Sept. 30, as it was last year. Last December, Monday meals were discontinued for the month to help make up for the budget deficit.

Crafts sessions scheduled

Charlevoix residents who are wondering what they will do with themselves after the hustle and bustle of summer is over may want to consider community education craft classes which begin Wednesday, Sept. 9.

The classes are free of charge and open to all persons 18 years or older. Those who finish the 17-week program will receive high school credit.

Among the projects to be offered are bow-making, wood art, fall bouquets, appliquing, gourd art, and Christmas ornaments and gifts.

The classes will be held on Wednesdays from 1 to 4 p.m. in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall on U.S. 31 North.

Sherry Black of the community education staff will teach the classes along with resource people from the area.

Further information is available by calling 547-5361.

Jobless checks brings millions to area

A lot of money comes to northern Michigan through unemployment insurance payments.

In the second quarter of this year (April, May and June), the Petoskey office of the Michigan Employment Security Commission and its branch offices in Cheboygan and Gaylord paid out $2,410,982 to eligible claimants.

During the same period, 940 initial unemployment claims were processed and 804 claims were re-opened.

Also, during this period, office personnel interviewed 3,206 applicants seeking work. They referred 1,069 applicants to jobs and 812 of them were hired after the first or second try.

Obituaries

Louise M. Putman

Mrs. Louise M. Putman, 64, of Charlevoix, died Monday, Aug. 17, at Little Traverse Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey.

Funeral services will be held at St. Mary's Church at 10 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 20. The Rev. James K. Gardiner will officiate. Interment will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Friends may call from 2 until 4 p.m. and 7 until 9 p.m. Wednesday at Winchester Funeral Home where rosary will be recited at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The former Louise M. Borowiak was born to Frank C. and Sophia (Dreckoske) Borowiak Sept. 22, 1922, at Gaylord. She was raised in Gaylord and graduated from Gaylord High School in 1938.

On Oct. 7, 1944, she married Rolland R. Putman. They came to Charlevoix to make their home in 1965.

She was a member of St. Mary's Church. She was employed at Juilleret's Restaurant for 10 years and at Andy's Party Store 1978-85.

Surviving are her husband, Rolland R. (Ron); two sons, Roger B. of Traverse City and Richard J. of Charlevoix; a daughter, Elaine M. Bunting of Charlevoix; four grandchildren; a brother, Alfred Borowiak, of Gaylord; and three sisters, Regina Milmine and Bertha Smith, both of Gaylord, and Judith Szczesny of Sterling Heights.

The family suggests memorials to the American Cancer Society.

Marian Broussard

A memorial service for Marian I. Broussard, 72, of Charlevoix, will be held at First Congregational Church at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 27.

Relatives and friends are invited to attend and share their memories of Mrs. Broussard in the service. The Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum will preside.

Mrs. Broussard died June 22, 1987, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Slowpitch teams in playoff

Grey Gables and Pine Hill Nursery posted victories in the first night of the best two-out-of-three tournament for the Charlevoix Men's Slow-pitch title.

Grey Gables beat Davis Chevrolet 14-8 and Pine Hill Nursery defeated Richard's Topside Cafe 15-4.

Gary Drury had two home runs for Gables, which had 13 hits off losing pitcher Dave Melke. Ray LaVoie allowed 14 hits.

Ken Peebles helped his own cause as winning pitcher when he hit a home run for Pine Hill which had 17 hits off Phil Skeel. Peebles gave up five hits.

The playoffs were to continue Monday night.

The league closed its regular schedule with Davis Chevrolet defeating Little Caesar's 9-4 to quash the possibility of a five-way tie for fourth place. In the game, Dave Melke allowed eight hits to Bill Gauthier's 14.

In other final games, Grey Gables retained its perfect record with a 10-7 win over Connie's Place and Topside edged Paul Bunyan Lanes 2-1.

LaVoie, the winning pitcher for Grey Gables, allowed 14 hits and had an assist from a home run by Kim Makarowitz. Dave Novotny gave up 15 hits.

Phil Skeel gave up seven hits and Dan Gillespie, who took the loss, allowed eight hits in Topside's win.

Earlier Grey Gables beat Pine Hill 10-8, Little Caesar's edged Topside 5-3 and Townhouse clobbered Coast Guard 17-1.

Home runs were the order of the day in the Gables-Nursery game with Mike Loper, Randy Holecheck and Makarowitz hitting three home runs on the 14 hits allowed by Peebles. Peebles and Gerald Klooster countered with homers for Nursery among 15 hits allowed by LaVoie.

Paul Hoffman on the mound for Little Caesar's gave up eight hits in the upset of Topside. Phil Skeel took the loss after allowing nine hits.

Bob Alexander pitched Townhouse to its win over Coast Guard, giving up 10 hits. Ike Boss gave up 15 hits.

In other games, Townhouse defeated CPI 19-4 on the 25 hits allowed by Bill Daunter, a homer by Gary Jekielek among them. Kevin Shepard's homer was among the eight hits given up by Jim Werner.

Gary Drury and Holecheck had homers for Grey Gables as the team defeated Paul Bunyan Lanes 14-11 behind the pitching of LaVoie, who allowed 15 hits. Mike Green gave up 17 hits.

Pine Hill scored 16 runs on 22 hits in beating Coast Guard 16-4. Coast Guard had nine hits. Gary Wilson and Klooster had homers for Pine Hill. Peebles was the winning pitcher. Boss gave up 22 hits in taking the loss.

Boat decals being replaced

A manufacturing defect in 1989 watercraft registration decals may cause them to shrivel and peel after being placed on a watercraft says the Secretary of State.

The defective decals are numbered from 0230001 to 0648600. A new series has been distributed to Secretary of State offices where they are being given free of charge to any watercraft owner who presents a 1989 registration.

Teen boardsailers compete here

Sixteen-year-old John Jackman of San Diego defeated 21 other junior (17 and younger) boardsailors from throughout the United States for the United States Yacht Racing Union Massachusetts Bay Trophy on Lake Charlevoix.

The three-day event featured light to moderate winds and sunny weather.

17-year-old Lanee Butler (the only girl competitor) finished second. Boardsailing is a sport for everyone. Butler from Dana Point, Calif., finished ahead of Kevin Quan of San Diego, Kevin Moore of Fort Lauderdale and Tom Purcell of Edina, Minn.

The event was hosted by the Charlevoix Yacht Club. Dick and Gina Lepman supplied Wayler One Design sailboards and provided housing for some of the contestants and USYRU personnel.

Jim Jordan, M.D., of Indianapolis was regatta chairman and John Drake Ross of USYRU was responsible for overall organization. Dick Latham (former USYRU president), Ted King and Ross formed the jury for protests of yacht racing rules.

Jackman, Butler and Purcell competed in previous USYRU junior championships. The competition on sailboards uses Olympic triangle courses and international yacht racing rules.

The event drew 22 teenages from around the nation. One was from Michigan. They were lodged at the homes of area families.

When Charlevoixans taught Easterners new way to fish

son, "they were short and stocky."

In all the old pictures of them standing together, if there was one tall one, he looked out of place," said Shoares, a third-generation gillnetting Bear.

"They were kind of rough," admits Robert the Rodent, though for the likes of East Gloucester, they were easygoing. An oddly dressed bunch for these parts, the boys wore high leather boots instead of the traditional black rubber. One thing they did have in common with real bears was their strength.

About their brawny reputation East Gloucester story-teller Joe Garland wrote, "When a native Ward-Oner displays uncommon muscle in the course of a waterfront chore, someone may still observe that 'all the bears don't come from Michigan'."

They must have been a scruffy sight when they first arrived, and the way they went about things, they needed the strength of bears.

Take the way they got here.

They didn't come as the crow flies. They boarded Mike Shoares' little boat, the Mindora, in Northern Lake Michigan and chugged up through the Erie Canal from Buffalo to Albany, down the Hudson, and through Hell's Gate at the mouth of the East River.

They cut across Long Island Sound and finally headed up the coast towards Gloucester. The summer of 1910 was before the Cape Cod Canal was cut, so the boys had to go all the way around. Traveling no better than 6 knots, it took them 24 days to go the 2,300 miles.

When they reached the Atlantic, it was the first sight of sea for all of them. Upon pulling into Provincetown to fuel up, they decided to lay up for a while and look around.

The boys from the Lakes returned to the wharf a few hours later to another sight they hadn't seen before, or since. It was the Mindora, straining at her lines, pulling at the pilings, a couple of feet out of the water.

"That was how they learned about the tides," said Robert the Rodent.

The next stop was East Gloucester, where most of their tribe have lived since. The young gillnetters found the place and its people to their liking. And they were bringing in as much as $12 a trip.

They sent word back home and the next fishing season brought four more loads of Charlevoix Bears – aboard the Eagle, Prince Olaf, Alice and the Weasal – all rigged for gillnetting.

With the exception of Mike Shoares, whose wife and two children waited back in Charlevoix, those first Bears were bachelors, coming to scout the possibilities.

When the genteel Agnes Elwell of East Gloucester first laid eyes on Albert Arnold, she was able to recognize his possibilities. Beneath his rough and ready ways, she saw the qualities she wanted in the father of her future children. After a respectable wait, the girl whose family in 1632 had set up farming on a piece of land now called Eastern Point took the strapping alien for her husband.

Kenneth was their first-born, in 1914. Every two years they produced another until there were five.

The rest of the unmarried Bears followed Albert Arnold's lead, marrying Gloucester girls who set up housekeeping in the East Gloucester uplands. At dawn the men walked down Plum, Chapel and Highland streets to their boats.

"They made a few dollars," said Robert the Rodent. "At least it was more than they were making out home in Michigan, and enough for Cy and my father and Mike Shoares to have the Anna T. build."

Like other able Gloucester fishermen of their day, Capt. Arnold's family and the rest of the Bears had their share of prosperity, hardship and tragedy.

"My father bought Cy out, and finally he got up the money to buy out Mike," said Robert the Rodent. But almost as soon as Albert owned the Anna T. outright, in 1925, the boat was lost on the Annisquam bar.

Later that year, when Robert the Rodent was a 2-year-old, his father launched the Phyllis A., named after his only daughter.

"I started hanging around the wharf when I was 8," said Robert the Rodent. "It was during the Depression, and I'd reel in a box of nets for a quarter. If it took one hour or 10 hours, it was still a quarter. I was lucky. The only reason I got to reel was because my father owned the boat. There were grown men walking the streets without work."

By the time Robert the Rodent was 19, he was a full-time fisherman.

"I can still hear Miss Tufts, the guidance counselor, trying to talk me out of it, but I quit high school anyway. It was back in 1942. I went fishing with my father that spring and in May I joined the Navy. I put three years in, came out and went back fishing."

In 1947, Robert the Rodent temporarily deserted the Phyllis A. for photography school in New Haven.

"My friend Allen Nelson and I had a job offer in New York City. We went down for a weekend, and I looked around and said, 'This isn't for me,' and I came back home and went fishing, and that's all I've ever done since."

Robert the Rodent's father and brothers have continually owned and operated the Phyllis A. since she first put to sea in 1925.

"She was the only boat I ever fished," he said.

In 1953, Robert the Rodent's oldest brother, Kenneth, died at sea. He was 39 and left behind a wife and four children.

Capt. Arnold and three of his remaining sons, Alvin, Richard and Robert the Rodent, kept fishing.

"When my brother Joe came home from the war, he tried fishing but didn't like it. So he went into the gardening business," said Robert the Rodent.

In 1967, Capt. Albert Arnold, one of the original Bears, died at 86.

A couple of years ago, Robert the Rodent's brother Alvin retired from gillnetting.

He turned 71 In May," said Robert the Rodent, "and now I'm retiring because my back is out," he said. "Richard is the only Arnold still at it."

When Richard Arnold retired from the Coast Guard, he walked down the hill and started gillnetting again. The youngest of Capt. Arnold's sons didn't have to go far to get back into the business. His last tour of duty had been as keeper of Eastern Point light.

With Richard still at it, 62 years of one family fishing the same boat may well be some kind of record for Gloucester.

Despite the worsening odds, gillnetting as a way of life dies hard. And even if not all the Bears are still at it, there remain those who are...

At 80 years of age, John "Randy" Lafond of East Gloucester, a born Michigander, still sets his nets. He was three when the first wave of Bears followed the advice of his gold-mining grandfather.

There's Peter Shoares and his son Pete, a young man proud to mark four generations of staying true to the ways of his great-grandfather Mike Shoares, the man who navigated the Mindora to Gloucester 77 years ago.

And since "not all the bears come from Michigan," there are those East Gloucester natives who don't intend to stop acting like Bears when it comes to fishing against the odds.

leave, he will do so.

If attempts to enter the building fail, the field staff supervisor is required by contract with the city to use "best judgment in arriving at a value in all cases where the interior of the building has not been seen."

The appraiser is not allowed to leave the card for the homeowner to fill out.

After the value is computed on all properties, the team will make a final field inspection to review all land and buildings against the cards and computations.

The city will then notify homeowners of the new assessed values, and the company will hold informal reviews with owners.

Great Lakes' work must be completed by Dec. 4, according to the firm's contract, or it will begin paying penalties.

The informal hearings must be completed by Jan. 15, and the assessment information will be used for next year's tax bills.

There are 1,470 dwellings – including 110 in the Belvedere and Chicago clubs – being reappraised.

Cruise ship gets city contract OK, 'partner' not involved

A new cruise ship for Charlevoix is one step closer to reality with approval by city council of a contract for docking.

One major hang-up looms, however, for the Spirit of Charlevoix, which operators hoped to have ready to sail in a few days.

The waterways commission of the Department of Natural Resources must give its OK to altering the piers at the end of Clinton Street where the boat would dock.

Mark Thompson of Spirit of Charlevoix says the boat could be ready to go shortly if the commission gives temporary approval.

If a temporary go-ahead is not granted, he says, the season would probably have to be scrapped because the normal application period is 60 to 90 days.

Thompson thought the commission had given its approval last spring when Star Lines Corp. was readying for its Star of Charlevoix season.

Star Lines was preparing to bring in a new sternwheel paddleboat when it negotiated a contract nearly identical to that OK'd for the Spirit.

Construction delays forced cancellation of the season, Star Lines said, when the builder could not promise delivery before mid-August. Later word has put completion of the boat in September.

Thompson approached council a week ago with a proposal to launch a new cruise ship for the rest of the summer and the fall color season.

Spirit of Charlevoix will be paying for changes in the dock and will pay a rental of two percent of gross sales with a $2,000 minimum. It will also post a $5,000 bond to cover expenses of restoring the pier if the tourist boat no longer uses it.

The city will give the Spirit a right of first refusal on any contract for a tourist boat next season if the boat operates for a minimum of 30 days this season.

Mayor Ralph McRae questioned several aspects of the Spirit's intended operation, including the state of the cruise ship, the corporation's financial status and the status of its food concession.

Several council members objected to McRae's questions, saying the city does not delve into the specifics of other proposed businesses' operations.

Prompting McRae's questions in part was a statement attributed by several people at a Lions Club meeting to Jack Schmidt, owner of Edward's Charlevoix IGA.

Schmidt told the Lions he was not going to be part of the Spirit operation.

"I have no commitment at all to the Spirit," Schmidt told the Courier on Tuesday. He said he had taken a preliminary look at the operaton and had rejected it "as not for me."

As late as Monday night, Thompson identified Schmidt as a partner in the Spirit and said food for the boat would be prepared in Hugo's, a restaurant formerly operated by Schmidt.

"If he's changed his mind, he hasn't informed me," Thompson said Monday night.

Thompson challenged the mayor's assertion that the boat is not shipshape. He said the exterior was painted last spring and the interior was being painted the day he looked at the former Arnold Lines ferry.

The council voted 6-0 to approve the contract.

Building boom causes problems for inspectors

The building boom in Charlevoix County which is making many people happy has caused a real problem for District Health Department No. 3, the County Board of Commissioners learned last week.

Due to state funding cuts, the health department has been operting its sanitarian division with one less employee than it previously had. Now, new construction, which requires health department permits and inspections of on-site septic systems and water wells in outlying areas, is creating a backlog of work orders for sanitarians.

Health Department Administrator Gerald Chase and Head Sanitarian Dean Mikulski appeared before the county board to ask for help in funding the salary of another part-time employee in the sanitarian division and received the promise of $5,000. Since Emmet County is experiencing a similar building boom, it has also made a contribution to the health department to help meet its needs.

On-site septic systems and water wells are only a part of the inspection duties of health department sanitarians. Among others are restaurant inspections, camp and swimming pool inspections, nursing home and foster home inspections, suspected rodent area inspections, and garbage truck inspections.

Grange observes sesquicentennial

The Barnard Grange will continue its observance of Michigan's sesquicentennial anniversary with a program featuring an exhibit of agricultural tools and equipment and household items from yesteryears at the Grange Hall at 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 22.

There will also be an exhibit of handmade quilts and an explanation of how apple cider is made by Mr. and Mrs. William Parsons, who own and operate a cider mill.

The owner of the oldest farm in Charlevoix County still being operated will be honored. A report on how communities in the county received their names will be given.

An old-fashioned pedro party, an event which dates back many years, will be followed by a potluck lunch.

A large crowd attended ceremonies celebrating the 25th anniversary of the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant.

Big Rock celebrates 25th year

Approximately 850 people toured the Big Rock Point nuclear plant during the first week of the plant's 25th anniversary open house program.

The number was about 70 percent higher than the utility had expected would take part in the first week. Visitors from Florida, Texas, California and many parts of Michigan were among those touring the plant.

The 25th anniversary program began on Monday, Aug. 10, with ceremonies at the plant. James W. Vaughan Jr., acting assistant secretary for nuclear energy, U.S. Department of Energy, was one of the guest speakers at the ceremonies.

"Big Rock Point helped lead the way for nuclear power in the United States," he said. "I am pleased that it has continued since it started commercial operation in 1962 to generate electricity safely and reliably."

Vaughan was also impressed with the natural beauty of the site. "This doesn't look like a nuclear power station, it looks like a gorgeous state park on the shores of Lake Michigan," he said.

Also taking part in the program was John W. Clark, senior vice president, communications, for Consumers Power Co.

"Big Rock Point's 25-year track record demonstrates Consumers Power's continued commitment to excellence in terms of safe and reliable plant operations. It is proof that nuclear plants can be safe, reliable performers decade after decade," he said.

The tour program continues through Friday, Aug. 21. Free tickets for the tours may be obtained at the chambers of commerce in Charlevoix and Petoskey. Visitors must be 10 years or older and have some sort of identification.

Big Rock Point is the first commercial nuclear plant of its type to reach a quarter century of service. The plant is owned and operated by Consumers Power Co.

Consumers Power Co., the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy Corp., is Michigan's largest utility serving almost six million of the state's nine million residents in 67 of the 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

Discussion group picks series name

A name has been chosen for a series of community forums on international issues being begun by a community group.

The series will be called Focus, says advisory committee member Megan Adams, in an effort to attract participants from throughout the area.

Such names as Town Forum or Town Meeting were rejected, Adams says, to discourage the idea the sessions were only for Charlevoix residents.

A discussion group about Latin America organized by the group and held earlier in the summer prompted formation of a committee to sponsored by Charlevoix-Emmet

Focus sessions will focus on one issue at a time and limit discussion to remarks pertinent to the subject, Adams says.

Purposes of the forums are to inform and to foster the grassroots democratic process, she says.

The first Focus forum will be held in September at Charlevoix's city hall, with the date and subject to be announced later.

Members of the advisory committee are Adams, Margaret Duerr, Barbara MacArthur and Dorothy Stoel, all of Charlevoix; Ellen Addington of Ellsworth; Patti Ulrich of Central Lake; and Father Richmond Thweatt of Christ Episcopal Church and the Rev. David Yingling of United Methodist Church, both in Charlevoix.

Auction success could weed out petunia troubles

A successful petunia auction could be good news to a lot of people's backs.

That's because Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, which speakheads the citywide Operation Petunia effort, is considering purchase of a weed blanket to cover the five-mile flower bed.

Enough of the petroleum-based material to cover the city from end to end and back would cost less than the organization has paid this summer for professional help. And a great deal of the weeding is done by volunteers.

A 110-foot strip of weed blanket from Environmental Protection Inc. in Kalkaska has been tested along the city golf course this summer.

And it has done what it is intended to do – allow the petunias to flourish while keeping out unwanted growth.

For $1,365 Keep Charlevoix Beautiful can purchase a 14,000-foot long, 18-inch wide blanket that should last 10 years.

KCB would have to punch holes for the 50,000 petunias in the material and lay it along the route.

"If the auction is successful, we could have funds to do that and buy petunias and pay our other bills," says Bruce MacArthur, president of KCB.

The auction will be held at the new Edgewater Inn conference center on Labor Day, Sept. 7. Included in the event are pool-side activities and a drawing for a 1987 Ford Mustang convertible.

There are about a dozen tickets for the car remaining. They can be purchased from any board member (see accompanying story).

Items to be auctioned are generally divided into two categories – getaway vacation packages and everything else.

The getaways are aimed at attracting area business owners, who might be looking for a way to relax after the tourist season.

Among the getaway trips are:

– Round-trip air fare to Frankfurt, West Germany, and seven days at the Walhaus Rodelhaus.

– A five-hour fishing charter for three with dinner at the Landing.

– A weekend at the Edgewater Inn.

– A color weekend at the Windward condominium and golf at Harbour Country Club in Harbor Springs.

– A weekend at Harbor Cove condominium and unlimited tennis at Little Traverse Racquet Club in Harbor Springs.

– A VIP pass on Shepler's Ferry and overnight at the Mackinac Hotel on Mackinac Island.

– A round-trip Hawaiian holiday with seven days at a major hotel.

– Accommodations at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island and a VIP pass on Shepler's Ferry.

– A cruise for two on the Malibar 105-foot tall ship berthed in Traverse City and overnight stay at the Holiday Inn, including dinner for two, in Traverse City.

– A ski week at a Vail, Colo., condo.

– A Michigan book courtesy of former Gov. William Milliken.

– A Boyne Highlands sports weekend including condo and either chair lift or green fees.

– A Birchwood Country Club weekend including townhouse and golf.

Other donated items and events include a painting by William John Whitmore, dinner for four during the summer of '88 at Terry's Place, 30 day lilies or equivalent design work for home or business from Site Planning Development, a weekend at Charlevoix Country Inn, a city recreation package (two Mount McSauba day camp passes, two McSauba ski hill passes, two one-week dockages, one city golf membership and one township golf membership).

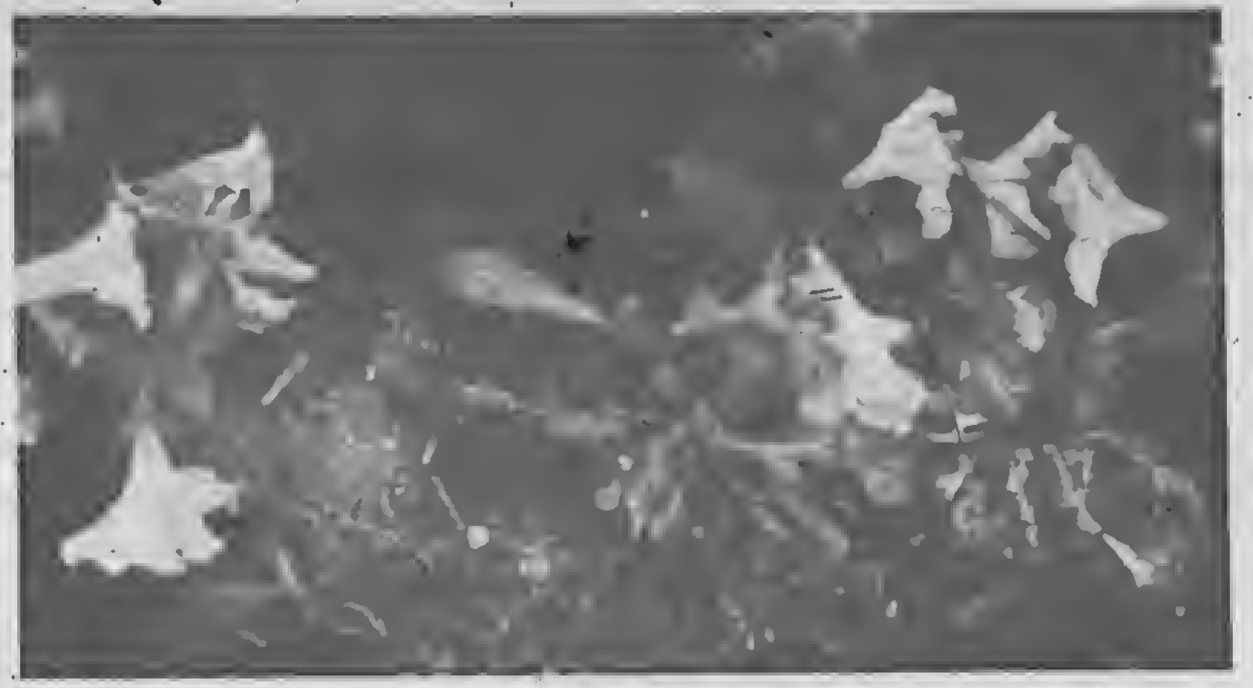
Also, a $50 gift certificate from Mayfair, dinner for four at the Weathervane Restaurant and lunch or breakfast at the Edgewater Cafe, four oak bar stools, a Michigan Protection Package (rustproofing, paint sealant and fabric protection) from Davis Chevrolet, new king size and queen size bedspreads, wire wheel covers, an oak queen or full headboard, a solid brass propeller, four blue barrel chairs and a new rear step chrome bumper with trailer hitch.

KCB has tried to refrain from soliciting donations from local businesses this year but will accept gifts to auction.

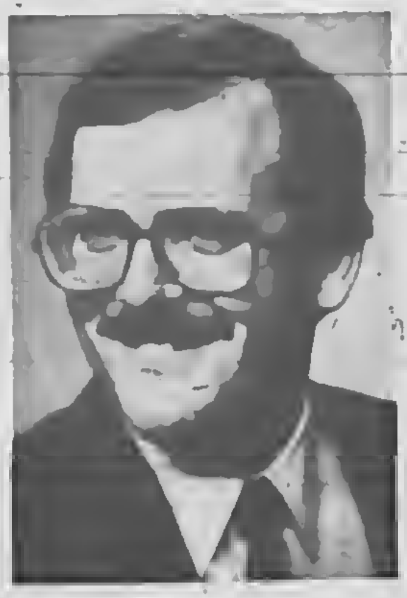
Anyone with a product or service to donate may call MacArthur at 547-6960.

Meanwhile, the mystery of the unidentified weeder has been solved. He was little mystery to people from town, but was spotted and described by a weed puller from out of town.

The weeder was Pat Hawley, a charter member of KCB, past chairman of Charlevoix County State Bank and past mayor.



The effectiveness of the weed blanket is evident at the end of the trial piece. The blanketed side (left) contains just petunias, while the unblanketed side is a mixture of flowers and weeds.



Dave Weeks

Speaker links financial matters, relationship to God

The Rev. Dave Weeks will be the guest speaker at Charlevoix Assembly of God at 11 a.m. Sunday. Aug. 23.

Weeks is the founder of God's Principles for Financial Freedom Ministries and will be dealing in the service how people handle finances affects their relationship with Christ.

The foundation for Weeks' message is a belief that the Bible contains very specific directions for proper money management and attitudes.

Weeks, who travels full-time throughout the country conducting financial seminars, has also served in Brazil as a missionary and more recently pastored an Assembly of God church in Chicago for almost six years.

Weeks is a graduate of Wheaton College in Illinois and studied at the University of Illinois.

For further information call 547-6430. Nursery care is provided.

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

JASON FRABIS (center) and BILLY DREYER (right) of Charlevoix operate a television camera with instructor Matt Tuttle during Michigan Technological University's Summer Youth Program. They were among 1,200 junior and senior high school students attending the 15th annual program.

JANE DeNISE, owner of H&R Block in Charlevoix, attended an eight-hour seminar in Grayling. The seminar was conducted by Tom Thraser and Don Smrecak, H&R Block Satellite Directors from Traverse City and Saginaw.

Discussed at the seminar were the extensive changes in the Tax Reform Act concerning returns for dependents and consumer, residential and investment interest. A two-hour session on time management was conducted.

JOHN FACULAK, former Charlevoix resident and a veteran of 18 years with the Michigan State Police, was among the officers assigned to the National Governors Conference at Traverse City. He was assigned to the governor of Nevada.

Faculak, attached to the Dimondale Post, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Faculak who have lived in Flint for the past 12 years. He is a 1965 graduate of Charlevoix High School and nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Faculak.

Electrician's Mate Third Class TED J. SLEDGE has been chosen the Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite's Sailor of the Quarter for April, May and June. The award is given to an enlisted person below first class petty officer who best demonstrates military bearing and ettiquette, uniform appearance, work habits, professionalism, leadership and the ability to get the job done.

Sledge, a veteran of four years in the Coast Guard, is from Olathe, Kan. He came to the Mesquite in 1985. Sledge, 22, and his wife, Heather, live in Charlevoix.

Air Force Airman 1st Class LENA A. MEEK of Charlevoix, has arrived for duty with the 2006th Communications Group, Turkey.

Meek, a telecommunications systems maintenance specialist, is a 1984 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Aquinas College of Grand Rapids has named two area students to its 1986-87 dean's list. The list annually honors those who have maintained a 3.5 grade point average or better for two consecutive semesters. Named to the list from Charlevoix are senior JAMES L. BUCHANAN and freshman HOLLY G. MITCHELL.

TAMARA WIELAND, formerly of Charlevoix, has been elected president of the Traverse Ad Club board. Wieland is the former local store marketing coordinator for Marks Management Corp. (McDonald's).

Serving on the board of directors is Charles Mefford, vice president of WKHQ radio.

Second Lt. KARL J. SHAWHAN of Charlevoix has been awarded the aeronautical rating of navigator following graduation from U.S. Air Force Navigator Training at Mather Air Force Base, Calif.

Shawhan was an honor graduate of the course. He is a 1986 graduate of Northern Arizona University, Flagstaff.

Algae growth foretells lake woes

by Sara Gay Dammann

David Heidtke, consultant for Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, surveys shoreline from boat for cladophora, an algae which can indicate pollution of a lake.

Cladophora, a grassy-like algae that grows in some near-shore areas of Lake Charlevoix, may be an early warning of water quality problems, even potential health problems.

Cladophora growth on Lake Charlevoix has been the subject of several studies since 1981.

This year Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council and the Lake Charlevoix Association are funding a cladophora study. Their hope is to educate and enlist the help of lakeshore home-owners in eliminating the human-made sources of the nutrient upon which cladophora depends.

The study of Lake Charlevoix is being conducted simultaneously with a similar study on Walloon Lake.

"The presence of cladophora indicates the presence of nutrients, because cladophora requires nitrogen and phosphorous to grow. Nitrogen is always plentiful in the lakes, but phosphorous is scarce," says David Heidtke, a water resource specialist and consultant working with the watershed council.

"This algae only grow where there are increased levels of phosphorous.

"The sources of phosphorous can be failing septic systems, excessive lawn fertilization, storm runoff through drains and channels, water fowl feeding, and the dumping or burning of debris near the shoreline."

Heidtke says homes along the shoreline that use dishwashers (all of which use phosphate detergents), washing machines, water softeners (whose salts effect the chemicals in the soils), garbage disposals or have failing septic systems may be inadvertantly contributing to the problem.

Why is cladophora a problem? Heidtke's first response is that it will have a negative effect on the property values of shorelands where it is present.

"Cladophora in itself is not a serious nuisance," Heidke says, emphasing it is a small plant.

"But it can coat all the rocks with a thick growth and it will die, decay and give off an odor.

"If there are enough nutrients for cladophora growth, it may stimulate other aquatic weeds which are a nuisance," he says.

"More important, if there is a failing septic system, this can be a threat to the health of those who use the waters.

"We feel there are many good reasons for homeowners to be interested in the problem, both for the health of Lake Charlevoix and their own shorelines."

The current cladophora study is a follow-up to a study conducted in 1981 by the Northwestern Michigan Council of Governments. That study was a broad survey of the lake which highlighted areas of concern, as indicated by high cladophora growth.

Those areas included Hemingway Point, Birdland, Oyster Bay and Horton Bay.

Heidtke's study includes all these sites and more. Some 850 homes or 70 percent of the shore of Lake Charlevoix was involved.

Details of the specific locations of high cladophora growth will not be released until after the analysis part of the study is completed.

Heldtke says the areas found to be high in cladophora in 1981 were still high but there were many other areas of concern as well.

Analysis of the cladophora study, which will try to narrow down the causes of the growth, is being conducted with the cooperation of homeowners, the Lake Charlevoix Association and watershed council.

Every homeowner whose Lake Charlevoix land was found to have significant cladophora growth was notified by letter. Every homeowner also received a questionnaire.

The letter informed the homeowners of the potential problem.

"Our intent is not to conduct a witch hunt," Heldtke says, "not to sic authorities on anyone. We hope people will use the information for their own benefit."

"The questionnaire asked for information on the location and design of the septic field, their water usage patterns, the number of people in the house in different seasons, their lawn care habits, and water fowl feeding habits," Heidtke continues, adding that feeding the over-abundance of ducks on Lake Charlevoix is not recommended.

"Not only are the ducks associated with over-fertilization of the lake, but they are associated with swimmer's itch."

To date the response to the letter has been "disappointing" at less than 20 percent, according to Heldtke.

Not only is response to the questionnaire important to the analysis, he says, but to the homeowner. Heidtke will answer with specific recommendations to help homeowners pinpoint their potential sources of pollution.

Amateur signs up for 27th year

by DON DIBLEY

The Michigan Amateur is coming back to Charlevoix in 1989.

That means the prestigious golf tournament will be played at Belvedere Golf Club for at least the next two years – but the first one was expected.

Belvedere's long-standing contract to host the Golf Association of Michigan event is running out after the 1988 tourney, and the GAM has said it does not expect to sign any more long-term pacts.

Several other courses are vying for the tourney, but GAM executive director Jeffrey Rivard says the GAM board has asked Belvedere for a contract for 1989.

"That's good, that's good," said Belvedere president Carl Schumacher when he found out the GAM wanted to be invited to return. "That was a key year."

Rivard says the GAM probably will not contract with a course for more than three years any more, and has not talked to any courses about 1990.

Belvedere has been the site of the top amateur golf event in Michigan since 1963 – 25 consecutive years – and a total of 31 times. Only three other states have permanent sites for their amateur championships.

No decision will be made on successive years until next summer, Rivard says, but he does say the "list other than Belvedere is quite short."

"Belvedere is the kind of course where we will not move it (the Amateur) just to move it," he says. It would take a course on the level of Oakland Hills or Crystal Downs, he says, to pull the tourney away from the Charlevoix site.

"Our primary objective is to encourage a fairly rigorous exercise by a course to keep or get the tourney," Rivard says.

At this year's event at Belvedere, he says, the GAM "was delighted in every way."

Rivard will meet with a group of Charlevoix residents interested in keeping the tournament at Belvedere in years ahead.

That meeting will be at 10 a.m. Friday, Aug. 28, in City Hall. The group is headed by former mayor Hal Hill and was organized with the help of Jacquie Merta, director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

"There are some things that could be done to make the tourney more attractive to the players," Rivard says.

Hill says the group is attempting to satisfy the GAM's wishes. The group, which is holding its second meeting, would like to entice the GAM to sign another three- or four-year renewal, Hill says.

The group is making a list of major items that may be improved, Hill says – a list which pretty well matches concerns Rivard raises.

Among these, Hill says, are improved food concessions; a tent for the players to use for marking scorecards, socializing and relaxing; additional water fountains or coolers along the course; and providing such things as coffee for golfers in the morning.

The group is trying to "see if anything needs to be improved upon to make things better for next year's Amateur," says Merta.

The shape the course is in is the GAM's No. 1 priority, Rivard says, and that was excellent this year. The modifications which may be made are all little things, he agrees.

"We figure Belvedere did the best they could do within

CHARLEVOIX CATCHES THE WAVE

The surf was up on Michigan Beach over the weekend as Charlevoix again proved its worth as an all-season resort. A half-dozen surfers rode the waves as swimmers frolicked in the rushing, rolling water. If you have any doubts about the authenticity of surfing photos in Charlevoix, the landmark in the bottom right photo may ease your concerns.

Cruise ship puts off start 'til next year

A dispirited Mark Thompson has set his sights on next year.

Thompson's plan to launch a cruise ship from Charlevoix has been sunk by the Department of Natural Resources' waterways commission.

Thompson, who was set to begin cruises in the Spirit of Charlevoix by Labor Day, found out late last week it would take 60 to 90 days to get DNR approval for pier work in Round Lake.

"There's no way we can get a permit for the dock situation," Thompson told the Courier. The dock would have to be raised to permit entry onto the Spirit.

Thompson and city officials thought the DNR had been approached about the dock earlier this summer when the Star Line was negotiating with the city to dock its Star of Charlevoix paddleboat at the foot of Clinton Street.

Thompson said contact with the DNR had not been made earlier, though, and the normal application period would be too long to attempt to get the cruise ship sailing this fall.

The state agency said it would attempt to accelerate the approval period, Thompson said, but even cutting it in half would make it too late for this year.

Other sites were looked at, but ruled out, he said.

"There is nothing better. There's no place on Round Lake you can dock a boat that big," said Thompson, who said he does not like that location but there is no other to pursue.

The former Star dock at Edgewater Inn is out of the question, he said, since Edgewater placed cleats in the water.

Now Thompson has turned his energies toward next season.

"We'll go ahead and get the boat, then decide what to do with the boat this winter," he said.

Work to improve the boat – a former Arnold Ferry – can begin this fall, he said. The Spirit will purchase the boat, he said, and possibly take it south for the winter.

Thompson says he is not concerned about possible competition for the Star Line, which cancelled its Charlevoix season after completion of its new boat was delayed.

The Spirit would have had a right-to-first-refusal on any contract the city would have offered next spring if Thompson's boat could have operated for 30 days this fall.

"I don't know what the Star Line has in mind," he said, but if the company was interested in keeping a boat in Charlevoix, Thompson said, it could have had one this season.

After the old Star of Charlevoix encountered troubles with Canadian officials in Toronto, he said, it was taken past Charlevoix on its way to Chicago, where it is operating.

A contract to lease the city dock was approved for the Spirit of Charlevoix by city council a week ago. The contract was similar to the lease negotiated with Star Line earlier this summer.

Looking toward next season, Thompson said, "I'd like to find an alternative to that dock situation, but I don't know what it's going to be."

AROUND THE TOWN

Limits on multiple-family dwelling construction are expected to be the main topic of conversation at next week's city council meeting.... For most of the summer, Mayor Ralph McRae has been attempting to get a "condo ban" near the lakes and channel approved....

McRae is now backing a proposal to ban all multiple-type buildings – apartments, hotels, townhouses – within 150 feet of Round Lake, Pine River Channel and Lake Michigan.... He and his supporters had been pushing for a 200-foot limit....

The mayor says he thinks even a 100-foot limitation would be effective.... Supporters thought shrinking the limit from 200 to 100 feet would make the proposal more acceptable to council, he says....

Also in the new proposal is wording to allow any other land uses presently permitted by the zoning ordinance in those areas.... The latest proposal rejected by the planning commission would have permitted only single-family residential and marine-fishing uses....

Council member Earl Muma cautioned that any amendment approved by council needs to be written in such a way that it would stand up in a court battle.... City manager Mike Wiesner said he would have city attorney Jeff VanTreese attend the meeting to help answer legal questions....

Several council members have raised doubts about the proposal, although some have said they agree with the idea behind it.... The council meets at 7 p.m. on Mondays.

Schools preparing for beginning of class

Preparations for the new school year are continuing in Charlevoix public and parochial schools and on Beaver Island.

First day of schools in Charlevoix will feature a half-day, afternoon session for all but kindergarteners. Kindergarteners will meet their bus drivers Thursday, Aug. 27 but not begin classes until after other grades have begun.

St. Mary's School will have kindergarten for the first time this year.

And on Beaver Island, classes will begin before Labor Day – giving the island school the earliest opening in the county.

Here's a look at what's in store at area schools:

CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC

Schools open Tuesday, Sept. 8, for all but kindergarten students.

Faculty and administration will meet at the elementary school at 8 a.m. for a conference followed by lunch with the board of education and invited guests.

Classes for high school students begin at 12:30 p.m., for middle school students at 12:35 p.m. and for elementary students at 1:30 p.m.

There will be two hours of mini-sessions during which books will be distributed and assignments made.

The cafeterias at the three schools will not open until Wednesday. Student meals will cost 90 cents at the elementary school and $1 at the middle and high schools. Meals for non-students will be $2. Meal tickets will be available at all schools Wednesday.

Two teachers join the faculty this year – James Kanine as seventh grade English teacher and varsity basketball coach and Patricia Miller as part-time special education teacher. Both will be at the middle school.

Parents of students new to the school system should register their children prior to the opening of school. Offices at all three schools are open and principals will be present to answer questions.

Buses will roll Thursday, Aug. 27, to the homes of all kindergarteners.

The buses will stop at the home of each child registered for kindergarten. The driver will introduce himself and take the child on a tour of the bus.

The driver will discuss bus etiquette with the child and the bus schedule with the parent.

Rural kindergarteners attend the morning session and the city children the afternoon session.

Parents are requested to take kindergarteners to school Wednesday, Sept. 9, and wait for them in the gymnasium while the children register in their rooms. The children will return home with parents.

On Thursday, Sept. 10, kindergarteners will take the bus for the first time.

ST. MARY'S

St. Mary's School will accept registrations for students in kindergarten through fifth grade until school opens Sept. 8 says Sister Lydia Korson O.P., school principal.

The school is offering a kindergarten class for the first time. The teacher, Anne Kelly, has invited the public to attend an open house at the new facility in the school following 10:30 a.m. mass Sunday, Aug. 30.

PAVING THE WAY TOWARD TOMORROW

Paving of 3½ miles of city streets has gotten off to a fast start as crews from Peninsula Asphalt of Traverse City tackle the $101,925 project. Portions of 18 roads are being paved in the first phase of a five-year, $1.6 million road, sewer and sidewalk improvement program.

their means," Rivard says, adding that many golfers were impressed with the longer roughs this year.

Each year the GAM surveys the players, Rivard says, and this year Belvedere picked up some support it didn't have a year ago, he says.

Community support is one of the things the local group is attempting to pick up.

"The business community wants the Amateur here," says Merta, noting the June event is played before the tourist season gets into high gear and the name recognition the tournament brings to the city.

Area civic organizations help out the GAM, as does the chamber. The Lions hosted a pre-tourney dinner and the Jaycees operated the concession stand on the course, Merta says, while the chamber coordinated activities, loaned office supplies and equipment, and provided bag tags for the golfers.

History group plans journey

The annual fall trip for members of the Charlevoix Historical Society has been scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 9.

The trip will be to the Music House near Acme where an extensive collection of fine and rare automatic musical instruments in live performance can be seen.

Those wishing to make the trip may register at the next meeting of the society at Harsha House, 103 State St., at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 1.

The program at the meeting will be the history of Foster Boat Co. told by Charles Duerr.

Opinion

Keeping the Amateur

It's good news for the area that the Michigan Amateur golf tournament will be returning to Belvedere for at least another year.

With its five-year contract set to run out after next summer's tourney, Belvedere was in peril of losing the premier amateur golf event in the state.

The Golf Association of Michigan – being pressured by other golf courses – has said it will no longer grant long-term contracts to hold the tourney, which just celebrated its 25th consecutive year at the Charlevoix course.

While Belvedere has been a favorite with golfers and the downstate press – who look at the trip north in June as much as a vacation as a tournament – for more than two decades, the GAM has sent the club a message.

That message: Don't become complacent.

And when the people at Belvedere demonstrated this year that they can still put on a first-class tournament, the GAM was quick to reward them with another request to host the tourney – although this time they are asking for a one-year extension.

The way GAM executive director Jeff Rivard talks, the golfing association and golfers are in no hurry to walk away from Belvedere. But they are also not willing to have less than a top-flight event.

No one has suggested the folks at Belvedere haven't done their best to provide the GAM with an excellent site, but the reminder helps keep them on their toes.

This year's Amateur was among the best in memory, Rivard and tournament chairman Dick Fairgrieve have said.

Even if it's going to protect itself by signing short-term contracts with courses, the GAM is pleased with Belvedere and with Charlevoix.

And there is a group of people in town who are making every effort to keep it that way. The informal group, organized by Hal Hill and Jacquie Merta is trying to show the GAM how serious Charlevoix is about keeping the tournament.

They are listening to the GAM's concerns and doing something about them. And they are trying to get more people in town to recognize the importance of having the event here.

"It's not on Bridge Street," Belvedere president Carl Schumacher laments in explaining why the Amateur does not get the kind of encouragement events such as Venetian and the Waterfront Art Fair get from merchants.

The tournament brings 350 to 400 people to town for nearly a week at a time – mid-June – before the tourist season is hopping. The golfers and their families stay in local hotels and motels, eat in local restaurants and shop in local stores.

The tourney also helps promote Charlevoix, with daily newspaper and radio-TV stories reminding vacationers about the city in key early-summer weeks. It's the best kind of publicity – free and positive.

The pro-tourney group is looking for all the help it can get. So if you have any suggestions or just want to hear what they have in mind, be at city hall at 10 a.m. Friday, Aug. 28.

Jeff Rivard from the GAM will be there to hear what they have in mind.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared
by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

It has been said that some men seek greatness and others have it thrust upon them. If ever there was a man who had it thrust upon Him, it was Jesus Christ. His entire life was devoted to helping others. He never sought to draw the spotlight to Himself. He constantly tried to direct our thoughts and devotion to the heavenly Father.

Yet His unselfish nature and genuine love for each individual he met is precisely what drew an increasing number of people to Him. In an age where survival was literally a life and death struggle, people gladly reached out for the encouragement Jesus offered.

There is another old saying. The more things changed, the more they stay the same. There are far too many today for whom survival is still a life and death struggle. Perhaps not in a physical sense, but that struggle is very real in a spiritual or emotional sense. Realize as the body of Christ in the world today, Jesus is counting on us to carry on with His ministry. We are to share the same hope and encouragement with those who need it that He shared with us.

There is only one problem. Too many of us act like our faith is a top secret! As believers, we need to recognize that an opportunity for greatness is before us. It comes not from emphasizing who we are but who God is. It comes not from spotlighting what we can do but what God will do. As we try to direct the hearts and hopes of others towards our Heavenly Father, people will be drawn to us because of God's working through us, because of God's doing as He promised by supplying all their needs as well as ours.

Looking at the Master's life, we know the road is not an easy one to follow. But those whose lives He touched were never the same again. His love for God was something He could not possibly hide. Neither should our love for God be hidden. Who would really want to hide it? You can touch lives with that love and make a difference that will last forever.

Hemingway mystique

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

Twenty-six years have passed since the death of Ernest Hemingway, but the Hemingway mystique continues.

A TV film crew is in Petoskey this week working on a miniseries that will air next April covering the author's life from his first wedding to Hadley Richardson in 1921 through his death in 1961.

And of course it won't be the last Hemingway book, play, movie or TV opus about a man who still captures the imagination of the American public.

Whenever our out-of-town guests ask for something to read, they usually specify Hemingway — since they are visiting "Hemingway Country." We usually can come up with something they haven't read, because Hemingway's output was prodigious. One of my favorites is a well-worn pocketbook of feature articles Hemingway wrote while living in Toronto as a young man.

And then there's Hemingway's newest novel, Garden of Eden, which is available at the Charlevoix library. I don't have a copy, but I should probably get one to complete my collection. Although the book was published posthumously and critics argue about how much editing went into it, Eden is pure Hemingway — not his best effort, but far from his worst, which would have to be The Dangerous Summer.

I guess I am not into bull-fighting and I can't imagine anyone spending an entire summer living out of suitcases while he followed the bullfights around Spain.

I am a little disappointed that the wedding scene in the upcoming TV series will be filmed in Bay View rather than Horton Bay, where the wedding actually took place. Although the church is gone, most of the old homes frequented by Hemingway — including the house where the wedding breakfast was held — are still standing.

However, the producers feel the Victorian buildings in Bay View are more representative of the era and they are probably right.

One of my favorite Hemingway books is one that has been damned by most critics. It's called The Torrents of Spring and actually takes place in Petoskey. You can still pick out many of the places he mentions — including Charlevoix Avenue.

It is commonly agreed that Hemingway parrotted the style of Sherwood Anderson in Torrents in order to get his publisher to break his contract. But the publisher didn't see the spoof and published the book.

It's not Hemingway's best effort by a long shot — but it's interesting reading if you have a nodding acquaintance with Northern Michigan.

Hemingway has left his mark on other areas of the world as well.

Every year a bar in Europe sponsors a Hemingway write-alike contest. To enter all you have to do is enter a page of prose written in the spare Hemingway manner and peopled with Hemingway-like characters. Sounds easy, but try it. The prize is a trip to Europe.

I heard the other day that Key West, Fla., is overrun with cats. Enterprising Key Westians try to sell the unwanted cats to tourists claiming they are the descendants of the herd of cats Hemingway reportedly kept at his Key West home.

When will our infatuation with Hemingway end?

No one knows for sure, but I have a feeling that it is only beginning. The better we understand the man and the influences that shaped him, the more intriguing his work becomes.

Major questions, of course, will never be answered — and those hold the secret to the Hemingway mystique.

People trying to protect quality, character of city

Letters to the editor:

Editor:

Shame on you! In your public opinion poll regarding "condo" development in Charlevoix your readers overwhelmingly stated their feelings against more high density development in the downtown area. Yet, in your editorial (Aug. 19), you chastise these same people for trying to do something to protect the quality and character of what is left of Charlevoix.

I dare say the purpose and proposal you reject so vehemently are a direct result of 20 years of frustration. Twenty years of watching Round Lake become a shoreline of chimneys and "ticky-tacky" condos. It's twenty years of seeing variances, setbacks, etc., granted unchallenged to people building high density housing in an area already plagued with parking and congestion problems. Now you expect us to sit back quietly while the planning commission and the city planner allow the last pieces of property on the channel to become Edgewater Inn No. 2. shame on you!

We have waited twenty years while the planners and councils of this city have taken the "reasoned" approach. This approach has resulted in what one commission member calls "creative change." This means developers get what they want – rezoning, variances, setback and high density. We citizens get less; a waterfront with condos and hotels perched along its edge. Fewer homes for middle class families to buy or rent. Less year-round jobs because the movers and shakers of this community are so busy pandering to development money they don't take the time to seek out year-round industry that might insure more stores staying open in the winter.

For twenty years, Mr. Editor, we've watched our city change and slip way from us. Rather than chastise the mayor and the city council for at last trying to draft an amendment that would protect the future of our city, you should chastise a planning commission and those people who have not even tried to write an amendment with any teeth in it and have given our community away so that only one piece of property remains.

We've had twenty years of reaping the side effects of the pill real estate agents and developers have force-fed us. I for one am ready to try a new pill – one that might help Mrs. Miles "view-less" property from turning into a parking lot.

Family

Marlene and Ronald Kidwiler

Safko-Kidwiler

Marlene Dixon Safko and Ronald Eugene Kidwiler were married on June 26 at 2 p.m. at St. James Lutheran Church, Uvilla, W. Va., in the presence of family and close friends.

The bride is the daughter of Dorothy Dixon and the late Maurice Dixon of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Wade Kidwiler of Shenandoah Junction, W. Va. and the late Florence Griffith Kidwiler.

The Rev. Robert Lowden performed the double-ring ceremony.

Lorna Frye, organist, provided the wedding music.

The bride wore a tea-length gown of antique ivory lace. Scalloped lace accented the neckline, bodice and princess waist. The skirt and sleeves of the summer gown were also edged with scalloped lace. To complete her ensemble the bride wore a single string of pearls and pearl earrings. She carried a nosegay of pink roses, white daisies and baby's breath.

Attendants were Marie Sottung, matron of honor and Chrissy Safko, daughter of the bride. Best man Larry Kidwiler is the brother of the groom, and attendant David Safko is the son of the bride.

Vernon Kidwiler, brother of the groom, and his wife Diane hosted a reception immediately following the ceremony and a barbecue at their home near Harper's Ferry, W. Va.

Following a wedding trip to the South, the couple is residing in Rockledge, Fla.

Chaya Moore and Scott Stoughton

Moore-Stoughton

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Moore of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter, Chaya Lynn, to Scott Richard Stoughton of Birmingham, Ala. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stoughton of Milford.

The bride-to-be graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1986 and is in her second year of studies at Central Michigan University, where she is a member of Delta Zeta sorority.

Her fiance graduated from West Bloomfield High School in 1983 and from Central Michigan University in 1987 with a bachelor's degree in journalism. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity and is employed in Birmingham.

The wedding will take place next Jan. 2 at First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

Legion auxiliary set to install officers for year

Installation of officers for 1987-88 will highlight the meeting of the ladies auxiliary to the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, at the post home Tuesday, Sept. 1.

Florence Stucker of East Jordan, past district president, will officiate at the installation following a 6:30 p.m. potluck dinner.

Legionnaires will conduct an installation of officers at their 8 p.m. meeting.

Guests will be Charlevoix High School seniors who attended Girls' State at Central Michigan University in June sponsored by the auxiliary.

Janet Rathke has invited members to a conference at Edgewater Inn on Friday, Sept. 11. Registration is at 8 a.m.

The conference, to which numerous agencies have been invited will be hosted by the Human Services Coordinating Body of Charlevoix and Emmet counties to get the total picture of community needs.

Registration fee of $10 includes lunch. Reservations should be made this week.

The district meeting will be held at Lewiston in September, and 10 cards have been sent to ill and shut-in members.

VFW auxiliary records 100% member drive

The auxiliary to Veterans of Foreign Wars No. 1153 will meet at the post home at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 3.

The auxiliary was one of two in the district that had a 100 percent membership campaign this year. The organization has 74 members.

President, Dorothy Gilding reported new uniforms for members would become available for officers and others this year. The two-piece navy suit and white blouse replace the navy skirt and jacket worn many years.

Members contributed 94 hours to community service and 50 hours of rehabilitation service last month. Members who were ill or hospitalized were remembered.

Pins being sold to benefit cancer research are available says Arlene Staley, cancer chairman. The pins are a replica of an antique car and have the word "Michigan" on them.

The auxiliary is also collecting Glen's sales slips and redeeming them for cancer research.

Magic show raises senior citizen funds

The Charlevoix County Senior Citizens organization is hosting a magic show as one of its fund raising efforts for projects such as Meals on Wheels and transportation for the elderly.

The Steve Holt Miracles of Magic Show will be held at the East Jordan High School auditorium on Saturday Aug. 29 at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets can be purchased at the door the night of the show for $3 or free passes are available from merchants throughout the area.

The class of 1962 gathers for a photo at their reunion.

Class of '62 gathers for reunion

The Class of 1962 at Charlevoix High School gathered at the American Legion post home for its 25th reunion. The dinner was catered by Grey Gables Inn.

At the informal program, Stanley Martin, as master of ceremonies, introduced each member who gave a brief talk on life since graduation.

Attending the event (first row from left) were: Lynn Maxfield Groves, Sally Cross Sanford, Jeanette Novak of Damascus, Md., Maralene Chew Creswell, Maurine Sanford Sneathen of Grand Rapids, Sharon Abflater Such of Saginaw, Nancy Bogart Thorp of Traverse City and Detroit.

Second row: Dick Harrington of San Diego, Donald Berg of Sarasota, Fla., Tom Louiselle, Darlene McClanathan Buckner, Virginia (Sue) Helms LaJoice of East Jordan, Kathy Gallagher Hunter, Stanley Martin, Judy Ikens Kiel of Mt. Pleasant, Gary Thorp of Traverse City.

Third row: Tony Duerr of Ypsilanti, Donald Kelly, Bruce Bartlett, Jerry Drost, Dolly Farrell Louiselle, Barry Pierce, Lorraine Heise Warner of Petoskey, Dagmar Brock Muma of Jenison, Gary Spencer, Henry Wagner, Jerry Balch, Barry Lambert of Atlanta, Ga.

A family picnic took place at Depot Beach on Sunday.

McKenney-Oliver

Julie and Robert Oliver

Julie Ann McKenney and Robert L. Oliver Jr. exchanged marriage vows Sunday afternoon, July 19, at the United Methodist Church of East Jordan.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry McKenney of East Jordan are parents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Oliver Sr., also of East Jordan, are parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. Merlin DeLo officiated at the double-ring ceremony which was witnessed by approximately 130 guests. Baskets of white gladiolus, pink carnations, and purple statis decorated the church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a floor-length off-the-shoulder gown of ivory lace over satin trimmed with satin roses.

It was fashioned in a princess line with a dropped flounced skirt detailed with a big bow in back. The bride's headpiece of a lace bow and satin roses anchored a short veil.

Jerri Lyn Gabriel, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She wore a tea-length gown of antique white lace over dusty rose satin.

David Oliver, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man, and George McKenney, brother of the bride, and Chris Oliver, another brother of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Sally Saunders provided traditional organ music for the ceremony.

The bride's parents hosted the wedding reception in MacArthur Hall in the church. They were assisted by Betty Griffin, who cut the four-tier wedding cake, Wendy McKenney and Patti Spence.

The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at Nanny's Old Place in Charlevoix.

Following a wedding trip to Nassau, the newlyweds are at home in Petoskey, where both are students at North Central Michigan College. The bridegroom is also employed by Allied Bendix in Boyne City.

Sports

Fall sports open season before school starts

Football: Linemen mostly inexperienced

Preparations for the 1987 football season at Charlevoix High has been underway since Aug. 10. Play begins next week – before the opening of school – for the varsity and junior varsity teams.

Twenty-nine candidates for the varsity squad, 21 for the JV team and 23 for the freshman team have reported twice daily for practice.

The season will open Thursday, Sept. 3, for the JV team coached by Brian Certa and assistant Barry Anderson.

They will play the Petoskey Northmen at Curtis Field in Petoskey at 6:30 p.m. The game previously scheduled for Kipke Field will be played at Petoskey because the Rayder field will not be ready.

On Friday, Sept. 4, the varsity will play Petoskey in their season opener at 7:30 p.m.

Roger Gowell will return for his second year as Rayder gridiron coach. Dick Swenor and Hal Evans are his assistants.

Charlevoix finished the 1986 schedule with a 4-5 record.

The freshman squad, coached by Erik Lundteigen with Greg Loper as his assistant, will travel to Petoskey to meet the Northmen freshmen Wednesday, Sept. 9.

"We're smaller than in the past; we're thinner in the line and somewhat fewer in numbers," Gowell says of his 29 varsity players.

"We lost most of our line through graduation but, if we stay healthy, we have a good backfield returning. The line, however, will be, for the most part, lighter in size fewer in number and less experienced.

"Our backfield is quick. If we can do something about the line, we should be competitive," he adds.

Gowell says he has 14 seniors with varying degrees of experience plus one junior with some experience. The other 14 players are juniors up from the JV ranks.

Among the seniors are Dan Drury, 6-foot-2 and 200 pounds, who started last season as quarterback but was lost early because of a shoulder injury and Steve Hopkins (5-8, 150) who was "in and out" in the same position and will likely be quarterback this year. Marv Witthoeft (5-10, 150) and the only junior, Dave Miller, (5-7, 145) are halfbacks with experience and fullback Mark LaBlance (5-10, 165) is a veteran.

Other candidates for backfield positions are fullback Cory Battle, a senior transfer from southern Michigan and halfbacks Jason Whitley and Scott Novotny.

In the line are Mike Smith, 175-pound center who had limited experience last season; Derek Dutcher, a 195 pound veteran guard and Jim Tilton, a 205-pound tackle.

Other candidates for line positions are Scott Denny, Todd Holtzman, both seniors along with Brad McGlinch, James Montieth, and Dan Chase are former JV players.

Other linemen are Charles Britton, a tackle who spent last year abroad as an exchange student; Mark Dietrick, a senior German exchange student who has never played football; and juniors Dave Ballard, Matt Cunningham, Steve Mansen, Jim Gaskin and Bill Eaton who are candidates for tackle positions.

The end positions will also be filled with players with little or no varsity experience. The contenders are seniors Scott DeYoung, and Chad Thorp along with juniors Bill Burns, Dean Jones and Shawn Putman.

Gowell hesitates to name a tentative line-up for the opener, saying it would likely be the seniors returning from last season and those with varsity experience filling key positions.

Basketball: Three seniors returning

The Rayder girls basketball team will open its 1987 season Thursday, Sept. 3 in a game at Ellsworth.

Stan Martin is beginning his first year as head coach. Becky Gengle succeeds him as junior varsity coach.

Twenty-one girls are out for the squad, Martin said, with the majority of them being freshmen and sophomores.

Among those returning are three seniors from last year's district championship team, all of them forwards – Jill Austin, 5-foot 10, Ellen Pearl, 5-8 and Allison Hall 5-6.

Other varsity players will come from JV ranks where they were regulars with the squad. They are Stacy Gebott, 5-7 forward or guard, Billie Jean Habel, 5-5 forward. Melissa Boss, 6-0 center, Chrissy Dillon, 5-5 forward, Marty Bragg, a transfer from Boyne City, a 5-3 guard; Tricia Sutton, 5-1 guard; and Marty Walker, 5-6 transfer from Suttons Bay.

"As you can see, we're starting a building program after losing several experienced players through graduation. However, we have a good group. They're working hard and, come mid-season, we should be competitive," Martin says.

"The team is presently adapting to the three-point rule which is being adopted this year. This is the only major change in the rules," he says.

In 1986, the team finished league play with a 11-3 record, claimed the Class C district title and advanced to the finals in the Class C regional tournament before losing by two points.

Sportsmanship award presented

Gordon Block, shortstop with Townhouse, has been named recipient of the 1987 Larry McBride Award.

This is the twenty-first year the award has been made to a member of the Charlevoix Men's Slowpitch League. The award is presented each year to a player selected by league officials.

The award is given to the player who best represents the attributes of sportsmanship and team spirit as well as being an excellent ball player. Block, shortstop with Townhouse, has participated in the league for 10 years

The award is named in memory of McBride, an outstanding athlete at Charlevoix High School. After graduating in 1964, he played in the summer softball league until his death in a traffic accident in 1967.

David Novotny is chairman of the Larry McBride Award committee.

Pine Hill comeback wins playoff

After following on the heels of Grey Gables all season, Pine Hill Nursery of Eastport won the final two games in a best-two-out-of-three playoff tournament to capture the Charlevoix Men's Slowpitch League title.

The two teams had eliminated Richard's Topside Cafe and Davis Chevrolet to clash in the finals.

Grey Gables came through the first game of the series with a 9-2 victory over Pine Hill Nursery.

Pine Hill then evened the play off with a 3-2 win. Pine Hill then won 9-5 in a rubber game.

Ken Peebles was on the mound for Pine Hill and Ray LaVoie for Grey Gables in all three games.

In game 1 Peebles allowed 14 hits including home runs by Mike Loper and Gary Drury while LaVoie gave up eight.

In the second game Pine Hill collected 11 hits off LaVoie while Grey Gables had a home run by Loper among its seven hits.

Pine Hill capitalized on its 11 hits in the championship game. Peebles gave up eight hits.

Yachting Notes

"Oh, the days dwindle down to a precious few," as that old chestnut goes, and as the CYC racers look at the upcoming September weather, they can count on only one more summer series race to improve their lot before taking the annual Budweiser/Red Fox break.

Most of the first place positions in the various fleets are locked up with sloops still battling for subsequent flags.

Summer series totals going into the final race are as follows:

Probation office handles 80 cases for court

The 33rd Circuit Court probation-parole office in Charlevoix County is currently handling a caseload of 80 probationers, according to Kenneth J. Mulka, probation-parole officer.

Since January 1985, when Judge Richard M. Pajtas took office, there have been 109 criminal convictions in Charlevoix County, and probation was part of the sentencing in 78 of the convictions.

Persons on probation must report monthly to the probation officer, complete high school and attend counseling sessions when ordered to, not participate in any further criminal activity, pay restitution to injured parties when applicable, and not move out of state without permission.

When probationers move out of state, they come under the jurisdiction of the probation officer in the area to which they move. Of Mulka's 80 probationers, 16 are transfers from other counties or states.

Sometimes when Charlevoix County residents are convicted elsewhere, they return home to serve their probationary time.

In addition to probation, sentencing in criminal cases may include prison or jail terms. In the 109 convictions, 24 persons received prison sentences and seven received jail sentences.

Part of Mulka's job is to make pre-sentencing investigations, in which he looks into the background of persons convicted of crimes.

He goes to schools, employers and others with whom they have been associated. He checks marital relationships, military records and any other material which might shed light on the individuals.

This compilation of prior activities is given to the judge, who considers it in handing down sentences. The report is also available to criminal and attorney, who may dispute its contents.

Persons sent to prison may be released on parole, in which case they come under the supervision of the local probation-parole officer. At present, Mulka has six parolees under his jurisdiction.

Persons serving jail terms imposed by the 33rd Circuit Court may be eligible for work release under a program developed by the court.

Eligible persons include those who are not serving terms for criminal sexual conduct, assault or drug-related offenses.

They must have legitimate full-time employment or a valid offer of a full-time job, must present no clear threat or danger to the community and must be supporting dependents or themselves at the time of sentencing.

In March 1985, the court set up a victim restitution fund by requiring each convicted criminal where probation was part of the sentencing to pay $50 to the fund.

This enables the court to pay victims up to $300 immediately. Before the program began, victims would often be paid nothing because the criminal was either unwilling or unable to repay the victim.

Mulka has presented three probation enhancement proposals to the county board of commissioners.

The proposals, which add up to $9,300 for Charlevoix and Emmet counties (which make up the 33rd Circuit), request $4,300 for psychological evaluation and therapy of persons under court supervision and their victims; $4,000 for a probation services fund to help needy probationers with such needs as emergency travel funds, medical assistance, tuition for vocational training, eyeglasses and dental work, and rehabilitation therapy or counseling fees; and $1,000 for a staff training and seminar fund.

Latest Oyster Bay plan unveiled in Hayes

The proposed site plan for Fox and Associates' property at Oyster Bay in Hayes Township shows 28 home sites arranged in a curving fashion in the uplands area of the property.

It also indicates a marina; a community building and pool; proposed sanitary, water and utility lines; and other necessary physical needs of a community on 338 acres of property with 2,800 feet of Lake Charlevoix shoreline.

The site plan was handed out to members of the Hayes Township planning commission by John Campbell of Site Planning Development "just to show us what they have in mind," says zoning administrator Ethel Knepp.

Campbell met with the planning commission principally to ask their cooperation in encouraging the township board to approve Fox's plan for an extension of the Charlevoix sewage system to his property.

An extension is necessary if the property is to be developed according to the site plan because there is enough "perkable" area for only 14 individual on-site sewage systems.

Thus begins a long journey:

– Fox must have written authority from Charlevoix to extend the sewer line to his property.

– He must have permission from the Charlevoix Township board to run the line through that township.

– And he must have permission from the Hayes Township board to continue into Hayes at least to Oyster Bay.

After getting a go-ahead from the three municipalities, Fox must receive approval of the site plan from the Department of Natural Resources and the Army Corps of Engineers because wetland areas are involved.

After receiving those approvals, Fox must formally submit the site plan to the Hayes Township zoning administrator, who says because the property is zoned residential and can accommodate only 14 houses (one for each 200 feet of lake frontage), he must request a change in zoning to planned unit development, which would permit 28 houses.

If the rezoning is granted after a process that could involve a public hearing, the site plan would be formally studied by the township planning commission.

After the township approves a site plan, it must go to the county planning commission for a recommendation of approval or disapproval. However, this is only an advisory action.

Fox has been trying to get approval from Hayes Township for a housing development since 1984, when he first proposed building 228 condominium units and an 18-hole golf course.

Subsequent plans called for fewer units, but all were rejected by the township planning commission on the basis they did not comply with the township zoning ordinance.

In January 1985, Fox sued the township, calling the zoning ordinance "arbitrary, capricious, discriminatory, and a confiscatory taking of property without due process of law and without just compensation."

Obituaries

James T. Flynn

James T. Flynn, 91, of Charlevoix, died Sunday, Aug. 23, at Penfold Adult Foster Care Home.

Funeral services scheduled Wednesday, Aug. 26, at St. Mary's Church with the Rev. James K. Gardiner officiating and interment in St. Mary's Cemetery.

The rosary was recited at the Winchester Funeral Home on Tuesday, Aug. 25.

Born in Marblehead, Mass., on March 17, 1896, Mr. Flynn was a Navy veteran of World War 1.

Mr. Flynn was associated with the hotel business most of his adult life. He came to Charlevoix in early 1920 as a summer employee at the Inn Hotel of Charlevoix. Then in 1937 purchased and managed until 1963 the Lakeview Inn. In 1937, he made Charlevoix his permanent home. He was married to Rebecca Thompson in 1937. She preceded him in death in 1955.

He was a member of St. Mary's Church, Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 of American Legion, and Charlevoix Historical Society.

Surviving are two sons, James T. Jr., of Kirkland, Wash., and John J. of San Francisco; two granddaughters, Rebecca and Peggy of Kirkland, Wash.; and a sister, Marguerite Phalen of Marblehead, Mass.

The family suggests memorials to St. Mary's Church or the Charlevoix Historical Society. Envelopes are available at Winchester Funeral Home.

Evelyn 'Peg' Holm

Mrs. Evelyn "Peg" Holm, 61, died Monday, Aug. 24, at Little Traverse Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey.

Funeral services will be held at Winchester Funeral Home at 1 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 27. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton of Community Church of God will officiate. Interment will be in Brookside Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Winchester Funeral Home 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 26.

Born in East Jordan on Oct. 30, 1925, to Charles and Roxenne (Bolser) Gibbard, Evelyn Gibbard graduated from East Jordan High School in 1942. On March 23, 1946, she married Harold L. Holm at East Jordan. They always made their home in Charlevoix.

She was an avid bowler and had bowled for many years with the Swan Valley League of East Jordan.

Surviving are her husband, Harold L. of Charlevoix; a son, Edward L. of Charlevoix; three grandchildren; two brothers, Clifford L. Gibbard of East Jordan and Rex Gibbard of Petoskey; and three sisters, Midge Crain of Charlevoix, Ruby Dollhoph of Westland and Alice Velat of Flint.

Edna M. Thompson

Edna M. Thompson, 62, of East Jordan, died Friday, Aug. 21, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral services were held Tuesday Aug. 25, at Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth. The Rev. Walter Freel of East Jordan Baptist Church officiated. Interment was in Lakeside Cemetery in South Arm Township. A VFW memorial service was held at Hastings Funeral Home Monday evening.

The former Edna May Clark was born to Walter and Amanda (Duffey) Clark Oct. 2, 1924, in East Jordan. She was married to Ralph Thompson Oct. 12, 1950, at East Jordan where they always made their home.

He preceded her in death in 1972. She was a member of VFW Auxiliary No. 7580.

Surviving are a daughter, Peggy Thompson of East Jordan; a son, Leonard of Tucson, Ariz.; seven grandchildren; two sisters Mabel Hofman of Ellsworth and Emma Krueger of Boyne City and one brother, Richard Clark of East Jordan.

Marine laws apply to jetskis, sheriff warns

Sheriff George T. Lasater is advising operators of such water transportation devices as Jetskis, Wet Jets, and Wet Bikes that these devices are classified as motorboats and therefore must comply with all marine laws.

They must be properly registered by the Secretary of State; the registration must be carried aboard; a serviceable fire extinguisher must be carried aboard; an operator must have-wear a personal floatation device; an operator between 12 and 16 years of age must have in his possession a valid Boating Safety Certification; an operator must obey "Slow" and "No Wake" regulations; an operator must not enter buoyed swim areas; an operator must not operate within 100 feet of swim areas, docks, rafts, moored or drifting vessels, launch ramps, etc., unless at a Slow-No Wake speed.

"These vessels are fun but they are not toys and must not be operated recklessly," the sheriff said.

Boaters, swimmers reminded of courtesy

They're big lakes and there's room for everyone, says a sheriff department marine officer but laws and common courtesies must be observed by boaters and swimmers.

Ron Moore, marine deputy with the sheriff's department, said swimmers within an area marked by buoys must not go more than 100 feet outside the marked area.

Persons diving with the aid of a suit or mechanical device must place a buoy or a boat near the diver. The boat or buoy must display a "divers's flag" (with red and white diagonal stipes).

Distance swimmers are advised to stay out of the main lane of traffic because it is difficult for a boater to see a swimmer, Moore said.

Boaters and water skiers, on the other hand, must go at a "slow no-wake speed" within 100 feet of a raft, dock, moored vessel or occupied swimming area unless dropping of a skier.

"The key here is occupied swimming area – that is any place where a swimmer in in the water," Moore said.

EVELINE TOWNSHIP REGULAR BOARD MEETING

Regular meeting held on August 11, 1987; all board members present; approximately 35 guests.

Minutes of previous meeting were read and additions made; minutes were approved as corrected.

Approval was given to pay for the culverts on Washington and 2nd Streets in Ironton - $4,493.00.

A motion was made, supported and carried to follow our attorney's advice that we do not put buoys in the water at the end of Washington St. in Ironton as requested by Sheriff Lasater - it was the opinion of the attorney that the township is not liable for maintaining a public bathing beach that is not owned by the township.

Several complaints from township residents were heard - concerning the asphalt on Sweetbriar Lane in Ironton and the odor of the hog farm near Whiting Park.

Also, several zoning items were addressed - the Landings' deck in Ironton and the Hamilton "guests" at Charlevoix Shores Estate.

A request that the board adopt a resolution concerning motor boat noise in Lake Charlevoix was heard and a request for brine on 5th Street in Ironton will be taken care of.

An amendment to the special use permit for BC Cable Television was made to extend the specified time limit for construction from 6 months to 12 months from start of construction.

A letter from a resident in the Ironton Drain area was read.

A treasurer's report was given by Linda Helermann.

Approval was given to pay check #1812 through #1838 amounting to $8,987.58.

Adjournment was at 12:25 a.m.
Marsha Beishlag, Clerk

State mortgage price limit for area changes

New purchase price limits for homes financed in the Michigan Mortgage credit certificate program have been announced by the federal government.

The credit certificates lower the cost of the buyer's mortgage interest by as much as 2.5 pereentage points.

In Charlevoix County, the maximum sales price for a new house will be $71,060. For existing homes, the sales price limit will be $54,890.

Income limits are unchanged, at $30,000 for buyers of new houses and $28,000 for buyers of existing homes.

In Charlevoix County, the lending institutions taking applications for the Michigan Mortgage credit certificates are First Federal of Michigan, First Financial Mortgage Co., Lambrecht Co., Northwestern Savings and Loan Associaton and Old Kent Bank of Petoskey.

CHARLEVOIX CITY COUNCIL
REGULAR MEETING
August 17, 1987 7:00 p.m.
SYNOPSIS

Charlevoix City Council met in a Regular Session on the above date and time with Mayor Ralph McRae presiding and all Council members present except Councilmember Probert.

Minutes of August 3rd meeting approved as printed.

PUBLIC COMMENTS: Several members of the audience expressed strong feelings to have the Council place stronger restrictions on density and height on property surrounding the water as presented in the petitions signed by over 800 citizens.

7:23 p.m. Enter Councilmember Probert.

A neighbor of Expressions Unlimited expressed her desire for a 6' fence to block her view of the "tacky" Plastic Greenhouses.

PUBLIC HEARING-DCL, INC. Ance Road-Development Plan Review Council approved the Site Plan for a 40'x40' expansion to their present building.

Mayor asked Clerk to read portions of the Planning Commission Minutes for August 10th regarding Eldon Johnson construction at 306 E. Dixon and Gilbert Zoibler Site Plan at 307 Belvedere Avenue. Both cases involved violations of the Zoning Code.

LEASE FOR THE SPIRIT OF CHARLEVOIX was approved unanimously with certain stipulations.

EMERGENCY ORDINANCE No. 486 (published elsewhere in this paper) was adopted pertaining to a No-Wake Zone in the Charlevoix Harbor.

REQUEST FOR HANGAR AT THE AIRPORT by Mr. David Keon was reviewed and a 15 year lease with certain stipulations was approved 5-1 — Councilmember Roloff voted nay.

The vacancies on the Planning Commission and the Board of Appeals will be filled at a later date.

Resolution No. 87-8-3 was adopted unanimously which asked the State Highway Department to furnish a generator at the Bridge to be used in an electrical emergency such as August 7th.

Sales Agreement for promotion of Industrial Park was approved as amended.

Bills/Payroll totalling $345,825.48 were approved as presented.

Council discussed the Appraisal being conducted, Charlevoix-Antrim Alliance Meeting in Charlevoix on July 20, 1987 and other matters.

Meeting adjourned at 10:03 p.m.

Panel: Accept 7 counties' trash

by PEG OHLE

Charlevoix County, one of Michigan's most important resort and tourism counties, may soon also become the most important garbage burial ground in northern Michigan.

Last week, a committee of 13 county residents charged with the task of writing a solid waste disposal plan for the county, voted to permit garbage from seven counties to be buried in a landfill in Eveline Township.

The site is a few miles from the county's three cities of Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City and within miles of Lake Charlevoix.

If the plan becomes law, garbage haulers will be able to dispose of any amount and type of waste from Emmet, Antrim, Kalkaska, Cheboygan, Crawford and Otsego counties, as well as Charlevoix county.

There is much more planning and writing to do on the county's solid waste management plan.

After the committee finishes its job, the plan will be submitted to the 15 townships and three cities in the county as well as to the county board of commissioners for approval.

At least three-fourths of the townships and cities must approve it before it can go to the Department of Natural Resources for its blessing.

The adopted resolution was essentially a compromise between those on the committee who wanted to limit the use of the landfill to Charlevoix, Emmet and part of Antrim counties and those who wanted to keep the landfill open to the entire state.

The committee, which was appointed by the county board of commissioners, has held seven monthly meetings to update the present county waste management plan, a process that is required every five years by state law.

The Charlevoix County Landfill has been the main depository for the county's solid waste for several years and is recognized as such in the present solid waste management plan along with recommendations for future consideration of recycling and incineration.

The fact that Charlevoix County Landfill is widely used by haulers from all over northern Michigan has caused concern among Charlevoix county commissioners who fear it will be filled to capacity earlier than desired and the county will have to look elsewhere for a disposal site.

The availability of the Charlevoix county site makes it easier for other county governments to say to haulers, "take it to Charlevoix county," and fulfill their legal requirement to provide a disposal site.

The solid waste management committee is constituted, according to law, with four members from the solid waste industry: Dawson Way, who owns and operates Charlevoix County Landfill, C.H. Smith, Jamie Hass and Tad Malpass.

Three representatives are from the general public: Ralph Richardson, Nancy Ferguson and Tom Wieland and two are from environmental organizations, Larry Levengood and Phil Johnson.

Four representatives are from government bodies: Don Smith, representing the county; Junior Hunt, representing the townships; Randy Frykberg, representing the cities and Denny Jason, representing the Northwest Regional Planning Commission.

Of all the committee members, Smith has been the most outspoken, chiding other counties for not doing their part in planning for solid waste disposal. He has said that as long as Charlevoix county takes garbage from outside it will continue to be sent here.

Smith was the major proponent of the plan to limit disposal in Charlevoix County Landfill to that generated in Charlevoix, Emmet and part of Antrim counties.

Therese Fini fills in measurements on an appraisal card as she works on the city-wide residential property re-appraisal. Fini, from Saginaw, is the only woman on the nine-appraiser crew from Great Lakes Appraisal in Lansing. City Manager Mike Wiesner says the appraisal has gone well in the first week, with nearly all homeowners allowing entry to their houses to ensure equitable computations.

More than 200 students participating in the annual vacation Bible school launch balloons at the end of their week-long session at the Assembly of God church. Each balloon had the name and address of a child attached in hopes of receiving a return message from wherever the balloon sailed.

Garbage bags left along roads cause problems

Sheriff George Lasater says the problem of people leaving garbage bags along roadways has become more serious this year.

Animals going through the bags looking for food leave the contents strewn along highways, Lasater says.

Some people, he says, are leaving garbage bags at others' trash pickup points but trash pickup services are color-coding customers bags and only picking up those bags from their customers.

This creates the same problem with animals entering bags, Lasater says.

When the sheriff's office receives a complaint, he says, efforts are made to contact the owner and charge them with littering.

Boy Scouts attend camp

Boy Scouts of Troop 11 and adult leaders have returned from a week at Camp Greilick, home of the Scenic Trails Council.

Scouts worked on skill and merit badges and used facilities at the camp operated by the council which services northern Michigan counties.

Making the trip were Bill Burns as senior patrol leader, Mike Ochs, Steve Kniat, John Rathjens, Terry Meadows, Matt Seamon, Greg Seamon, Gary Arnold, Ronald Zellers and Donald Langerman.

Scoutmaster Louis Edwards and Gerald Chase and Advis Arnold of the scout committee were at camp with the boys. The camp is near Traverse City.

EMERGENCY ORDINANCE No. 486

An Ordinance to amend the Code of the City of Charlevoix by adding new sections, which new section shall be designated as Sections 3.89 (1) through 3.89 (7), Chapter 34, Title III of said Code.

The City of Charlevoix Ordains:

That Title III, Chapter 34 of the Charlevoix City Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 3.89 (1)

The Charlevoix City Council hereby determines that a public emergency exists that effects the life, health, or property of the residents of the City of Charlevoix by reason of the high water levels of Lake Michigan, Round Lake, Lake Charlevoix and their interconnecting waterways which caused concern over the public safety and also damage to property.

Section 3.89 (2)

All phases used in this emergency ordinance shall be construed and have the same meaning as those words and phrases as defined in Act 303 of the Public Acts of 1967, as amended being MCLA 281.1001 et seq.; MSA 18.1287 (1) et seq.

Section 3.89 (3)

From and after the date of this Ordinance it shall be unlawful for any person to navigate or operate, or cause to be navigated or operated, in Charlevoix Harbor, any vessel whereby a wake or wash is created by said vessel. It is the express intend of this Ordinance to deem the entirety of Charlevoix Harbor, as a "slow - no wake speed" zone as defined in Section 8 (B) of Act 303 of the Public Acts of 1967, as amended.

Section 3.89 (4)

All other Ordinances or parts of Ordinances in conflict are hereby repealed.

Section 3.89 (5)

Violations of this Ordinance are deemed a misdemeanor and may be punished by a fine not to exceed Five Hundred ($500.00) Dollars together with costs of prosecution or imprisonment in the County Jail or such other places of detention as the Court may prescribe for a period not to exceed ninety (90) days or said fine, cost of prosecution and imprisonment at the discretion of the Court.

Section 3.89 (6)

This Ordinance and the various parts, section, sub-sections, provisions, and clauses are severable. If any part of this Ordinance is found to be invalid or unconstitutional it is hereby declared that the remainder of this ordinance shall not be effected thereby.

Section 3.89 (7)

Pursuant to Section 17 of Act 303 of the Public Acts of 1967, as amended, the Charlevoix County Sheriff or his authorized deputies shall enforce this local Ordinance in accordance with the provisions of said Act.

This Ordinance No. 486 was adopted by the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix on August 17, 1987 by the following yea and nay vote:

YEAS: Councilmembers Roloff, Haggard, Bellows, Probert, Muma & Timms NAYS: None, ABSENT: None

Arlene L. Staley, City Clerk — Ralph A. McRae, Mayor

I hereby certify that Ordinance No. 486 was adopted by the City Council of the City of Charlevoix on August 18, 1987 and was published in the Charlevoix Courier on August 26, 1987.

Petunia auction list grows

Several more big-ticket items have been added to list of items going on the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful auction block.

Just a handful of tickets for the prize Mustang convertible remain, but sealed bids will be accepted for auction items from people not attending the event.

The KCB auction to help fund Operation Petunia will be held at 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 7 – that's Labor Day – as the grand opening event at the Edgewater Inn conference center.

Each Mustang ticket will admit two people to the event. Tickets may still be available from either Charlevoix County State Bank or First State Bank of Charlevoix.

Sealed bids on the nearly 40 donated auction items will be accepted by mail at KCB, P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, or at Mayfair Gift Shop in the Edgewater Inn until 7 p.m. Labor Day.

Sealed bids must include name, phone number, item number and amount of bid. There will be minimum acceptable bids on some items, but those minimums have not yet been set.

The latest, and most-expensive, donation is a Schuss Mountain time share from Vacation Properties Network.

The time share includes the availability of trading for time at more than 1,000 other time share properties, but is a two-bedroom condo use purchase which includes annual taxes and maintenance fees.

More information about the time share will be available at the auction or can be obtained at Vacation Properties Network.

Other recent donations include a week in a Single Island, Fla., condo; a Mirro-Craft deep fisherman II boat; a steak and swim party for 12 couples at The Dunes; 14 square yards of black screened top soil.

Also, 50 pounds of buffalo steamship round; 300 square feet of Myrtle ground cover; four rounds at Belvedere Golf Club; and four rounds and two carts at Antrim Dells golf course.

Schools

Parents may register students at the school office during the day or by calling the office for an evening appointment.

Parents registering kindergarten students are asked to take a certified birth record and an up-to-date health record. Parents of older students are asked to take the child's health record.

BEAVER ISLAND

Beaver Island Community School will begin classes Wednesday, Sept. 2.

Teachers began work Monday, Aug. 21, with a two-day work session.

The school will have a projected enrollment of 52 students according to principal Kathleen McNamara.

The school has a kindergarten through 12th grade enrollment with the smallest class of three students in fourth grade and the largest of six in tenth.

Two teachers have joined the faculty. James D. Stambaugh will teach U.S. history and reading in junior and senior high classes, and Donna Stambaugh will be in charge of the Chapter I program.

James Stambaugh has a bachelor's degree with a major in English and a minor in history and a master's in English from Western Michigan University. He has taught at White Pigeon, Centerville and Sturgis.

Donna Stambaugh has a bachelor's degree in special education from the University of Michigan and a master's degree in special education, with honors from Western Michigan University. She has taught at Sturgis, Michigan City, Ind., and St. Joseph County Intermediate School District.

A pre-school program is being offered for the first time for, four- and five-year olds entering kindergarten in 1988.

The classes will meet 10-11:30 a.m. Tuesday and Thursday with registration scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 15. Main emphasis will be the development of group skills.

The school will also offer a soccer program. Two matches will be played on the mainland and two on the island prior to the fourth annual tournament Oct. 10-12 when three mainland teams will visit the island.

Lloyd Kuebler works on a project at his home. Although he is retiring from his job with the city, he is not slowing down very much.

Retiring but not slowing down

by PEG OHLE

Lloyd Kuebler was busy with a woodworking project at his farm in Hayes Township.

Although he is retiring after 34 years of service to the City of Charlevoix and may not be driving into town every day, this busy man is not going to stop working.

Kuebler's first job with the city was as an operator in the diesel generating plant, which furnished electricity to the area. After that was closed down, he was transferred to the sewage treatment plant, where he worked up to the job of superintendent.

That is all Kuebler is retiring from. He is not retiring from farming with his son Doug – growing hay, corn and small grains – and he is not retiring from his handyman and caretaker work for several Lake Charlevoix families.

"I'll just be working eight to 10 hours a day," he says, grinning.

Kuebler was born in Emmet County just outside of Brutus and attended Alanson High School, where he met his wife, Anna Honeysette. They moved to Hayes Township in 1950, three years before Kuebler started working for Charlevoix.

Besides their son, they have a daughter, Geri Gesell, who lives in New Jersey.

Kuebler and his wife are making one concession to retirement this winter. They will travel to Oregon to visit Mrs. Kuebler's brother.

"We took a short vacation about 10 years go and went out there and we liked it," Kuebler says.

Samuel Creswell, who worked with Kuebler in the sewage treatment plant for 14 years, has taken over the job of superintendent.

Among his duties will be furnishing weather information to the Courier as Kuebler did for many years.

Ferry Beach not on state grant list

by DON DIBLEY

The city's plans for Ferry Beach have hit a snag – the state doesn't plan to give the city the money.

Charlevoix applied for two grants – one from the state, the other from the federal government – through the Department of Natural Resources.

But, even though the application for the state grant scored well on the DNR's criteria, the city is not in line for funding.

"The trust fund board has tentatively come up with a list of priorities, and Charlevoix is not included on that list," says Jeanne Powers, a state grant coordinator.

"But none of the projects were eliminated at that time."

The city still has a chance to talk its way back on the funding list and is still in consideration for the federal grant.

If there is one. Legislation in Congress to allocate money for the Land and Water Conservation Fund so far includes no money, Powers says.

The city's plans to improve Ferry Beach call for $666,000 in work – with state or federal funding of 50 or 75 percent, depending on the program.

The city would like to:

- Expand the boat launch area,
- Install a fish cleaning station,
- Construct new restrooms'
- Move the children's play area away from the water,
- Modify and enlarge the parking area.

Also proposed, but not included in the grant applications, is moving Ferry Avenue further from the water.

When Powers inspected the Ferry Beach site with city officials in June she indicated she thought the project would score very high with state officials.

She refuses now, however, to comment on a report that the city scored in the top 22 communities but is being passed over.

"There isn't any official action yet," she says. Although the applications have been scores, says Powers, the list has not been released.

The Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund board, which is determining which communities receive parts of between $4 million and $5 million, will be holding more meetings, she says.

Last year, Powers says, the board debated its list of grant possibilities right up to a January deadline, and she expects it may do so again this year.

A delegation from the city plans to attend a board meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 7, to plead its case.

The city will only be alloted five minutes to make its stand, however.

City Manager Mike Wiesner says the city won't have an opportunity to say much, but he hopes a good-sized group attends to show support for the city's plans.

There is no formal procedure for making a presentation to the board in regards to a grant application, Powers says, but anybody is allowed five minutes to speak during the board meetings.

If the city were to receive a grant from the trust fund – formerly known as the Kammer Land Trust Fund – the state would pay for 75 percent of the project.

Under the federal program, the city could receive 50 percent funding.

The application procedure for that program "is pretty much on hold," says Powers, because Congress has not taken any action on funding.

No funding for the program was included in legislation approved by the federal House of Representatives, and there is none presently in bills under consideration by the Senate.

So, she says, there will probably be no action on the Land and Water Conservation Fund for quite awhile.

In explaining the two programs in June, Powers said the criteria are different. So it is possible to rank high in the scoring for one and not in the other, or to score high in both.

HEMINGWAY WEDDING DAY

Fact and fiction have often become confused in tales about Ernest Hemingway. Last week more than 100 people gathered in Petoskey to recreate the writer's first wedding as a TV mini-series will depict it. Here, though, is a first-hand account of that Horton Bay event told by one of the people who was at the real wedding – 66 years ago tomorrow.

by WILLIAM H. OHLE

Somewhere in this world, unless it has been destroyed, is a very good watercolor painting of the old Methodist Church in Horton Bay, in which Hadley Richardson and Ernest Hemingway were married, Sept. 3, 1921, both for the first time.

The picture was painted on commission by Mrs. Ruth Dahlgren, wife of a retired Charlevoix doctor, as a gift to the bride from the residents of Horton Bay.

It was a head-on view of the little house of worship painted from the Dahlgren front porch directly across the sandy road that was and is the main street of town, now called the Boyne City Road.

The gift was a reaction to a wedding invitation issued to the dozen or so families, who made up the town, by Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Hemingway, parents of the groom, for the practical purpose of filling the church pews at the ceremony.

Ernest was neither liked nor disliked by the natives. They really didn't know him well, but had been watching him grow up around Horton Bay for the past 20 years, and were sympathetic toward him for the wounds he had received serving the Red Cross in Italy in World War I.

Also, Dr. Hemingway had, on occasion, willingly served various Bay Township residents professionally for many years when he was in residence at his Walloon Lake summer home, Windemere.

In fact, only a few years previously, the doctor had attended the last rites of his old friend, Alonzo Stroud, one of the founders of the village, in this same church.

Back in Oak Park, Ill., a Hemingway wedding would have filled a church to overflowing. Likewise, there would have been a large turnout in St. Louis. Although both of Hadley's parents were deceased, the family had lived in St. Louis for years and had a wide circle of friends.

For some reason, Hadley and Ernest decided to come to Horton Bay to be married. Neither wanted the pomp of a wedding in St. Louis or Oak Park; it is probable that Hadley was deferring to Ernest's long-standing love affair with northern Michigan and wished, also, to satisfy her curiosity about a place that had such a strong hold on her future husband.

The complicated long-distance logistics were worked out by Ernest's mother, Ernest, and Hadley, but not without glitches.

The Horton Bay Methodist Church was easy to reserve. By 1921, it was used only occasionally for Sunday services when a "circuit rider" minister happened along. It had been a long time since a wedding ceremony, or even a baptism, had been observed in it.

Since the family had never affiliated with a church in northern Michigan, the services of a minister presented a problem. Dr. Tuttle, Episcopal bishop of the St. Louis

County may construct courthouse

by PEG OHLE

The building committee appointed by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners to determine how best to meet the county's need for more office space has just about decided the best thing to do would be to build on county-owned land adjacent to the sheriff's department at Garfield and Grant Streets.

Commissioner Don Smith, a member of the committee, told the Courier that adding to the present county building was not feasible and providing space near the sheriff's department for circuit, district and probate court offices seemed like a good idea.

Services provided by county agencies, many of them state-mandated, have increased considerably since the present county building was constructed in 1956.

At that time there was no planning department, no building inspection department, no youth activities department, and much smaller equalization, court, prosecutor, register of deeds, treasurer and clerk departments.

Some time ago, the department of social services moved out of the county building to its own building on M-66, and last year the building inspection and youth activities departments were moved from the county building annex because the district health department needed more space there.

Building inspection and youth activities are now located in a renovated house at the far end of the county building parking lot.

The building committee has some preliminary architectural plans.

The problem now, according to Smith, is deciding how the needed $1.5 million can be raised.

Condominium limitation debate goes on

A city "condo ban" is beginning to look like a mirage in the desert – it doesn't get any closer but it won't go away, either.

City council has taken up the controversial proposal formally for the first time, after talking about it informally and after the issue spent several months in the planning commission.

But no progress was made in reaching a concensus on what should – or should not – be done.

Being proposed in various incarnations by Mayor Ralph McRae is a zoning ordinance amendment to halt the construction of multiple-family dwellings near the waterfront.

Proponents say such a ban would preserve views of the lakes, curb further traffic problems and keep Charlevoix "the Beautiful."

Opponents say current laws are sufficient, the proposal is discriminatory toward a handful of land owners and it will not solve the problems it purports to.

A proposal to limit land uses within 200 feet of Round Lake, Pine River Channel, Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan to single-family residential and marine-fishing uses was defeated by the planning commission, as was one that redefined the boundaries to exclude much of downtown and Lake Charlevoix.

McRae's latest proposal calls for exclusion of multiple-family within 150 feet of the channel and much of Round Lake. Under questioning by John Haggard, McRae acknowledged that plan would prevent addition of apartments at a strip of retail stores near the bridge.

That sort of problem has caused concerns for some council members – can an amendment be written that does just what is intended without causing other problems?

Others question whether any amendment should be written. "It's all right there, it's right in the book," said council member Bill Haggard after the mayor had sections of the zoning ordinance and master plan read aloud.

City attorney Jeff Van Treese cautioned council that state law prohibits discrimination against the condominium style of ownership.

McRae answered that he proposes to ban any type of high-density dwelling – hotel, apartments, units commonly called condos.

"I'm not against condos per se," said McRae. "In fact, I own a condo in Florida." The mayor then listed a number of positive effects condos have had on the city including paying 32 percent of the property taxes and raising employment.

"But we've reached a limit on the water," he said. "Build them elsewhere."

William Martin, part owner of the Weathervane restaurant and owner of Elizabeth's, strongly objected to developers being categorized by some ban backers as people who do not care about the city.

Saying he employs 80 people and has made large investments in "some of the most rundown places in town," Martin said he and other developers "are not here to take. We are giving."

Doris Lundteigen, one of the organizers of a petition drive that garnered 800 signatures of people asking for condo limits, suggested that a citywide vote be taken on whether a "land bank" fund should be set up to buy property on the waterfront.

Don Berlage, who owns two parcels currently zoned to allow multiple-family use, presented data showing that high-density buildings take up a small portion city land.

At Van Treese's urging, council members said they wanted to meet with the city planner. Van Treese suggested they set goals before trying to find a remedy and make sure whatever they do meets legal requirements.

AROUND THE TOWN

A busload of Canadians is headed to town as part of a whirlwind tour of Michigan and Ontario cities.... The city officials from the Sudbury area plan to travel 1,000 miles in three days to see "excellent downtowns."...

They plan to arrive in Charlevoix at 4:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 25, after traveling all day, to take a half-hour escorted tour of downtown, eat dinner with city and Downtown Development Authority officials and hop back on their bus by 7 p.m.... They chose Charlevoix to "see what careful planning, a unifying theme, and successful retailing can look like when it is finished."

City council has taken the first step toward OKing the second and third years of the five-year infrastructure reconstruction program.... The $1.6 million project on roads, sewers and sidewalks is being funded by a four-mill tax increase....

Besides agreeing to move repair of sidewalks up from the third year to the second, council members have given the nod to hiring an engineer to design sewer and road improvements for the second and third years.... The only ways to fund the engineering work appear to be by cutting down the sidewalk program or dipping into third year tax moneys.

Char-Em set for 2nd tax vote

Residents of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District are being asked to vote on a special education millage proposal on Thursday, Sept. 10.

The proposal is for the same purpose but in a lesser amount as one defeated in a special election April 7.

The proposal requests that the present one-mill limitation for the education of handicapped persons in the intermediate school district be increase by 1.16 mills for the next three years.

Of that, .8 mill is renewal of .8 mill for special education purposes which expired with the 1986 tax levy and .36 mill additional special education millage.

The April proposal called for .40 mill additional special education millage.

If the proposal passes, Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District taxpayers will pay taxes of 36 cents per $1,000 of state equalized valuation more than they did under the previous levy for special education.

This increase in intermediate school district taxes is necessary because of a change in state law which provides that the state (through the intermediate school districts) will pay for educating handicapped persons only in school districts that receive state aid.

Only two of the 12 school districts in the Char-Em Intermediate School District – Alanson and East Jordan – qualify for state aid.

Charlevoix and all the other nine school districts do not.

The intermediate school district provides training for all handicapped persons through age 26, unless they receive a high school diploma before then.

Programs include one for infants and preschool children, a classroom program for children 3 to 6, a highly individualized program for those 6 through 16, a classroom program for hearing impaired children, a program for severely mentally impaired persons ages 12 through 26, and another program for severely multiply impaired children and adults ages 2 through 26 with two or more severe handicaps.

All of the special education programs provided by Char-Em are mandated by law, so if the upcoming millage proposal is defeated, local school districts will be called upon to provide them.

The cost to the Charlevoix School District is estimated at $129,000.

Persons registered in the Charlevoix School District will be able to cast their votes from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Charlevoix Elementary School on Division Street.

You are invited to Edgewater Inn this Friday, Saturday and Sunday, September 4, 5, 6.

Refreshments will be served and tours will be available from 12 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Area artists begin classes at library

Three local artists will conduct classes at Charlevoix Public Library this fall. The classes are presented by the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

A six-week beginning drawing class with Cara Hochhalter will be based on the book "Drawing on the Right Side of the Brain," whose author, Betty Edwards, contends anyone who can write a name legibly can learn to draw.

The weekly classes will include topics such as learning to "see" contours and gestures, positive and negative space, perspective, proportion in portraits and value.

The classes, at 6:30 p.m. Wednesdays beginning Sept. 16, are open to high school students and adults. Supplies needed are 2-B pencil, kneaded eraser and sketchbook.

Jan Glass will conduct a five-week painting course beginning at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 17. It is open to high school seniors and adults with a class limit of 12.

Sessions in "The Making of a Better Painting" will explore solutions to the most common problems faced by painters – color relationships, value and composition.

A list of supplies needed can be obtained from the arts center or from Glass at 547-2256.

Barbara Steele will teach watercolor painting techniques to fifth through eighth graders from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Thursdays beginning Sept. 17.

Materials will be provided by the Crooked Tree Arts Council. Steele may be reached at 547-4324 after 6 p.m. to answer questions about the class.

Registrations for all classes is handled by McCune Arts Center at 347-4337.

Co-chairmen of this year's United Way campaign are Nancy Porter and Bob Rajewski.

United Way gets ready to begin fall campaign

With its summer campaign under way, the Charlevoix unit of the United Way is embarking on its fall fund drive.

A solicitation to area businesses will begin Oct. 1, with emphasis placed on encouraging employees to take a payroll deduction to spread out their donations.

Directing the United Way efforts are chairmen Nancy Porter and Bob Rajewski. Officers are president Stewart Boal, vice president Rebecca Myers, treasurer Darrel Linder and recording secretary Steve Andreae.

New members Gayle Gennett and Jack Rogers join board members Robert Sooy, Barbara Lane, William Sherman and Tim Hagan. Auxiliary members of the board are former president Jim Marshall, former secretary Kay Ball and Marc Cross.

The campaign has a goal of $37,500 this year, up from $35,000 last year. That goal was surpassed.

The summer solicitation was a direct mailing to summer residents of Belvedere Club, Chicago Club, Sequanota Club and area condominiums.

Organizations which receive funds from the United Way are Red Cross, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Planned Parenthood, Friends of Mount McSauba, Camp Daggett, United Way of Michigan, Lake Charlevoix Exceptional Riders, Alano Club, Sunshine Club, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Women's Resource Center, Senior Citizens, Volunteers in Probation, Bergmann Center and Chip Counseling Center.

Alano Club and Sunshine Club are new recipients this year. Big Brothers-Big Sisters, which received United Way funds, has disbanded.

Schools open on day after Labor Day

Charlevoix public schools will open Tuesday, Sept. 8, with mini-classes at the high school scheduled for 12:30 p.m., the middle school at 12:35 p.m. and the elementary school at 1:30 p.m.

Buses will transport students to and from school for the two-hour sessions.

On Wednesday, schools will return to their regular schedules with classes at the high school beginning at 7:50 a.m., the middle school at 8 a.m. and the elementary at 9 a.m.

On Wednesday, parents will take kindergarten students to school to acquaint them with their teachers and classrooms before returning the children to their homes. Parents will wait in the gymnasium where coffee will be served.

Rural kindergarteners go to school in the morning and city ones go in the afternoon.

On Thursday, kindergarten students will be transported to school by bus.

Meals will be served in cafeterias beginning Wednesday.

Meal tickets for students will remain the same as last year –90 cents per day and $4.50 for five lunches at the elementary school and $1 per day and $5 for five at the middle and high schools. Milk will be 25 cents a day and $1.25 per week payable on Monday morning at the elementary school.

Classes at St. Mary's school will follow the same schedule at the elementary school. However, there will be no cafeteria service.

Group makes plans to improve Amateur

About 20 residents have met with the director of the Golf Association of Michigan to work on improvements for next year's Michigan Amateur Tournament.

The Amateur, the state's prestige event for non-professional golfers, will be held at Belvedere Golf Club for the 26th straight year next June 21-25.

And the GAM has asked Belvedere for permission to come back in 1989, the first year after the present five-year contract with the course expires.

An informal group – spearheaded by former mayor Hal Hill and Chamber of Commerce director Jacquie Merta – has been meeting to work on ways to improve conditions for the 158 golfers.

"The Michigan Amateur this year was the best in recent memory," GAM executive director Jeff Rivard told the group. The items the organization would like to see worked on, he says are "odds and ends."

And the group is already working on them.

Plans are under way to improve the food concession, both for players and for the small gallery the event usually attracts.

A large tent to serve as gathering place and food service area will be set up near the clubhouse. And an array of food items is being discussed.

Attempts are being made to solicit donations of water coolers or GatorAid containers for three or four spots along the course. There is water available in two places, but this year's heat prompted concerns about drinking facilities.

Rivard also said the players would appreciate a higher quality ball at the practice range. He suggested Belvedere purchase the balls, saying it was the only course where a major event is held that does not.

Howard Neilsen, summer resident and governor of the GAM, said it should be up to the GAM to provide the balls and said he will request formally that the organization do so.

This year a pre-tourney dinner was held for the golfers along with the traditional Sweet 16 dinner as the event goes into its final days.

Rivard said the players enjoyed the informal dinner, which was held at Charlevoix Yacht Club, and the chance to go swimming. He suggested, though, that 10 to 20 local people be invited to help welcome the golfers to Charlevoix.

It was agreed that the roughs would remain high on the course, which the participants like this year.

Carl Schumacker, president of Belvedere Golf Club, said he was "tickled to death" by the amount of cooperation being shown.

Suggestions were made for getting the community more enthusiastic about the tournament before it begins next year. These included increased publicity and possibly a pre-match appearance by a foursome of well-known golfers.

Hearings set on 2 condo proposals

Two residential condominium proposals will be the subject of public hearings at the planning commission's Monday, Sept. 14, meeting.

Both proposals are for the same property and are part of four plans submitted for the property at 105 and 107 Park Avenue by lawyer Don Berlage.

Berlage has been attempting since June to have the planning commission consider plans for the property – where he first proposed a 21-unit hotel.

Until now, the plans have been caught in a legal – and Berlage says political – entanglement. While Berlage has been trying to get consideration of his plans, Mayor Ralph McRae has been attempting to obtain a ban on waterfront multiple-family dwellings.

Berlage began with a request for consideration of whether a hotel is an allowable use in the commercial scenic zoning classification where his properties lay at the top of the south bank of the Pine River Channel.

The commission twice rejected that request, both times on 3-3 ties with one member absent. Each time it was a different member who was not present, and Berlage has asked that their votes be counted as if they were all present at the same time.

The planning commission, on the advice of the city attorney, has rejected that request, too.

The planners refused to consider the request for a third time and delved into the three alternative plans submitted after the first was rejected.

The first of these alternatives also involves a technical question which the planners say the zoning board of appeals must resolve. That question involved the definition of a residential club, which Berlage is calling his 21-unit proposal.

The zoning board has discussed the issue once and is set to talk about it again at its Wednesday, Sept. 16, meeting. Without a definition, planning commission chairman Walt Hufford said, the planners cannot act on the request.

The zoning ordinance definitions, restrictions and requirements for private clubs do not necessarily apply to residential clubs, city planner Gerry Harsch says, pointing out that the facility would need 238 parking spaces if the plan were condsidered under private club provision of the law.

The planners agreed they could move ahead with Berlage's other two proposals for the property – an 11-unit residential condominium complex and a nine-unit residential condo.

Besides differences in unit size, the two plans vary in where on the property the building would be situated. The 11-unit building would be the center of the lot, as were the hotel and club proposals, while the nine-unit building would be further east, abutting Hoffmann Park.

The planners decided to set up public hearings on those two plans, putting off consideration of the residential club.

Berlage said he understood the political pressure the unpaid commission members have been under during the controversy over the mayor's condo ban proposal. But he said he was just trying to get his proposal moving.

Kiwanis collecting papers

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club has installed a newspaper collection facility along State Street adjacent to Winchester Funeral Home.

The building is open 24 hours a day for the convenience of local residents.

Ken Weller, president of Kiwanis, suggests papers be packed in large grocery bags or tied with string to make them easy to handle.

He also warns against leaving papers outside the building, where they could blow around and be rained on.

The Kiwanis Club will pick up large quantities of papers from business establishments and others who have let them pile up.

Papers are periodically collected from the facility by a Grand Rapids paper company which shreds them and recycles them into "new" paper.

Money the Kiwanis Club receives for these newspapers is used for local Kiwanis projects.

Persons wanting more information about the collection facility, or who have a large quantity of papers, should contact Weller at 547-4416.

Condos help make Charlevoix beautiful

Editor,

I have been reading anti-condo and development letters in your paper for months. The latest one by Ms. Lundteigen takes the cake! I could not let it go unanswered.

We have owned a condo in "The Wharf" for seven years so have a birdseye view of Round Lake (honestly D.L., we don't think it's "ticky-tacky"). Shame on you D.L. for criticizing your planning commission and city council. I have watched this harbor with dilapidated buildings and only a few lovely (expensive) homes become a charming, attractive haven for boaters and visitors to Charlevoix. What was once a shabby deserted lumber yard has become a hotel-condo allowing others to share in the charm of Round Lake.

We are "middle-class" persons who could not afford a home here, but our little condo is a weekend delight to us. I congratulate your council for allowing controlled development which has unquestionably contributed to the beauty and improvement of Charlevoix, which had a rather dreary downtown and harbor. Now we see quality new stores with cheery awnings and optimistic store owners. Instead of shops with just summer trinkets and fudge, you and I can shop here for all sorts of quality items from fine art to fine food year round.

I know many condo owners in Charlevoix. Like you, they are conscientious, friendly, concerned people who love all this beauty as much as you and want it preserved as much as you. They are realistic, however. This is 1987 and as we build more highways and vacation property becomes more accessible, more and more families will seek waterfront havens. Waterfront development is universal. Instead of resisting it, why don't we all join together to see that as development occurs, it is done well.

The condo owners have done much to improve Charlevoix. Since we pay one-third of the taxes here, we support your schools, public developments, and now I see 3½ miles of needed street improvements.

Let's be friends and watch Charlevoix truly blossom into the flower of Northern Michigan.

Camp McSauba director thanks those who helped

Editor,

Another summer has come and gone and it is once again time to thank the people and organizations of Charlevoix for reinforcing what make the community so special. The generosity and support of so many organizations and people made it possible for over 300 children to enjoy another summer camping experience at Camp McSauba.

Thus, on behalf of the Camp McSauba staff and the City of Charlevoix, we wish to express this gratitude to the following organizations who contributed to our scholarship program this year:

United Way, Knights of Columbus, Kiwanis Club, Volunteer Fire Department, Lions Club, Rod & Gun Club, Charlevoix Womens Club, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Round Lake Lodge I.O.O.F. Odd Fellows, Veterans of Foreign War Auxiliary, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, and the Coast Guard Wives.

Along with direct funds from these organizations, which were used for camp scholarships, there have also been other organizations and individuals who have graciously given of their time and effort to enhance our program.

Without the help of the Friends of Camp McSauba and the Lions Club, who helped organize Las Vegas Nite, we would not have been able to pay a debt to the City of Charlevoix for the addition of the new bathroom facilities. A great deal of time went into the planning of this event and we thank all who volunteered their time to make Las Vegas Nite successful.

Further, we wish to thank the Recreation Department for all their help in making things run smooth; the Police Department for taking the time to give the children an "inside" look at the new police car; and also Bob Sell and Marvin Witthoeft, members of the Performing Arts Team, for providing a special program for the children on Thursday nights.

Lastly, we wish to thank all the parents of the children who attended Camp McSauba for their continued support and encouragement.

It is important that we recognize the fact that without the support of all the aforementioned people and organizations, Camp McSauba would not be capable of benefitting so many children in the community.

Again, thanks from my staff, myself, and the City of Charlevoix for being a truly special community.

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

I'm getting weary of the cheap shots being fired at Jon Hisey over the Edgewater Inn on Round Lake.

I think folks forget that the old Charlevoix Lumber Co. buildings were an eyesore, particularly when viewed from lakeside rooms at the Lodge Motel.

They also forget that the view of Round Lake from the Michigan Avenue hill hasn't been reduced that much. For a while, after the lumber company buildings were removed, pedestrians and motorists did have a nice view of the lake. But that was a temporary situation at best.

So instead of a run-down lumber yard, we have an attractive condominium-hotel on the site — and a $6 million addition to the city's tax base.

And the hotel, designed by Jack Begrow, is a beautiful piece of architecture from every angle.

I like our out-of-town guests to walk into the courtyard at night to view the attractive lobby entrance flanked by two gigantic ledgerock pillars in the best Earl Young tradition.

The Edgewater Inn is a class act from start to finish. The rooms are spacious and beautiful, the view from the rooms is breath-taking, the landscaping is exciting, and the shops and offices climbing the North Hill promise to be the most attractive in the city — if the Mayfair gift shop adjacent to the main entrance is any indication.

I think we all owe Hisey a vote of thanks for his magnificent contribution to the city.

Furthermore, after a long hiatus, work appears to be under way on the Rysburg Inn, across Michigan Avenue from the Edgewater. If we're lucky, it will be just as attractive — certainly a vast improvement over the old Charlevoix Oil Co. building which stood vacant on the site for so many years.

Sometimes I think we lose sight of the fact that the landmarks we grew up with were not designed to last forever. And when they reach a state of obsolescence they must be either removed or renovated — or they drag the rest of the neighborhood down with them.

Earl Young did a masterful job of converting the lower floors of the former Argo Milling Co. building into the present-day Weathervane Inn. But both the lumber yard buildings and the oil company building defied reclamation.

Furthermore, such valuable property should not be allowed to lie idle for very long.

We are so fortunate that investors are willing to pump new money and new life into our city.

I ALSO AM puzzled by all of the opposition to so-called "condominiums."

Doesn't anyone understand that a condominium is an ownership arrangement — and has nothing to do with the size or function of a building. One might as well be opposed to apartment buildings, marinas, hotels, motels or shopping complexes — some of the many types of structures subject to "condominiumization."

Some of us are opposed to the idea owning real property jointly with anyone else — unless it happens to be a spouse or kids. Others are not — and for them condominiums are a fine investment, since there are many advantages, including repair and maintenance.

However it doesn't make any sense to be "for" or "against" condominiums per se because there are so many different kinds.

Generally, I think, when folks say they are against condominiums they have in mind multi-unit apartment buildings — regardless of how they are owned or financed. However, such structures make a lot of sense in resort communities. Not only do they reduce environmental pressures by concentrating population in town on sewer and water lines, but they also tend to delay development of nearby wilderness areas which add so much to our appeal as a vacation mecca.

Certainly no one wants to see Charlevoix surrounded by a rabbit warren of clapboard summer cottages such as those found around so many once-pretty little lakes in Oakland County.

'Round Town

Area artifacts give Hemingway film realistic look

EDITH GILBERT

Come next April, when you're watching the "Hemingway," six hour mini-series on television, starring Stacy Keach, I want you to know the role that Charlevoix played in the making of this film.

True, the opening scene is shot in Bay View. But they are using my hand-embroidered tablecloths for the wedding and funeral scenes, and lots of furniture from Sisters Antiques, including a butterfly collection that Hemingway pores over in the film.

Scouts have been here several months, setting up locations and collecting an odd assortment of accessories. Well, where would you find an old-fashioned wooden row boat, prior to the 20s, in good condition? Ted McCutcheon, of McCutcheon Boat Works located just such a boat. It belongs to Bill Downey of the Chicago Club, who recently had the boat restored. It's the exact replica of one pictured in one of the Hemingway family books.

And where should you find a 1921 miniature bride and groom to put on top of a wedding cake? Katherine Deschermeier picked one up years ago in a Charlevoix antique store. It's made of paper mache.

And what kind of flower arrangements were popular at that time? My 1920 replica edition of Elizabeth Post's etiquette book was helpful in showing a number of interiors, with period flower arrangements, that look quite different from what we are used to seeing today.

Bartlett's Decorating Center bound the special burgundy runner used for the outdoor wedding scene. The old Horton Bay Methodist Church has been torn down, unfortunately, so the original indoor church wedding was moved outdoors for the film.

When we sit back in our living rooms, watching these special TV shows, we may forget the tremendous effort that goes into making the settings as authentic as possible. And what's even worse, after turning the state upside down for an item, it may end up on the cutting room floor.

"Hemingway" is a multi-million dollar, Daniel Wilson production. The company has won more than 50 awards for television and motion picture excellence. Alcor Film of Munich, Germany, is co-producer.

"Hemingway" is being filmed on location in the places where he lived, worked, loved and fought – the places where his books were created; in the cafes of Paris, the bullrings of Spain; Venice; the Austrian Alps and Africa, in addition to U.S. locales significant to his life.

Linda Marmelstein, co-producer, told me she is off for Idaho to set up the team of 50 or more people there in an office. People who are in charge of locations, art, make-up, wardrobe, props and a lot of other things that go into the making of a dramatic film.

Now when you see this film next spring, don't get too involved in the tender and stormy relationships that Hemingway had with his four wives – Hadley Richardson, Pauline Pfeiffer, Martha Gellhorn and Mary Welsh. Mind you, watch instead for my hand-embroidered tablecoths, the authentic butterfly collection, the wedding cake, and the restored rowboat. All from Charlevoix.

I'm no economist, but I wish someone would explain to me why, when the Lodge has a vacancy sign on a Tuesday, Aug. 26, at 7 in the evening, condominiums are going up all around the bridge? I've heard some people go into business with the object of losing money – but is this good for our resort town? Are we programming ourselves into future Chapter 11 situations?

I know for a fact the Lodge for the last 25 years never made money during the winter. They kept open just to keep the staff employed year 'round, and last winter they didn't even do that.

Years ago someone said that Charlevoix has kept its charm because it was so difficult to get here. It's even more difficult to get here now, with the deteriorating air service. So why are we getting carried away with conventioneering projects and condo-mania and turning Charlevoix the Beautiful into Charlevoix the $eautiful?

Beacons of Blessing

by Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

Victory is important in more than just sports. It is important in all of life, especially in the life of faith. But victories don't magically happen. They are the result of real effort. Let me share with you four steps to being a victorious Christian. Their Biblical basis is taken from Psalm 92.

Start by adopting a thankful posture. Do you remember what the Psalms are? They are songs. Many of them are songs of thanksgiving. Every believer ought to give thanks. The very fact that you can read this is cause for thanks. The job you have, your home, your spouse, your parents, your children and the list could go on, are all reasons for giving thanks. Being thankful boosts the spirits. It feels good. It is the least that our loving Heavenly Father deserves.

Next be joyful about God's blessings. When you realize your sins have been forgiven and that you've received new life in Christ, that should do something for you. Yes, there are times it seems the world has the upper hand. But check out the foundations upon which those worldly things stand. God is not just in heaven. He is in our hearts. We can make it!

Claim victory in God's name. We need to go beyond just the power of positive thinking. We need to start operating under the power of positive living. Those who place themselves against God will lose. Those who live near the heart of God will experience a personal deepening of His live and trust.

Serve God faithfully, even if you don't see immediate results. You didn't plant the corn you may be eating tonight yesterday. The seeds took time to grow and mature. Things you may do for God or that God has in store for you may take time, too.

If you can be thankful, let your joy be known, live like you are on the winning side and serve God faithfully; then being a victorious Christian is not only possible, God has already made you one!

Nancy and Martin Hall

Herriman-Hall wedding

Nancy Louise Herriman and Martin Shelton Hall exchanged marriage vows on Saturday afternoon, July 18, at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Herriman of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hall of Harbor Springs.

Father Casimir Zawacki officiated at the double-ring ceremony which was witnessed by approximately 80 relatives and friends.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a traditional wedding gown of chantilly lace over taffeta, fashioned with a Victorian neckline, cap sleeves of lace, and a long train.

Her medium-length veil was covered with white flowers and simulated pearls, and she carried a bouquet of silk lavender roses and pink sweetpeas.

Stacey Bomers served the bride as matron of honor, and the bride's two sisters, Mary Holm and Kelly Herriman, served as bridesmaids. They wore orchid lace over taffeta gowns in an off-the-shoulder tea-length style and carried two long-stemmed roses, one lavender and one white.

Holly Bomers was flower girl and Shawn Bomers was ringbearer.

Mike Bonar assisted the bridegroom as best man, and Mike Shelton, brother of the bridegroom, and Harold Herriman, brother of the bride, were groomsmen. Duane Herriman Jr., another brother of the bride and Walter Holm, brother-in-law of the bride, served as ushers.

Carol Geis provided instrumental music for the ceremony; and Tammy Southwood and Karlene Lapeer offered vocal numbers.

The bride's parents hosted a reception at the American Legion Hall following the ceremony. They were assisted by Karlene and Brad Lapeer. The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner, also at the American Legion Hall.

Freedman-Sharp wedding

Eleanor Freedman of Charlevoix is pleased to announce the marriage of her son, Gordon, to Amanda Sharp, DVM, of Encino, Calif.

The couple was married at Martha's Vineyard, Mass., Aug. 1, 1987. They will make their home in Los Angeles. She is a veterinarian who practices in Santa Monica, Calif. He is a television producer with the ABC network.

The bride's parents are Jeanne and Henry Sharp of Encino, Calif. The groom, son of the late Gordon Freedman Sr., is a 1969 graduate of Charlevoix High School, attended the University of Denver and is a graduate of Michigan State University.

Dielman-Warner wedding

Lighted candelabra trimmed with large white bows and ivy graced the altar of the First Christian Church in Petoskey for the July 18 wedding of Lori Ann Dielman and Kent Christopher Warner. More than 150 guests witnessed the double ring nuptials performed by the Rev. Lowell A. MacFarlane. Large baskets of ferns trimmed with pink bows and baby's breath flanked the altar and a bouquet of white gladioli accented with pink carnations and white chrysanthemums was placed by the communion table where the lighting of the unity candle took place.

The bride is the daughter of Joyce Dielman and Everett A. Dielman Jr., both of Petoskey. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry E. Warner also of Petoskey.

Escorted down the aisle by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown of satin with Alencon lace and pearls accenting the long waisted bodice which featured short pouffed sleeves adorned with satin bows and lace. The circular skirt ended in a chapel-length train. The bride's headpiece was a Mary Queen of Scots design of satin edged with tear drop pearls with a double pouf of illusion veiling and elbow length veil of illusion. The bride carried a traditional colonial style bouquet of pink roses, baby's breath, greenery and lace ribbon. She also wore her mother's pearl necklace.

Family pews were marked with white grapevine wreaths trimmed with baby's breath and narrow pink and white ribbon bows with streamers, made by the mother of the groom.

Traditional wedding music was offered by Mrs. K.C. Festerling, organist. Michelle Warner Olson and Ferd H. Dielman Sr. were soloists.

Lori and Kent Warner

Matron of honor was Michele Warner Olson, sister of the groom and maid of honor was Kimberly Dielman, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Debby McLemore and Tammy Swenor Sumner, cousin of the bride. Each attendant wore a tea-length gown of pink with scallop-edged lace over gleaming satin and a handkerchief hemline. The waist of each gown was trimmed in satin with a bow in the back. The attendants each carried a long stemmed pink rose accented with greens and wide lace ribbon.

Sarah Pasche, cousin of the groom was flower girl. Her dress was identical to the gowns of the other attendants and she carried a white wicker heart shaped basket trimmed with pink ribbons and filled with rose petals, also made by the mother of the groom.

Dominic Sumner, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer and carried a pillow of white satin and needlework which was handmade by the sister of the bride.

Matthew Warner, brother of the groom, was best man and groomsmen were Todd Russell, E. Jeffrey Heise, uncle of the groom and Pat Kruskie. Seating the wedding guests were Brian Lapp, cousin of the groom and Everett A. Dielman III, brother of the bride.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church fellowship hall, given by the mother of the bride. Mrs. Madeline Hammontree served the four tiered wedding cake assisted by Mrs. Ellen Brennan who made the cake. Mrs. Robert Bayha poured punch and Alicia Johnson assisted with the guest book. An evening reception followed at the home of the groom's parents.

On July 17, the parents of the groom hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Terrace Inn in Bay View.

The newlyweds spent their honeymoon in Canada and are now residing in Petoskey. The bride is employed at Meyer Hardware and the groom is employed by Schafer Bakeries, Inc. (Photo courtesy Jerry Martinchek)

Richardson-LaBlance engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Rod Richardson of Norwood announce the engagement of their daughter, Carrie Sue, to Tim LaBlance. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom LaBlance of Charlevoix.

The bride-elect is a 1984 graduate of Charlevoix High School and of Petoskey Beauty Academy. She is employed at Shear Happiness Hair Salon and is an eighth grade cheerleader coach at Charlevoix Middle School.

Her fiance is also a 1984 graduate of Charlevoix High School and will graduate next year from Alma College, where he is majoring in business administration.

A June 18, 1988, wedding is being planned.

Bridget Noirot and William Dohm

Noirot-Dohm engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Alva Noirot of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter Bridget Sue Noirot to William R. Dohm. He is the son of Rita Dohm and William Dohm, both of Charlevoix.

The bride-elect is a senior at Michigan State University where she is majoring in education.

Her fiance is also a senior at Michigan State University and is majoring in packaging.

The wedding will be an event of Sept. 12 at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix. (Photo courtesy Ingrid Noirot)

Kathy and L. Scott Swanson

Phelps-Swanson wedding

In an outdoor wedding ceremony at the Barnard Road home of Larry and Verna Swanson in Charlevoix, L. Scott Swanson and Kathy Phelps spoke their marriage vows before 200 friends and relatives. The Rev. Jim Jordan, uncle of the groom, performed the double ring nuptials on Saturday, July 18.

The bride is the daughter of Bill and Joann Phelps of Kalkaska and the groom is the son of Larry and Verna Swanson of Charlevoix.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin with an overskirt of crocheted lace that she made herself. The dress was designed and made by Janet Hollifield, a friend of the bride.

For the afternoon ceremony, Barbara Southwell played the organ and soloist was Nick Swanson.

Beth Phelps and Rebecca Phelps, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore tea-length green gowns.

Gregg Swanson and Nick Swanson, brothers of the groom, were groomsmen and ushers were Mark Phelps and Paul Phelps.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club. On July 12, the parents of the groom hosted the rehearsal dinner at Nanny's in Charlevoix.

The newlyweds are making their home in Charlevoix. The bride is production manager for Up North Publications in Bellaire and the groom is a reporter at the Petoskey News Review.

Lung association begins campaign

A Passkit fund-raising campaign has been begun in Charlevoix by the American Lung Association of Michigan.

The Passkits of information are circulated from neighbor to neighbor. The association has programs for asthmatic children, against smoking and for lung disease research.

The Passkit program is patterned after an effort in Iowa.

Cross country teams begin conference championship defense

The Rayder cross country teams will open the 1987 season Saturday, Sept. 5, at the annual White Cloud Invitational meet.'

The event is the first of a series of 12 meets including duals, invitationals and the Michigan-Huron Shores conference meet before going into competition for state recognition.

The teams will be going into the White Cloud Invitational after a week at their annual cross country camp at the school's lighthouse property on Beaver Island.

Both teams are defending conference titles. The boys have finished first in the conference nine of the past 10 years. The girls, who have competed as a team for only two years, finished third in 1985 and first in '86.

"I think this will be a good year for both teams," Coach Pete Spieles says. "We lost a lot of good runners, but we have a lot of kids who have been working hard – some of whom have an excellent base to begin the season – to succeed them.

"Working with the kids so far this season, I've seen a lot of improvement over last year. We're looking forward to an excellent season, barring injuries."

Veteran runners returning are Pat Rajewski, a senior, who was the No. 2 man on the Rayder team that finished second behind Benzie Central in the state in 1986; Scott Miller, a sophomore, who was the No. 3 man; seniors Tom Merta, Martin Joy and Sean Henne, and sophomore Gehry Wiesner.

Contenders to fill in will be seniors Hal Chase and Jeff Skeel, juniors Dylan Stewart, Jon Terry and Mike Stargardt, and sophomore Matt Schnackenberg, all of whom were on the JV squad in 1986.

Four letter winners, from the '86 girls varsity are returning and, though the team is short on experienced runners, this quartet should give it a good strong base. The are seniors Betsy Haggard and Heidi Olinger, junior Barb Haggard, and sophomore Stephanie Agnew.

Candidates for this year's team are senior Jenny Green, juniors Shelly Ferguson, Elka Thomas, sophomores Kendra Olinger and Michelle Jacobs, and freshmen Julie Bush and Lisa Schneider.

Ken Plude, girls track coach, will assist Spieles with the cross country program.

The Rayder football team will open its 1987 season Friday, Sept. 4 in Petoskey for the first of nine games. The team will make its first home appearance against East Jordan on Friday, Sept. 11. Pictured in front are co-captains Marv Witthoeft (left) and Dan Drury. First row from left: Dave Miller, Jason Whitley, Dan Chasa, Scott Novotny, Mark LaBlance, Steve Hopkins, Corey Battle. Second row: assistant coach Dick Swenor, Chad Thorp, Derek Dutcher, Jim Tilton, Jamie Montieth, Mike Smith, Bill Burns, Scott Denny, Todd Holtzman. Back row: Coach Roger Gowell, Bill Eaton, Shawn Putman, Matt Cunningham, Mark Dietrick, James Gaskin, Scott DeYoung, Dave Ballard, Brad McGlinch, Charles Britton. Missing from photograph: Steve Mansen, Dean Jones, Dave Crandell.

Season tickets available for all sports

Season tickets for all home games are on sale at Charlevoix High School.

The first home football game is scheduled for Friday, Sept. 11 at Kipke Field. All football games start at 7:30 p.m.

The tickets also include all home basketball games and other sports.

All-sports student tickets are $15, adult tickets $30 and family tickets, $55. Individual game tickets are $2 at the gate or door.

Kipke Field improvements nearly complete

The installation of steel visitors' bleachers at Kipke Field early in September will complete the renovation of the athletic complex, says Vincent Olach, school district business manager.

The cost of the bleachers, approximately $9,000, is being underwritten by the Sports Boosters. The bleachers have been on order from a Texas firm and are expected in the near future, he said.

Other work on the field as been completed. The final coat was laid on the all-weather track in mid-August. Fences have been installed around the track to protect it from foot traffic. Long jump, high jump and pole vault areas are completed and only the backstop for the discus area needs to be put in place.

Temporary hydro-seeding in the track area is completed with the remaining areas to be roto-tilled and seeded after the track season next June.

Plans for a field house to be constructed north of the track area are being drawn by Louis Orlowski, a local architect. Following approval by the necessary state agencies, bids will be accepted and work on the 52-foot by 80-foot block and brick veneer structure will start this fall, weather permitting, Olach said.

The building will house two locker-shower rooms, weight room, maintenance workshop and storage room for football equipment.

The locker-shower rooms will alleviate scheduling problems that now exist between JV football and girls basketball.

Work on the structure will continue next spring.

Renovation of the complex and construct of the field house are financed by a 1.25-mill tax levy for two years approved last spring.

Yachting Notes

The Charlevoix Yacht Club Summer Series is over, the town is less crowded, and the racers now gear up for the last of the major area sailing regattas, the Red Fox Regatta Saturday and Sunday of Labor Day weekend.

While not many positions changed in the last few weeks in any of the fleets, there was the possibility right up to the end.

In the A Fleet Sorcerer won by a large margin but was a winner in only one of the last four races giving the rest of the fleet some room for hope in the fall. Wingnut was second followed by Pygmalion, Night Moves, Gotcha, Slapshot, Mint Julip, Merry Hell, Babe and Mr. Breeze.

In the B Fleet Tireless held out hope until the end but was not able to budge Bandit from the top as Josh Barnes et al reeled off three straight series-ending firsts to win going away. Tireless then was second, followed by Blasen III, Foxy Lady, Cygnus, Phenecia, Kittiwake, Nulli Secundus, San-Sue-She and Tegi.

Flash was equally dominating in the Jib and Main section followed by Sandpiper, Maureen, Apothecary, Canusa, Stalworth, Cheemaun, Hot Mustard, Cararet, Peregrine, Sonrise and Coolwhip.

It's sad to see the summer days ending but take heart sailors as the Fall Series is just around the corner and don't forget the new Sunday afternoon series to be run on three afternoons in October (the 4th, 18th and 25th). For more information concerning this series contact Dave Strawbridge at 547-4148 or 547-5553.

One last word, a fond farewell to our summer racers, the Orlows, Gluecks and Lepmans. Looking forward to having you with us again next year.

Dr. Dave

Football coaches sought

Flag football coaches for sixth, seventh and eighth grade are being sought by the Charlevoix Recreation Department.

The draft for the teams is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 12. Coaches, however, must be found before that date, says recreation director Dwight Boss.

Persons interested in coaching may call the recreation department through Friday and at the Boss residence at 547-9098 after that.

Players are asked to be at the Carpenter Avenue field at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 12 for the draft. They will pay a $10 registration fee at that time.

The recreation department is seeking helmets for players. Anyone with a helmet for sale may take it to the recreation department, marked with the price expected.

Support the merchants who bring you the news.

Petunia auction Monday

Forty items – ranging from a truck bumper to a Hawaiian holiday – are up for bids at the annual Keep Charlevoix Beautiful auction.

The donations will be auctioned off to raise money for Operation Petunia – which lines U.S. 31 with 50,000 flowers each year – and other KCB projects.

As the inaugural event at the Edgewater Inn convention center, the auction will begin at 7 p.m. Labor Day.

Entrance is limited to people who have purchased a ticket for the Mustang convertible to be given away (each ticket admits two).

But sealed bids are being accepted until the auction begins from anyone who wishes to help out KCB.

Bids can be mailed to KCB at P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, or taken until 7 p.m. Labor Day to Mayfair Gift Shop at Edgewater.

KCB hopes to raise enough money to buy next year's petunias, make the final payment on the flower watering truck and purchase a petroleum-based "weed blanket."

The weed blanket, says KCB president Bruce MacArthur will eliminate the hazard volunteers encounter when weeding right next to the U.S. highway.

It will cost less than the civic organization has had to pay for non-volunteer help this year when the weather was ripe for a bumper crop of weeds.

The auction will have a Hawaiian feast motif, complete with two suckling pigs donated by Glen's Market and the PuaLei Dancers.

The Epsilon Jass Quartet will play during the first hour of the auction, and the Knights of Columbus will conduct the raffle for the car.

Many of the items to be auctioned are on display in the lobby of the Edgewater Inn.

There will be minimum bids accepted on most items – generally one-third of the retail value.

Here are the items for the auction and their appraised, approximate retail value:

Furnishings – solid brass propeller, $125; four oak bar stools, $175 each; queen size bedspread, $250; oak queen or full headboard, $350; king size bedspread, $350; four barrel chairs, $650 each.

Automotive – New chrome rear step bumper with trailer hitch, $179; four wire wheel covers, $270; Michigan protection package of rustproofing, paint sealant and fabric protection, $385.

Miscellaneous – 300 square feet of Myrtle ground cover, $10 per flat; 14 square yards of screened black top soil, delivered, $150; 50 pounds of Buffalo Steamship Round to feed 100, $200; steak and swim party for 12 couples at the Dunes, along with 24 Captain's Cove miniature golf passes, $240; 30 day lilies planted, or equivalent design work for home or business, $300; city recreation passes (two Mount McSauba day camp passes, $40, two McSauba ski hill family passes, $95, two one-week dockages, $72 each, one city golf membership, $90, and one township golf membership, $175; Mirro-Craft deep fisherman II boat, $1,675; Whitmore 1952 oil painting, $2,000; Sea gull carving, $150.

Gift certificates – Mettlers, $150; Linda Dresner, Somerset Mall, Troy, $150; Burnsides, $150; Bahnhof, $150.

Golf – four rounds and two carts at Belvedere Golf Club and breakfast for four at Juillerettes, $150; Shrimp or comparable plus dessert, not including drinks, at Villager Pub, plus four rounds of golf and two carts at Antrim Dells, $150.

Gourmet extravaganza – Dinner for four, not including drinks, at The Pier, Stafford's Bay View Inn or One Water Street, $100; dinner for two at Row Inn, drinks not included, $100.

Getaway packages – weekend in Chicago including two nights at the Hyatt Regency, $400; five-hour dishing charter for three with dinner at Landings, $170; weekend at Mackinac Hotel and VIP pass on Shepler Ferry, $208; weekend at Charlevoix Country Inn, $230; cruise for two on Malabar tall ship and overnight at Holiday Inn of Traverse City, $250; color weekend at Windward condominium, golf at Harbour Country Club and swimming at Harbor Springs' indoor pool for up to four adults, $290.

Also, two nights in the Tower with view of the bay at Grand Traverse Resort, $290; weekend at Edgewater Inn including dinner for four at Weathervane Restaurant and lunch or breakfast at Edgewater Cafe and $50 gift certificate at Mayfair, $330; weekend at Harbor Cove condominium and unlimited tennis at Little Traverse Racquet Club, $330; Boyne Highlands sports weekend for two, with two days lift tickets or one-day greens fees and cart, $390; one night at Grand Hotel and VIP pass on Shepler Ferry, plus Michigan Book courtesy of former Gov. Milliken, $415.

And, weekend at Birchwood townhouse for two couples and four rounds of golf with two carts at Birchwood Country Club, including swimming at Harbor Springs indoor pool for up to four adults, $390; weekend in condominium on Singer Island, Fla., $500; round trip airfare to Frankfurt, Germany, plus seven days at Waldhaus Rodelhaus, $1,700; Hawaiian holiday with round trip air fare, seven nights at Sheraton Princess Kaiulani including tour of Honolulu and traditional lei greeting, $2,000; Schuss Mountain time share two-bedroom condo, sleeps six (includes availability of trading time share at more than 1,000 sites, but is purchase package including annual taxes and maintenance fees) $3,900.

Bloodmobile in town for fall campaign

The annual fall visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile Thursday, Sept. 3, will take place from 1 until 7 p.m. at the American Legion post home on Garfield Avenue.

The Red Cross is asking healthy individuals to become regular blood donors.

"This helps maintain a reliable blood supply in northern Michigan," said Nancy Fowler, area coordinator.

Esther Carey is lining up registered nurses and Andi Mathews is calling the other volunteers needed for the day. Marilyn Izor is publicizing the project.

Members of the Lions Club will unload and load the equipment van, Kappa Sigma sorority will staff the canteen and serve donors. First State Bank will provide coffee and Oleson Food Store, juice. Homemade cookies are needed; to donate please call Fowler at 547-9314. Oleson's provide commercially-made cookies when not enough homemade are donated.

Members of Vital Options exercises group will furnish fruit.

Previous donors are being called. However, there is a push for first-time donors. Anyone over the age of 17, weighing 110 pounds or more and in good health may donate.

Hospital Guild annual meeting scheduled

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild will host its annual membership coffee at 10 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 10, at the home of Virginia Roundtree, 712 Park Ave.

Members are invited to renew membership and prospective members are invited to discuss the goals of the guild before joining.

Julia Leedy, guild president, said guild officers, hospital administrator Richard Krueger and staff members would be present.

Also present will be Betty Gary and Barbara Pennington, president and president-elect, of the North Central District of Michigan Association of Hospital Auxiliaries.

The association is comprised of 15 northern Michigan hospital auxiliaries. Charlevoix will host the March 1 meeting of that organization.

A tour of the hospital will follow the coffee.

"Join us, learn what the hospital guild is all about, all the fine work it does and enjoy a cup of coffee and a snack. We're sure you'll want to become a member when you hear our story," Leedy said.

The regular meeting of the guild will be held at the hospital conference room at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 14.

A workshop of the sewing committee will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 16, at the home of Anna Belle Webb, 707 Park Ave., at 10 a.m. Those attending are asked to take sewing equipment and stuffing material to make and fill stuffed animals for the pediatrics' department. They are also asked to take a sandwich for lunch. Dessert and beverage will be furnished.

HIGH SCHOOL COMPLETION PROGRAM

The schedule below lists the classes which are being offered each night beginning the week of Sept. 21-24 and continuing for 17 weeks. These classes are FREE to those who do not have their high school diploma. Any others are welcome in these classes for a fee of $20. Upon successful completion of each class you will be given 1/2 credit toward the credits needed for your diploma. If you have already completed a number of credits, call us so we can find out how many classes you should take to complete your work. Age does not matter; an older person may be given credits for life experiences, military service, or G.E.D. tests that have been taken. You may be surprised at how close you are to that diploma . . . so call and find out. The phone number to call to enroll or inquire about your situation is 547-3222.

Just like in a Hollywood movie

by FRAN MARTIN

Jeff DeVries (right), 20, and his brother, Chad, 17, are the principals in a true "hard to believe" story of chance.

It was a beautiful Sunday afternoon in June. A young couple was walking down the street when they were approached by three strangers who asked the young man if he had ever done any modeling.

They said they were in the area doing some pictures for a famous department store, took his name and telephone number, told him they would be in touch and left.

A Hollywood scenario? A dream?

No, it actually happened to Jeff DeVries, 20, who was in Harbor Springs with a friend when they were approached by a man and two women – one of whom was Nancy Fraley, a summer resident at Harbor Springs.

The trio was in Harbor Springs to take pictures of clothing for Macy's of New York, she explained. Jeff, they said had the coloring, size and build that they were interested in to do the modeling.

They were at the Harbour Inn, they said, and would be in touch with him if he was interested. He was.

When Jeff returned home, he told his parents, Bernie and Toni DeVries, of his experience.

His mother, not wanting her son to be hurt, said, "Don't get your hopes too high, Jeff. Chances are you'll never hear from them again."

Dreams or no, Jeff returned to the house painting job he had with a local decorating contractor.

A few days later though, he received a telephone call asking if he could be at the Harbour Inn on a given day. And did he know another young man who would be interested in modeling?

After giving the matter some thought, he asked his brother, Chad, 17, to go with him.

At the Harbour Inn, they were introduced to three professional models who had been flown in from Los Angeles.

During the next few days, countless photographs were taken of the pair and the groups, wearing a variety of clothes, at the beach, the dock, the hotel and a host of other places.

The job completed, Chad was thanked and Jeff was told again that they would be in touch. The trio represented Arlene Wilson Studio in Atlanta, Ga., and Macy's was one of its accounts.

As June rolled into July, Jeff continued with his painting job and wondered if modeling had been a one-time deal.

But again the telephone rang. Can you be in Kennebunkport, Maine, on a given day? Reservations were already made.

Jeff caught his flight, had his first glimpse of the Atlantic and went to work, modeling more clothes for young men at the eastern seaboard resort.

Again, he returned to Charlevoix. But soon he was called to Atlanta. He has now signed a contract with the agency has an agent and works out of Atlanta.

Jeff – a 6-foot-a strawberry blonde with blue eyes – has put his education on the back burner for the present, his mother said. After graduating from Charlevoix High School, he spent two years in Florida before deciding to enroll in college.

Last school year he attended North Central Michigan College and planned to return this fall.

"He knows that the modeling will likely be a short-term job, a few years at the most so he plans to do it as long as he can and then return to school," says his mother.

After his brief encounter with the world of modeling, Chad – 6-foot-4 with blue eyes and brown hair – returned to his job at a local marina and operated a little buisness of his own during the summer.

He is returning to classes at Charlevoix High as a senior, will play basketball and greduate in June.

His parents have received copies of Macy's catalogs with their sons pictures, poster size copies of Jeff taken in the east and finally has accepted the fact that it is possible to be discovered in Harbor Springs.

Sunshine Club ready to re-open

The Sunshine Club, an after-school daycare center for children in kindergarten through fifth grade will re-open at Community Reformed Church with the beginning of the school year for the benefit of working parents.

Transportation from the elementary school to the church on Petoskey Avenue at Meech Street can be arranged at the school said board chairman Jan Boss. The facility will be open from 3:30 until 5:30 p.m.

The fee will be on a sliding scale, Boss said, with a basic rate of $1.50 per day and $5 a week. Scholarships will also be available, she said.

A full program of games, storytime, videotapes contributed by Venture Video and a snack are available.

Connie Kramer, an area resident for three years, has been hired as director. She has operated a day care service in her home in the past. Assisting will be community volunteers.

Obituaries

George M. Picard

Georgia M. Picard, 77, of Charlevoix, died Thursday, Aug. 27, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral services were held Monday, Aug. 31, at St. Mary's Church. The Rev. James K. Gardiner was the celebrant. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery. The rosary was recited at Winchester Funeral Home Sunday evening.

The former Georgia M. Messinger, daughter of Charles F. and Lorette (Bergeron), was born in Chicago on July 27, 1910. She graduated from Trinity High School in River Forest, Ill., in 1928 and from Rosary College of River Forest in 1932 with a degree in education.

On June 3, 1933, she married Louis F. Picard in Chicago where they made their home until moving to Charlevoix in 1968. She summered in the Ironton area for 40 years prior to coming here to live. Mr. Picard preceded her in death Dec. 20., 1982.

She was a member of St. Mary's Church and its Rosary Altar Society, Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild and Rosary College Alumni Association.

Surviving are two sons, Louis F. of St. Paul, Minn., and Gerard C. of Charlevoix; two daughters, Mrs. Mary Louise Carmody of Lombard, Ill., and Mrs. Jeanne L. Bleasdale of Roselle, Ill., seven grandchildren, and one sister, Mrs. Lucile Green of LaJolla, Calif.

The family suggests memorials to Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild. Envelopes are available at Winchester Funeral Home.

New way to measure building height explored

In an effort to promote the use of steeper, pitched roofs, the planning commission is debating whether to change the way roof heights are measured.

The commissioners are hoping to eliminate flat roofs on tall buildings.

Along the way, they are keeping in mind the present 35-foot height limitation – which might be altered by a new way of determining building height.

What the planners are looking at is determining the average height of the roof from the ground. This, they reason, will encourage builders to use pitched roofs in the Victorian style of most of the city's older buildings.

The advantage of the flat roof sometime being used is that a fourth floor might be tucked in under the 35-foot limit.

Planning commission chairman Walt Huford said he would like to see the commission end up with a proposal that would lead to more peaked roofs on 2½- or three-story buildings.

City planner Gerry Harsch said a 26-foot midpoint measurement and a 35- or 36-foot maximum height could accomplish what the planners are looking for.

The city measures the height of a building from the lowest point on the finished grade of the land outside it. This method prevents builders from measuring on a hillside, for instance, and gaining several feet in height.

More discussion is planned before a proposed amendment can be drawn up for consideration by city council.

Post office change weighed

Plans for a new Charlevoix Post Office building at the corner of State and Hurlbut Streets are still under consideration, according to local Postmistress Sheilah Murphy.

Over two years ago, the U.S. Postal Service announced it had outgrown its facilities on Mason Street and was looking for a place that would provide more room.

The first rumored new location was on the outskirts of the city at U.S. 31 and M-66, which local business people denounced as inconvenient.

Another suggested location was on Clinton Street adjacent to the new parking lot, but that area was declared too small.

The State and Hurlbut location (presently occupied by a manual car wash business) seems to provide plenty of room not too far from downtown, but the Post Office division in charge of land acquisition, now headquartered in St. Paul, is not hurrying its decision.

SPECIAL SCHOOL ELECTION

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION OF THE ELECTORS OF CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOLS
CHARLEVOIX AND ANTRIM COUNTIES, MICHIGAN

TO BE HELD

SEPTEMBER 10, 1987

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT:

Please Take Notice that the Board of Education, pursuant to a directive from the Intermediate School Board of Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, Michigan, has called a special intermediate school district election to be held in the district on Thursday, September 10, 1987.

THE POLLS OF ELECTION WILL OPEN AT 7:00 O'CLOCK, A.M., AND CLOSE AT 8:00 O'CLOCK, P.M.

The following proposition will be submitted to the vote of the electors at the special intermediate school district election:

SPECIAL EDUCATION MILLAGE PROPOSITION

> Shall the one mill limitation ($1.00 on each $1,000.00) on state equalized valuation on the annual property tax previously approved by the electors of Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, Michigan, for the education of handicapped persons be increased by 1.16 mills ($1.16 on each $1,000.00) on state equalized valuation for a period of 3 years, 1987, 1988, and 1989, (.8 mill of the above increase being a renewal of .8 mill for special education purposes which expired with the 1986 tax levy and .36 mill being additional special education millage)?

THE VOTING PLACE(S) ARE AS FOLLOWS:

PRECINCT NO. 1
Voting Place: Charlevoix Elementary School on Division Street.

All school electors who are registered with the city or township clerk of the city or township in which they reside are eligible to vote at this election.

This Notice is given by order of the Board of Education of Charlevoix Public Schools, Charlevoix and Antrim Counties, Michigan.

How it really was at Hemingway's Horton Bay wedding area, and a regular summer resident of Wequetonsing, was suggested by Hadley, but it was too late in the summer and the bishop had left for home.

Ernest turned to Grace Quinlan, a friend from his winter in Petoskey, for help. He requested that she "line up a prelate" preferably a Presbyterian or Episcopalian.

She arranged for Dr. W. J. Datson, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Petoskey to perform the service. She also hired a Petoskey organist.

Who did what in connection with the ceremony, and who attended it, depends upon the authority you trust.

One says that "the girls in the wedding party" – including Helen Breaker, Mrs. Usher, Katherine Smith (first name spelled by some "Catherine") and Ruth Bradford – "spent the morning gathering wildflowers to relieve the stark appearance of the church, and for the bride's bouquet."

There were a few balsam sprays around the little church altar, but, as can be seen by looking around the fields and woods this time of year, there is only golden rod, Queen Anne's lace and the beautiful blue chicory, the latter of which folds up and loses all color instantly upon being picked.

Hence, the flowers, and there were pretty ones in the bride's bouquet, came, as most wedding flowers do, from the florist.

There is a lack of concensus on who was the best man: Bill Horne, Ernest's ambulance-driving buddy in Italy, or Bill Smith, an old Horton Bay summer friend. Some say one, some the other.

Bill Horne was quoted as saying in November 1979, "I was an usher at their wedding." The fact is that Smith was also an usher, even though the guest register at Aunty Beth Dilworth's "Pinehurst" indicated he was to perform as best man.

It seems that there was no best man, a last-minute decision by Ernest. His other attendants were Carl Edgar, Jack Pentecost, Art Meyer and Howell Jenkins.

There is dispute as to who was matron of honor. Hadley's attendants were Helen Breaker, Ruth Bradfield, Kate Smith, and her sister, Florence Usher.

The Dilworth guest register indicates that both Ms. Breaker and Florence were matrons of honor.

Another discrepancy: On the affidavit for a license to marry, Ernest gives his age as 23. In fact, he had turned 22 the previous July 21.

A recent "biographer" writes that Hadley and the Breakers arrived in Horton Bay Sept. 7, which would find them arriving four days after the wedding had taken place.

This careless reporting was matched by the Petoskey newspaper a day or so after the wedding when it misspelled the Hemingways' name several times (two "m's").

One source says that the entire Hemingway family was in attendance, but Marcelline and Madelaine ("Sunny") were both out of the state. Ursula, Carol and Leicester were on hand with their parents.

Marjorie and Georgiana Bump were invited but did not attend because their mother was omitted from the guest list.

There is in circulation a story to the effect that Italian Consulate members from Detroit were at the wedding. This is false.

Dr. Roland Usher, the bride's brother-in-law, did not attend the wedding because he could not warm up to Ernest. That is why the bride was given away by George Breaker.

One writer says the wedding party, as the appointed hour of four o'clock approached, "gathered under the tall elms across from Jim Dilworth's red blacksmith shop." If this had been the case, they would have had to walk a quarter of a mile to the church. The fact is they assembled at the rear of the Horton Bay Store, located next to the church.

A few local residents actually attended the ceremony, although many were too shy to do so. When Lohengrin swelled up from the old church organ, the total audience – including Horton Bay people and a some folks from Petoskey – counting at most 30, was seated in the pews.

A few small boys – Kenny and Stub VanHoesen, Bucky Harris and his brother Chuck, Howard Crouterfield and I – waited outside the church until just before the wedding party entered, then slipped in beside our respective parents to witness the wedding.

In spite of all the late arrangements, the wedding came off in fine style. I'm sure we kids were unaware of the flap over Hadley's late arrival with wet hair from swimming.

It was a gracious event, a simple ceremony in simple surroundings.

The wedding party adjourned to Aunty Beth Dilworth's house for a wedding "breakfast," and picture-taking that went on and on.

Following the meal, John Kotesky drove the couple to the Walloon Lake end of Sumner Road, four miles away, in his Model T touring car. It had a small "just married" sign in back, and a few tin cans and old shoes dragged behind until the string broke.

Ernest and Hadley rowed across the lake to Windemere for their honeymoon.

So there you have the facts. Whatever became of that nice picture of the Methodist church is a mystery. Maybe Hadley threw it out when their marriage went on the rocks several years later.

Health unit begins foot clinic

District Health Department No. 3 has announced a new service for residents of Charlevoix County.

It is setting up a foot clinic to care for all foot problems, including toenail clipping, ingrown toenails, corns, callouses, blisters and foot deformities.

Pat Wakulat, health department nurse in charge of the service, explains:

"At the first visit we will make a full assessment of the feet and the patient's general health. We want to make patients aware of the importance of taking care of their feet and educate them on how to do it, including wearing proper shoes. If we find a problem we can't handle, we will refer the patient to his own physician or to a podiatrist."

The health department foot clinic is open to persons of all ages, although it is probably more needed by older persons who have sight problems or trouble leaning over, according to Wakulat.

The first foot clinic will be held Monday, Sept. 14, from 9 a.m. until noon, at the East Jordan Health Center.

The second clinic is scheduled for Monday, Oct. 12, from 9 a.m. until noon, also at the East Jordan Health Center.

Reservations should be made at the health department office in Charlevoix, phone 547-6523.

The cost of treatment at the foot clinic will be $8 a visit. Continuance of the service will depend on the number of persons using it.

GETTING JUMP ON SCHOOL YEAR

Sports got a head start on school this year, with the basketball, football and cross-country teams all in action already. Here, Angela Walker of Charlevoix is wedged between two Ellsworth players during the opening game of the girls season. The Lancer in front is Amy Alward. For more on sports, turn to page 8.

No contract but schools open doors

School bells rang on time Tuesday even though teachers and support personnel are without contracts.

Negotiations with unions representing both groups are progressing, says school district business manager Vince Olach.

The administration and teachers' union met Tuesday morning in an effort to iron out a settlement, but none has been reached yet.

Support workers are on the verge of settling their contract, Olach said. They met with school district bargainers Monday and were working on final details, he said.

The teachers' contract in effect for the past three years expired at the end of the 1986-87 school year.

Negotiators reportedly are working on another three-year pact.

Students attended their classes for the first time Tuesday afternoon in unusual two-hour sessions.

Those get-acquainted times followed teacher meetings in the morning.

Today is the first day for kindergartners, who got an extra day of summer vacation following the Labor Day weekend.

The school calendar has been approved, with students' first time off coming on Wednesday, Nov. 25, for a teacher in-service day. The following day is Thanksgiving, with no classes that day or the following day.

Christmas recess will begin at the end of the school day on Wednesday, Dec. 23, and classes will resume on Monday, Jan. 4.

The spring break will take place Monday through Friday, April 4-8.

AROUND THE TOWN

The population boom in Charlevoix County everyone talks about doesn't even exist in the eyes of the Census Bureau.... According to the federal head-counters, county-wide population has gone up just 1.6 percent in the past six years....

According to the people in D.C., there were an estimated 20,700 people in the county on July 1.... That's up from 19,892 in the official 1980 census.... Of course, regular censuses are taken in April and don't count summer residents. And estimates in non-census years are based on those official April head-counts....

The real percentage increases in the past two decades don't match up with the census estimates – with a 23.3 percent growth from 1960 to 1970 and a 20.3 percent hike from '70 to '80.... City population peaked in the 1970 count at 3,519 and slid to 3,309 in 1980.

The walkway along the south pier will be lighted after all, but the city is doing the lighting.... The Army Corps of Engineers, which is building the walkway – they call it erosion control – refused to put in street lights even though they installed lights when they did the north pier....

Corps officials say that was the last project that included lighting and other communities have been upset about the exclusion of lights, too.... But it's just not in the budget, they say....

So the city is going to install four light poles along the walkway, which will stretch from the bridge to where the concrete ends just east of the fish hatchery.... The lights will cost the city about $1,500 each and will match those installed in Hoffmann Park.

Crossing more than borders

Year in Germany gives exchange student wider outlook

by PEG OHLE

Charles Britton

Charles Britton could have come home from his 20 months in Germany speaking with either a German or Oxford English accent. That's because he studied both languages as an exchange student in Passau, near Munich in southern Germany.

Fortunately for his friends, Charles retained his northern Michigan, American manner of speaking English. Only when he's having fun with his buddies will a foreign word or two slip out.

There is a German exchange student in Charlevoix now, so Charles can converse with him in his native tongue, but such conversations are not always satisfactory because Charlevoix studied in southern Germany and the exchange student comes from northern Germany. It seems there is almost as much difference between these two dialects as there is between Louisiana Cajun English and the nasal-twanged English of the Midwest.

The Charlevoix High School senior is looking forward to his last year of high school studies, filling out college applications, and playing football after a year away from the game.

Charles was an American-Scandinavian exchange student. He lived with two different German families while away from home, going to school, playing and learning about the lifestyle of another culture.

He had not studied the German language before going over, so the first few months of school, trying to do geometry problems under the tutelage of a German-speaking teacher and reading the history of Germany in that language caused some problems.

"I was totally lost until about Christmas time. Then it got easier," Charles said.

Besides geometry and history, Charles studied English (pure Oxford English), art and religion. Since southern Germany is largely Catholic, the religion courses were geared to that church. Of the 50 students in his class, only two were not of the Catholic faith, he being one of them. School physical education classes were mostly swimming.

Charles admitted he was a little homesick after he first arrived in Germany and he was glad to see Christmas come and go, even though he had a good time skiing in the Alps during the holidays. Christmas vacation is three weeks long and there is another two-week vacation in the spring. During the spring break, Charles visited his aunt and uncle in Wales. While these vacation periods may seem generous, summer vacation lasts only one and a half months.

The school day in the gymnasium he attended is much the same as the high school day here, lasting from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. One of the big differences in school atmosphere that Charles noted is that German teachers have students under better control.

"There's no reveling. The kids stand up for their teachers and they say 'good morning'," the son of two teachers said.

There are no lockers in German schools, so students – even little ones – carry all their books and other materials in briefcases. German students wear much the same clothing American students do – jeans, pea jackets, lots of faded jeans – but they cost more than they do here, Charles found out.

"I made a lot of friends and I hope some of them can come over here to visit some time," he says. "I learned a lot and can appreciate a lot of different things. I think I have a better outlook on life and can focus on a larger area," Charles says of his experience.

The big hole on Michigan Avenue just north of the Weathervane Inn signals the beginning of construction of the Rysberg Inn. The Inn was proposed in April 1986 by Brian Rysberg of Okemos as a 35-unit motel complete with indoor swimming pool and outside spa and terrace area, on the south side of the building. At that time, it was planned as a three-story structure, but architect Jack Begrow told the Courier Rysberg decided to cut it to a two-story structure, which will cut the number of motel units considerably. A drawing of the inn as now planned will soon be available, according to Begrow.

309 attend camp at Mt. McSauba

Three hundred nine youngsters attended week-long sessions at Camp McSauba, which was self-supporting this summer.

Director Teresa Noirot said an additional 25 campers attended occasionally on a daily basis.

A total of 111 attended the camp for the first time while 198 were returnees. Seventy-five were children of summer residents and 234 were those of year-around residents.

The sessions averaged 40 campers per week, Noirot said.

The camp offers a full program of activities for children from five to 12 years old.

Noirot said a questionnaire has been mailed to parents of campers asking for suggestions to improve the program.

"The response has been good," she said. "We hope to improve and expand the program to encompass other areas of interest for those attending.

"We have already added badminton and volleyball to our list of activities and will likely implement others that may be suggested,"

The camp, operated by the Charlevoix Recreation Department was self-supporting this season with enough of a profit to allow for purchase of four tents for the overnight program and sports equipment Noirot said.

Vandalism at the camp site cost the program $300 to replace damaged equipment including basketball rims.

Monies contributed by local organizations as scholarships funds allow many children who would otherwise not enjoy a week of camping to attend the facility Noirot said. It also allows the camp to be self-supporting.

This was the 10th season the camp operated on city-owned property at Mount McSauba. Noirot has been associated with the camp for seven seasons, two as director. Counselors were Jim Buchanan, Jeff Greene, Amy Sell and Meg Fowler.

The camp will open June 27 for the 1988 season.

Lake committee encounters some doubters

by PEG OHLE

After holding two public hearings, members of the Lake Charlevoix committee could be getting the idea some county residents do not believe continued population growth will require restrictions to be placed on the use of Lake Charlevoix and land surrounding it.

While reaction to the plan has been generally positive, there is a vocal group that does not believe that within the next 15 or 20 years the lake could become polluted from over-use of its surface and its shoreline.

This opinion is expressed in terms of objections to any kind of lake authority that might usurp the powers of local government, expressions that there are already enough controls on the lake and its shoreline, and disagreement with the establishment of substantial horizontal and vertical setbacks and a 50-foot greenbelt of natural vegetation for all new construction along the lake.

After two and a half years of work, the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee has produced what it calls a plan to manage "the use, growth and quality of Lake Charlevoix and its adjacent lands."

Comments about the plan, pro and con, will be accepted by the Charlevoix County planning department in the county building in Charlevoix until 5 p.m. Friday, Sept. 11.

The many suggestions in the plan will become law only when and if they are adopted by local units of government. As expressed by committee members, acceptance of the plan is based on the willingness of individuals and elected officials to give up some local controls for the benefit of the entire lake.

Perhaps the most discussed section of the plan concerns the committee's computation of the number of boats Lake Charlevoix could handle at one give time.

The lake has a surface of 17,260 acres. Based on the size of a boat and the speed at which it travels, each type of boat was given a "boat equivalent" number. For instance, a small fishing boat would require only 10 acres of water surface on which to operate, so it is given a boat equivalent of 10, and Lake Charlevoix could conceivably handle 1,726 (17,260 divided by 10) such boats at once.

A sailboat, on the other hand, needs at least 20 acres to operate comfortably, so only 863 sailboats could be handled at once. Larger and different types of boats that need more space have higher boat equivalent numbers.

Such management could lead to restricting the number of boats entering Lake Charlevoix on any given day, even to the point of installing gates at access sites and marinas. Many local people do not think this will be necessary on Lake Charlevoix in their lifetime, even though there are now such restrictions on some downstate lakes.

The purpose of building setbacks and greenbelts is explained by some as "protecting the landowner from himself" (referring to the possibility that the level of the lake will continue to rise), and protecting the lake from unnecessary pollution by permitting filtration of any household contaminants through 50 feet of natural groundcover.

Members of the committee have consistently tried to explain that a lake authority would not add another level of regulations to those already imposed by cities, townships, the county and the state.

At the public hearing in Charlevoix last week, as well as at the one in Boyne City, Chairman John Hall told his audience this would not happen. Rather, he said, each unit of government would give up a little control to one body working for the good of the entire lake.

At the Boyne City hearing, real estate developer Arch Wright disagreed that the lake needed any more protection, citing the Department of Natural Resources, the Army Corps of Engineers, local zoning ordinances, District No. 3 Health Department and several environmental groups as watchdogs. "I'm afraid of them all," he said.

The shoreline of Lake Charlevoix is over 50 miles long, mathematically allowing for 3,152 one hundred foot lots. Only about one-third of the shoreline is now developed, and although some of it is not suitable for development, there is still plenty of "lake property" available.

At the Charlevoix public hearing, realtor Steve Andreae also questioned the need for a lake authority. He said people who want to live near the lake should be educated about such things as greenbelts and the hazards of lawn fertilizing to preseve lake quality.

The plan has also been criticized by the city governments of Boyne City and East Jordan. Neither municipality likes the idea of a lake authority or the proposed possible limiting of boat traffic by limiting the number of boat slips permitted around the lake.

East Jordan further suggests that both Charlevoix and Boyne City are further developed than East Jordan and the plan could hinder further development in that city.

Most comments from individual lakefront property owners, especially long-time property owners, have been favorable.

1st forum focuses on war

The recently formed Focus discussion group will hold a community forum Tuesday, Sept. 15, from 7:30-9:30 p.m. at Charlevoix City Hall. The public is invited.

The topic will be "Faces of War," a video tap narrated by actor Mike Farrell.

The half-hour tape will be followed by open discussion with opposing viewpoints and additional information welcomed. Facilitor will be David Fershee of Petoskey, lawyer and former district judge.

This is the first in a series of monthly "town meetings." Future meeting will discuss environmental issues and other subjects. Suggestions for topics of general interest are being solicited.

For further information call Megan Adams at 547-2852.

Germany

Perhaps one of his most broadening experiences was an incident that occurred during an exchange student trip from West Berlin to East Berlin.

As Charles explains it, he was using a three-year-old passport with a picture that made him look quite young. After being held up in a customs line for quite a while, he was taken from the line, put down in a chair, and told to sing "The Star Spangled Banner."

"Somehow I got through three verses of the song and they were convinced I was the American student the passport said I was."

If he had it to do over again, Charles would like to go to school in a larger city where there is more to do, but he is happy about last year's experience and is now emersed in algebra II, English III, chemistry, U.S. government and computer studies at Charlevoix High.

Opinion

Letters to the editor:

Soon city will need machine to see view

Editor,

As a frequent visitor to Charlevoix who long ago fell in love with its scenic charm and simple quaintness, I am appalled at what is happening there.

It seems as if the city and its environs have gone condo-crazy, erecting these architectural abominations wherever there is a spot on the lakeshore not already taken, or, in some cases, tearing down existing structures for condo-room. If this insanity is allowed to continue, I forsee that, in another year or two, in order to look at the lakes, one will have to use those metered look-out machines such as are found at scenic overlooks and historic sights. Put a quarter in the machine, and you get a whole minute to drink in the sight of lake, sand, grass, and trees the way nature intended. When 60 seconds are up, the shutter clicks down, and you are back in Condomania.

If a Charlevoix convention center is built, let us hope it does not run into the problems which beset the Kalamazoo Center, which was supposed to be the saving of the downtown Mall district, but which has run into financial problems and needs a taxpayer bail-out.

As for that horrible, gigantic zit on the chin of Charlevoix... that Fred Flintstone's Bedrock monstrosity... why couldn't it have been built (if it had to be built at all) south of town where it would be accessible but not such an affront to one's eyes as one enters the town.

Please reconsider your goals for the future of Charlevoix and the area. Don't destroy, or allow to be destroyed, the very qualities that have made Charlevoix such an attraction and so dear to so many people's hearts. I hear, over and over, people say, "Charlevoix used to be such a wonderful place. I just loved it. Now they're spoiling it. It makes me sick over what's being done to it!"

It makes me sick, too!

Intermediate district tax request crucial

Editor,

This Thursday, Sept. 10, is a very important day for some very "special" children in the school district of Charlevoix and Emmet counties. These children are the ones who receive some kind of education services through our intermediate school district personnel. These services vary in degree and intensity. Some of our students are seen on what is called a "consultant basis. This means that an intermediate school district employee sees that child on a regular basis and helps the child to solve some of his or her problems. Some of our children receive speech therapy from an intermediate (Charlevoix-Emmet) school district staff person. Other children receive physical therapy. When a child is out ill for an extended period of time, Char-Em provides a home bound teacher, who will visit the home or hospital to help the child to keep up with studies. In this way, children who are out ill for a long time can keep up. In times past, these children, usually, had to repeat the same grade during the next school year. Char-Em personnel gives psychological testing and follow-up, which enables the classroom teacher to help the child in ways other than academic. Social workers are assigned to work with parents. Many times if a child is having problems at school, he-she is also having problems at home. Social workers help out at a time when the school and the home critically need help in how to deal with a child's problems.

Our intermediate school district, also, operates what are called "self-contained" rooms. These are special education programs, in which children spend all or a part of their entire school day. We are fortunate at Pellston to have two such self-contained rooms. One is called a TMI room or "Trainable Mentally Impaired" program. This room is entirely self-contained. This is a program for youngsters who have a mild form of retardation. These students are "special" people taught by a "special" teacher with some very "special teacher aide" assistance.

The other program, which is in our district, is called HIP (Highly Individualized Program). This program is for students who find it difficult to function in a regular classroom. The purpose of the program is to give these children enough coping skills that they will, eventually, be able to return to a regular classroom program. We mainstream a great many of these youngsters gradually into our classrooms at Pellston. These, too, are some "special" children who happen to have some "special" problems. They participate almost fully in all of our activities. For instance, every time we have a candy sale or save soup labels, these youngsters are right near the top in participation. They have been in the annual Christmas program and they participate in our special assemblies. At our pep assemblies, they are among the most enthusiastic.

Other self-contained programs are located at other locations in the Charlevoix-Emmet county area.

All of the "special" children in our school districts have a great deal at stake this Thursday. A "yes" vote will insure that their programs continue. It will further insure that there can be small additions to the Char-Em staff if in the future there are more children with special needs. A "no" vote on Thursday will place the responsibility for most of these service back on the local school districts. Most of our districts cannot afford this additional financial obligation. A "yes" vote on Thursday would mean that your taxes would probably increase a few dollars per year.

We must admit that at certain times in the past the administrators of Pellston Public Schools have taken issue with some of Char-Ems personnel and some of their policies. These have been, however, mostly philosophical differences. That is, Char-Em personnel and we have differed in the way and manner in which some services would be provided. We can say positively that in each instance both parties have had the child's best interest at heart.

Please consider the need of our "special" children on Thursday. The polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. Let's have a good turnout.

Family money

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

Family money.

Some families have a great deal; others not so much. But most have a little.

Regardless of the amount, I firmly believe that family money should remain family money — and no one, including the church and its representatives, should attempt to siphon it off.

A case in point is the estate of the late William Florence of Detroit who died last Sept. 8 and left his entire estate, estimated at between $300,000 and $500,000 to Faith for Miracles, Inc., a TV ministry.

Actually, Florence signed over to the church his home in Detroit, a farm in Tuscola County, several properties in Florida and an undetermined amount of money 1½ years before he died.

Four months before the last rattle, he had a will drawn up naming the church pastor as his executor and Faith for Miracles as his sole heir.

As might be expected, Florence's stepdaughter, Antoinette Hosfeld, has challenged the will. In 1970 before Florence became involved with Faith for Miracles, Florence signed another will, leaving everything to Hosfeld, her four children and a nephew.

Bravo! That's the way family money should have been divided.

But now the church has laid claim to everything and Hosfeld and her kin are out in the cold unless the will is thrown out in court.

I don't exactly know how to say it, but there is something intrinsically wrong with a church, operating as it does in the foggy realm of the metaphysical, ever accepting a dime from anyone nearing the end of life's road.

Florence knew he was dying. He was losing a battle with cancer of the larnyx and other ailments. He might have turned to Faith for Miracles in search of a miraculous cure. Or he might have turned to the church as a passport to heaven.

We'll never know. But we do know that anyone suffering Florence's grave afflictions, facing certain death within a given time frame, is not himself. And certainly no churchman worthy of the name should ever attempt to counsel such a person concerning the disposition of his estate or even allow a member of his flock to make such a bequest without the knowledge and approval of the legal heirs.

The church, of course, with its promise of eternal life to those who believe in such and such a doctrine, has a pretty strong influence over anyone standing nose to nose with the grim reaper. I suppose we should be happy that so few pastors take advantage of their superior position in counseling the dying as to the disposition of their worldly effects.

Bequests to benevolent societies, research foundations, scholarship funds, universities and other such organizations also dissipate family money, but their claims appear to have greater legitimacy since none of them is in the business of promising something it really doesn't know whether it can deliver.

But it hurts when family money — possibly accrued over several generations by the sweat of honest labor — falls into the laps of those who have no rightful claim to it.

I hate to suggest another law, but it might be a good idea to limit bequests to religious organizations to the regular 10 percent tithe, unless the legal heirs approve a greater amount.

It will be interesting to follow the progress of Hosfeld's lawsuit through Wayne County Probate Court.

Fantasy wedding was something to behold

EDITH GILBERT

The fantasy wedding overlooking Round Lake was something to be seen to be believed! For starters, the weather was perfect – a balmy night, a copper colored sunset over Lake Michigan and an almost full yellow moon rising in the east.

More than one yacht cruised by with raised binoculars to catch a glimpse of the festivities at the Sue and Art Kleinpell home. From the lake one could see the three white tents, as well as the flower bedecked hillside. (Bert Smith, Flint florist extraordinaire, spent 2 hours on his hands and knees planting a variety of cut flowers in the ground to inhance the blooming effect.)

During the open-air, double ring ceremony, the wedding guests sat on the lawn with Round Lake as a backdrop. The bride, Virginia Kleinpell, is the daughter of Joan MacGillivray of Charlevoix and Stuart, Fla., and Peter Kleinpell of Flint and Naples, Fla. She is the great-granddaughter of the late Charles C. Mott, one of the founders of General Motors. The groom is John Sullivan of Madison, Wisc. His parents are the John P. Sullivans of Milwaukee, Wisc.

Both bride and groom are graduates of the University of Wisconsin. The ceremony was performed by the Hon. George W. Alexander, judge from Ann Arbor. A trumpet solo was played by John Lindenau, a member of the faculty of the Interlochen Arts Academy.

Rhinestones were embedded in lilies for the wedding.

Family and friends came from all over the United States and places as far away as London. Two distinguished ladies, grandmother by private jet, and Mrs. C.S. Mott, step-great grandmother arrived from Flint. Mrs. Mott, a celebrated hostess in her own right, was pleased to see her florist, Bert Smith, attending to the wedding flowers.

She once said of him, "I have never seen anyone be able to get so many stems into such a small container!" I can attest to the fact that I never saw so many flowers in my two-car garage, which was used by the florist and his crew as a workshop for three days. Nor has anyone's garage ever smelled so heavenly! I marvelled as they plowed methodically through the six pages of instructions for the staggering number of floral arrangements, corsages, boutonnieres, and bridesmaids' bouquets.

There were eight bridesmaids, dressed in delphinium blue and eight groomsmen, who wore white dinner jackets with cumberbund and neckties that matched the bridesmaids' dresses.

The groomsmen wore blue bachelor buttons with miniature ming fern on their lapels. The bridesmaids carried a bouquet of calla lilies tied with white satin ribbons. (If you're interested in statistics, Smith used 750 yards of white satin ribbon for the wedding.) Two flower girls and two ring bearers completed the wedding party.

After the ceremony, the Beaver Island boat left its nearby dock on cue and gracefully slipped into the Kleinpell dock. The 195 guests walked aboard and through the receiving line to enjoy a sunset, champagne cruise on Lake Michigan. Those standing ashore near the channel were amused by the big blue and white "Just Married" sign on the upper deck, and there was much waving back and forth between those on shore and those on deck. As the sun set and the moon rose and the Beaver Islander returned to the Kleinpell dock, 9,000 Italian lights were turned on to light the trees and the dock. It was a breathtaking sight – just like Venetian night!

Guests found their assigned places around tables covered with white tablecloths and white floral centerpieces. Each centerpiece was made up of Casa Blanca lilies from which the stamen had been removed and replaced by sprigs of sparkling rhinestones that looked like dewdrops. Five votive candles flickered on every table and each lady found a white rose tied to her napkin.

Let me tell you now about the delicious meal which was well-served by "Putting on the Ritz." It started with a seasonal salad and was accompanied by heart-shaped biscuits and heart-shaped butter pads. The entree was grilled chicken tarragon, pasta Alfredo and julienne vegetable. The caterers also provided a most unusual and delicious wedding cake made with a thin layer of pistachio marzipan, and covered with white chocolate butter cream icing. A platter of brie cheese and fruit was passed around each table, along with those elegant "Art Mints", introduced as a fund-raiser for the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

A 17 piece swing band, Chris Bickley from Mt. Pleasant, played on a raised platform all evening for everyone's dancing pleasure.

The Saturday night wedding is over, but the memory lingered on particularly for 200 guests on Monday evening at the petunia auction held at the Edgewater Inn, also overlooking Round Lake.

The MacGillivrays donated all the African lily arrangements including the rhinestone stamens from Taiwan, to enhance the Hawaiian atmosphere for the Charlevoix petunia auction. Pretty heady international stuff, wouldn't you say?

Jensen-Dankert wedding

Sherry Jensen and Michael Dankert were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, Aug. 22, at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Jensen of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Dankert of Carp Lake.

Approximately 150 guests witnessed the double-ring ceremony at which the Rev. James Austin of Big Rapids officiated. The church was decorated with pink gladiolus, white roses, carnations and a unity candle, with each pew marked with a white satin bow and a candelabra.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of crystal sheer, Schiffli embroidery, and re-embroidered lace. It was fashioned with a criss-cross ruffled bodice, full skirt edged with ruffles, chapel-length train, and full sleeves.

Her wreath veil was covered with satin flowers and seed pearls and the illusion lace was tipped with string pearls. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, pink gladiolus, stephanotis and greens.

Linda Empey assisted the bride as maid of honor, and Beth Lopeman, Robin May, and Becky and Elaine Dankert, sisters of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids.

Sherry and Michael Dankert

They wore pastel pink floor-length taffeta gowns which featured lace ruffled necklines, spaghetti straps and full lace-tiered skirts. They carried cascade bouquets of white roses, pink gladiolus, stephanotis and greens.

Gayla Scott and Susannah Dankert, as flower girls, wore pink and white satin dresses, made with dropped waists and large back bows. Their hairpieces were floral wreaths.

William Spierling served as best man, with James and John Dankert, brothers of the bridegroom, Marty and Dan Jensen, brothers of the bride, were groomsmen. John Dankert and Dan Jensen helped in seating the guests.

Music for the ceremony was provided by pianist Jeff Solomon and vocalist Kris Fiedler.

The bride's parents hosted a reception in Fellowship Hall of the church. They were assisted by Pat Drost, who cut the cake, and Betty Inman, Virginia Jarvis and Barb Rogers, who served the other refreshments. The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Petoskey Holiday Inn.

Following a wedding trip in the Upper Peninsula, the newlyweds are at home in Mt. Pleasant, where the bride is completing her studies for a degree in elementary education and science at Central Michigan University. (Photography by Henry Mummert)

Boyd Yard

Flower arranger visit sponsored by garden clubs

The Charlevoix Garden Club is cooperating with other area clubs in sponsoring a flower arranging demonstration at McCune Arts Center in Petoskey on Wednesday, Sept. 16.

Boyd Yard, a master in the Ohara School of Japanese Flower Arranging, will demonstrate the art for club members from Petoskey, Boyne City, East Jordan and Charlevoix as well as the general public.

Tickets are $3.50 for the 1:30 p.m. demonstration. Tickets are available from Ruth Ann Curtis, Chambers of Commerce in other communities and the McCune Arts Center.

Charlevoix members will meet at Duffy's of Charlevoix at 12:15 p.m. to carpool to Petoskey. Proceeds go to "Operation: Wildflower," a Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan Inc. highway plantings project.

Session helps widows get life back in order

Widows seeking to reconstruct their lives after the death of their spouse are invited to a meeting Monday, Sept. 14, at Charlevoix Area Hospital, sponsored by Charlevoix County Hospice.

The two-hour program will begin at 7 p.m. and will be presented by Sue Winters and Harriet Malone. Winters will discuss the impact of the loss, the stages of grief and the role of the volunteer.

Malone will start with the A.C.S. Lewis quotation, "Friendship is born of that moment when one person says to another, 'What you, too?' I thought I was the only one."

Persons interested in the subject who are not widows are also welcome to attend the meeting.

Song kits help first graders learn of safety

Area members of the Michigan Association of Realtors have purchased "Safety Through Songs" kits for an estimated 875 children enrolled in first grade in Charlevoix and Antrim counties.

The innovative audio-visual program received the top national award in competition among more than 1,700 Realtor boards throughout the United States.

Ten songs in the "Safety Through Songs" book are designed to teach children such things as to look both ways before crossing streets, never accept rides from strangers and always wear a seat belt.

Linda and David Scovel

Smith-Scovel wedding

The garden of the Sidney House, Fine Arts and Historical Center of The Way International in Sidney, Ohio, was the scene of the wedding of Linda Louise Smith and David Edward Scovel on Aug. 23.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton A. Smith of Smith's Little Acres, Charlevoix. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Scovel of Middletown, Conn.

The Rev. Thomas Mausolf officiated at the wedding. Attendants were Phyllis Giles and Ronald Booze. A wedding breakfast preceded the morning ceremony, which was attended by the bride's parents and friends.

A reception honoring the newlyweds was held at Smith's Little Acres on Aug. 26. Another reception in Middletown is planned.

Following a wedding trip through northern Michigan, Canada and Connecticut, the couple will make their home in Orlando, Fla.

Jennifer and Scott Ramirez

Trimper-Ramirez wedding

Jennifer Lee Trimper and Scott Ramirez were married Saturday, Aug. 15 at St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Grand Rapids.

The bride, who has been living and working in Grand Rapids, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Donald Trimper of Charlevoix. Her bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Betty Ramirez of Grand Rapids.

The Rev. Joseph Houston officiated at the double-ring rites before approximately 150 guests.

For the occasion, the altar was decorated with an assortment of flowers, including pink and red mini carnations, bouvardia, Queen Anne's lace, alstroemeria, enchantment lilies, button and snowdrop pompoms, statice and freesia. The pews were marked with ivory bows and sprigs of ivy.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a Victorian style wedding gown of ivory satin fashioned with a high neck and long sleeves with pouffed tops, all trimmed with Venise lace and pearls. The chapel-length train was also trimmed with lace and pearls, as was the waltz-length veil which was attached to a pearl-covered cap.

Sue Jelinek, a college roommate of the bride, served as maid of honor. The bride's sister, Cindy Trimper of Boston, served as bridesmaid.

They wore red jacquard tea-length dresses with natural waists, high necks, short pleated sleeves, and low backs decorated with three bows to the waistline. The attendants carried bouquets of pink and red mini carnations, bouvardia, Queen Anne's lace, alstroemeria, enchantment lilies, button and snowdrop pompoms, statice, and freesia.

Greg Watrous, a childhood friend of the bridegroom, was best man, and Russ Anderson was groomsman. The bride's three brothers, Don Jr., Jeff and Mark, served as ushers.

Organist Phyllis Fowler and vocalist Phyllis DeGraw provided traditional wedding music.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the bride and bridgegroom presented their mothers with baskets of flowers.

The bride's parents hosted a reception at Poppl's Prime Corner in Kentwood. They were assisted by John and Martha LaVoie of Grand Rapids, friends of the bride's family. The rehearsal dinner was held at Florentines in Grandville.

The bride graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1980, later attended Northwest Michigan College in Traverse, and graduated from Northwood Institute. The bridegroom graduated from Wyoming Rogers High School in 1980. Both are employed in Grand Rapids, she at Old Kent Bank and he at Placks Industries.

Following a wedding trip to Tennessee, the newlyweds are at home at 1012 36th Street SW, Wyoming. (Photography by Don Smith)

Bridge walk comes to Horton Bay

by PEG OHLE

The Labor Day bridge walk came to Horton Bay this year, complete with a candlelight procession, patriotic music and a stirring political speech.

Monday night, about 100 Horton Bay residents and their friends, led by Bay Township Trustee Bill Ohle, ceremoniously crossed the 30-foot-long bridge over Horton Creek on Boyne City Road as a full moon played in and out of the equinox clouds.

Bob Munn led the group in singing the "Star Spangled Banner" as all turned toward the improvised flag pole at the corner of the bridge.

Horton Bay's No. 1 politician, G.T. Long of State Democratic Headquarters, spoke of work as the most glorified and most important part of the spirit and therefore of life.

Balladeer Sean Ryan, accompanied by his three-year-old son, sang some "common man" numbers.

Parade organizers Jon Hartwell, "Moon" Mullins and Long explained the reasons for the Horton Bay bridge walk were many, but the important one is that it could serve as a tryout to test the "character, fortitude, endurance and raw courage of persons who may later dare walk the Zilwaukee Bridge, when finished."

After the strenuous quarter-mile walk from downtown Horton Bay to the bridge, participants climbed aboard Corky Price's horse-drawn haywagon for the ride back.

Boats hit the half-way mark in the Red Fox Regatta as they near Boyne City. More than 70 sailboats were involved in the event, which included the Budweiser Triangle race. Red Fox division winners in Charlevoix boats were Norm Tolman, Wes Dilworth, Mike Carland and Dave Strawbridge, and Triangle winners were Dave Campbell and Dow-Mueller. Overall winner was Dave Irish of Harbor Springs.

Class, student council officers take places

Student Council and class activities get under way at Charlevoix High School with officers assuming duties for the first time since being elected last spring.

Class officers will be: 12th grade: president Marty Joy, vice president Ellen Pearl, secretary Hal Chase and treasurer J.D. Boydston. 11th grade: president Robert Sell, vice president Jason Wiser, secretary Krista Martin, treasurer Staci Ketchum; 10th grade: president Chrissy Dillon, vice president Michelle Jacobs, secretary Tricia Sutton and treasurer Pat Elliott; 9th grade: president Scott Campbell, vice president Jason Parrish, secretary Stacey LeCureux and treasurer Guy Gengle.

Obituaries

Eldean Towe

Eldean Towe, a former Charlevoix resident, died Aug. 26. at Winter Park, Fla., where she lived in recent years.

A memorial service was held Aug. 28 at Winter Park Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Towe came to Charlevoix in 1947 when she and her husband, Lawrence A. Towe, purchased the Charlevoix Courier. While here, Mrs. Towe was associated with the Courier and wrote the Tow Line, a personal column. She was also active in local organizations.

They sold the Courier in 1949 and moved to southern Michigan where they owned and operated other newspapers until retiring and moving south. She was a graduate of Olivet College.

Surviving are her husband; one son, Dudley of Cincinnati, Ohio, and two grandchildren.

The family address is 1111 S. Lakemont Ave., Winter Park, Fla. 32792.

Georgia Picard

Georgia M. Picard, 77, of Charlevoix, died Thursday, Aug. 27, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral services were held Monday, Aug. 31, at St. Mary's Church. The Rev. James K. Gardiner was the celebrant. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery. The rosary was recited at Winchester Funeral Home Sunday, Aug. 30.

The former Georgia M. Messinger, daughter of Charles F. and Lorette (Bergeron), was born in Chicago on July 27, 1910. She graduated from Trinity High School in River Forest, Ill., in 1928 and from Rosary College of River Forest in 1932 with a degree in education.

On June 3, 1933, she married Louis F. Picard in Chicago where they made their home until moving to Charlevoix in 1968. She summered in the Ironton area for 40 years prior to coming here to live. Mr. Picard preceded her in death Dec. 20., 1982.

She was a member of St. Mary's Church and Its Rosary Altar Society, Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild and Rosary College Alumni Association.

Surviving are two sons, Louis F. of St. Paul, Minn., and Gerard C. of Charlevoix; two daughters, Mrs. Mary Louise Carmody of Lombard, Ill., and Mrs. Jeanne L. Bleasdale of Roselle, Ill., seven grandchildren, and one sister, Mrs. Lucile Green of LaJolla, Calif.

The family suggests memorials to Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild. Envelopes are available at Winchester Funeral Home.

Netters fall short against Ellsworth

Melissa Boss of Charlevoix puts up a shot over Nikki Drenth on her way to leading Rayder scorers with 16.

The loss of two players before the season got underway handicapped the Rayders' girls basketball team in its first game of the season.

The Rayders dropped their opening game to Ellsworth 43-32.

Coach Stan Martin said Billie Jean Habel suffered a fractured finger and will be sidelined for another three weeks. Senior Allison Hall, he said, quit the team. Sophomores Marty Bragg and Tricia Sutton were brought up from the JV's for the game.

The Rayders jumped to a 9-4 first period lead but were outscored 14-2 in the second period to trail 18-11 at halftime. Ellsworth led 34-21 going into the final period.

Melissa Boss paced the scoring for Charlevoix with 16 points. Shelly Essenberg had 12 points and Rhonda Grulke 10 for the Lancers.

In the JV game, Charlevoix trailed 13-11 at the half before losing 33-24.

Sandy Fershee had 11 points for the Rayders. Lori Ruis with 15 and Tania Eggers with 12 were the leading scorers for Ellsworth.

Charlevoix will host Elk Rapids Thursday and travel to Kalkaska on Tuesday and Petoskey on Thursday.

Hands reach for the ball as Angela Walker (left) and Ellen Pearl (front) battle with Nikki Drenth of Ellsworth and a couple other players for a loose ball.

Jill Austin of Charlevoix fights with Ellsworth's Rhonda Grulke for a rebound as Lancers Amy Alwerd (31) and Manda Veldkamp (25) move in on the play.

Cross country wins first event

Charlevoix won the first meet of the 1987 season by capturin the 15th annual White Cloud Invitational.

The Rayders topped 15 teams of all classes with 100 points. Big Rapids was hot on their heels with 101 points and the Rayders' nemesis, Benzie Central – defending state Class C champions – was third with 109 points.

The Charlevoix girls, with three members sidelined with injuries, did not run as a team but placed very well in the non-counting varsity competition, coach Pete Spieles said.

The Rayder JV's, with 113 points, placed fifth in the meet.

Pat Rajewski, the team's No. 1 runner, had a time of 16:43 to place fifth; Scott Miller was 7th in 16:45; Gehry Wiesner 11th in 17:11; Tom Merta 26th in 17:50 and Sean Henne 51st in 18:43.

The sixth and seventh place runners, Dylan Stewart and Jon Terry, running their first varsity races, had times of 19:44 to place 76th and 21:36 to finish 88th.

The best time in the race was 16:22 by Matt Johnson of Benzie Central.

In the girls' meet Betsy Haggard and Heidi Olinger placed third and fourth with times of 22:26 and 22:52, respectively, while Shelly Ferguson was 6th in 24:02 and Barb Haggard 8th in 25:02.

Cathy Ackley of Hart clocked the best time in the girls' competition, 19:36.

Freshman Paul Wakulat came in fourth in the JV division with a time of 19:08, Marty Joy was 8th in 19:09, Hal Chase 26th in 20:56, Tim Henne 24th in 21:36, Mike Ochs 38th in 22:15, Matt Schnackenberg 39th in 22:18; Jake Smith 47th in 23:38 and Kevin Campbell in 28:00.

Charlevoix will travel to Sault Ste. Marie for a triangular with Boyne City on Tuesday, Sept. 22.

Rayders drop football opener to Petoskey

Charlevoix's defense kept Petoskey in check for nearly three quarters of their season opening football game – but the Northmen held the Rayders a little longer.

It was nearly the fourth quarter before Petoskey scored the first touchdown of the game – and season – but the Northmen then added three more before they were done.

Charlevoix's lone score came after they were down 13-0 in the final quarter as Dave Miller scampered 85 yards on a kickoff runback. Dan Drury kicked the extra point.

Petoskey scored first with a 23-yard pass from Toby McFarlane to Gary Wilson, then added a second touchdown on a 49-yard pass play from McFarlane to Dave Hensen. Hansen added the conversion on the first TD but missed the second.

Miller tallied for Charlevoix on the ensuing kickoff for the Rayders' top play of the game. The closest Charlevoix got to the Petoskey goal line any other time in the game was the 19 yard line in the first period.

Petoskey scored twice more, on a 3-yard run by Todd Shomin and on a two-yard run by Shomin. Hansen added both extra points with kicks.

Mark LaBlance was the leading Charlevoix rusher with 53 yards in six carries. Charlevoix picked up 141 total yards, including 88 through the air.

Petoskey countered by racking up 365 yards, with 244 coming on the ground and 121 by passing.

JV gridders victorious

The Rayder junior varsity football team racked up an opening game 24-0 shutout the Northmen at Petoskey.

"We did an outstanding job on both offense and defense, considering its was the first game of the season," said coach Brian Certa. "All around, it was an outstanding performance."

Certa said everyone got to play as the young Rayders romped to an early lead and were ahead 24-0 at the end of the third period.

"There was some great running, passing and blocking for a first game," he continued.

The opening score came midway in the first period when fullback Jason Corwin broke away on a 43-yard scoring run. Brian Livingston carried the ball in for the extra point and an 8-0 lead.

The same Corwin twin went through the line for a second score this one good for 36 yards. James Corwin, at quarterback, scored the conversion on a run for halftime lead of 16-0.

A pass play that covered 77 years in the third period including a 44-yard pass by Greg Lewis to Jason Corwin, who ran the remaining 33 yards put the game on ice for Charlevoix.

The JVs travel to East Jordan for a game at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday. The game has been moved back from Thursday.

Church plans fitness run

Child and adult members of the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene will participate in an Olympic-style run Sunday morning, Sept. 20.

They will carry a lighted torch representing the light of Christ as they move from the Charlevoix City Hall to the church at U.S. 31 and Waller Road.

Pastor Duane Nelson says the purpose of the run is to show the church is racing together with Christ and also to show it is the light of the community, a caring and reaching church.

The run will begin at 9 a.m. and will proceed on State Street to Park Avenue, to Bridge Street, to Michigan Avenue to Petoskey Avenue and along U.S. 31 to Waller Road. City police will escort the runners through the city and sheriff's deputies will escort them through the township.

It is expected that the run will take about 45 minutes. When the runners reach the church, they will be treated to refreshments, which will be followed by a videotape presentation of "Father, Son and the Three-Mile Run".

Petunia auction raises $14,000

Mayor Ralph McRae got a time-share condo. Rick Lobenherz got a new car. Penny Shaw got 50 pounds of buffalo meat.

Al and Patsy Ranger thought they got a trip to Hawaii, but Dave Paquette did instead.

Every one of the 49 auction items up for bids at the annual Keep Charlevoix Beautiful fund-raiser was sold at the Labor Day event.

And KCB collected nearly $14,000 for its Operation Petunia project. The money will help the organization buy 50,000 flowers for next spring's planting, purchase a weed blanket for the five-mile route and make the final payment on the petunia watering truck.

The weed blanket idea grew out of this summer's never-ending weeding battle caused by the unusually hot weather in early summer.

The blanket will cost less than KCB has paid out for weeders this year, about $1,300.

The auction items brought in about 60 percent of retail value, opposed to the 20 to 30 percent of previous years.

About 250 people attended the auction after buying tickets on the Mustang convertible grnad prize. Lobenherz's was the last ticket drawn by Dave Phillips and John Haggard of the Knights of Columbus, giving him the keys to the car.

Among the big-ticket items auctioned off were a $3,900 time-share package and trips to Hawaii and Germany.

Auctioneer Tom Duke used a reverse bidding procedure for the two trips, raising $2,753 for KCB in less than two minutes.

He started with the retail value and worked backwards until the first bidder selected the trip. The Rangers' bid of $1,300 started and stopped the Hawaii trip bidding, but sealed bid from Paquette of $1,353 took the prize.

The Germany trip was purchased by Joseph McGee, one of the auctioneers. The third auctioneer was Lois Hodson, with Dale Boss assisting all three.

Not all items were expensive, but nearly all had a retail value of $150 or more. Among the unusual purchases was 50 pounds of buffalo steamship round from Oleson's which Penny Shaw of Bridge Street Inn and Puttin' on the Ritz catering service bought.

Don and Joanne Dannecker handed out more than $1,000 in door prizes. Four door prizes were not claimed and can be obtained by contacting the Danneckers at Mayfair of Charlevoix. The ticket numbers for those prizes are 335, 369, 391 and 399.

KCB president Bruce MacArthur attributed the generosity of the bidders to the mood set in the new Edgewater Inn conference room.

Vince Chew sang "Charlevoix the Beautiful," an original composition by Elizabeth Humphrey and the same tune played on the petunia truck music system outside the hotel.

The Hawaiian theme was enhanced by the roast pig, by Lucy Witthoeft's Hawaiian dance and by the PeuLei Dancers, who greeted guests in the lobby.

A KCB sign painted by Marilyn Boss dominated the stage, and several thousands of dollars of flowers from the McGilivray wedding on Saturday were spread throughout the room. Corsages were donated by Expressions Unlimited and assembled by women of the Charlevoix Garden Club.

After the two-hour auction, many bidders moved downstairs to the pool area for strawberry fondue, for music by the Epsilon Quartet and to tour the new hotel, said Barbara MacArthur.

Lorraine Chambers McCartner, judge for the Arts and Crafts Show at McCune Arts Center, talks with Chuck Kouchy and Ann Lord, chairmen of the docents, at Kouchy's Charlevoix gallery. The show at McCune continues through September.

Commission on Aging holds garage sale

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging will hold a garage sale on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 19 and 20, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Transit System garage on M-75 in Boyne City.

Profits from the sale will go toward a fund to purchase a bus for recreational uses of senior citizens.

Shore development dispute evolves

Views protected in altered plan

by DON DIBLEY

View corridors. Height restrictions. Density. Ground coverage.

These are words that have replaced ones such as "condo ban" in city council chambers.

And they are concepts which the planning commission is applying to proposed site plans for a condominium-style multiple-housing building on Park Avenue.

After weeks of disagreement – or at least non-agreement – over what, if anything, should be done to halt shoreline multiple-unit housing, a busy night at city hall helped solidify where the city may be headed.

The planning commission met to deal with specifics of two plans for the Park Avenue site, while the city council met with the planners to deal with the philosophical aspects of "condo" development.

From one meeting came a site plan recommendation filled with language aimed at preserving view corridors and limiting height, width and density.

From the other came establishment of a committee to look into what might be changed in the zoning ordinance. (See related story to right.)

One area of concern to proponents of limitations on multiple-family construction around Round Lake is the Bellinger Marine facility. They say it is a prime location for development between existing common-wall housing units.

The planning commission, in its review of plans for an 11-unit condo and a 9-unit one, was addressing the areas of concern to residents, planner Gerry Harsch later told the council.

One major concern of the planners was the proximity of the building to the edge of the bluff above the Pine River Channel.

While the zoning ordinance allows the building to be 40 feet from the water, planners wanted it pushed back to retain the view of Lake Michigan from the viewing platform in Hoffmann Park.

Their recommendation of approval of the plan to the city council included the provision, then, that the building start at a higher elevation above the channel – forcing it back about 15 feet.

Don Berlage, lawyer who owns the property, said later he is studying the planners' recommendation.

He is concerned that people buying units in the proposed building might lose their view in the future if restrictions are not attached to the parcel next door if it is developed beyond its present single-family use.

Berlage also told the Courier he plans to appeal an earlier planning commission decision that a 21-unit hotel was not an allowable use under the property's present zoning.

That appeal, he said, would be made to the zoning board of appeals, which is trying to determine whether another possible use for the parcel – a 21-unit residential club – is allowable.

Berlage says he is just trying to determine what uses the land could be put to without going through the normal, drawn-out process of submitting plans to the city one at a time and waiting for rejection or approval.

In exchange for pushing the building back from the channel, the planning commission recommended allowing the side yards to be wider than the ordinance allows – but only to the width of the present houses on the lots.

This compromise, as planning commission vice chairman Dave Novotny explained it, was not well received by city council members. Novotny, though, said it was more important to get the view along the channel than to make the building narrower than the present ones.

Michigan law is unclear on whether zoning considerations can be made for aesthetic reasons, city attorney Jeff Van Treese told the planning commission.

The only case in which a municipality attempted to zone to retain a scenic view was decided in favor of the developer in 1929, he said.

The plans showed more parking than the zoning ordinance requires for the condos, and planning commissioners asked for some of it to be removed to increase green spaces.

Committee to work up proposals

A seven-person committee has been formed to try to come up with a plan for preserving Charlevoix's shoreline.

The panel is an outgrowth of defeated calls for a "condo ban" in the Round Lake-Pine River Channel area.

City planner Gerry Harsch, who will head the group, expects the report to look at what regulations are already in place, what options the city has in implementing further restrictions and what implications those regulations may have.

Serving on the committee with Harsch will be city council members Norm Probert and William Haggard, two members of the planning commission and residents Pat Russell and D'Ann Rothenberger.

They have been given 45 days to work up their report and expect to begin meeting immediately. Harsch works for the city one day a week.

City attorney Jeff Van Treese has been cautioning council that whatever action they take must be defendable in court as a reasonable solution to the problem.

He and City Manager Mike Wiesner have asked the council to formulate goals so the city administration could work on proposed remedies.

Hospital gets $25,000 gift

Charlevoix Area Hospital has received a $25,000 gift from AAA Michigan – the first the auto club has awarded.

The 44-bed hospital will use the money to buy an automated blood gas analyzer, which measures how well the lungs are performing by analyzing blood chemistry.

AAA initiated the grant program this summer, said Tom Duke, former chairman of the AAA board and a Charlevoix resident. Charlevoix's hospital is the first to apply for a grant.

The hospital's emergency room treated more than 6,200 patients last year – many of them vacationers and auto accident victims.

"By helping the Charlevoix Area Hospital continue its high quality emergency care, we are benefitting the many persons who live in and visit this growing resort area and who one day may require medical help," Duke said in a prepared statement.

"We believe tourism is a key growth industry in Michigan's future and this gift will help keep our roads safer by assisting with top-quality medical equipment," Duke continued. "As a concerned corporate citizen, we also are pleased to give back something to this community and to help meet the needs of Charlevoix area residents and visitors."

Richard Krueger, hospital administrator, said the blood gas analyzer is an important diagnostic tool. It has been high on the facility's replacement priority list.

The machine has been ordered and delivery is expected soon, he said.

AROUND THE TOWN

Charlevoix High student Sean Henne has been selected as a National Merit Scholarship semifinalist for 1988.... Henne is among 15,000 students from around the nation to qualify for continued competition for about 6,000 scholarships....

Henne is one of two students from schools in the Charlevoix-Emmet county area to advance.... A Petoskey High student also was selected.... Henne expects to major in social sciences in college.

They're in the Navy – almost. After a summer of hard work by their mother, the McClanathan triplets are due to receive a send-off into the Navy nuclear program Tuesday, Sept. 22....

Everything was set for John, Gene and Tony to be the first triplets in the program until John was severely injured in a motorcycle-car accident.... An 18-inch metal rod inserted in his leg violated a new Navy rule against enlisting anyone with metal in his body....

Mother Rosalind McClanathan wasn't going to let some military regulation get in the way of her boys' dream, though, and began a crusade that eventually got Rep. Bob Davis, Sen. Don Riegle and top Navy officials involved.... She even wrote President Reagan....

John's speedy recovery surprised his doctors and added fuel to his mother's quest. Finally, a waiver was granted so the three can enter the program – only three months later than originally planned.

Charlevoix Yesterday

Last month, the Courier ran a story about a group of local fishermen who moved east in 1910 to try their luck at fishing in the North Atlantic. One of those fishermen was Mike Shores. Now Joseph E. Shores of Winchester, Wisc., a nephew of Mike Shores, has sent us a picture of some of the boats that made that trip and the men who sailed them. The front boat is the Naomi Bruce skippered by Mike Shores. The men with him are believed to be Albert Arnold, Cy Tysver and Herm Tysver. The last of the four boats is identified as the Alice, with "Big John" Nordrum and Sam Halvorsen. According to Joseph Shores, this boat returned to Charlevoix after two years in the east and resumed fishing in Northern Michigan waters. No information is available about the other two boats.

Enrollment off slightly; St. Mary's up

First-day enrollment in Charlevoix Public Schools is down slightly from the 1986 official fourth Friday count. This year there were 1322 students on the first day compared to 1336 on the official count day in 1986.

"This was about what we anticipated," Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren said of the decrease.

The major decrease came in the high school were the trend has been noticed throughout the North.

Kindergarten enrollment may have been a little higher had not a kindergarten opened at St. Mary's for the first time, but St. Mary's now has no sixth grade.

Major decreased in the elementary are in kindergarten and fourth grade.

Middle school enrollment increased increased 22 students to 310. Most of these are in the eighth grade.

The loss at the high school is due mainly to the graduation of a class of 137 students last June the incoming class has 95 students from the middle school.

VanWieren said he expects enrollment to level off and possibly start to increase slightly in the next few years.

Following are the first-day enrollments for this September and the 1986 official fourth Friday counts of Charlevoix Schools:

	1987	1986
Elementary School
Kindergarten	96	109
First	105	94
Second	87	89
Third	86	87
Fourth	107	86

Eleventh	119	119
Twelfth	119	135
Total	443	480
Part-time	-	1
Special Ed.	-	12
Totals	$1,322	1,336

Note: Part-time and special education students are included in class figures in the first column. The 1986 figures from Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District separate these figures.

St. Mary's Parochial School has an enrollment of 78 students - an increase of eight - over the official fourth Friday count from last year, says Sister Lydia Korson, O.P., school principal.

The school has a kindergarten for the first time with an enrollment of 11 students.

The school no longer has a sixth grade class, although there is a possibility one will be returned another year, Korson says.

The enrollment for the first day of school and the 1986 fourth Friday official count follow:

	1987	1986
Kindergarten	11	0
First	11	12
Second	13	12
Third	17	18
Fourth	13	8

Shore law struck down; appeal set

by PEG OHLE

The Michigan Court of Appeals, in a 2-1 decision, has declared illegal the "Shoreland Protection" section of the Hayes Township zoning ordinance.

The township plans to appeal.

The ruling could also affect ways the Lake Charlevoix management plan seeks to regulate boating.

The question of its legality was taken to the court of appeals by Hayes Township property owner William Fox following a circuit court opinion that Fox did not have a right to develop his 338 acres in the manner he proposed because his plans did not comply with Section 5.13 (A) and (B) (Shoreland Protection) of the zoning ordinance.

This section limits boat dockage to "not more than (1) mooring, slip, or dockspace (for a power-operated boat) for each one hundred (100) feet of lake frontage."

It also states that any development "which shares a common lakefront or stream area may not permit more than one (1) single family home, cottage, condominium, or apartment to the use of each one hundred (100) feet of lake or stream frontage in such common lakefront or stream area."

This means, in Fox's case, that only 28 residences with lake privileges could be built on his property, which has 2,800 feet of Lake Charlevoix shoreline.

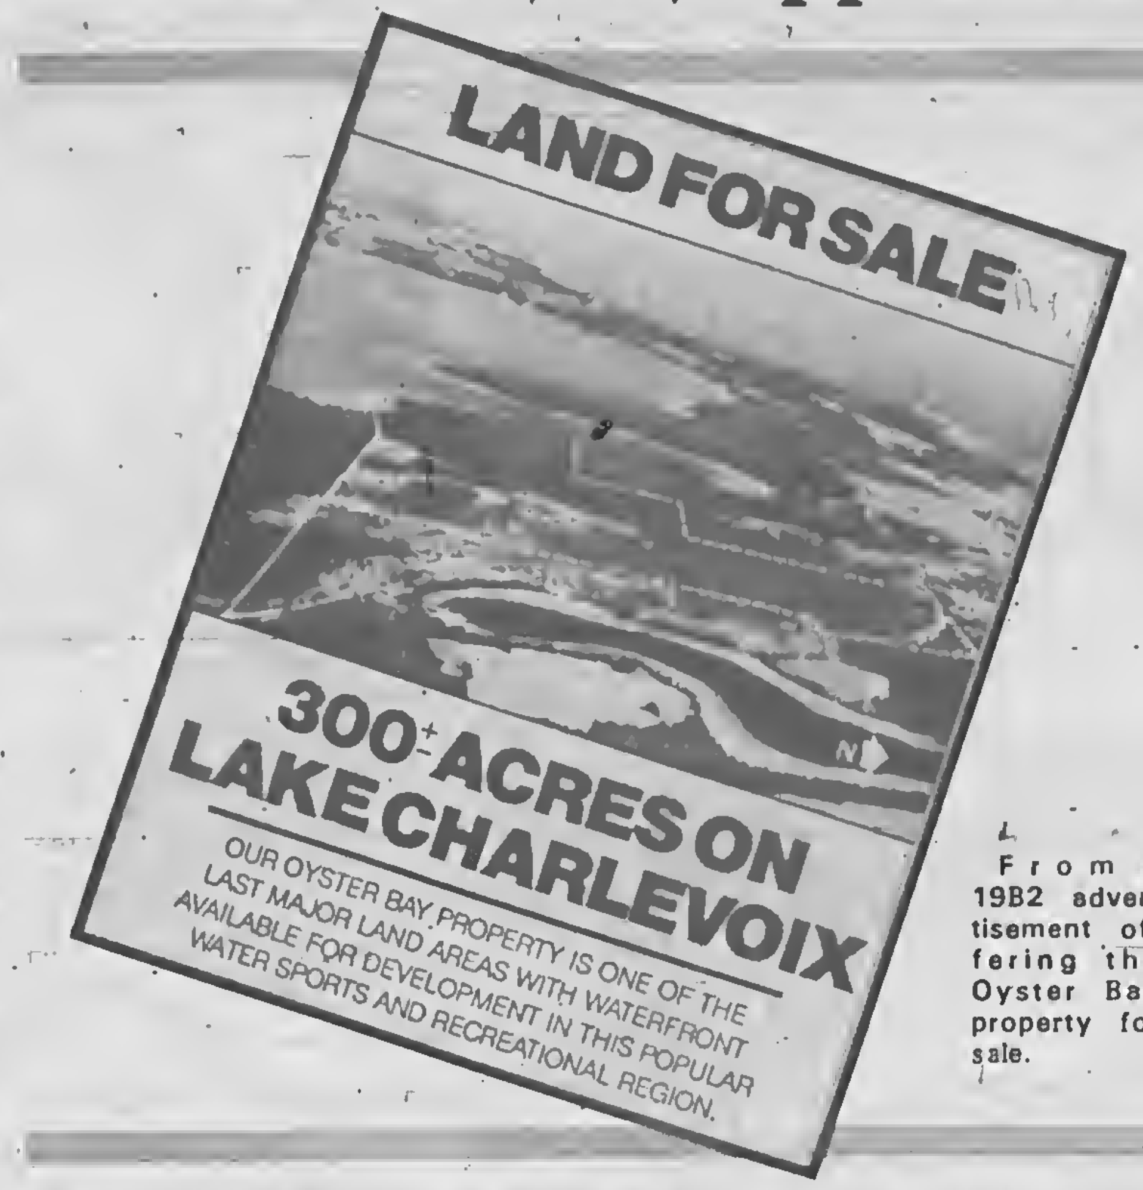
The property was formerly owned by Camp Charlevoix and is bordered by Boyne City Road and Quarterline Road, with Lake Charlevoix at its southwestern corner.

Fox's appeal, through his attorneys Seberon Litzenburger and Don Peck, was based on the contention that the Township Rural Zoning Act did not give the township the right to regulate dock space on water or to limit riparian owners' access to a lake.

The court of appeals majority opinion agreed that the Township Rural Zoning Act had to do only with the regulation of land development and structures as cited in the enabling portion of the act.

The case is now remanded to the circuit court "for further proceedings consistent with this opinion."

At least two other townships in Charlevoix County have words in their zoning ordinance restricting the number of boat slips and limiting access to lakes and streams by riparian owners. County Planner Larry Sullivan says he believes both Bay and Melrose Townships have such sections.



LAND FOR SALE

300± ACRES ON LAKE CHARLEVOIX

OUR OYSTER BAY PROPERTY IS ONE OF THE LAST MAJOR LAND AREAS WITH WATERFRONT AVAILABLE FOR DEVELOPMENT IN THIS POPULAR WATER SPORTS AND RECREATIONAL REGION.

From a 1982 advertisement offering the Oyster Bay property for sale.

All property owners with a vested interest in land belonging to a club or other organization would have riparian rights to adjoining waters under this court of appeals finding, and they would be able to use those waters for boating, swimming, and many other purposes.

This is how both Chicago Club and the Belvedere Club have operated for many years. However, recently there have been objections to this type of development (commonly called "funneling") because of fears, by some, of over-development of the lake shore and the water itself.

Hayes Township officials voted Monday night to appeal the case to the state supreme court.

Ethel Knepp, zoning administrator, told the Courier that several township residents have already offered financial support.

The lawsuit has been a long drawn-out and expensive one for the township. It was filed in January 1985, after almost a year of negotiations between Fox and township officials, trying to reach some kind of agreement over a development plan, but always the "Shoreland Development" section of the zoning ordinance caused a problem.

As long ago as May 1986, it was estimated that Hayes Township's legal fees in the case had amounted to over $42,000. Continued legal actions could have increased that to over $50,000 by this time.

Both WATCH and Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, as well as private individuals, have contributed generously toward legal expenses.

The question is now being asked: If this decision by the court of appeals holds, what effect will it have on recommendations being made by the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee?

One of its recommendations is that local units of government add to their zoning ordinance standards for regulating the number of marinas in given areas.

Would this be the same as limiting dock space the way Hayes Township does. If so, there is another way to do it, according to Sullivan.

Under the Inland Lakes and Streams Act (P.A. 346 - 1972), the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has the power "To regulate inland lakes and streams, to prescribe powers and duties, and to provide remedies and penalties."

The law specifically states that a permit from the DNR is needed to "construct, enlarge, extend, remove, or place a structure on the bottomland" (except seasonal structures).

It also states that a permit is needed to "erect, maintain, or operate a marina."

Conceivably the DNR could utilize locally developed plans and standards in making determinations about the granting of permits, as is being done with the harbor commission in Harbor Springs, Sullivan said.

Opinion

Extending summer

Michigan has completed what's being called the best summer tourism season on record. But it could have been better.

Summers lately have been cut shorter and shorter as more school districts begin school and school-related activities earlier than in the past.

Used to be Labor Day was the "end of summer." After the holiday, students expected to trudge back to the classroom. But at least families had until Labor Day for summer activities and trips.

Now, schools all over the state – and in many parts of the nation – are beginning classes earlier. Not just the traditional early starters such as farm communities and cold-weather areas, but city and suburban districts.

And sports are getting an earlier start, with students expected for practice on Aug. 10 this year throughout the state.

All this cuts into vacation time – and into vacation time profits.

There's an effort under way to put things back the way they were – and ensure that resort communities get a full summer of summer. It's the post-Labor Day opening date petition campaign.

The aim is simple: Protect Michigan's second largest industry. The proposal is simple: Amend state law to require school districts to open after Labor Day.

What's at stake for the state is an estimated $25 million in added tourism revenue. What's at stake for Charlevoix is 10 to 15 percent of an already short season.

After an excellent first 9-10 weeks of summer, the effects of early school openings were quite obvious in Charlevoix. From shortly after Sidewalk Sales on Aug. 13-15 until Labor Day weekend, Sept. 5-7, crowds of tourists shrank to nearly nothing.

That they returned in great numbers for Labor Day weekend indicates they would have come during the week – if they could have.

Does a post-Labor Day opening work? It does in six states that have adopted it. Missouri saw a 25 percent increase in tourism during the last two weeks of August in the first year after the law was passed. Arkansas reported a $29 million boost in income. Other states with the law: Iowa, Texas, South Dakota, Minnesota.

A Michigan State Chamber of Commerce survey showed nearly two-thirds of registered voters support the amendment. And 15 percent say they would increase their travel plans if schools were to open after Labor Day.

Petitions are available at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce office and have been distributed to chamber members.

The proposal has a direct impact on Charlevoix and its short season. It means continued employment. It means continued business. To some, it may mean the difference between profit and loss, between continuing in business or closing their doors.

Petition backers need 192,000 signatures statewide by the end of November to put the proposal on an election ballot. So sign up now.

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

If you are allergic to bee, hornet or wasp venom, better check the date on your allergy kit to determine if the Adrenalin it is still any good.

The Bergmann clan of Charlevoix was shocked over the weekend when a good bear-hunting companion, Bill Purdy, 64, of Central Lake was stung by what was described as a "bald faced killer bee" and died.

Mrs. Bob (Lillian) Bergmann says Purdy was only 10 yards from his pickup truck where he kept his allergy kit and managed to give himself an injection of Adrenalin before complaining of feeling weak.

His son-in-law gave him a second shot and family members rushed him from their bear-hunting camp near Steuben in the Upper Peninsula to the hospital in Manistique where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

I don't know if Purdy's Adrenalin was out-dated — but it is something to think about if you know you are allergic to bee venom and have been advised to carry an allergy kit for use in emergencies.

Don Bower, relief pharmacist at Williams' Dockside Pharmacy, says Adrenalin has a shelf life of from one year to 18 months.

He added the kits now being sold at the pharmacy have an expiration date of December, 1988.

Naturalist Reg Sharkey of Petoskey objects to the description "bald faced killer bee."

He says African killer bees, the ones that invaded South America and have been working their way north through Central America to Florida and some southwest states, are still thousands of miles from Northern Michigan. Furthermore, there is some doubt these creatures could survive a Michigan winter.

Sharkey believes Purdy probably was stung by a bald faced hornet, which is common in these parts. Actually, the hornet is not bald but has a white face which makes it appear bald.

But regardless of the name, the sting of any of these creatures can be fatal if you are allergic to the venom. An allergy test can pinpoint potential victims.

Persons who are allergic should keep a kit handy, particularly during warm weather when bees and hornets are most active. But don't let the weather fool you. The most painful hornet sting I ever suffered was in December when I was removing Christmas decorations from the attic.

And check the expiration date on your allergy kit. There is no point in keeping Adrenalin handy if it has lost its potency.

SUNDAY at 3:30 a.m. I was awakened by the kids stumbling upstairs after a marathon Saturday night session with the VCR.

Within minutes, I was wide awake so slipped on a pair of trousers and a sweat shirt and walked down to the North Pier to see how the fishermen were doing.

I'm happy to report that the salmon are running — in droves.

Twenty-five fishermen ringed the end of the pier, each silhouetted by the eerie star-chip glow of Coleman lanterns. In the center of the pier was a windrow of Chinook, some weighing 20 pounds or more, I'd judge.

The season was a long time starting, but it appears there will be some record catches before it's over.

Letters to the editor:

Petunias enhance natural beauty of Charlevoix

Dear Mayor McRae:

I had the pleasure of visiting Charlevoix this summer after a nearly ten-year absence from my family's home at Sequanota Club. I was pleased to see so many familiar scenes, and to renew my friendships at Sequanota and at the First Congregational Church.

I wanted to tell you how thrilled I was to see Charlevoix so beautifully decorated with petunias. They are a spectacular sight, and a very special greeting to your residents and visitors. I took several pictures of the roadsides to show my sister in California that Charlevoix is prettier than she remembers it. Only pictures could convey the beauty accurately.

I was interested to learn that the Boss family was very much involved in the petunia project, because I had the pleasure of working with one of their members, Gayle, in Washington, D.C. several years ago. Our Charlevoix connection made us instant friends.

As the Executive Director of an environmental organization, I am sensitive to the ways in which municipalities ignore or enhance their natural settings. Clearly, Charlevoix took a very significant step when it chose to make the effort to beautify the city with thousands of petunias. Surely I am not the only visitor who wanted to say "thank you" to the citizens and public officials who made such a gorgeous sight possible. It made me eager to return another summer.

How can brides compete?

Editor,

I would like to thank Ms. Gilbert for the succulent drivel she so painstakingly wrote about the Kleinpell-Sullivan wedding-circus. What a fine way to waste a quarter of a page of valuable space. I must admit I was enthralled to read about the ritzy guests arriving in their private jets, and how thrilled Mrs. Mott was with their fabulous florist – but I doubt the average reader would find that kind of important information as interesting.

Ms. Gilbert also attended the Revoir-Lundteigen wedding, and I guess I must have missed her column of that event. How unfortunate – because it certainly was as beautiful and wonderful as the "fantasy wedding." Perhaps she didn't cover it because the flowers were "au naturale" rather than rhinestone studded.

Ms. Gilbert's column last week made many past, present, and future brides feel somehow... inferior. How will we ever be able to have a celebration that's as extravagant and excessive as the one we read about – and still remain within the realm of good taste?

Stop slaughter of lands

Editor,

Regarding the condo controversy in Charlevoix and Lake Charlevoix, I am glad to see that so many people have rallied together to try to stop this madness. If we don't stop the wholesale slaughter of our prime recreational areas, there will be much less for us to enjoy in the long run.

With Charlevoix's Round Lake already saturated with condos, there is supposedly only 3 percent of the shoreline in the city of Charlevoix left open for development. The remainder being already developed, scenic reserve, or public property.

With so little land left for development, why squander it foolishly for the sake of money? Let's be more conservative, and use it later if it is ever desperately needed.

I think one prime example of poor development is the proposal on Park Avenue. Tearing down two old houses and trying to squeeze in 21 condo units doesn't seem a bit practical to me. This would be overcrowding in its finest form. The chief accomplishment resulting from this development would be the overpricing of land on the Pine River Channel.

Moving out to Lake Charlevoix, there is a lot of undeveloped shoreline. However, much of the undeveloped area contains wetland, which is unsuitable for building. Developers buy this land only to find out that they're facing years of hearings and court battles because they can't build on wetlands. They then appeal to the public to let them use their land, because they have so much money invested. My solution to their problem is this: don't buy wetlands with intentions of doing massive development.

In closing, we environmentalists have long-range goals for this area. As the developers think about their long-range goals, I wish they could ask themselves this question: Can't we leave a stone unturned?

Alan H. McCutcheon
Member of board of directors of Watch Inc.

The proposal on Park Avenue is not for 21 condo units. Of the four proposals presented, one was for a 21-unit hotel, a second was for a 21-unit private residential lodge and two were for 11-unit and 9-unit townhouses – which are commonly called condos. The zoning board of appeals is trying to determine whether a residential lodge is an allowable use in commercial scenic zoning. The planning commission has recommended approval of site plans for the "condos" provided the plans are redrawn to move the building further from the channel.

Beacons of Blessing

by Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

It somehow seems appropriate to reflect on summer vacation this week. Our family's tour took us to Pigeon Forge in eastern Tennessee and a theme park called Dollywood.

Now ordinarily, I am not one for wild and crazy rides that such places can have. You see, roller coasters and I just don't like each other. I'm not very big on being spun around. Since I'm naturally right side up, I'm not too crazy about anything that hints at taking me upside down.

But like most Daddys, I have a weak spot when it comes to my kids. So I broke one of my own cardinal rules. With great trepidation, I let my kids talk me into going on something called the Smokey Mountain River Rampage.

To make a long story short, it had just about everything that brings out the yucky feelings in me. It spun. It bounced. It twisted. It got me wet. (Have you ever worn wet blue jeans for any length of time? That's not on my list of recommended things to do.) But you know what? When we got to the end of the ride, I liked it!

Sometimes I think people are a little reluctant to trust their lives to God because they are afraid of being taken for kind of a ride that will make them do things they don't like. A lot of things we are uncomfortable with the looks of, we've simply never tried before.

God is not going to force you into something you can't handle. He knows your limits even better than you do. Besides that, He loves you. He has proven that time and again through the life and ongoing ministry of His Son Jesus.

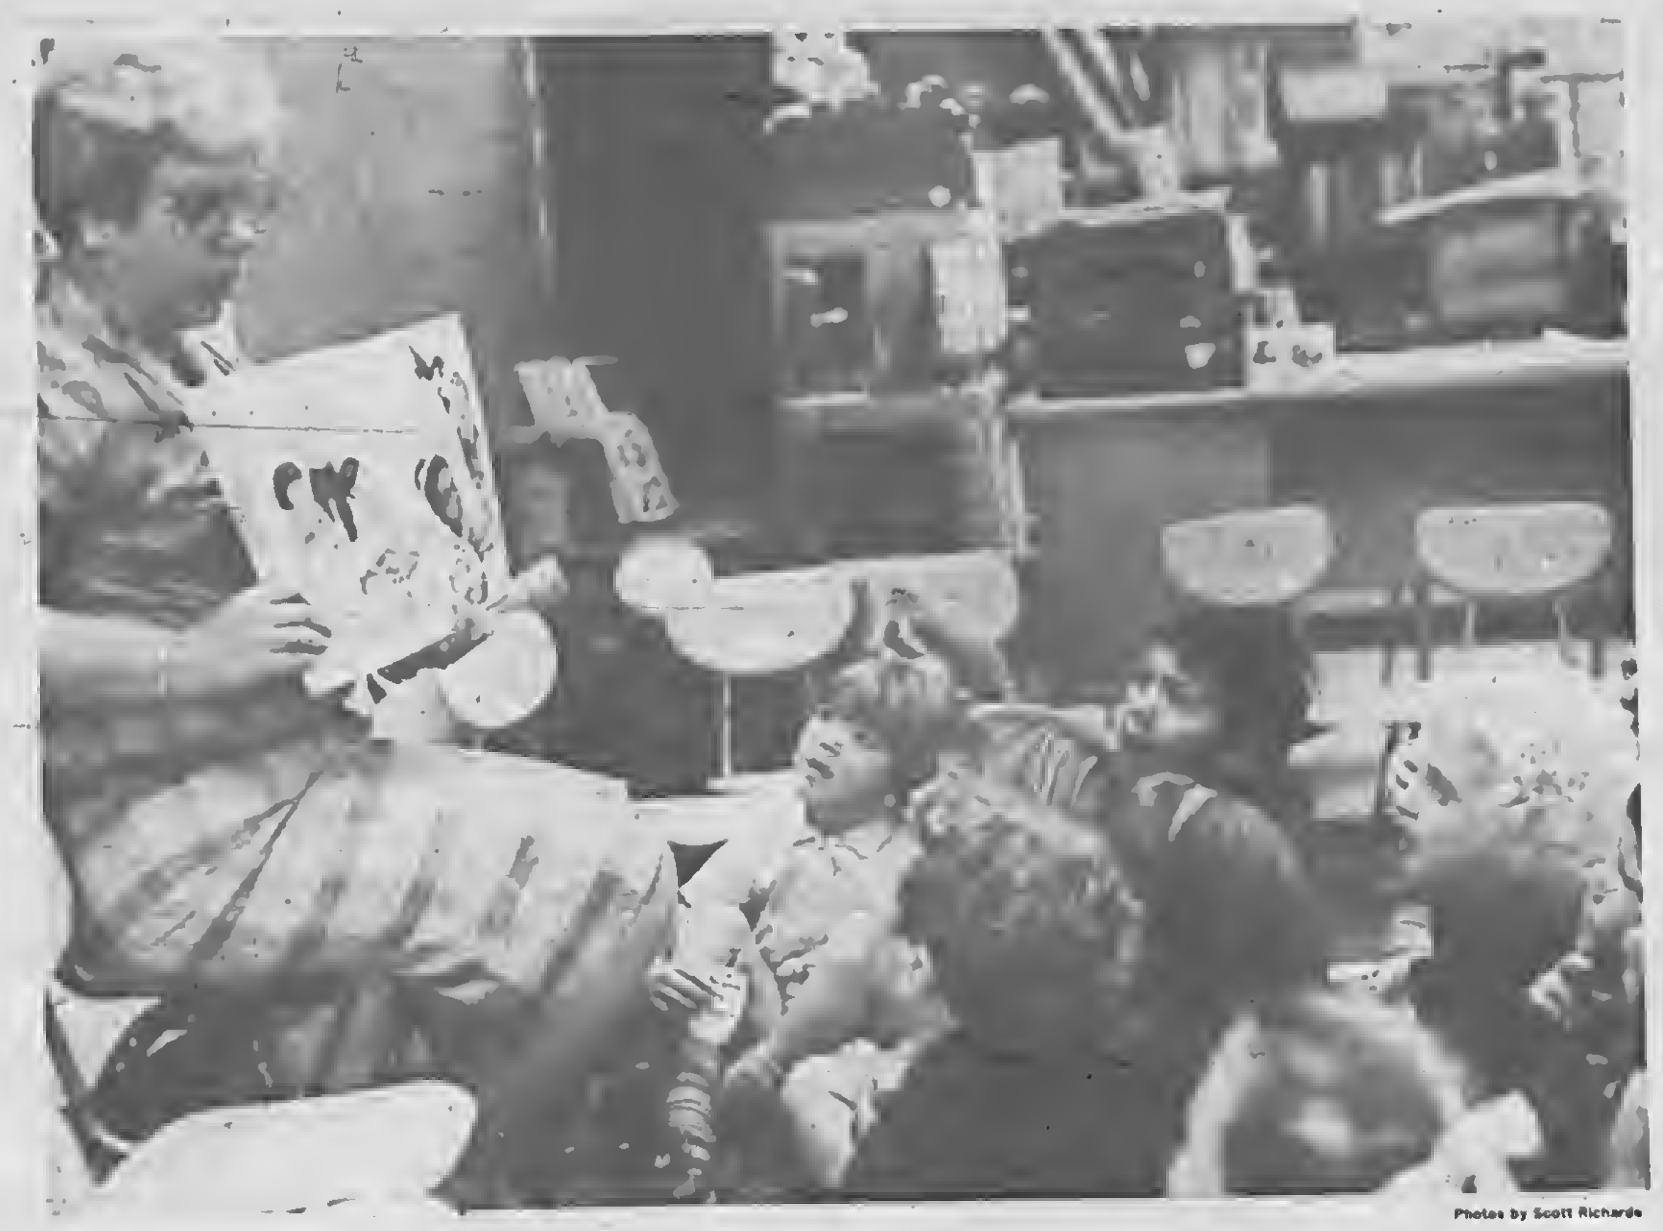
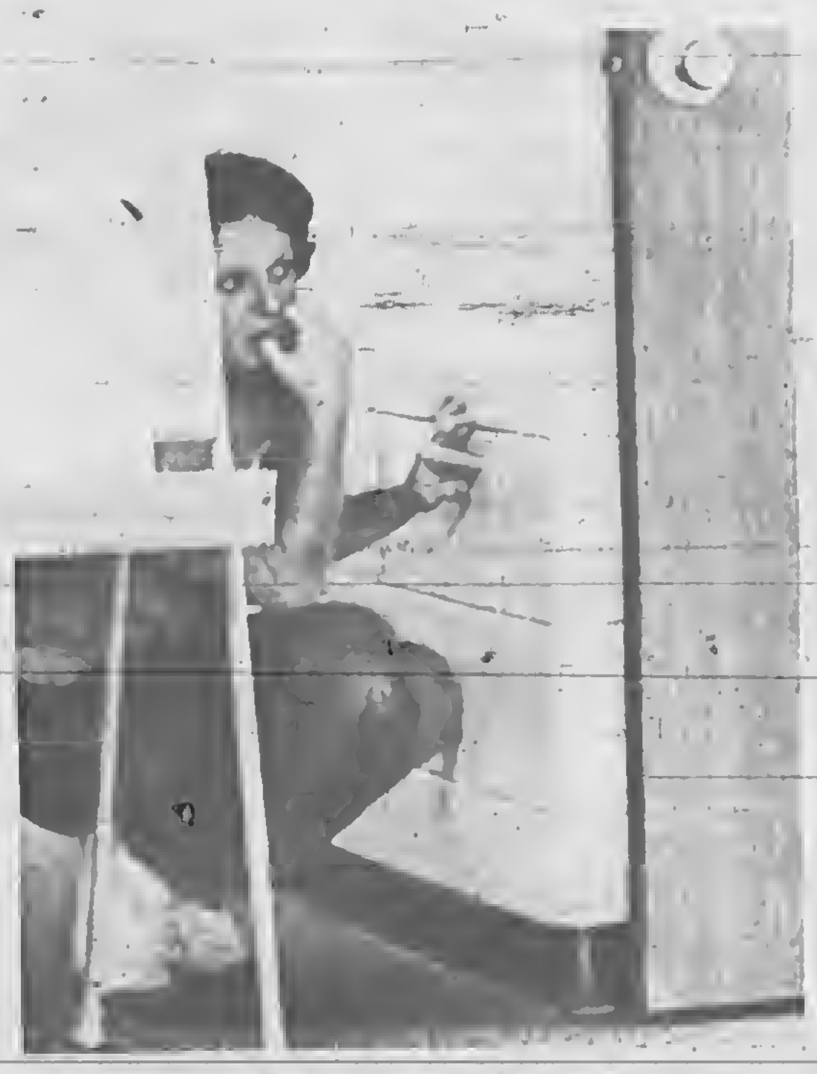
KINDERGARTEN: DAY ONE



Photos by Scott Richards



The first day of school is a big event for kindergarteners and for their parents. So when Jennifer Richards began her school career, her father Scott tagged along with camera in hand to record the event. Jennifer's two-hour first day session included finding her name on a list of students in Dorothy Miller's classroom (right), a visit with school nurse Geraldine Brady (below), and a story told by her new teacher (above). The event caused anxious moments for other parents, too, as Patrice Arthur peeked into Dianne Priess' kindergarten to catch a glimpse of her son Michael's first day.

Eveline Township
Regular Board Meeting
September 8, 1987

A regular meeting of the Evelina Township Board was held on Sept. 8, 1987; all board members were present.

The minutes of the previous regular meeting were read and approved as read; the minutes of a special board meeting held on Sept. 1, 1987 were read and approved as corrected.

Several items of old business were discussed, but no action was needed.

Robert and Irene Oajnowicz of Villa Nueva near Ironton came before the board requesting two lot splits, but a decision was tabled until the October meeting of the board.

Correspondence was read and discussed.

A request for street lights at Poplar Lane and at Washington and Ferry Road were heard.

The clerk was instructed to purchase a tape recorder to be used at the township hall to record meetings and hearings as needed.

A zoning enforcement procedure outline prepared by township attorney, Lynn Stedman was adopted by the board.

Approval to pay bills amounting to $7,501.10 was given; a treasurer's report was given.

Adjournment was at 10:43 p.m.

School support staff pact OK'd

The Charlevoix school board has tentatively reached a contract agreement with the support staff.

The pact will now be referred to the Northern Michigan Education Association for ratification before being returned to the board for its ratification.

Details of the contract will not be available until after ratification by both sides.

Progress is being made on the teachers' contract, Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren said, noting that negotiating committees met Monday afternoon and were to meet Tuesday morning.

The school board has also approved levying winter taxes.

The tax levy will be the same as the summer levy – 13.4626 mills – 50 percent of the total school tax.

A complaint regarding class sizes in the early elementary grades was heard. Teachers in the early grades will attend the Oct. 5 meeting of the board to discuss the issue.

The Rev. Duane Nelson on behalf of substitute teachers, asked if the board would be taking any action regarding the payment of substitute teachers. He was told that since Charlevoix paid salaries comparable to most others in the area, no action is planned.

Substitutes in several Charlevoix and Emmet county districts last year requested a boost in pay. In some districts the pay was raised somewhat.

Derith Lane, of the Charlevoix Garden Club which is planning to replant the court at the high school, presented a diagram of the proposed plantings.

She received permission to remove a large flowering crabapple tree which is damaging the concrete in the court. It will be replaced with a dwarf tree of the same variety.

Obituaries

Tillotson

Donald O. Tillotson, 65, of Rockford, Ill., a former Charlevoix resident, died Wednesday, Sept. 9, at Rockford Memorial Hospital.

Funeral services were held Saturday, Sept. 12, at Bethany Presbyterian Church in Loves Park, Ill. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery, Rockford, Ill.

Born in Charlevoix Dec. 14, 1921, son of Nelson and Eleanor (Straw) Tillotson, he graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1939 and later from Lincoln (Neb.) Flying School.

During World War II Tillotson served with the U.S. Navy. Later he became a flight engineer with Eastern Airlines and lived at various cities on the east coast.

On Feb. 14, 1956, he married Dorothy Thommes. In 1962 he joined Woodward Governors firm in Rockford, Ill., as an engineer and retired from the company in December 1985.

Surviving are his wife, Dorothy; two daughters, Mrs. Lila Vanderbilt of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Yolanda Tillotson of Rockford, Ill.; one son, Capt. Bradley Tillotson of the U. S. Air Force, stationed at Dalzell, S.C.; two grandchildren, Elyssa Vanderbilt of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Donald Tillotson of Dalzell, S.C.; and two sisters Lila Wieting of Grand Rapids, and Eloise LaRue of Charlevoix.

Dietrich

Former Charlevoix resident Dorothy McGhan Dietrich, 62, died Sunday, Aug. 16, 1987, in Orem, Utah.

She was born in Charlevoix, April 22, 1925, to Albertus and Eliza Black McGhan, and attended school in Charlevoix.

Survivors include her husband, John Dietrich of Orem, Utah; one son, John Byron Yost of Dearborn, one daughter, Sandra Joan Collero of Kenner, La. Also eight grand children, two brothers and two sisters, Rex McGhan of Birmingham, Marion (Bub) McGhan of Traverse City, Ruth Payne of Haughton, La., and Marie (Peggy) Rought of Dearborn Heights.

Services and burial were in Pleasant Grove, Utah.

Harris

Edith Carol Harris, 91, of Charlevoix died Wednesday, Sept. 9, at Borths Health Care Center in Petoskey.

A memorial service was held Saturday, Sept. 12 at the home of AnnaBelle Webb at 707 Park Ave.

Among her survivors is a nephew, A. Andre Aerne of Indianapolis, Ind., and Charlevoix.

Winchester Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Loskot

Beverly Loskot, 73, former Charlevoix resident, died Saturday, Sept. 12, at Kissimmee, Fla.

Services will be held later this week. Winchester Funeral Home will handle the arrangements.

Former pastor returning for church anniversary

The Rev. George Majors will be returning for one day to Community Church of God, where he was the pastor for 17 years.

Majors, and his wife Marie, will be at the church for the 70th anniversary celebration of the Charlevoix church.

He will speak at the 11 a.m. Sunday Sept. 20, service and will attend an old-fashioned Sunday picnic and gospel sing-along at the church campgrounds at 6 p.m. that night.

Majors was the pastor at the church from 1952 to 1969 and was heavily involved in community affairs. He then was the pastor for 12 years in Fairbanks, Alaska, where he is now retired.

In celebration of the church's 70th year, church members will be dressing for the occasion in clothing of the 1917 era.

Friends of the Majorses who are not affiliated with the church are invited to attend the service and picnic.

Band begins fundraising sale

Charlevoix school bands and their support group, the Band Boosters are launching a fund-raising campaign Friday, Sept. 18, and continuing for one week.

The sale will feature a choice of cheeses and sausages.

"This will be the only door-to-door selling campaign the bands will conduct this year," said director Terry Isenbarger. "The proceeds will be combined with those from other projects to purchase band uniforms and equipment for the band programs, to provide summer music camp scholarships and financial assistance for band trips."

Middle and high school band students will be selling the cheese and sausage. The sale has been well accepted in the two years the event has been sponsored by the band members.

Orders will be taken now and deliveries made about mid-October. Money will be collected when the foods are delivered.

To place an order call 547-3234 and a band member will visit.

Genealogy event set

A beginners' genealogical workshop will be held at the Boyne City Public Library on Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 23 and 24 for the people researching their roots.

Basic information for beginners will be offered from 10 a.m. until noon Wednesday, Sept. 23. The same program will be repeated from 7 until 9 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 24.

The workshop is held in connection with National Genealogy Week.

Marv Witthoeft is aided by a blocker as he sprints past Curtis Weidler of East Jordan. Witthoeft led the Rayder running attack with 96 yards in eight carries, while Mark LaBlance added 92 yards in eight carries.

Basketball squad ripped by E. Jordan

The Charlevoix girls' basketball team took a 67-34 beating at the hands of East Jordan.

The Red Devils got off to a 23-5 lead and led 31-14 at halftime. The lead was widened to 53-24 going into the final period as the host team scored almost at will against a short-handed Rayder quintet.

East Jordan outscored the Rayders 30-13 from the floor and made seven of 20 free throws while committing 17 personal fouls. The Rayders connected on eight of 20 free throws and had 13 personal fouls.

Stacy Gebott led Charlevoix with 24 points. Sara Chase with 27 points, Kristy Miller with 15 and Monica Olstrom with 10 paced the scoring for the victors.

In the JV game, East Jordan took a 22-12 halftime lead before winning 41-31.

Cynthia Boydston had 10 points for the Rayders. Cristie Miller had 17 points and Dawn Noirot 10 for East Jordan.

Charlevoix will play at Petoskey on Thursday Sept. 17 and host Boyne City on Tuesday, Sept. 22.

Rayders clobber East Jordan with 8-touchdown rampage

Red Devil runner Alvin Merrill is swamped by Charlevoix tacklers. Mike Smith (58) and Dean Jones (88) are joined by another Rayder.

After a sluggish season start, the Rayders put their offense in high gear by wowing a home crowd with a 54-0 win over East Jordan.

Charlevoix could do no wrong as the Rayders piled up 431 yards rushing and another 119 passing.

Quarterback Dan Drury threw for two touchdowns and scored five conversions – four on place kicks and one on a two-point run.

Mark LaBlance scored three touchdowns, and David Miller contributed a pair. Adding six-pointers were Marv Witthoeft, Chad Thorpe and Scott DeYoung.

The Rayders had a stellar night on defense, too, as DeYoung blocked a punt, Mike Smith recovered a fumble and Steve Hopkins made an interception as East Jordan was held to 86 total yards.

The scoring started almost immediately for the Rayders, as Drury hit DeYoung with an 11-yard touchdown pass on Charlevoix's second play after recovering a fumble at East Jordan's six.

After a Red Devil punt, the Rayders added six more points on a three-yard run by LaBlance following a pair of long gains. Drury kicked his second point-after for a 14-0 lead.

In the second quarter, Witthoeft scored his second touchdown, this one on a pass from Drury, who kicked the extra point.

On the first play after DeYoung blocked a punt, Drury hit LaBlance on a 25-yard touchdown play, then kicked his fourth extra point.

Scott DeYoung scores Charlevoix's first touchdown, an 11-yard pass from Dan Drury.

On the third play of the second half, Thorpe took a double reverse 56 yards into the end zone. Drury's kick failed as the Rayders held a 34-0 lead.

Miller returned a punt 61 yards to make the score 40-0 as the kick again missed the mark. Then Miller rattled off a 48-yard carry for his second straight TD, with Drury scoring a two-point conversion.

The Rayders' lone score of the final period came on a 57-yard run by LaBlance early in the quarter. The kick missed and the Rayders had their 54 points.

On defense, Young was credited with 17 tackles along with his fumble recovery, LaBlance had eight tackles and Scott Denny made eight.

Junior varsity plays to 8-8 tie with Devils

The Rayder junior varsity played the East Jordan JV's to an 8-8 tie on the later's field.

"Injuries early in the game to key players forced substitution with less experienced players which threw our timing off," said coach Brian Certa, "As a result, we didn't have the coordination we should have had."

East Jordan broke up a Rayder offensive drive early in the game when Pat Sherman intercepted a Rayder pass inside the 30-yard line.

Late in the half the Red Devils' Pat Russell scored from the one-yard-line following a series of ground plays. Bill Gotts passed to Steve Shepard for the conversion to put the Red Devils ahead 8-0 at halftime.

Greg Lewis scored the Rayders' only touchdown in the third period on a one-yard quarterback sneak. James Corwin scored the conversion on a run to tie the score 8-8.

Most of the game was played between the 30-yard stripes, Certa said.

Pat Elliott had 13 tackles and also played a good offensive game, Certa said. Mike Stoneham had eight tackles and Corwin had a good game on defense.

Other players who did well in their positions were Greg Lewis, Chad DeYoung, Andy Wynkoop and John Feeney, said the coach.

Charlevoix will play at Rogers City on Thursday, Sept. 17.

Freshmen lose season opener

The Rayder freshman football team, in a season opener with the Mancelona JV were defeated 28-0 on the fronmen's field.

"It was our first game. We made a lot of freshman mistakes as Mancelona took a 22-0 halftime lead. However, in the second half the kids settled down and held them to one TD," coach Erik Lundteigen said.

James McGee had 66 yards rushing and Steve Kehrer had 42 for Charlevoix.

Yachting Notes

The CYC's 1987 fall racing series began with a disappointing call by its otherwise reliable race committee Wednesday night with a 7.2-mile drifter on western Lake Charlevoix. Fair winds carried the fleet or the first five legs of the race and crews employed light air spinnakers to their best advantage.

It looked like everyone would be in by 8 o'clock, however, until the wind began to drop and as the stoops approached the yacht club mark, crews began to listen for the familiar two-gun signal to shorten the course and finish the race at the Oyster Bay mark.

No guns were heard, however, and as the boats approached the mark, the wind died altogether and for the next 90 minutes, the crews practiced their best light air sailing tactics in vain attempts to reach the finish.

How light was it? Well, Paul Hoadley in Foxy Lady, trailing Karl Jurries in Blasen 111 by 100 meters, finished 43 minutes later. Frank Ochs in Apothecary finished 1 hour and 13 minutes after the first boat in his fleet. Six boats said, "Enough of this nonsense" and left the course without finishing.

Well, such is what racing is about, I guess. The mouse remembers past fall series, however, when the races were intentionally shortened in an effort to bring all boats across the line by nightfall.

The Fortunate Few were:

Fleet 1 – Sorcerer (Gleason), Pygmalion (Strawbridge), Night Moves (Hawkins), Gotcha (Dow-Mueller), Columbine (Colfer), J-22 (Tallberg), and Wing Nut (Babel).

Fleet 2 – Bandit (Cauthra), Blasen (Jurries), Tireless (Carland), Nulli Secundus (Miller) and Foxy Lady (Hoadley).

Fleet 3 – Flash (Gordon), Sandpiper (Campbell), Merry Hell (Ditworth), Maureen (Tolman), Phoenicia (Hollow), Cabaret (Mielke), Hot Mustard (Gosling), and Apothecary (Ochs).

Well, let's hope for fair winds for the next duet. Till then, watching the western skies.

Char-Em tax vote approved

Charlevoix area voters last week joined voters in other parts of the Char-Em Intermediate School District in overwhelmingly approving a 1.16-mill tax to fund special education programs.

The vote was 2,393 yes to 1,101 no, for a percentage of 68 to 32.

The money raised through this millage will be used to educate the Intermediate School District's handicapped children, from birth to age 25, in both home and school settings. These educational programs are mandated by law.

Story hour set for preschoolers

A story hour for pre-school age children sponsored by the Charlevoix Public Library will resume Tuesday, Sept. 29, under the direction of Gayle Levengood.

The story hour will be held from 10:30 until 11:30 a.m. every Tuesday when school is in session.

Baptist pastor resigns after 32 years at church

Jim Lugibihl has resigned after 32 years as pastor of Bible Baptist Church and will give his final sermon on Sunday, Sept. 20.

Lugibihl will be replaced at the church by the Rev. James D. Green, of Lansing, who has preached at the church four times in the past and has sung at churchs throughout Northern Michigan.

Green was selected unanimously by the church membership to replace Lugibihl, who says it is time to move into a new field of ministry.

Lugibihl will be speaking at other independent Baptist churches throughout the North and said he may possibly accept the pastorate at another church.

He came to Charlevoix in July 1955 after co-pastoring Detroit Baptist Tabernacle and attending Baptist Bible College of North Detroit. He also studied in Akron, Ohio, and received a bachelor of theology degree from Immanuel Baptist College in Atlanta, Ga.

He began holding services in the old American Legion Hall in July 1955. The present church is at 904 May Street. Lugibihl also worked for 16 years as produce manager of the Kroger store.

He will welcome Green to the church at a special 2 p.m. service on Sunday, Sept. 20, and deliver a farewell message.

Lugibihl and his wife Ione will continue to live in Charlevoix.

Congressman Bob Davis presents a personal check to Jane Andrews, director of the Northern Michigan Dyslexia Center, as Phyllis Haggard (right), a center board member, looks on. Davis was in Charlevoix to address a meeting of the Human Services Coordinating Body, an organization of nine human services agencies serving Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

High school 'mini-sessions' scheduled for parents

The staff at Charlevoix High School will host a "mini-sessions" for parents from 6:30 until 9:30 on Monday, Sept. 21.

"The purpose of this program is to introduce parents to the daily schedule as well as the teachers of their students," Principal David Smith said.

Smith asks parents to write down their students' schedule and take it with them.

Following the "mini-sessions" at 9 p.m. will be time for an "individual conference" with one teacher.

Parents will have more time to talk during parent teacher conferences scheduled for Nov. 9. At that time, conferences will be held from 6:30 until 9:30 p.m., Smith said.

Parents attending the "mini-sessions" are invited to have coffee in the cafeteria between 6:30 and 6:55 p.m. with the class sessions scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

The schedule follows: first period 7-7:15 p.m., second period 7:20-7:35 p.m., third period 7:40-7:55 p.m., fourth period 8-8:15 p.m. fifth period 8:20-8:35 p.m., sixth period 8:40-8:55 p.m., individual conferences 9-9:30 p.m.

2nd annual hunger walk scheduled

The second annual CROP Walk Day will be held Saturday, Sept. 19, with walkers converging on Ironton from the county's three cities.

The CROP Walk seeks to raise money to help fight human hunger around the world – but also returns about 25 percent of the money raised to the local community.

Last year, the first walk allowed the organizers to donate $500 to food pantries in Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan.

Walkers will meet at the high school at 9 a.m. to begin the portion of the walk from Charlevoix. Walkers from all three cities will travel about six miles to meet in Ironton.

Lunch will be provided at the finish of the walk.

Organizers of the project are hoping to exceed last year's net proceeds of $5,290 which was one of the highest totals in the state for a county the size of Charlevoix County.

CROP is an acronym for the Christian Rural Overseas Program. Funds collected by the walkers are used not only to provide emergency food for the world's hungry but also for outreach assistance in refugee resettlements and education for people on how to help themselves.

Sponsored by 32-member denominations of the Church World Service and Church Women United, the program started with 283 box cars of farm produce donated by farmers and others for the hungry overseas.

Last year's CROP walks in Michigan raised a record $1,274,732, the highest income in its 39-year history. In all, 94 Michigan communities walked for hunger last year.

To obtain pledge forms or further information, call Phil Schairbaum in Charlevoix at 547-9122, Merlin Delo in East Jordan at 536-2161 or Mike Conklin in Boyne City at 582-9776.

You'll see our smiling faces in Northern Michigan more than once a year.

City to split planner, zoning administrator jobs

The city is about to hire a zoning administrator to help ease the work load of the planner.

At a weekend retreat in Gaylord, city council elected to let city manager Mike Wiesner hire a part-time administrator.

The new employee would work about 12 hours a week, Wiesner said. The hiring process could begin in a couple weeks.

City planner Gerry Harsch is now also the zoning administrator. He works for the city nine hours a week – doing both jobs.

Numerous complaints about inconsistent zoning administration have been lodged by residents and council members in recent months.

There is not enough time built into the job for Harsch to adequately fulfill both functions, Wiesner and others have said.

By splitting the responsibilities, Harsch will be able to concentrate on planning activities during his hours at city hall.

His duties include working with the planning commission and the zoning board of appeals, as well as the Downtown Development Authority, and attending their meetings.

He also does staff work for those three boards and for the city council and city administration. It's his job to review building construction site plans for approvals and zoning ordinance compliance.

It is the job of the zoning administrator to make sure aspects of such laws as the zoning and sign ordinances are being adhered to.

The administrator meets with property owners who are violating city laws and presses them to comply.

The city council is looking at ways to add claws to enforcement of zoning laws, including such things as issuing tickets and imposing stiffer fines for noncompliance.

Members are concerned about people who build projects without obtaining approval because they know the penalties are small.

Other remedies open to the city include criminal and civil court actions.

PARK AVENUE

[illegible]

800-capacity facility could sit on channel

An 800-person community and conference center is being discussed for the lower level of Don Berlage's planned Park Avenue building.

Berlage, at a meeting with government and hospitality industry representatives, introduced the proposal as an alternative to his hotel-condo plans.

The conference center plan includes an underground parking lot for 110 cars with a garden-like street level top.

Berlage has submitted four site plans to the city for review – none of them yet containing the conference center.

The purpose of the meeting, he said, was to "discuss, consider and conceptualize" using the lower level of the building for a community and conference center.

Those meeting with Berlage agreed to seek professional aid in determining whether the market exists for a large conference center.

The Edgewater Inn has a con-

AROUND THE TOWN

The city is toying with the idea of installing an underground sprinkling system in all the downtown parks.... The sprinkler would use water from Round Lake rather than from the treated municipal water system...

Parks being considered are Veterans, East, Bridge and Hoffmann – the first three lining Bridge Street and the fourth under construction on Park Avenue.... Cost of the system would be about $50,000.

Joel Brumm is sharing something special with his friend, Sean Henne. Last week, it was announced that Sean earned a spot among the National Merit Scholarship semifinalists around the country.... Then came word that Joel made the list, too....

The son of Judith and Normal Brumm is attending The Principia in St. Louis, Mo., where he is a senior... He plans to attend the University of Colorado and study environmental law....

The water level of Lakes Michigan-Charlevoix continued to decline in August, ending the month at 579.85 feet, some 15 inches below what it was one year ago and about one inch below one month ago.... The six-month forecast of lake levels by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers shows that Lakes Michigan-Charlevoix will remain above the long-term average level during the next six months, but are expected to continue their seasonal decline into February....

At the end of February, the lakes are expected to be about 18 inches below what they were at the same time in 1986.

Zoning board must re-hear appeal

Council alters site plan OK procedures

A decision apparently clearing the way for construction of a hotel on the Pine River Channel has been declared void by the city attorney.

The zoning board of appeals, acting on an appeal of a planning commission ruling, agreed with developer Don Berlage that a hotel is allowable in a commercial scenic zone. (See related story.)

Berlage owns two parcels on Park Avenue and has been attempting since June to obtain city approval of various lodging-housing plans.

The appeal would have been the first step in developing the property as a 21-unit condominium-ownership hotel. Berlage's other plans are for townhouse units and a private club.

But city attorney Jeff VanTreese ruled the zoning board did not follow proper procedures and must hear the appeal again.

The zoning board failed to notify owners of adjoining properties that it was holding the appeal hearing.

"Failure to provide adequate notice requires a new hearing," he said.

VanTreese's ruling does not affect other actions taken by the zoning board on Berlage's project since adequate notice was given on those aspects.

In considering variances from zoning ordinance provisions for an 11-unit condominium, the zoning board followed the recommendations of the planning commission for a "trade-off" of a view corridor for a wider building.

The planners had proposed, and the zoning board agreed to, forcing Berlage to push the building about 15 feet further from the Pine River Channel than he wanted in order to preserve a view of Lake Michigan from the observation platform in Hoffmann Park.

In exchange, they voted to allow

How 2 panels reached different hotel conclusions

The planning commission and zoning board of appeals had the same map, but took different roads and arrived at different destinations.

Both were asked to decide if a hotel is an acceptable use on land zoned commercial scenic. Both used the city zoning ordinance as their guide. And both recorded split decisions.

The planning commission twice voted 3-3 that a hotel is not a similar use to others allowed in the commercial scenic zone. The zoning board voted 3-2 that it is.

(Those tie votes are considered rejections since there is not a majority vote for the proposal.)

How could the two panels arrive at different decisions? Easily.

First, they were trying to interpret what the people who wrote the ordinance more than a dozen years ago intended. Second, they relied on different parts of the law to make their decisions.

But city attorney Jeff VanTreese later told the Courier the zoning board should have been basing its decision on the same section the planning commission used. Not necessarily because it was the correct section, he said, but because the appeal should have been decided on the information the planners considered.

The zoning board, he said, in considering an appeal, should "act upon the record of the administrative officer or body making the administrative decision, in this case the planning commission."

Instead, the zoning board introduced new information and acted on that.

When the planning commission looked at the request, it based its deliberations on a phrase: "R-4 as controlled in that section."

That phrase is contained among

Middle school 'walk-through' set for parents

Charlevoix Middle School will host a walk-through for parents Monday, Sept. 28.

The walk-through – which will include "mini-sessions" of all classes – is to acquaint parents with students' daily schedules and teachers, principal Dennis VanGuilder said.

The event will be held from 6:30 until 9:15 p.m. with a coffee period in the cafeteria from 6:30 to 6:45 p.m. and one individual conference with a teacher from 8:45 to 9:15 p.m.

Parents are advised to write down their student's schedule in order to follow the mini-session schedule.

Mini-sessions will begin at 6:50 p.m. and last 10 minutes, with five minutes between classes.

Individual parent-teacher conferences at the school will be held Tuesday, Nov. 24. Parents will receive more information later.

Mesquite back home for short stay

Where has the Mesquite been?

Where hasn't it been, might be a more appropriate question according to Lt. Cdr. Thomas Conlan, commanding officer of the Coast Guard cutter.

The Mesquite has returned to its homeport of Charlevoix after an absence of two months with the exception of a brief stopover early in August.

The ship's mission during its absence was a combination of work, training and public relations.

Initially, the Mesquite was in Chicago where the crew gutted the interior and restored the exterior of the Chicago Harbor Light.

The Mesquite returned home for a short visit, then was again under way to the South Haven Festival.

After spending one rainy day at South Haven, the ship traveled around the mitt to Toledo, for a buoy tender conference where it joined a parade of the five Great Lakes buoy tenders on the Maumee River.

After two weeks in Toledo, the ship spent three weeks in a Lake Erie shipyard for maintenance on equipment vital to buoy tending.

Now the Mesquite is home – but only until mid-October. The ship will depart for Cleveland to begin the Navy's refresher training program meant to test the crew's ability to meet readiness requirements.

Dance classes set for youngsters

Dance classes for boys and girls from age 5 through teens are now being organized by the Charlevoix County Youth Activities Program.

The classes will be held on Wednesdays at the Charlevoix Public Library and will be taught by Diana Heinzelman.

The class schedule is as follows:

2:30 to 3:15, movement and dance.

3:30 to 4:30, ballet 1-A (ages 5 to 7).

4:30 to 5:30, ballet 1-A (ages 8 to 12).

5:30 to 6:30, ballet 1-B (ages 7 and up).

6:30 to 7:30, ballet B-1 (teens and adults, ages 12 and up).

7:30 to 8:15, jazz (ages 11 to adult).

Further information is available from the Youth Activities office, phone 547-5930.

The bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution was observed at area schools with ceremonies at St. Mary School, Charlevoix Elementary and Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. At St. Mary, Megan Yager, Lindy Morrow and Brian Tuck sign a constitution ("We the people of the third grade at St. Mary School, in order to form a better class...") in their classroom (top left photo), while kindergartener Kelly Sullivan waves the flag. Saying the Pledge of Allegiance (below, from left) are second graders Carrie Blanchard, Staci Borths, Monica Browe, Holly Bomers, Rachel Thorp, Jamie Whitley, Tricia Kelly, Bev Ebenhoe, Ryan Borths, Nicholas Ferroli, Amanda Gardner and Jessica O'Donnell.

Compromise reached by nursing home firms

Agreement has been reached by two companies seeking to build a nursing facility in the Charlevoix area.

Liberatore Health Care Inc. of Columbus, Ohio, has been authorized by the State Department of Public Health to build the facility but, if it is not started within 18 months, Dehmel Ltd. of Flint will take over.

Mayor Ralph McRae represents Liberatore locally and has been active in getting state approval for the nursing home. It is expected that construction will begin next spring.

Plans call for a 60-bed home, with 49 beds for acute care and 11 for patients who need less care.

To be called The Charlevoix Health Care Center, the facility will be located on seven acres bounded by Garfield and Upright streets, near Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The land has been rezoned for professional use, and all land use permits have been granted to Liberatore.

McRae has been working to bring a nursing home to Charlevoix for over two years. The original plans called for a 107-bed facility, but the need for so many beds was questioned by the state.

In announcing the establishment of a nursing home in Charlevoix Township, McRae noted the additional jobs it will create and the taxes it will pay, as well as the convenience it will afford Charlevoix area residents who have elderly family members needing nursing care.

Drug grand jury requested

For the first time in the history of Charlevoix County, a petition has been filed to empower a citizens grand jury.

Charlevoix County Prosecutor Kraag Lieberman and Sheriff George T. Lasater have asked Circuit Judge Richard M. Pajtas to form the grand jury to investigate narcotic trafficking.

The grand jury would be made up of 13 to 17 residents of Charlevoix County, who will be selected in the same manner as jurors for circuit, district or probate court.

Jury selection would be made as soon as the petition is approved by Pajtas, according to Lasater.

Members of the grand jury would work with area law enforcement agencies, including the prosecutor's office, SANE (Straits Area Narcotics Enforcement unit), sheriff's office, Charlevoix Police Department, East Jordan Police Department, Boyne City Police Department and State Police.

Bee stings nearly killed 2 from Central Lake area

Editor,

I very much enjoyed Bob Clock's column regarding allergic reaction to bee stings.

There could easily have been two Central Lake area "victims" – wonder what the odds are on two sever reactions so close in time to unrelated residents in a small town?

Mine happened July 20 in Central Lake. Had it not been for emergency medical care received by Dr. Arnold (his office is about a block away) and our excellent Rescue Squad and ambulance from Eastport, my story might have had a similar ending.

It was my second "reaction" but my first "severe" one. Despite immediately taking Benodryl and heading for the doctor I had internal hives and breathing problems within moments. I was nearly unconscious by the time adrenalin and oxygen were administered.

I spent 3 hours at Charlevoix Hospital where more adrenalin, cortisone and an IV were administered and had another, less sever reaction within 24 hours requiring more medication.

I was told "don't get stung again." Makes one review one's priorities in life. My life won't change much. I still have laundry to hang on the line where the bee nailed me and kids to raise so can't be a "hot house flower". I will be a bit more cautious, of course and am learning to carry my "kit" containing epinephrine, Chlor-Timelon tablets, and ventolin inhaler. The epinephrine has a 2 year expiration and I'm told to carry two of them, at least.

Still, there are no guarantees. I was told half the victims die even 48 hours later, after apparent "recovery."

I talked with a member of the Purdy family and was told Mr. Purdy's epinephrine was not out of date, he took two injections and lapsed into a coma as he reached for a third. The family was told he did the right things but his veins collapsed and the shots couldn't circulate and work. It happens - at least 100 times a year in this country and there are thousands less sever reactions.

It took me a couple weeks to feel good again after my close call.

If it would help, I think there were "warnings" this was developing in my system and others might be on the watch for similar happenings.

About a year or so ago I began reacting with swelling to black fly, mosquito and "sweat bee" bits. Last fall I was stung (also while hanging clothes) and my armed stayed swelled up about three weeks. I realize now I probably should have had those allergy tests.

The tests cost a lot, but not nearly as much as that emergency medical bill or a funeral.

City was fine before condos

Editor,

I arrived in Charlevoix in 1932, fresh out of nurses' training to work in the old hospital. I've lived here ever since. We had our children all educated in the Charlevoix Schools, graduating from Charlevoix High School.

After last week's letter from Susan Campbell who has been here "all of seven years," I decided it was time some of us senior citizens needed to defend our town from people who feel all the condos on Round Lake have been an improvement. Long before they came, we had beautiful East Park – and such a view of a quaint boating and resort town in the summer, and the winters were just as enjoyable.

I am very much against any more condo development on Round Lake. Our schools were supported before, and they have always been an excellent school system.

I believe in progress, but what is progress? Destroying what made "Charlevoix the beautiful", or making it into a "birds eye" view of Round Lake just for part time residents?

I say enough is enough, and am hopeful that our city council and the planning commission will listen to the voices of the people. The 800 or so signatures on the petitions were telling them something.

We didn't intend to be unfriendly to the condo owners. We just want to preserve what is left of Round Lake shores.

Losing sleep over King

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

A couple of Sundays ago, I was waiting in the grocery pickup area at Glen's Market while Judy brought the car around. A bagboy waited with me, yawning strenuously from time to time.

"Why so tired?" I asked.

"It's that Stephen King," he answered. "I was reading one of his books last night and I couldn't get to sleep. In fact, I didn't dare go to sleep I was so scared. I think it was 3 o'clock before I turned off the light."

Stephen King.

He's the new guru of the young reading set. If a kid reads at all, chances are pretty good he has read a couple of Stephen King's books, just about all of which deal with the supernatural, the weird, the macabre and the ghoulish. Sometimes he lightens up and writes about slimy creatures which ooze out of sewers to scare the bejabbers out of you.

"What book were you reading?" I asked the bagboy, who had stopped yawning and appeared to brighten up after finding an adult who was interested in Stephen King.

"Night Shift, he answered. "It's not a novel but a book of King's short stories. They're all real scary. That's why I couldn't go to sleep."

Actually, I wouldn't classify myself as a Steven King fan. After hearing my daughter Jennifer talk about him a couple years ago, I read Carrie, to find out what he was all about. I thought Carrie was poorly written. The book sounded as though King had dashed it off in a couple of weeks, and then had the good fortune to sell it to a movie producer. Someone actually made a movie of it.

But you shouldn't judge an author by one work, so I bought a copy of Pet Sematary, which was infinitely better. King actually took some time to develop characters, which added personal involvement to the developing suspense. I don't think Pet Sematary was made into a movie, but it should have been.

Last week I had the good fortune to find Night Shift at Horizon Books in Petoskey and added it to my personal collection of Stephen King, since it came so highly recommended. The past three nights I have read four stories, and they are not bad if you like "excursions into horror," as the cover promises.

But I'm beginning to think we older folks aren't as horrified by creepy things as youngsters. We have lived through so much real horror over the years — including the attempted genocide of the Jewish people by Adolf Hitler, death marches in the Philippines, the siege of Stalingrad, the unmanned buzz-bombs over London — that I think we have become almost immune to fictional bogeymen.

But what did fascinate me about Night Shift was the introduction by John D. MacDonald, one of my favorite authors. MacDonald, who died last December, wrote the introduction in 1977 and it is pure MacDonald from start to finish. Furthermore, MacDonald admits that he is not all that gung-ho about King's subject matter.

"Now at the risk of being an iconoclast I will say that I do not give a diddly-whoop what Stephen King chooses as an area in which to write," MacDonald asserts. "The fact that he presently enjoys writing in the field of spooks and spells and slitherings in the celler is to me the least important and useful fact about the man anyone can relate."

But MacDonald concedes that King is an excellent story-teller, which he believes is the key to being a good writer. Furthermore, he says, King writes to please himself — not the reader — which is practically a guarantee that he will have an anxious audience willing to lap up whatever he puts on paper.

It was an interesting comment by one widely read author about another.

MacDonald signs off with the hope that a story-teller of Stephen King's calibre will one day turn to more substantial matter. But in the meantime, King, who turned 40 on Sept. 21, is turning out a prodigious number of books, making a handsome living for himself and his family — and keeping bagboys across the country yawning on the job.

EDITH GILBERT

Those of us who live on the north side of Charlevoix were delighted these past few days to see the tree trimmers buzzing away in their fancy equipment. One almost got vertigo looking up at the skilled workmen manipulating their bucket seats between the branches of our giant maple trees.

Buzzzz, buzzzz and down crashes a dead limb, only to be ground up on the spot through a giant conveyor.

What a difference this pruning and trimming makes, as one drives up and down Michigan Avenue for instance. Gone are the ugly stumps and twisted dead limbs that gave our street a shaggy, unkempt look.

And speaking of Michigan Avenue, I noticed something this summer that escaped me before. Because the weather was so warm, I spent more time than usual sitting on my front porch. It was amazing to see how many cars stopped in front of my house on the 500 block. People got out of their cars, pulled out their cameras and took pictures of one or both of the two big, white, pillared "summer cottages" across the street. These Greek Revival homes were built in 1917 by two men from St. Louis. One was David May, founder of the May Co. department store, and the other was his brother-in-law Louis D. Beaumont.

Next to visitors taking pictures of sunsets and the lighthouse on Lake Michigan, sailboats on Lake Charlevoix and boats going through the channel, I'll wager that picture taken on Michigan Avenue ranks right up there!

My trendy friends tell me that interests in the restoration of, these genteel homes is becoming more popular than ever. Houses of this period are to be treasured because they lend character to a town. Many of us are so used to seeing things around us every day, we may take them for granted – things like East Park, the lighthouse and the dowager cottages on tree-lined Michigan Avenue.

I've had my answering machine now for several years and it's a blessing. If I need to run to the post office, or just get something from my garage, I turn on the machine and often I'm able to return messages within a short time. Other days, I'm gone all day, and there are a number of messages waiting for me. Sears calls to tell me my order is ready for pick-up; the dentist leaves a reminder for an appointment; a friend says I'll be called for at 6:30.

Sometimes friends who also have answering machines and I communicate via the machine without ever actually speaking to each other "live," as they say on TV. "Can you play tennis at five o'clock today?" Answer: "Yes, I'll meet you at the court at five."

But then there are the mystery calls. Those are the ones when the caller won't leave a message. All I hear on the machine is a long humming sound. Great. It probably was a purveyor, who wanted to sell me something. Or someone taking a survey. Or one of those people who refuses to talk to that "thing."

Before I had my machine, I too, felt intimidated talking into space. But now I'm prepared to leave a message or at least give my name, telephone number and report that I called. It's similar to leaving an oldfashioned "calling card" with the maid when no one was at home to receive visitors. Or with a receptionist in an office.

If the answering machine is a blessing – call-waiting is a mixed blessing. The good thing about this system is that if you are waiting (or hoping) for a telephone call, you don't have to keep the line free. You may transact business or talk your head off to your best friend for hours, and still be there for that important call. If you have a teenager hogging the phone, call-waiting allows people to get through! (Wouldn't my Daddy have loved it...)

The bad thing about call-waiting is that a person sometimes gets rattled when interrupted, and may sound unintentionally abrupt, and for this I, for one, apologize. It's even worse when two people have call-waiting – is it your beep or mine?

Another nuisance with call-waiting that took awhile to fathom was that if you move from one phone to another in your home or office, and don't hang up one of the phones, call-waiting doesn't work. You can hear it beep, but you can't activate it.

I've been on the verge more than once of canceling my call-waiting system, but fortunately, there's a new development offered that lets you turn off the call-waiting beep when you don't want to use it. All the caller hears is a busy signal.

I thing I'll try it.

Beacons of Blessing

The "three R's" are a lot more complicated than they used to be. I felt my age when I learned my daughter was being introduced to the fundamentals of geometry in the fourth grade. I was a junior in high school before I got into it. There are not only changes in what they are studying but also when they apply it.

Knowledge is important. It helps us discover those new worlds of thought and ideas. It gives us courage and confidence to stretch our wings further than we ever imagined. The key is that it be balanced knowledge; knowledge that combines the mechanical insights needed to function in this world with the greater joys of knowing God through Jesus Christ.

Jesus teaches us a spiritual set of "three R's" in Matthew 25:14-30, the parable of the talents. He begins by reminding us of our relationship to God. He has entrusted us with some very special gifts and abilities. He expects us to use them. We can strengthen the faith of others as well as ourselves by sharing the good news of the Kingdom of God.

From our relationship with God, the parable moves to our responsibility before God. It may have been 2,000 years since Jesus walked the face of this earth. But make no mistake about it, He is coming back. It is not like we're living in some remote part of the world that has never heard the gospel. We know what our responsibility is. We are accountable for the way we live our lives. Jesus will be expecting a faithful report on our "talents."

Reward is the final "R." Do you remember what it was like in school to have really worked hard on some paper or project for a teacher and receive a good grade? There was a special feeling about earning a good grade. Even if it has been years since you were in school, you still like a pat on the back when you've done your best. God knows that. And he does not hesitate to bless us when we have been faithful.

The bottom line of the "three R's" for Christians is that if you don't use your faith, you will lose it. If you do use it, it will only grow. Relationship, Responsibility and Reward are the "three R's" for Christians.

Strandemo-Hufford wedding

Deborah Strandemo of West Bloomfield and Steven Hufford of Chicago were married Saturday, Aug. 29, in the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rod Schwartz of Battle Creek, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hufford of Charlevoix.

The Rev. Philip Schalrbaum officiated at the afternoon ceremony, in which the bride was given in marriage by her parents.

The bride wore a gown of raw silk with a long Chapel train, and a veil attached to a wreath of silk flowers. She carried a bouquet of roses and gardenias.

Laura Schulz attended the bride as maid of honor, and bridesmaids were the bride's three sisters, Shari Denniston, Sarah Strandemo and Trish Jones.

They wore pink moire taffeta tea-length dresses and carried arrangements of roses, stephanotis, and baby's breath.

Elizabeth Denniston, niece of the bride, was flower girl, and Hollyn Phillip, niece of the bridegroom, was ringbearer. They wore dresses similar to those of the bridesmaids, but in a lighter pink.

Jeff Wellman of Boyne City served as best man, and Tracey Olmstead, Dave Taylor and Tom Hansetter were groomsmen. Joe Left and Robert Lopez were ushers.

Sue Harris and Brad Wolner provided vocal music, singing "A Wedding Song" and "The Gift of Love."

The bride's parents hosted a dinner reception at Stafford's Bay View Inn, followed by music and dancing.

The rehearsal dinner was held at Duffy's of Charlevoix, hosted by the parents of the bridegroom.

Following a wedding trip to a lake resort and a weekend in Toronto, the newlyweds are making their home in Chicago, where the bridegroom is completing his final year in a school of optometry. The bride is an industrial engineer with General Motors.

Both are graduates of Michigan State University.

Decker-Rosenthal wedding

Michelle (Shelli) LeAnn Decker and Walter Rosenthal exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, Aug. 15, in the Assembly of God Church in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip L. Decker of East Jordan, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Rosenthal of Charlevoix.

The Rev. Jeb Brushard officiated at the double-ring ceremony before approximately 160 guests.

For the occasion, the church altar was decorated with baskets of blue, white, and pink flowers and a unity candle, and each pew was marked with a lighted candle.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown of white crystal organza over satin. The bodice was of satin embroidered lace with sequins and seed pearls, and the sleeves were shirred and ruffled.

The cathedral train featured embroidered lace and shirred ruffles. A ruffled fingertip veil and blusher was attached to a headpiece covered with sequins and pearls.

The bride carried a white lace fan with ribbon streamers accented by white and blue roses and small pink carnations and lilies of the valley.

Pamela Decker assisted her sister as maid of honor, and Marianne Petrie and Beth Shank were bridesmaids.

They wore tea-length royal blue dresses of lace and satin fashioned with bubble skirts, and carried bouquets of blue, white and pink flowers.

Christina Williams was flower girl, wearing a royal blue lace dress with a satin draped sash. She carried a basket of flowers to which the wedding rings had been attached with a satin bow.

Jack Moran assisted the bridegroom as best man, and Deano Drost and Ralph Rosenthal were groomsmen. Bob Williams and Mark Howard helped to seat the guests.

Pianist Steve Stargardt and vocalists Sara Stargardt and Dan Goebel provided music for the ceremony.

The bride's parents hosted a reception in the church parlors following the marriage ceremony, with assistance from Beverly and Maretin Weisler and Ginny Brooks.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bride and bridegroom at Nanny's Old Place.

Following a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Toronto, the newlyweds are at home at Rosenthal Orchards in Charlevoix.

Thomas and Danielle White

Johnson-White wedding

Danielle Louise Johnson and Thomas Craig White were united in marriage June 20 at the Central United Methodist Church in Traverse City.

The bride is the daughter of Robert L. Reid and Karen Johnson Reid of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. L. Hamilton White of Traverse City.

A luncheon reception for 150 guests at the Waterfront Inn Conference Center followed the ceremony.

The newlyweds took a wedding trip to Toronto and are now making their home in Traverse City, where the bride, a 1986 graduate of Charlevoix High School, is in her second year of studies at Northwestern Michigan College. She and her husband also own and manage two restaurants in Traverse City.

Grandvue auxiliary raises funds for facility beauty salon

A Tag Day sponsored by the Grandvue Medical Care Facility Auxiliary netted $2,390.98.

The funds are to be used for the renovation and purchase of equipment for the beauty parlor-barber shop area at the facility.

Boyne City contributed $1,112.33, East Jordan $855.08, Beaver Island $222.38, Charlevoix $127, Advance $44.19, Horton Bay $16 and Grandvue Medical Care Facility $16.

Dianna Walls of Boyne City presented a program on adult illiteracy and asked for volunteers to help in the reading project. A call also went out for volunteers to transport patients at the facility to doctors' appointments.

The annual fall games party will be held at the facility on Thursday, Oct. 8. Members are being asked to fill a table and invite friends to do so. Those hosting a table are asked to take prizes, goods for the bake sale and their own games. There will be a charge of $1 to participate. The games party and bake sale are scheduled for 1 p.m.

Membership in the auxiliary is open to anyone. Meetings are held at the Facility at 2 p.m. the second Thursday of every month unless a special event, such as the games party, is planned.

Funds raised by the auxiliary are used to underwrite the cost of services and-or equipment for patients.

Grange holds spaghetti dinner

The Barnard Grange will host an all-you-can-eat spaghetti dinner at the Grange Hall on Barnard Road on Saturday, Sept. 26.

Serving will begin at 4:30 p.m. and continue until everyone is served.

The menu will include spaghetti, cole slaw, garlic bread, a choice of pies and beverage.

Tickets will be $3.50 for adults and $2 for children under 12 years.

Square dance lessons set in Petoskey

Square dance classes for people in Charlevoix and Emmet counties will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 21, at Sheridan School in Petoskey.

Gridders win 2nd straight

Defense led to offense as Charlevoix racked up its second straight football victory.

The 34-14 triumph over Rogers City was assured by two interceptions that were run back for touchdowns in the second half.

Mark LaBlance and David Miller each scored with an interception in the last half as Charlevoix put the game out of reach.

For LaBlance, the 75-yard run in the third quarter was his second interception of the night. Miller romped 56 yards with a pass he picked off in the final stanza.

The Rayders never trailed in the game, which brought their season record to 2-1.

Marv Witthoeft, who was Charlevoix's leading rusher with 70 yards in 10 carries, scored the first touchdown on a 13-yard run in the first period. The conversion attempt failed.

Later in the quarter, A LaBlance interception set up the second score, a one-yard sneak by quarterback Dan Drury. Drury followed uo with a pass to LaBlance for the two-point conversion.

Rogers City narrowed the gap to 14-6 with a three-yard touchdown run late in the half.

Drury hit Scott DeYoung with a three-yard touchdown pass in the third period, then added the two-point conversion on a pass to Shawn Putman to stretch the Rayders' lead.

Two pair of interception returns put the game out of reach before Rogers City added a late touchdown on a one-yard run to finish the scoring.

Besides picking off two passes, LaBlance made 17 tackles, rushed for 67 yards in 10 carries, made three receptions for 27 yards and scored the two-point conversion.

DeYoung gained 55 yards on three receptions, one a touchdown, while Drury hit on eight of 13 passes for 101 yards.

On defense, Mike Smith recorded 12 tackles and Jason Whitley added 11.

Charlevoix's David Miller is hauled down by a pair of Rogers City dafenders during the Rayders' 34-14 romp. Miller gained 28 yards in five carrles for the Rayders.

Girl runners win

The Rayder cross-country girls placed first among seven Class C-D teams in the Ludington Invitational.

Charlevoix's boys – running without four harriers – finished third. Benzie Central was first with 29 points and Mason County Central second with 55 points among Class C schools. Charlevoix had 73 points.

The Rayder JV's came in fifth among nine teams of all classes. Several Rayder middle school runners also participated in the events.

"The girls had an outstanding race," said Coach Pete Spieles. "Julie Bush, who was our top runner, and Kendra Olinger, our fifth place runner, made the difference, each coming through in good times."

"In the boys meet we were definitely short-handed. We were running without our No. 1 runner, Pat Rajewski, as well as Dylan Stewart and Gehry Weisner who were injured and Tom Merta who was ill.

"Scott Miller, as a sophomore, came through as our No. 1 man. The others also did well."

Spieles noted both teams will return to the Ludington course for the regional meet. The course, he said, is slow and difficult, but everyone ran well.

For the Rayder girls Julie Bush finished in sixth place in 23:26, Betsy Haggard was 8th in 23:39, Heidi Olinger 10th in 23:59, Barb Haggard, 20th in 25:09 and Kendra Olinger 22nd in 25:25.

Dora Dlofn Skuladottir completed the race in 39th place in 28:38 and Jennie Greene was 48th in 34:45 among 51 runners. Charlevoix ran without Sherry Ferguson, who is injured.

In the boys race, Miller was the Rayders' top runner, taking second place in 17:22, one second behind first place finisher, Matt Johnson of Benzie Central.

Sean Henne finished in sixth place in 18:36, Paul Wakulat 14th in 19:21, Jon Terry 22nd in 19:59 and Hal Chase 29th in 21:03.

Tim Henne and Bill Crook tied for 19th place in the JV division with times of 20:41. Matt Schnackenberg had a time of 21:59, Mike Ochs 22:06 and Matt Stargardt 24:24.

Middle school runners used a 1.5 mile course. Charlevoix's John Haggard covered the distance in 10:29, Don Hoadley in 11:27 and Jake Poreath in 11:32.

Rayders lose pair on court

Charlevoix's girls basketball team, struggling under a re-building program, dropped games to Petoskey 59-40 and to Kalkaska 70-27.

In the Petoskey game, the Rayders trailed throughout the game – 14-8, 32-14 and 49-24 at the quarter marks.

Ellen Pearl paced the Rayders with 16 points. Sherry Maxwell had 24 for Petoskey.

The Rayders were out-scored 28-14 from the floor and made 12 of 25 free throws while collecting eight fouls.

Petoskey made three of six charity shots. They made 22 personal fouls.

The Rayder JV's lost 41-27 after trailing 23-12 at halftime. Sandy Fershee had 11 and Cynthia Boydston nine for Charlevoix.

"We were blown out at Kalkaska," Coach Stan Martin said.

The final score was 70-27 with the Blazers leading 33-10 at halftime.

Kalkaska had 28 field goals to the Rayders nine.

The JV's dropped their game 41-14 after trailing 27-7 at halftime. Boydston had five points for Charlevoix.

Corwin's 3 TDs lead JVs over Rogers City

James Corwln scored three touchdowns as the Rayder JV's defeated Rogers City 28-8.

Corwin scored twice on runs and once on a pass from Greg Lewis. Lewis scored the fourth touchdown on a quarterback sneak.

Charlevoix scored midway in the first period on an eight-yard run by Corwin following a drive. The conversion run was stopped short of the goal line.

The Hurons, however, countered with a touchdown on a 12-yard run and added the conversion run to go ahead 8-6 late in the period.

Just before the half, Corwin took a pass from Lewis and scored on the play that covered 49 yards. The conversion run by Corwin was good to give the Rayders a 12-8 halftime lead.

A touchdown by Lewis on a three-yard sneak followed a 40-yard drive by the Rayders after Charlevoix gained possession of a pass interception by Corwin near mid-field. Corwin added the conversion on a run.

The Rayders put the game out of reach when Corwin scored on a 27-yard pass from Lewis and then added two points on a conversion run in the final period.

Coach Brian Certa said Pat Elliott blocked well for Corwin and had 12 tackles. Chad DeYoung and Mike Stoneham had eight tackles each.

Corwin bad 157 yards running and 127 yards receiving. Tony Mervyn filled in well, Certa said.

In the Petoskey meet Jervis had a 43 to lead the Rayders, Bickersteth 47, Crain 48 and Gibbons 49.

In the JV match, the Northmen won 173-187. Holmes shot 45, Pemble 46, Loder 48 and Wurst 50.

The Gaylord Blue Devils won 186-191 as Bickersteth led Charlevoix with a 45, Jervis followed at 47, Gibbons at 48 and Crain at 53.

Charlevoix took the JV match 185-189 with Wurst carding a 44 as medalist. Loder shot 45, Pemble 47 and Holmes 49.

Cross-country boys take 1st; tie drops girls

The Rayder boys' cross country squad won a three-way meet with Gaylord and East Jordan.

The Charlevoix girls finished third because of a tie-breaker while the JV boys gained first place on a tie-breaker.

The boys scored 25 points to Gaylord's 38 and East Jordan's 54. The girls were tied for second with East Jordan at 50 points and dropped to third when the sixth runners's time was counted to break the tie. Gaylord had 23 points to win after the JV team tied with Gaylord at 28, the sixth runners's time gave them first place.

Pat Rajewski set the pace for the race with a time of 15:24. He was followed by Scott Miller, who placed second in 15:27, Tom Merta 4th in 16:31, Sean Henne 7th in 16:59 and Paul Wakulat 11th in 17:28. Dylan Stewart was 14th in 17:49.

In the girls' meet, Betsy Haggard had the Rayders' best time of 21:06 to finish in fourth place. She was followed by Julie Bush who was 7th in 21:16, Heidi Olinger 10th in 22:03, Barb Haggard 14th in 23:19 and Kendra Olinger 15th in 25:08. Charlevoix did not have a sixth runner to be counted in the tie-breaker.

In the JV meet, Gehry Weisner placed first in 17:09.

Drum major Mika Stargardt, salutes during the playing of the National Anthem prior to o Rayder football game while Tarry Isenbargar dlracts the bend. Stargardt plays a triple role in the music program as drum major, student director end alto sax player with tha concert band. Ha attended tha Walbridge Drum Major Camp last summar ln preparation for his role.

Marching band makes halftimes musical

The schedule-maker has not been kind to the high school marching band. With three home football games in the first three weeks of school the band has not had much time for rehearsal.

With Mike Stargardt as drum major and student director, the band has 58 instrumentalists – five less than the concert band. The other five musicians are involved in football or cheerleading sald Terry fsenbarger, director of music.

The band begins each halftime show with a marching routine by the entire band. This year's opener is "Devil's Canyon" by Paul Jennings.

The flag corps coached by Becky Resch works out two routines for each show. This year's routines will be done to "Twist and Shout", "Dancing on the Celling," "Varsity Drag," "Tocal La Musica," "Louie, Louie" and "Freedom Suite."

Jim Keller announces the band shows.

The band will present lts annual fall concert in the high school gymnasium Wednesday, Oct. 14. It will also participate in the homecoming parade on Friday, Oct. 9 and the Memorial Day and the Venetian Festival parades.

Band members are in the midst of their annual fall fund-raising campaign, the sale of select cheese and sausage.

Customers who have not been contacted by a band member may call 547-3234.

Yachting Notes

A. NONY MOUSE

A controversy is brewing among the members of the Charlevoix Yacht Club: To race or not race when there is no wind.

Jim Stewart you are right. It makes no sense at all for the boats to sit on the calm, placid waters of Lake Charlevoix until dawn so with that in mind Pygmalion will be barbecuing baby back ribs on her grill in the calm. Oh no, not pig parts.

Speaking of pigs, oh where, oh where have you gone Miss Piggy, our tender sweet mascot? It seems as though some unruly pirates of the sea have made off with the fair Miss Piggy.

She was sitting in the bosun's chair in Boyne City minding her own buslness when she was unceremoniously yanked from her perch and at last report was seen with some unruly ruffians at the BRI.

Please, oh please, Miss Piggy, if you read this, know that little Darren S. will still take you back regardless of your ruined reputation.

Oh yes, there was a race in the calms last Wednesday. Please note that the race was shortened to two measly little legs and "the lucky few that finished" are listed below.

Fleet A – 1. Gotcha, Dow & Mueller; 2. Sorcerer, Gleason & the hoards; 3 Pygmalion, Dave Strawbridge minus the plg; 4. Night Moves, Hawkins & Hawkins et al.

Fleet B – 1. Bandit, Cawthra via Barnes & crew; 2. Nulli Secundus, Mike Miller; 3. San Sue She, another Miller (Jim); 4. Foxy Lady, Hoadley; 5. Blasen III, Jurries; 6. Kittiwake, et al; 7. Cygnus, Stewart; 8. Tireless, What!!! 8th?? Mikey, super job; 9. TEGI, not really, Terry didn't race so what does that make Mikey? last!

Fleet C – 1. Maureen, Tolman & Tolman (should be a law firm); 2. Merry Hell, Dilworth; 3. Flash, Gordon & Gordon (the better half being Judy); 4. Canusa, Can and Usa (You hit what mark?); 5. Apothecary, Frank & John Ochs RX; 6. Sandpiper, Campbell & Campbell (that is a law firm); 7. Hot Mustard, Gosling; 8. Cabaret, Jim Melke; 9. Sonrlse, Johnson & Johnson (really).

By the way, Jim, I was out of line in giving you grief. What you do, you do. What I do, I do. C'est la vie.

Dr. Dave

City meets many goals for year, sets new agenda

The city made good progress toward meeting its goals in the past year, council members concluded during a weekend retreat.

And they have made up a list of goals for the coming year.

In reviewing those goals that involved mostly staff time, city manager Mike Wiesner said many have been met.

Projects with a high priority were inventorying existing utilities and developing master plans (completed), revising comprehensive plan (not done), addressing parking issues (in progress), studying electrical system (done), instituting industrial pretreatment program (done), adding jobs for area (strides made through industrial park promotions and group membership).

Also, studying conversion of wells for golf course watering (implementation set for fall), developing licensing ordinance (not done), continue computerization (in works), studying spring clean-up (additional pickups considered), revising personnel policy (not done), checking broken seals on water meters (not done).

Receiving medium priority were revising airport master plan (not done but discussed), setting TV satellite dish rules (not done), completing revision of sign ordinance (not done), improving housing stock (city did not qualify for grant), addressing fishing issue (applied for Ferry Beach grant, including docks and fish cleaning station), developing cemetery rules (not done), studying cemetery costs and financing (not done), developing airport easements (talking with state and federal officials).

Given low priority were streamlining site plan approval process (not done), developing subdivision control ordinance (not done), obtaining historic district designation (some work done).

Given high priority where money was available were completing the public safety building (done), implementing Ferry Avenue TIFA improvements (grant sought) and improving downtown parking (Erber lot installed, White property being purchased).

Of low priority with money available were the remainder of downtown improvement projects (DDA plan is expected in about two months).

Of high priority where no money was available were separating sanitary sewers from storm sewers (in works for next year), paving streets (done this summer), removing old water tower (on hold because of communications systems atop tower), beautifying north channel bank (under discussion), improving sidewalks (set for 1988), tree maintenance (underway).

Of medium priority where no money was available was servicing the entire city with utilities (being worked on).

Of low priority where no money was available were adding a south channel walkway (Corps of Engineers set to do this autumn), increasing dockage (not done).

Goals for the coming year have been separated by high, medium and low priority but not otherwise sorted.

Those of high priority, in no particular order, are separating sanitary sewers, implementing Ferry Avenue TIFA improvements, addressing parking issue, beautifying north channel bank, continuing tree maintenance program, developing licensing ordinance, developing cemetery rules, studying cemetery financing and costs, streamlining site plan approval process.

Also, obtaining or keeping cruise ship, developing downtown parking ordinance, improving infrastructure, revising lake shore zoning rules, creating jobs in area, continuing computerization, continuing DDA improvements, improving sidewalks, developing personnel policy.

Also, south channel walkway, airport easements, Hoffmann Park completion, continuing tree program, implementing electric system improvements, finishing interpretative display and studying Round Lake usage.

Of medium priority are more frequent rubbish pickup, checking broken seals on water meters, completing revisions of sign ordinance, determining direction of cable TV involvement, increasing dockage, revising airport master plan, and addressing fishing issues.

Of low priority are revising city comprehensive plan, serving entire city with utilities, removing old water tower and developing TV satellite dish regulations.

The city has erected two signs indicating the foot of Eaton Street is open to the public. The area is flanked by Northwest Marine property and is manicured to blend in with the yacht basin landscape. A years-long dispute over pilings in the water at the end of the street continues in the court of appeals.

Teacher contract reached

The Charlevoix School District and its teachers have reached a tentative contract agreement.

Barry Anderson, who represented the teachers in negotiations, said he felt that the three-year contract is a good one.

"I think everyone will be happy with it," he said.

Supt. Gordon VanWieren represented the school board in the talks.

The contract will be forwarded to the Northern Michigan Education Association for review before being returned to the school board and local education association for ratification.

Details of the agreement will not be made public until after ratification is complete.

Last week, tentative agreement was also reached on a support staff contract.

Consumers Power ranks second in efficiency

Consumers Power – owner of Big Rock Point nuclear power plant – operated its power plants more efficiently last year than any other multi-plant utility in the nation, according to a survey conducted by Electric Light and Power magazine.

In its annual survey of the nation's electric utilities, the publication ranked fuel efficiency at Consumers Power's plants second only to a New England utility that operates one plant.

Based on a measurement known as heat rate – the amount of thermal energy it takes to make a kilowatt-hour of electricity – the company's generating units produced more power per unit of heat than any other utility operating several plants, the magazine said.

Obituaries

Beverly Loskot

Beverly Loskot, 73, former Charlevoix resident, died Saturday, Sept. 13 at Kissimmee (Fla.) Memorial Hospital.

Funeral services were held Saturday, Sept. 19 at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Larry Poller of Whitestone Chapel, Church of Christ, in Petoskey officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Born in Charlevoix on July 4, 1914, daughter of John E. and Kittie (Ackert) Loskot, she graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1931. She later moved to Detroit where she was employed as a secretary at Detroit Automotive Tank Command in Warren.

She retired in 1975 and moved to Conway. In 1982 she moved to Kissimmee, Fla., where she was involved in charity work as a member of the Sunshine Group. A short time before her death, she was recognized for her work with Good Neighbor Award in the Good Samaritan Retirement Village.

Surviving are a niece, Kathy Griffin of Petoskey and her children.

The family suggests memorials to the Good Samaritan Belevolent Fund, Kissimmee, Fla. Envelopes are available at Winchester Funeral Home.

Jack McCall

Jack J. (Mac) McCall, 69, retired vice president and partner in the electrical contracting firm of Davis Electric Inc. of Traverse City, died Sept. 20, 1987, at his home in Traverse City after an extended illness.

A memorial service will be 2 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 22, at the Hibbard Funeral Chapel, 109 Sixth St., Traverse City, where frends may call on Tuesday one hour prior to the service. Interment will be in Oakwood Cemetery, Traverse City.

Mr. McCall was born Sept. 19, 1918, in Charlevoix, the son of John and Myrtle Richardson McCall. He moved to Traverse City with his family in 1924 and graduated from Traverse City public schools in 1936.

In July, 1938, he married Margaret J. Redel who died in 1944. On Oct. 2, 1948, he married Rosemary D. Goddard who survives along with five children, Robert of Frankfort, Mrs. Jon (Sharon) Leonard of Muskegon, James of Elkhart, Ind., Mark and Todd of Traverse City; nine grandchildren, two brothers, Francis and William of Florida; two sisters, Mrs. Kenneth (Helen) Fish of Coral and Betty Moyer of Traverse City. A brother, Lieut. Donald E. McCall died during World War II.

Mr. McCall was active in numerous organizations and he served as justice of the peace for East Bay Township; served on the board of directors of the Builder and Trades organization and was a member of the Traverse City Elks Club. He enjoyed gardening, fishing, travel and was an avid golfer.

The family suggests memorials to the Munson Home Health Care or to Boy Scouts of America, Scenic Trails Council. Envelopes for memorials may be obtained at the Hibbard Funeral Chapel.

Dean Rhoads (standing right) conducts a session of a leadership skills workshop steering committee. Next to him is Rod Cortright, also of the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service.

Leadership skills workshops proposed

A leadership skills workshop for Charlevoix County residents may be offered in early 1988.

A group organized by the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service at the urging of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce is attempting to put together the sessions.

Similar leadership training sessions have been held around the state, says Dean Rhoads, district resource development agent.

The effort aims to accomplish two goals, says Rod Cortright, county extension director. The first is to enlarge the pool of emerging and potential leaders. The second is to enhance leadership skills in those individuals.

The several-week program would be in intensive project for those who enter it, Rhoads said, including an overnight first session to solidify the members as a group.

A cross-section of county residents – geographically, socially and professionally – will be selected from the applicants, Rhoads said.

This, he said, will heighten the exchange of information and ideas among workshop members.

Organization of the leadership program is in its infant stages, with none of the details yet ironed out.

An 10-member steering committee is working with Rhoads, Cortright and extension service home economist Janet Rathke to put together the program.

On the committee are Tom Wieland of Wieland Farms in Charlevoix, John Ochs of Central Rexall Drug in Charlevoix, Doug Shaw of Bridge Street Inn in Charlevoix, Jacquie Merta of Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Bruce MacArthur of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful.

Also, Randy Frykberg, city manager of Boyne City, Dick Beagle of the Antrim-Charlevoix Growth Alliance, Susan Van Wieran of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, Tad Malpass of East Jordan Iron Works and Don Dibley of the Charlevoix Courier.

Want a tree? Call city hall

The city is looking for people who want tree planted near their yards.

City manager Mike Wiesner is asking for residents seeking plantings on city property to call his office.

The city is making a list of places to plant trees in 1988. This year about 60 trees will be planted on city property around town.

Board's ruling on hotel use nullified

the building to be built wider than normal, but only to the present width of the houses now on the lots.

They also agreed to allow chimneys and Victorian turrets to exceed by four feet the 35-foot height of the roof peak. And they OK'd the building taking up 18 percent of the property instead of the 15 percent allowed in the zoning ordinance.

These variance approvals were granted only for the 11-unit condo, not for the hotel or a residential club Berlage has proposed or for any other plans for the site.

Berlage encountered another setback when city council postponed a decision on the site plan for the 11-unit building because of what city manager Mike Wiesner called insufficient information.

Wiesner said the latest site plan, redrawn for Berlage by architect Jack Begrow to conform to the planning commission and zoning board concerns, did not provide enough information.

Calling it a sketch rather than a site plan, Wiesner said the drawing did not allow him to make calculations on the percentage of the parcel taken up by buildings.

The zoning board, he said, did not include carports and balconies in their calculations. And, he said, Begrow indicated to him that the main building took up more than the allocated 18 percent.

Berlage asked that approval be made conditional to the building meeting the 18 percent requirement, but council voted unanimously to withhold consideration of the plan until the Monday, Sept. 28, meeting.

No determination has been made yet on Berlage's private club request because the zoning board is still trying to decide how the designation fits in the zoning ordinance.

The determination was tabled after discussion and after approval of the variances for the 11-unit building. Berlage withdrew his request for variances for a nine-unit building.

Council also altered city procedure for review of future site plans, reversing a policy it set about a year ago.

Under the new policy, the council will consider site plans prior to zoning board consideration of variances and may give conditional approval based on anticipated zoning board action.

VanTreese cautioned, however, against a council attempt to advise the zoning board on how to decide variance questions when no site plan is involved.

There is no authority in Michigan law for the council to try to control the zoning board, he said. But, he said, he will doublecheck whether there is any way council can direct the zoning board.

"We want to influence the board of appeals," said Mayor Ralph McRae, who has led a summer-long attempt to stop condominium-type development around the city's three lakes.

A seven-member committee formed last week to report to council on possible ordinance changes concerning lakefront development held its first meeting last week.

The panel has a self-imposed 45-day deadline to report to council.

Convention center idea weighed

ference room and the Weathervane Terrace has a smaller conference area.

Berlage noted his proposal is within walking distance of established and projected hotel rooms clustered around the Memorial Bridge and is close enough to the central business district to stimulate economic activity.

Statistics Berlage has gathered show that typical conventioneers and spouses spend about $60 to $70 per day in addition to lodging charges. This translates into $36,000 a day in money spent in the area during a 600-person conference.

Among the conventions this summer at Hilton Shanty Creek near Bellaire was one hosting 800 people and several others hosting 200 or more.

A conference center of the size proposed would be competing with facilities at Shanty Creek, Boyne Mountain, Boyne Highlands and Grand Traverse Resort.

Charlevoix has built-in advantages over these sites, Berlage says, because of the city's natural beauty, and the convenience of shopping and recreation facilities to the hotel area.

He foresees a conference center as being owned separately from the hotel-condo by a condominium association and is considering donating the space for the center.

Possible ways of financing, owning and operating the facility have not been determined.

the uses allowed for buildings on land zoned commercial scenic. It means that – besides uses specifically allowed in commercial scenic – apartments and condominiums can be built in that zone.

Armed with that information, the planning commission debated whether a hotel was a similar use to an apartment or condominium.

On two different nights with two different combinations of commissioners voting (one person was absent one night and another the other), the planners were deadlocked.

In last week's appeal to the zoning board, panelists did not look at the "use regulations" portion of the commercial scenic zone, but at the "purpose" portion.

They concluded that commercial scenic was created as a specially controlled extension of the commercial business district. The only lands in town zoned commercial scenic are between the Pine River Channel and Park Avenue from Bridge Street to about halfway between State and Grant.

This area is, for the most part, contiguous to the central business district, board chairman Ted Felter said.

Board member Charles Scherping concluded the zone was created to keep what the ordinance terms "the particularly visible locations" in commercial scenic attractive.

For these reasons, they thought, a hotel would be an allowable use in commercial scenic.

The zoning ordinance does not allow hotels in the central business district but does allow them in other commercial zones.

Approval of the request did not come easily. Felter and Scherping voted for approval, while John Dixon and Kevin Whitley voted against it.

The fifth voting member present, Bob Kern, did not vote either way at first. After several seconds of thought, he cast his vote for approval.

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

Home meal priority list started to trim deficit

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging has decided it must have stricter rules covering eligibility for home-delivered meals.

The agency will end the 1986-1987 year at the end of this month with a deficit of at least $5,000 in its meal program, due mostly to the large number of requests for home-delivery from persons claiming they are not able to get to one of the congregate meal sites in Charlevoix, East Jordan or Boyne City.

It costs over 90 cents a meal to deliver to a home. This is in addition to the average meal cost of $2.40 for raw ingredients, labor and other items that go into meal preparation.

The Commission on Aging requests a donation of $1 a meal for meals served at meal sites or for those delivered at home.

So far this year, the average donation at meal sites has been 99 cents (86 cents in Charlevoix), and 63 cents for home-delivered meals (67 cents in Charlevoix).

Federal grants, U.S. Department of Agriculture contributions and in-kind services cover the difference, within budget limits, between meal costs and monies collected.

Art Saworski, director of the commission, says that heretofore the agency has been lenient in approving persons to receive home-delivered meals.

If a person says he or she is physically unable to go to a meal site, that person has been put on the delivery list.

Now, because of the increasing number of requests for home-delivery (up 63 percent from 1984), the commission will start a priority list, based on doctors' recommendations and other facts.

Persons being given priority will include those recovering from an illness or hospital stay or otherwise disabled or homebound.

Those now receiving home-delivered meals will soon be re-evaluated and most new requests will be put on a waiting list.

The commission's nutrition program was set up in 1974 under the Older Americans Act to provide one hot meal a day in a congenial group setting for persons over 60 years of age, regardless of financial status.

The law states that payment for the meal must not be a "charge" but a "suggested donation" and no one can be turned away for not making a donation.

The commission based its budget on a "suggested donation" figure of $1, with disastrous results.

The large number of requests for home-delivered meals, the high cost of delivering those meals, and the small donations made by recipients threw the whole budget out of kilter, Saworski said.

In Charlevoix County, the meals are delivered by Transit System buses, which are operated by the Commission on Aging.

In Antrim County, they are delivered by volunteers who are paid mileage by the Department of Social Services, which reduces the financial burden on the Antrim County Commission on Aging, Saworski said.

In Emmet County, some of the deliveries are also made by volunteers while others are made by Friendship Centers buses.

Nationally, the trend is toward putting more local effort into Commission on Aging programs. Ron Crummel, director of the Northwest Senior Resources Staff who attended the last meeting of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, brought that to the attention of commission members.

"You're just going to have to get out and raise some money yourselves if you are to continue the services as before," he said.

The Senior Center in Charlevoix recently solicited and received $1,000 from both the City of Charlevoix and Hayes Township to help pay the salary for a manager at the center.

The Charlevoix group also sponsored a recent flea market, which brought in additional funds.

The East Jordan Senior Center sponsored a magic show which netted over $600, to be used to help pay for the purchase of a tour bus for county senior citizens. A flea market in Boyne City last weekend also raised money for this purpose.

"People are just going to have to realize that it costs a lot of money to provide meals and the other Commission on Aging services," Crummel again warned commission members. "You have to let the people you serve know that."

In the meantime, the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging will have to cut back on its meal program until its deficit is paid off. Last year, this meant eliminating the Monday meal for a period of time, but no decision along these lines has yet been reached, according to Saworski.

Three area nursing students have been named recipients of Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild scholarships for the 1987-88 school term. Guild members (from left) Loretta Conine, Myrtle Fulton and Jeanne Miles present $300 scholarships to Jean McDonough of Charlevoix, who is attending North Central Michigan College and Kay Rogers (right) of Ellsworth, who is also attending NCMC. A third scholarship winner, Cheryl Drewanz of Charlevoix, is attending Grand Valley State College.

Performers sell trash bags

Charlevoix High Performing Arts Team will conduct a sale of two-ply, 30-gallon garbage bags from 6 to 9 p.m. Thursday Oct. 1.

The bags will be sold in boxes of 100 for $10, in a door-to-door sale conducted by the students.

Last year the team qualified for the state championships in all three competitions and won, for the fourth consecutive year, the state Class C drama championship.

The sale is a fund-raising event conducted by the students and their supporters to help underwrite the costs of competition, travel, theatrical royalties and musical scores.

Anyone who wishes to purchase bags may call Ken Grey at 547-5824 or visit the performing arts room between 7 and 9 p.m. the night of the sale.

New machine adding jobs at area firm

Installation of a $239,000 angular panel saw is expected to create up to 15 new jobs at Harbor Industries.

The manufacturer of retail displays has received an Industrial Facilities tax exemption from the city for 12 years to install the saw and accompanying computer and sawdust removal equipment.

With the exemption, the firm will pay half as much tax on the improvements as it would have without the OK. The tax break does not affect taxes on the existing building and equipment.

"This is 50 percent more taxes than what you had," said council member Bill Haggard. There was a possibility the saw would go to Harbor's Grand Haven facility, said attorney Scott Beatty, representing Harbor Industries.

The company will be paying taxes on about $67,000 a year - based on a $270,000 cost for the improvements and a regular 50 percent property assessment, said City Manager Mike Wiesner.

The improvement will allow the firm to manufacture wood panels to size for use in building display racks, said plant general manager Max Hosmer in his applicaiton. Now panels must be purchased pre-cut.

The panels will be used at both the Charlevoix and Grand Haven plants.

In addition, the application says, the "proposed installation of equipment will significantly improve and update the technology existing on the site, through the computerization of operations."

There are presently 55 to 60 employees at the plant, with another 10 to 15 projected within two years of completion of the improvements.

Talk focuses on foot care

A free health talk entitled "Foot Health in the Senior Adult and Diabetic" will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 30, at the Pine River Place senior housing complex in Charlevoix Conducting the talk will be Michael A. Aleccia, D.P.M., a podiatrist on the adjunct medical staff of Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Aleccia will discuss several aspects of foot care with special emphasis on issues relating to comfort and care of the feet during cold, winter weather.

This health talk, sponsored by the hospital, is open to all area residents and will be held in the community room of Pine River Place at 210 W. Garfield.

Co-op nursery plate night set

Area children and their families can design their own plates during Charlevoix Co-op Nursery School's fourth annual plate night next week.

Materials will be available for $3.75 from 4-7:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 28-29, in the nursery school room at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

Participants will be given a special type of paper and colored markers to use in designing the pattern. The designs will then be sent to the factory to be printed on sturdy, dishwasher proof, white plastic plates.

The project benefits the co-op nursery and funds will be used to purchase new equipment.

Deputy sheriff receives award

Deputy sheriff Sherry Martin, a native of Charlevoix and graduate of Charlevoix High School, has been given an award of recognition by the Walloon Lake Association.

Martin was selected for the award by Sheriff George T. Lasater, who cited her for her achievements in many fields of law enforcement.

Martin coordinates all Child Watch and Neighborhood Watch activities for the Sheriff's Department and provides Officer Friendly programs and Bicycle Safety courses for the schools.

In addition, she makes follow-up investigation arrests and investigates charges of sexual assault and abuse.

Martin, who joined the Sheriff's Department in 1984, is the first woman deputy in the history of the department, which dates back over 100 years.

City manager Mike Wiesner (center with megaphone) leads a group of visiting Canadian government officials through Hoffmann Park, one of the projects funded by the Downtown Development Authority. The Canadians were surprised at the scope of projects completed with local tax money.

11-unit condo on channel gets city OK

Final approval has been given for an 11-unit condominium-ownership townhouse building overlooking the Pine River Channel.

The building, proposed by attorney Don Berlage, has been at the center of a summer-long controversy over multiple-family housing near the city's three lakes.

The plan, as seen by council Monday night, met all city zoning ordinance regulations, City Manager Mike Wiesner said.

The proposal – one of several made by Berlage for two parcels on Park Avenue – has been before various boards and departments throughout the summer.

With changes recommended by the city planner, city manager, planning commission and city council, along with variances granted by the zoning board of appeals, the site plan was approved 4-1. Shirley Roloff voted against the plan and Norm Probert was absent.

Site plan approval is a process to determine whether a project meets the conditions of the zoning ordinance.

Several times during a public hearing on the site plan, city attorney Jeff VanTreese reminded audience members and council members that the only thing under consideration was the plan as presented.

Debate often wandered to issues concerning future intentions, previous projects and city policy.

Approval of the plan for the 11-unit condominium has no bearing on other proposals for the site, VanTreese said.

Berlage has also given the city plans for a 21-unit hotel, a 21-unit residential club and a nine-unit condo. Under discussion outside city hall is possible inclusion of a convention-community center on the lower level.

A study of the feasibility of constructing a conference center is being considered. A representative of a nationally known accounting firm will meet with city and hospitality

Canadian officials study Charlevoix's downtown

Bob Parker says he shouldn't be confused with Bob Barker, the TV game show host.

But he was treated like a celebrity when he came to Charlevoix, anyway.

Parker didn't arrive from anywhere near Hollywood and didn't get here by private jet. Instead, he came from northern Ontario by Greyhound.

Parker and 26 other Canadians did get a police escort into town, live TV coverage, a whirlwind tour of the city, dinner and the key to the city, though.

They were in Charlevoix on the first stop of a three-day tour of downtowns in Michigan and Ontario – downtowns that have rejuvenated themselves.

And they made a great sacrifice to be here, Bill Wyatt was quick to point out. Their team, the Toronto Blue Jays, was locked in a four-game duel for first place with our team and they were missing the whole thing.

The tour had brought them to Charlevoix at 4:30 p.m. after busing from Sudbury since early morning.

By 8, they were on their way to Gaylord, then to Saginaw to spend the night – but too late, they feared, to catch the tail of the ball game.

Parker – a Red Sox fan anyway, Wyatt and the others were more concerned with the long-term effects of their trip, though.

They were looking for hints to help them preserve, rebuild or, in some cases, save their downtowns. They are mayors and other municipal leaders from small towns in Ontario trying to diversify or rescue their

Mayor Ralph McRae presented the key to the city to Bill Weingard of the Ontario Ministry of Municipal Affairs three times -- first for television cameras, then for a publicity photo and finally for real at a dinner for the city's guests.

SIDE BECOMES FRONT IN PLAN TO ADD STORES

A new "block" of stores may emerge on Charlevoix's skyline.

The stores would actually along the side of the building housing Burnsides, but would appear to be an old-fashioned block of storefronts.

The proposal is being made by Richard Georgi, owner of the property, in an effort to help beautify visitors' first view of downtown from the north.

In order for Georgi's plan to work, though, he needs the help of the city. Fronting the new stores is city parkland, which slopes as it approaches Round Lake.

"You'd need a parachute," city planner Gerry Harsch quipped, to reach the ground from the front door of the easterly stores.

Georgi is suggesting the city terrace the park to allow construction of a sidewalk. He envisions a European cafe-style, wide sidewalk of brick and concrete in keeping with the theme of Hoffmann Park and the Erber parking lot.

The city Downtown Development Authority has endorsed the concept of Georgi's proposal, which must go to the city council for consideration.

Georgi is putting together cost estimates for the city portion of the project, which would be paid for with DDA funds. The DDA gets its money from taxes collected on new construction, such as the hotels going up, in the downtown district.

He had originally presented a more-modern look for the side of the building, which is now a broad, solid expanse.

But after talks with authority members, he returned with a more expensive proposal.

The new plan would treat the building side as a front, with probably five stores lining the sidewalk.

Each store would look like a separate building, giving the structure a look similar to a block on Bridge Street.

Above the stores would be apartments or offices, with an open-air deck overlooking Round Lake at the back of the building.

Georgi also is looking into the practicality of placing heating devices under the sidewalk to eliminate snow removal.

AROUND THE TOWN

The third Industrial Fair will be held next week along with the Applefest.... Thirty-two companies will be exhibiting during the fair, which gives manufacturers a chance to show off locally made goods, some of which are sold around the world....

The fair will be held in the high school gymnasium. After a private showing Friday, Oct. 9, for high school students, the exhibits will be open to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 10.... Cider, donuts and apples will be served....

Speaking of cider, donuts and apples – the eighth annual Applefest will take place in East Park on the same day.... Area orchards and civic organizations will be selling apple-based goods.... Color tour boat rides and hayrides are also included in the festivities.

A street "ambassador" program begun this summer by the chamber of commerce will grow next year.... Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has donated $250 towards expanding the clean-up project....

The "ambassador" serves a dual role of street litter cleaner-upper and travelling information center to give confused-looking tourists a helping hand.... KCB is suggesting that the city put money for the program in next year's budget.

Local support asked to save cruise ship

Community members may be asked to invest in a cruise ship for Charlevoix.

A group of chamber of commerce members approached Star of Charlevoix owner John McGoff late this summer to try to entice the Star Line owner to commit a cruise ship for the summer season.

McGoff told the group he is not interested in being primary owner of a vessel, but would be willing to be a minority partner, said Jacquie Merta, executive director of the chamber of commerce.

This is the first year the Star Line has not had a tourist boat in Charlevoix since operations began in 1981.

Delays in construction of a paddlewheel boat to replace the latest in a line of Stars of Charlevoix caused cancelation of the season.

The boat intended for Charlevoix – still not complete – is now earmarked for use in the Houston area.

Investors financing operation of the ship in Charlevoix this year suffered losses when the ship was not completed, Merta said.

Star Line had set up its advertising, personnel and other operations in anticipation of the season.

Merta said McGoff indicated he might be interested in a 10 to 25 percent partnership with a group of local investors.

The cost of building and operating a new ship could be as much as $600,000, the group of business people has estimated.

The group has been talking about either enlisting a few affluent investors or seeking a greater number of small investors.

Dick Georgi told city council the odds are against having a ship in the city next year. But he said the effort should be made.

Georgi said the group would be asking the council to pass a resolution in support of a community effort.

The council agreed to meet in special committee session at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 1, to consider the action.

Time is a problem, Georgi said, because a boat would have to be ordered by Nov. 1 to be ready by the summer season.

A chamber survey of its members found 86 percent of the 98 businesses called favor having a cruise ship in town. Ten percent were opposed, while four percent were undecided, Georgi said.

Businesses are noticing the downturn in business from previous autumns, Georgi said, with the major lure of the Star absent.

Besides the lodging, food and retail dollars the boat brought to town, Georgi said, the Star aided community employment with a $250,000 payroll. A smaller ship envisioned by the group would have a $180,000 payroll, he said.

Of the 35,000 people who rode the ship last year, Georgi said it has been determined, about 20,000 would not have otherwise come to town.

The Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau has committed money to help improve the dock space for a ship, Georgi said.

Georgi acknowledged that another cruise ship has been proposed for Charlevoix and had hoped to operate this fall.

He said, though, that the group was concentrating its efforts on working with the Star Line because the firm had proven it runs a quality operation.

The group would be willing to work with a comparable outfit if it is unwilling to convince McGoff to participate, Georgi said.

Art, antique appraiser visits area

Art appraiser Ernest DuMouchelle and staff will be in Charlevoix and Emmet counties on Oct. 5, 6, and 7 to examine and appraise works of art and antiques.

On Monday, Oc. 5, DuMouchelle will be in the McCune Community Arts Center community room.

Persons may take items for appraisal or a good photograph if an item is too difficult to transport. Verbal appraisals are $5 and written appraisals are $8.

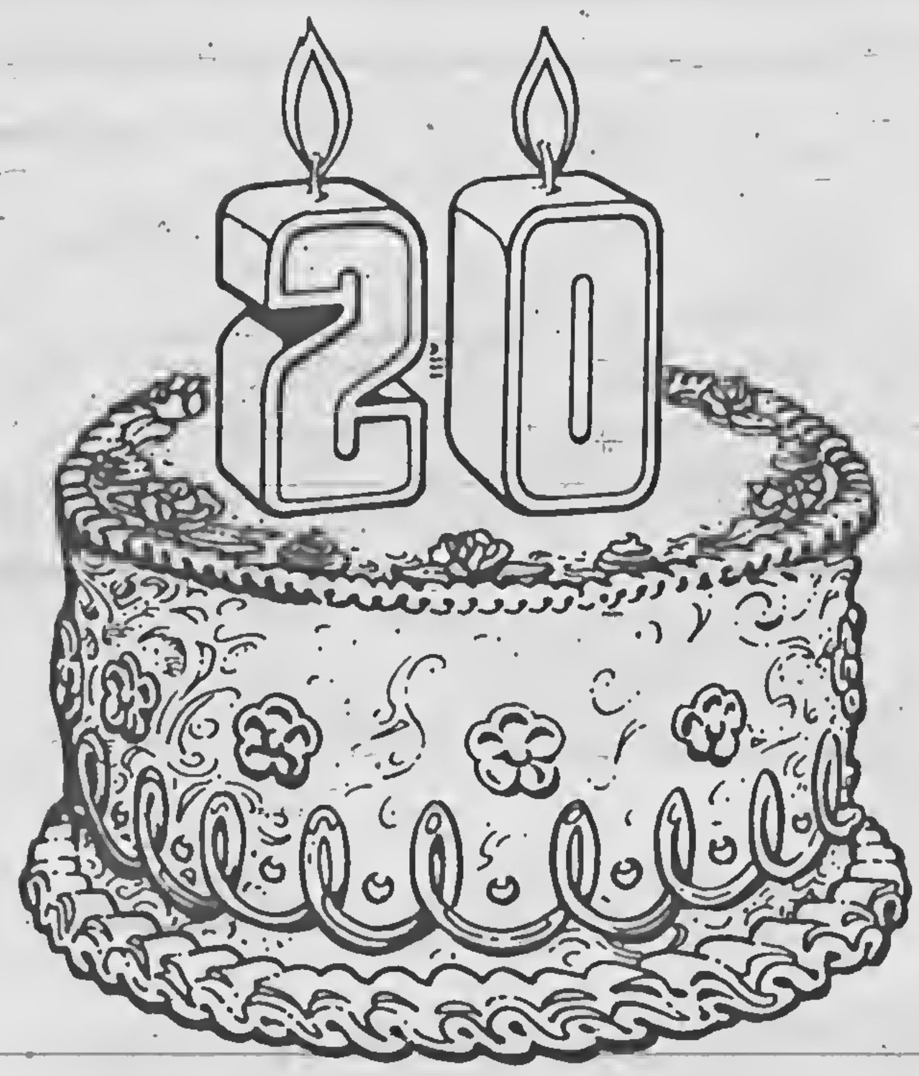
Doors open at 10 a.m. and appraisals are given on a first-come, first-served basis. There is no limit to the number of items that may be appraised.

DuMouchelle will visit private homes Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 6-7. Cost for a home visit is $50 with a limit of 10 items with verbal appraisal of each item only.

Home visits with written appraisals are $80. Appraisal fee for each item beyond 10 is $5 verbal and $8 written.

All home visits fees must be paid to the Crooked Tree Arts Council in advance. Call the arts center at 347-4337 if interested in a home visit.

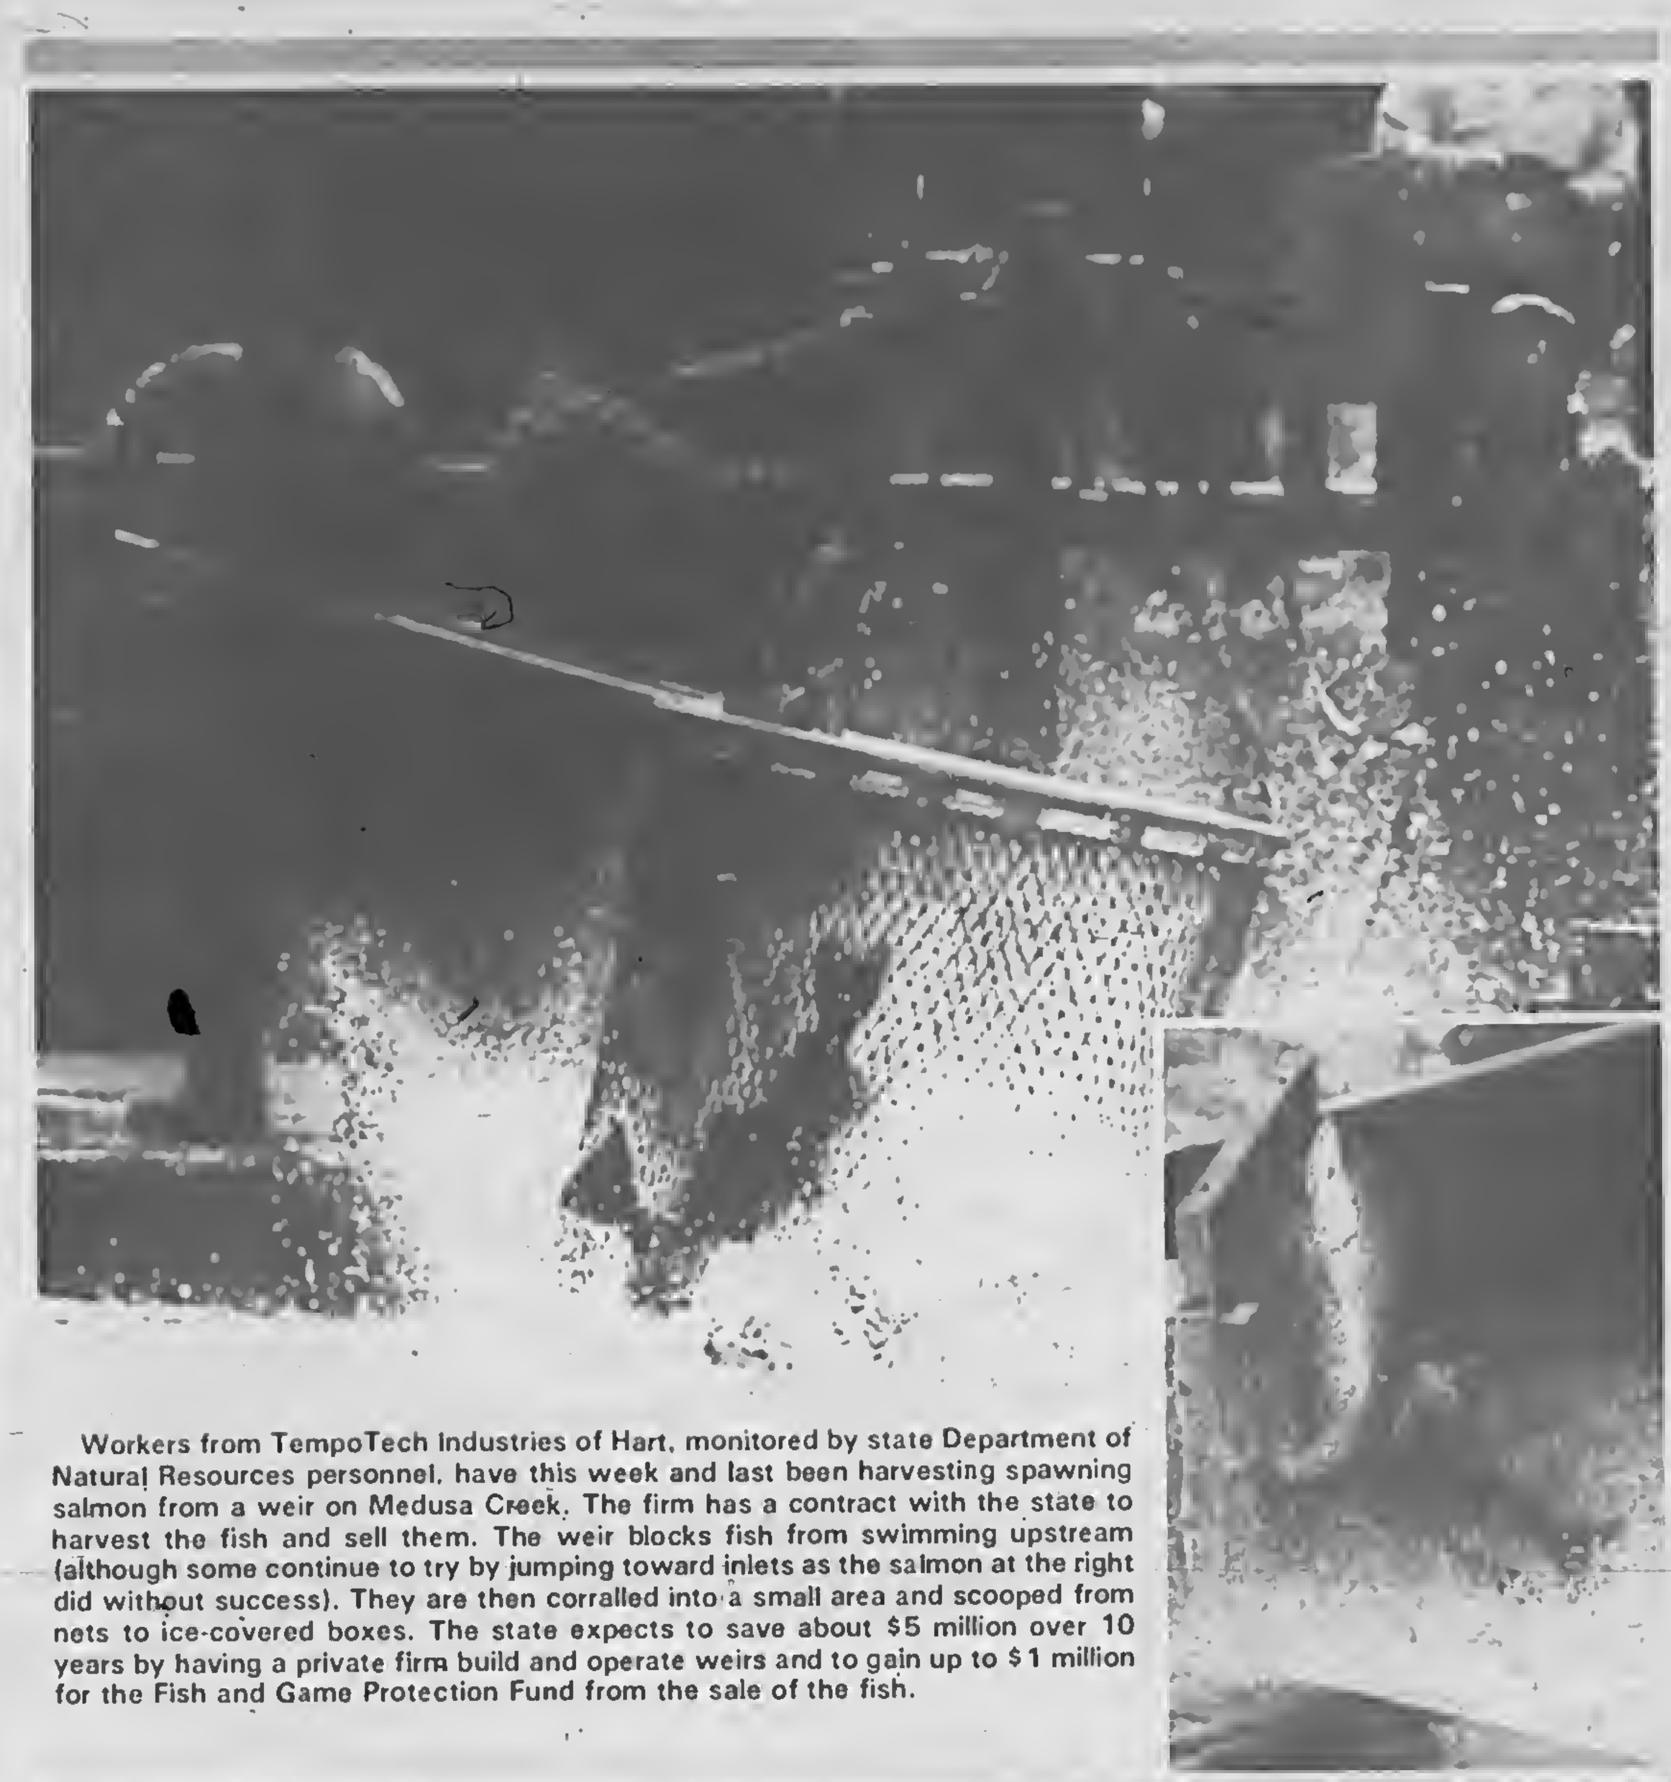
Visit are scheduled on a first-come, first-served basis.



Happy 20th Anniversary

Medusa Cement Company!

Skip, Mike, Jerry, Stacey



Workers from TempoTech Industries of Hart, monitored by state Department of Natural Resources personnel, have this week and last been harvesting spawning salmon from a weir on Medusa Creek. The firm has a contract with the state to harvest the fish and sell them. The weir blocks fish from swimming upstream (although some continue to try by jumping toward inlets as the salmon at the right did without success). They are then corralled into a small area and scooped from nets to ice-covered boxes. The state expects to save about $5 million over 10 years by having a private firm build and operate weirs and to gain up to $1 million for the Fish and Game Protection Fund from the sale of the fish.

Hayes offered help in shoreline case

by PEG OHLE

Last week, Hayes Township received two definite offers of help in its fight to retain the "Shoreland Protection" provisions of its township zoning ordinance.

The provisions limit boat numbers and waterfront use on lakes and streams in the township.

The Michigan Court of Appeals recently declared the provisions illegal following a suit brought by William Fox, a downstate realtor who would like to build a condominium housing development that would not comply with zoning provisions.

The shoreland in question is on Oyster Bay on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix.

Hayes Township has decided to appeal the decision to the state Supreme Court, which will add considerably to the $50,000 the township has already spent in defending its zoning ordinance.

The first offer of substantial financial help came from The Three Lakes Association of Antrim County, which has undertaken the task of protecting Lake Bellaire and Torch and Clam Lakes.

The association pledged $5,000 to Hayes Township to assist with its legal battles. In pledging the money, Alfred Pricbe, president of the association, noted that if the Hayes Township zoning ordinance does not hold up, there will be serious effects on townships in the Three Lakes area.

Another offer of help came from the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, in its fall publication:

"The Watershed Council fully supports the rights of townships to place reasonable limits on land use along the lakeshore... We will assist (Hayes) Township in fundraising and legal research as we have done throughout the suit."

In its decision, the Court of Appeals decided that the "Shoreland Protection" provisions of the Hayes Township zoning ordinance go beyond the authority granted by state law.

Arts council president re-elected

Edith Gilbert of Charlevoix has been elected to a second term as president of the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

Crooked Tree serves Charlevoix and Emmet counties, providing arts and cultural services and operating the Virginia McCune Arts Center.

Gilbert was re-elected at the council's annual dinner.

Also elected to the council board were Judy Landis of Harbor Springs, executive vice president; Bill Graham of Petoskey, finance vice president; Maureen Nicholson of Petoskey, secretary; and Virginia Knoop of Harbor Springs and Anna Buck of Petoskey, volunteers vice-presidents.

Waste planners set deadline for counties

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County solid waste management committee has taken action that could make nearby counties assume some responsibility for waste disposal facilities in the future.

The committee passed a resolution requiring counties using the Charlevoix landfill to provide in their own solid waste management plans for either a landfill and waste processing plant or a landfill and incinerator plant.

The action came as a follow-up to last month's resolution permitting haulers from six other northern Michigan counties – Emmet, Antrim, Kalkaska, Cheboygan, Crawford and Otsego – to deposit solid waste in the Charlevoix facility.

The new resolution requires these counties to have their solid waste plans completed and approved by the Department of Natural Resources by Dec. 31, 1989.

The thinking behind this resolution, according to County Planner Larry Sullivan, was to dispel the idea that Charlevoix County would continue to be a dump for the entire area for years to come.

The wide use of the Charlevoix landfill by out-county haulers has also caused concern among county government officials, who fear the landfill will be filled long before its estimated lifetime and the county will be without disposal facilities.

By law, the county is responsible to the public for providing a waste disposal facility.

The 13-member solid waste management committee was appointed early this year by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners to write a waste disposal plan to replace the one which has been operative since 1984.

That plan is now outdated because, in addition to the Charlevoix landfill, it calls for using landfills in Kalkaska and Crawford counties, which have been closed.

The Charlevoix County landfill is located in Eveline Township, near Ironton. It is owned and operated by Dawson Way, who also serves as an industry representative on the waste committee.

Other members represent the general public, the county, townships, cities, environmentalists, and the regional planning commission.

Last week's resolution calling for other counties to provide for their own future waste disposal facilities was made by Dennis Jason of East Jordan, who represents the regional planning commission, and seconded by Larry Levengood, representing environmentalists.

Still to be considered by the committee is the matter of making a surcharge on waste deposited in the Charlevoix landfill. Monies so collected could go toward the cost of building an incinerator or processing plant in the county at some future date. This matter will probably be brought up at the next meeting of the Solid Waste Management committee, on October 29.

Church welcomes speakers

"For God So Loved, Shouldn't You?" is the theme of the second annual missionary convention at Charlevoix Assembly of God Church Wednesday, Sept. 30.

Pastor Art Begay, a home missions pastor of Bay Mills Native American Reservation at Brimley will speak.

In international banquet will be held Saturday, Oct. 3, with guest speaker Patrick Cochensur an Assembly of God missionary to Indonesia.

On Sunday Oct. 4, at 11 a.m. there will be a children's mission surprise followed by a talk by Michigan District Foreign Mission's Director Ernest Zilch and his wife Margo.

On Sunday Oct. 4, at 6 p.m. Detroit Teen Challenge Director Calvin Bonzelaar and teens will address the assembly.

Keep on cruisin'

When it was learned earlier this summer that the Star of Charlevoix was not returning, there were mixed reactions around town.

Some thought the city could get along just fine. Just look at the crowds on Bridge Street now, they said, as the tourist season hit full swing. Who needs the ship?

Others worried about days to come – that time of year called the shoulder season when summer residents have left but the weather is still nice. We need the cruise ship, they replied.

Now that the shoulder season is here, there is ample evidence they were right – the Star or a similar boat is a major asset in the autumn.

Ask lodging owners who are having people cancel reservations when they discover the boat isn't running. Ask retailers who are having worse falls than in recent years. Look down the street – the uncrowded street.

A group of business people is trying to remedy the problem the loss of the Star has created.

They have approached Star Line owner John McGoff about bringing a boat back next summer. And they have found him not extremely receptive to the idea. But he said he might be interested in being a minority stockholder in a community operation.

So the group is trying to come up with a way to bring a ship back to town. They have approached city council seeking support, not money, and have committed Convention and Visitors Bureau funds for dock work.

But they don't have much time to put a package together. If a ship is to be ordered to operate next summer, it must be ordered in the next month.

The council will be hearing from the group at a special meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 1, in city hall. That would be a good time for people who favor the group's efforts to show their support.

Char-Em OK appreciated

Dear Editor,

We want to thank the citizens of the Char-Em Intermediate School District a "bunch" on behalf of the 1,000 plus students and their families for the support demonstrated at the polls on Thursday, September 10.

Your positive support will assure continued educational services for all students in the Beaver Island, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Central Lake, Charlevoix, Cross Village, East Jordan, Ellsworth, Harbor Springs, Littlefield, Pellston, and Petoskey schools.

It was also a vote for continued cooperative efforts on the part of all school district to provide quality educational services-programs for staff and students.

"Every dollar saved through cooperative effort is one more dollar for instruction."

Letters to the editor:

Coast Guard working on foghorn problem

Editor:

Your Wednesday, Aug. 19 edition contained Mr. Jeff Miller's letter to the editor about the Coast Guard "foghorn" in Charlevoix. I read it with great interest and concern.

The Coast Guard is always interested in consumer feedback concerning our services, especially Aids to Navigation. While commercial and recreational mariners appear satisfied with our foghorn in low visibility, we apologize if our malfunctioning foghorn in Charlevoix can be a whining nuisance in clear weather. We are working on a permanent correction.

Any citizen is requested to notify us if they find our foghorn on and there is no reduced visibility, or if any Aid to Navigation is not operating as advertised in the Light List. Please call Station Charlevoix at 547-2565 or the Group Office in Sault Ste. Marie at (906) 635-3233.

Where's school spirit?

Editor,

As former high school cheerleaders, we could not help but notice the lack of enthusiasm and motivation among the current Charlevoix high school squads. However, we do not blame the cheerleaders. We feel that there are a great number of reasons why the cheerleaders are discouraged and unmotivated.

First of all, cheerleaders are not only out there for themselves. They are out there to represent their school, to support their team, and most important to supply energy to the crowd. But how can a cheerleader remain encouraged, supportive and cheerful when the crowd and student body sometimes are apathetic and unresponsive? Our cheerleaders are dedicated and deserve some support in return for the support they give to the team.

Secondly, and perhaps most importantly, cheerleading should be respected as a varsity sport. Cheerleaders are expected to obey the athletic code along with all the other sports, but why do cheerleaders pay for their own uniforms while the school pays for other varsity sports uniforms? Cheerleaders do a lot more than people realize (like pep assemblies, parent's night and special things for the team) and deserve more respect and recognition from the school administration, the student body and the community.

Finally, we'd like to say to the community and school to show some respect and support for your cheerleaders. And we'd like to say to the current high school cheerleaders that we believe in you and we know that you'll hang in there and cheer like only a cheerleader knows how.

Edgewater owner good neighbor

Editor,

I am writing to Bob Clock because I was so pleased with his article in the Sept. 2 Courier. Of course, I always enjoy "Clockwise" but this time I feel compelled to compliment Mr. Clock on his defease of Jon Hisey and the Edgewater complex. I agree with him on all aspects but did want to add my family's viewpoint.

We own the Sunset Lodge therefore witnessed the construction of the Lakehouse by Jon and Carol Hisey. Our experience with them and their family has been very positive. They are kind, quiet, gracious people. While developing the Lakehouse they were most considerate and concerned that the structure was a "good neighbor" and that attitude has continued with the occupants.

I cannot understand why Jon is being personally "blamed " when he did not break any laws, paid all of his bills and built only what the city allows.

I'm sure Mr. Clock will continue to write what he feels must be said.

P.S.: I'm curious as to whatever happened to the expensive, much publicized, and approved "Master Plan," which, I believe called for multi-family all along Park Avenue and I know had a motel on the Sunset Lodge property.

Beaten to beets

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

Perhaps I was a little smug a few weeks ago when I reported that a deer had eaten all of Sonny Noirot's beets at the city garden, but that my beets hadn't been touched.

But the deer got the last laugh.

Sunday morning I visited the garden and discovered all of my beets — all of them — had been carefully harvested. And deer tracks were visible down both rows.

A few ears of corn also had big bites out of them, but nothing else was touched.

There must be something in beets, and beet greens, that appeals to deer. Maybe it's the sugar because they are awfully sweet.

So there won't be any more pickled beets, or Harvard beets, or borsch at the Clock household this fall.

But the kids don't care. They can't stand beets. In fact, I wouldn't be surprised if they paid the deer to come in and pilfer.

I am continually surprised that deer, which are supposed to be creatures of the deep forest, would venture right into the city to do their dirty work. And I wonder where this fellow holes up during the day. Maybe he gets a room at one of the nearby motels.

Deer obviously don't care for tomatoes, potatoes, lettuce, zucchini, acorn squash, carrots, onions or cucumbers — which are still thriving.

The fact that our potato vines are still green and growing at the end of September is another crazy commentary on a crazy year in the horticulture department.

By now the vines should have withered and died and the potatoes crop should have been safely stashed away in the basement. But I hesitate harvest them if they are still growing.

I questioned Keith Lamkin, Cooperative Extension director for Emmet County, about my unusually hardy potatoes.

He says that some years the vines simply refuse to give up the ghost.

"In Scotland and Ireland, they sprinkle the vines with sulphuric acid," he said. "Or you could just beat them to death."

Thanks, but no thanks.

I'll just dig spuds as we need them and hope for the worst. A killing frost can't be too far off.

In the meantime, I hope our friendly, beet-filled city garden deer doesn't suddenly decide to add potatoes to his diet.

AFTER ALL THE complaining about Charlevoix's condominiums, it's nice to hear a few kind words about our old town. And we heard plenty of them last week when 26 Canadians from northeastern Ontario hove into town to get a first-hand look at Charlevoix.

Their purpose was to get ideas on improving the appearance of their own communities and from all reports they liked what they saw in Charlevoix.

One visitor, Bob Konopelky, from Cochrane, said the traffic and business activity in Charlevoix reminded him of a town of 15,000 to 20,000 people — rather than 3,400. He also was impressed by the city's gigantic shade trees, something we tend to take for granted.

As much as I like Charlevoix, I hope Konopelky doesn't go home and try to convert Cochrane into another Lake Michigan resort community — like Gaylord tried to become the Zermatt of the West.

For one thing, I am sure that Cochrane's remoteness is part of its charm. If you are unfamiliar with Canadian geography, let me tell you that Cochrane is closer to James Bay than it is to Sault Ste. Marie. It is so far north that folks in the next town speak Russian.

As for shade trees, you could no more grow an 80-foot maple in Cochrane — which is just south of the North American timberline— than you could grow a coconut palm on Mackinac Island.

But I am sure that Cochrane could capitalize on its all-weather rail line, its millions of acres of muskeg and scrub aspen, its caribou herds, its sparkling trout streams, its deep-blue lakes and its zippy climate. After all, these are Cochrane's stock in trade.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared

by Rev. Lowell Anderson
Charlevoix Assembly of God

Your marriage really can be Divine. It was designed to be that way. Oh, I know there is an endless number of jokes and slurs about marriage and about husband and wives and I've heard most of them. So have you.

I know that, on a national average, about half the marriages end in divorce. I know the ones that don't end in divorce couldn't really be classified as divine, either.

But just because that's the way it is for the majority doesn't make it right. Neither does it make it unchangeable.

God is the designer of marriage, and He created it to be divine. One of the reasons so many people aren't experiencing the wonderful marriage the designer planned is because they're not reading and following His Manual.

The Bible says, "wives, submit to your husband, as to the Lord." "Husbands, love your wives just as Christ loved the Church..." (Ephesians 5:22, 25).

You see, the Designer's Manual on marriage compares the relationship of husband and wife to the divine relationship between Christ and the church.

Marriage is compared to a divine relationship because it is to be a divine relationship. It is an appropriate comparison.

The whole discourse on marriage in Ephesians the fifth chapter gives some very practical instructions on how marriage is to function. When it functions according to the design, it will be divine.

Read it for yourself and see if you don't agree. Apply it in your marriage and see if it won't work.

Plagge-Galer wedding

Mary Charlotte Plagge and Matthew Paul Galer were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, Aug. 8, at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Merle O. Plagge of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Raymond Galer and the late Frances Galer of Dearborn.

The Rev. Philip Schairbaum, officiated at the double-ring ceremony before approximately 160 guests, who sat in pews decorated with heart-shape vine wreaths covered with small arrangements of statice, baby's breath, and eucalyptus tied with pink bows.

The altar was decorated with bouquets of wild flowers arranged by Mrs. David Fowler.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a Victoria-style floor-length gown of ivory satin with cathedral train, made by her mother. It was fashioned with a fitted and dropped waist bodice, flared skirt, and a yoke of Point de'esprit with Alencon lace on neck and sleeves, trimmed with pearls and sequins. The bride's pillbox hat was the same one worn by her mother at her wedding. It was adorned with pearls and sequins and a spray of silk flowers, with a fingertip veil dropped from its crown.

The bride carried a trailing bouquet of roses, daisies, snapdragons, statice, Queen Anne's lace, and ferns.

Elizabeth Sanchez assisted her cousin as matron of honor. She wore an ice pink chintz waltz-length dress fashioned with a fitted bodice, flared skirt, and below-elbow sleeves.

The bridesmaids were Anne Bird, Deborah LaVoie, and sisters of the bridegroom, Jeannette Backman and Judy Lemieur. They wore dresses identical to that of the matron of honor, except in a medium pink shade. All attendants carried a trailing bouquet similar to that of the bride, but smaller.

Michael Galer served his brother as best man. Brian Schultz, Donald Whitton, and brothers of the bride Peter Plagge and Timothy Plagge, were groomsmen.

Several musicians offered music during the ceremony. Vocalist Fran Tollas sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "One Hand, One Heart"; cellist Jilby Miller played an aria by J. S. Bach; flutist Ken Andrews played the Sonata in F. Major by Handel; and a brass quintet offered the processional, "Trumpet Voluntary" by Purcel, and the recessional, "Rondeau" by Mauret.

Members of the quintet were Dr. Stanley George and Peter Plagge, trombonists; Timothy Plagge and Daniel Cheston, trumpeters; and Susan Petipren, who played the French horn.

Elizabeth Humphrey provided organ music and Robert Miller and Nancy Zipay accompanied the soloists.

A reception at Antrim Dells Country Club, hosted by the bride's parents, followed the wedding ceremony. The rehearsal dinner was held at the Grey Gables Inn, hosted by the bridegroom's father.

Following a wedding trip to Toronto, the newlyweds are at home in Kalamazoo, where the bride is employed by Upjohn Home Health Care. The bridegroom is employed by the Portage Public Schools. Both are graduates of Western Michigan University.

Kay and Steven Kolb

Currey-Kolb wedding

Kay E. Currey and Steven M. Kolb were married Saturday evening, Sept. 12, in the Wolverine-Dilworth Hotel in Boyne City.

The bride, who has been living in Chicago, is the daughter of Betty Currey of Charlevoix and the late Robert N. Currey. The bridegroom, also of Chicago, is the son of Jerry Kolb of Greenwich, Conn. and Marlene Kolb of Chicago.

Joel Wittstein officiated at the double-ring ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her mother and her brother, Arthur Currey. Approximately 159 guests were present.

Tracy Heim Hayes of Summerville, S.C., served the bride as matron of honor. Ann Emmons Miller of Chicago and Lisa Kolb of San Diego, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids.

They wore tea-length gowns of American Beauty satin.

Bradley Kolb, brother of the bridegroom from Supertino, Calif., was best man. Ronald Thalheimer of Arlington Heights, Ill, and John Cottingham of California assisted as groomsmen.

Allan Currey of Manchester, Kirk Currey of Anchorage, Alaska, and Michael Sherman of Chicago were ushers.

Mrs. Arthur (Jan) Currey provided piano music for the ceremony.

The bride's mother hosted a reception at the hotel following the wedding ceremony. The bridegroom's father hosted the rehearsal dinner at The Mill in Charlevoix.

Following a wedding trip to Hawaii, the newlyweds are at home at 118 Augusta Ave., DeKalb, Ill., where the bridegroom is a dentist. The bride is also a dentist, practicing in Geneva, Ill.

Both are graduates of Northwestern University Dental School.

Bereaved parents form support group

An organization offering friendship and understanding to bereaved parents is being formed in Northwest Michigan.

Compassionate Friends, which promotes a positive resolution of grief by willingness to listen and share, has established three meeting spots in the area.

The organization provides someone to talk to, a listener who understands. All members involved are parents who have experienced the death of a child.

The group will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 30, in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District building on Mercer Road. For information, call Maxine Dreath at 547-6976 or Peggy Wickestrom at 588-6027.

The mailing address of the Northwest Michigan Chapter of Compassionate Friends is P.O. Box 595, Charlevoix.

Rayders roll to 3rd win

A big second half gave Charlevoix its third straight football victory, a 43-14 romp over Boyne City.

After a tight first half, the Rayders scored four touchdowns in the final two periods to put the game on ice. Charlevoix also had two TDs nullified by penalties.

Despite a first half dominated by the Ramblers' offense, Charlevoix held a 14-6 lead going into the locker room.

Then the Rayder offense hit high gear.

Charlevoix scored first, taking advantage of a Rambler miscue. Jim Tilton's interception return put the Rayders in scoring position, and Dan Drury hit Shawn Putman with a nine-yard pass for paydirt.

Boyne came back to score on a six-yard pass from Troy Heiermann to Scott Patton. The point-after try failed, as had Charlevoix's.

After a Boyne fumble, the Rayders tallied for the second time as David Miller ran 17 yards for the score. Drury connected with Mark LaBlance for the two-point conversion.

A nine-yard TD pass to LaBlance for the first score of the second half followed a 45-yard completion to Marv Witthoeft.

Boyne scored its final touchdown on a pass from Pete Smith to Tom Hennessey and Heiermann ran for the extra points.

Soon after the kickoff, Chad Thorpe scored on a 55-yard run, with Drury passing to Miller for the conversion.

In the final period, Witthoeft scored on a 12-yard run that was set up by a fake punt. Drury again threw to LaBlance for the conversion.

The final touchdown came when Steve Hopkins ran 35 yards for the score. Drury kicked the extra point.

Witthoeft was the leading rusher for Charlevoix with 87 yards in 13 carries, while Thorp ran five times for 76 yards, LaBlanche added 40 yards on seven carries, Miller had 22 yards in three rushes and Hopkins added 35 yards in his single carry.

Drury completed nine of 15 passes for 135 yards and a pair of touchdowns. LaBlance caught four passes and Witthoeft caught two.

Leading tacklers were Mike Smith with 24, LaBlance with 11 and Scott Denny with 10.

Charlevoix is now 2-1 in Michigan-Huron Shores Conference play and 3-1 overall after losing their opening game.

Bowler sets, ties records for local lanes

Dan Gillespie of Charlevoix rolled a 290 game on his way to the highest series ever bowled at Paul Bunyan Lanes.

Competing for Gillespie Oil and Transit in the Sportsman's League, Gillespie started his second game with a spare, then rolled 11 straight strikes.

His 290 tied the lanes record set by John Swanson in the 1960s.

For the three-game series, Gillespie put together a 257, 290 and 195 to set a Paul Bunyan record at 742.

The previous high series was a 712.

Runners finish 2nd in all three events at Petoskey Invitational

Charlevoix runners finished second in all three events in which they were entered in the Petoskey McDonald's-Optimist Cross Country Invitational.

The races were run in classes with Rayder boys participating in the ninth and 10th grade class C-D event and the 11th and 12th grade C-D run. Girls of all grades and school sizes ran in one race.

In the C-D division for seniors and juniors Charlevoix had 80 points to finish behind Benzie Central. The race attracted eight full and five incomplete teams.

Pat Rajewski placed third in 16:05, Tom Merta was eighth in 16:51, Sean Henne 18th in 17:27, Dylan Stewart 25th in 18:09, and Jon Terry 26th in 18:20.

Mike Stargardt finished 32nd in 19:25 and Hal Chase was 39th in 19:58. The winning time of 15:53 by Matt Johnson of Benzie.

In the 9th and 10th grade C-D race Scott Miller set the place, finishing in first place in 16:03. He was followed by Gehry Wiesner in fifth in 17:05, Paul Wakulat 10th in 17:32, Tim Henne 23rd in 18:39 and Bill Crook 25th in 18:50.

Matt Schnackenberg finished 32nd in 19:55, Matt Stargardt 44th in 21:08, Mike Ochs 45th in 21:15, Greg Seaman 54th in 24:04 and Matt Seamon 55th in 24:20. Five teams and four incomplete teams competed in the event won by Kalkaska.

In the girls meet, Julie Bush finished fifth in 20:57, Betsy Haggard 13th in 21:34, Heidi Olinger 17th in 22:05, Elka Thomas 18th in 22:10 and Barb Haggard 27th in 22:45.

Kendra Olinger the sixth place runner, was 32nd in 23:25, Dora Skuladottir 42nd in 24:08 and Jennie Greene, 62nd in 30.02.

Eight teams and two incomplete teams with a total of 65 runners participated in the race. Suttons Bay placed first with 31 points. The top time was 19:57, run by Lisa Popa of the winning team.

Coach Pete Spieles said an invitational meet such as Petoskey's gives a coach an opportunity to evaluate the competition and a chance to see his team's needs.

He said the girls ran a good race and were consistent. Elka Thomas' finish was a happy surprise, he said.

"She had been on the injury list and really came through when we needed her. When Shelly (Ferguson) comes back, we should be in good shape.

Spieles was pleased with the performance of the underclass boys, noting that Miller, Wiesner and Wakulat ran well. He said, though, that the junior and senior runners need to be more consistent.

Middle schoolers host net teams

The Charlevoix Middle School girls basketball teams will host Boyne City seventh and eighth grade teams in games at the middle school gymnasium at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 1

The games are the first in a series with Central Lake, Petoskey, Harbor Springs and Boyne City.

Basketball team grabs 1st victory

Charlevoix's girls basketball team made its way into the win column for the first time with a 52-42 victory over Boyne City.

The Rayders then fell 79-31 to Elk Rapids.

In the Boyne City game, the Rayders took an early 15-7 lead and held on 25-15 at halftime and 36-22 going into the final period.

Charlevoix had 17 field goals and made 18 of 33 free throw attempts while collecting 13 personal fouls. The Ramblers had one less field goal – including three three-pointers – and hit seven of 12 charity shots. They committed 19 personal fouls.

Stacy Gebott topped the scorers with 20 points and Ellen Pearl added 17. Jill Austin collected three personal fouls early in the game, sat out the remainder of the half and picked up her fourth foul early in the second half.

Patty Smoldt had 13 points for the Ramblers.

Coach Stan Martin said the girls played a good game.

Assistant coach Becky Gengle said the JV's made "a great team effort", but lost 43-36.

Cynthia Boydston scored 19 points for the Rayders. Dawn Archambault had 22 for the visitors.

In the Elk Rapids game, the Rayders were outscored 35 to nine from the floor.

Elk Rapids led 22-3, 39-12 and 52-22 at the end of the quarters. The Elks shot nine of 15 from the line and made 19 personal fouls. The Rayders made 13 of 21 free throws and committed 11 personal fouls.

Gebott had nine points and Pearl eight for the Rayders. Austin's second half was her best of the season, Martin said.

Harriers win events in Soo

Rayder boys and girls teams posted cross-country wins – both defeating Sault Ste. Marie and the boys also beating Boyne City.

In the boys triangular meet, the Rayders had 20 points, compared to Soo's 48 and Boyne's 64 as Charlevoix took three of the first four places.

The girls captured the first three places in winning the dual meet with the Soo 20-25.

In the boys event, Pat Rajewski took top honors with a time of 16:40. He was followed by Scott Miller in 17:00; Tom Merta was 4th in 17:46, Gehry Wiesner was sixth in 18:29 and Sean Henne was seventh in 18:34.

In the girls meet, Julie Bush was first in 22:36, Betsy Haggard was second in 22:54 and Heidi Olinger was third in 22:59.

Dan Bickersteth tries a little body English as his shot curves across a green. Holding the pin is Ryan Alaspa of Sault Ste. Marie.

Golf team drops pair of matches

The Rayder golf team dropped matches to Harbor Springs and Sault Ste. Marie.

In the Harbor match, the visiting Rams won 178-200 with Eric Allerding taking medalist honors with a score of 35.

Matt Gibbons carded a 47, Webb Friedly 50, Dan Bickersteth 51 and Tim Jervis 52 for the Rayders.

The Rayder JV's edged out a 197-198 win with Dave Loder the medalist at 46 strokes. Ryan Holmes had 47, Randy Wurst 51 and Scott Crain 53.

James Lambros had a 42 for the Soo as the visitors won 195-205. Ryan Alspa shot 45, Mike Poliski 49 and John Lambros 59.

Friedly shot 48, Jervis 49, Bickersteth 52 and Crain 56 for the Rayders.

The Soo does not have a JV team for out-of-town matches.

Charlevoix will close out its season at Cheboygan on Thursday Oct. 1 and return to the same course Monday, Oct. 5, to participate in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference meet.

Junior varsity beats Boyne gridders

The Rayder junior varsity fought off a tough Boyne City team to gain a 26-18 victory.

Charlevoix opened the scoring as Greg Lewis passed 27 yards to James Corwin midway in the first period. The Rayder conversion attempt failed and they led 6-0.

A 40-yard pass play by Boyne City followed by a conversion kick found the Rayders trailing 7-6.

As the second half got underway, Corwin romped 20 yards to score. The conversion failed and the Rayders held a 12-7 advantage.

A pass from Lewis to Corwin for 29 yards and a TD put Charlevoix ahead 18-7.

Early in the final period, Boyne City struck again, this time on a long pass play. The Rayders blocked the conversion kick but the ball bounced back to the kicker who completed a pass in the end zone for a two-point conversion to cut the Rayder margin 18-15.

A long drive that ate up nine minutes on the clock resulted on a quarterback sneak by Lewis from one yard out, to put the game on ice. Lewis passed to Corwin for the conversion.

Pat Elliott had 15 tackles and Jim Marquardt and Chad DeYoung also looked good, coach Brian Certa said.

Certa praised Lewis and Corwin on offense and the defensive line.

The Rayders record is now 3-0-1.

Freshmen fall to Northmen

Charlevoix's freshman football team lost to Petoskey 40-8.

The Rayders were held scoreless until late in the final period when James McGee scored from seven yards out. Dan Terryberry passed to Scott Campbell for the conversion.

Most of the Northmen's scoring plays were on the ground with one one pass, Rayder Coach Erik Lundteigen said.

Corey Bush and Campbell had outstanding games on defense, Brandon Jess had two interceptions, McGee did well on offense and Jason Parrish did a good job blocking, Lundteigen said.

Flag football season gets started

The Charlevoix Flag Football League launched its six-game season under the sponsorship of the Charlevoix Recreation Department.

The games, to be played at the Carpenter Avenue field, will be played on Monday nights with one exception, Wednesday, Sept. 30, when the Giants play the Wildcats at 6 p.m. and the Dolphins meet the Panthers at 7:15 p.m.

The league boasts four teams. The Giants are coached by Jiggs Whitley and Paul Parrish, the Panthers by Ken Smith, Shaun Schuler and Bill Ferroli, the Wildcats by Shannon Reynolds and the Dolphins by Don Voisin.

On opening night, the Giants shut out the Panthers 26-0 and the Dolphins defeated the Wildcats 30-12.

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

JIM GIBBS is making a name for himself at Michigan Tech, where the freshman has become the starting wide receiver for the Huskies' football team. In Tech's victory over St. Norbert, Gibbs caught a touchdown pass and accounted for 117 yards on receptions.

Gibbs, who was a quarterback in his high school days, received the offensive player of the week award. Then, against Duluth, he set up a touchdown with an 80-yard kickoff return to the two-yard-line.

MEG FOWLER is the leading scorer on Alma College's field hockey team, which is 4-1-1 so far this season. Fowler scored both of Alma's goals in a victory over Hope to keep Alma unbeaten at 3-0 in the MIAA league. She has scored five goals in the six games.

JACQUELINE ERBER of Charlevoix has been selected for the Homecoming court at Hillsdale College. The queen will be selected Saturday during ceremonies.

The senior is one of seven candidates for the honor. She is representing the Pi Beta Phi sorority, of which she is a member.

Canadians look at Charlevoix for downtown clues economies.

Parker is the mayor of Onaping Falls, a town that thinks nothing of 40-below temperatures in the winter.

A miner for International Nickel, he spends eight hours a day in the mine "and the other 16 as mayor."

His northern Ontario town is interested in trying to develop its fishing and hunting industries and has a feasibility study in the works.

While the nickel mine remains the primary source of employment in town, there are only 600 jobs where there once were 3,000, Parker says.

Technological advances and market share decline have hurt the town, which is now interested in developing its other resources into a tourist industry.

Wyatt's town of Port Hope has a different problem – a shopping center.

A 56-unit center has been approved for a site five miles from the town he is mayor of, 60 miles east of Toronto, and he fears it could "annihilate the downtown."

The shopping center won't even be in Port Hope, but in a neighboring community, giving the city no say in its development.

Already, some residents travel closer to the metropolis to do their shopping, he says, and a shopping center close by could sweep more away.

Wyatt has faith in Port Hope's residents – recalling how they rallied after a devastating flood in 1980 – but is looking for ways to save the 150-year-old downtown.

The group was met in Charlevoix by Mayor Ralph McRae, City Manager Mike Wiesner, Chamber of Commerce director Jacquie Merta and Downtown Development Authority members Gene Steele, Jeff Porter and Jeannine Wallace.

On a walking tour, they saw what the Downtown Development Authority and city have accomplished – the Erber parking lot, Hoffmann Park, public safety building.

Then they learned from Steele, Wiesner and the others how the DDA works. Ontario does have a program similar in scope to the DDA concept, but it involves provincial money rather than locally generated funds.

After dinner at the Weathervane, they were back on the bus on their way to tour another downtown, then head for their hotel rooms – and perhaps a peek at baseball highlights on late-night TV.

They left a few reminders of their trip, though – granite plaques for the city and chamber, lapel pins for officials and a Blue Jays cap for the city manager.

Obituaries

Timothy Zook

Frequent summer visitor Ensign Timothy Zook, 24, died Sept. 15. Services and interment were in the Spring, Texas, area, where his parents live.

Zook stayed with Joan and Paul Hoffman in Charlevoix during the summer of 1986 while he worked at Parkside Restaurant.

He was a graduate of the Naval Aviation Officers Candidate School and of the University of Texas.

His parents, Donald and Katherine Zook, 4135 Laverock, Spring, Texas 77373, would appreciate hearing from his friends in Charlevoix.

Eleanor Carson

Eleanor M. Carson, 86, of Charlevoix, died Saturday, Sept. 26, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Funeral services were held at First Congregational Church Tuesday, Sept. 29. The Rev. Philip Schairbaum officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

The former Eleanor McBride, daughter of Robert and Emma Secord McBride, was born July 16, 1901, at Hamilton, Ont., and came to East Jordan with her parents as a girl.

She graduated from East Jordan High School and attended Western Michigan College, earning a teaching degree. She returned to East Jordan where she taught kindergarten for 13 years.

She married Kit Carson at Boyne City in 1926. They made their home in East Jordan until coming to Charlevoix in 1937. Mr. Carson preceded her in death. Dec. 8, 1973.

She was a member of First Congregational Church. She had always been active in community affairs, having served as a member of the board of directors of Charlevoix Area Hospital for 15 years and as fund-raiser and interior decorator at the time the present hospital was constructed; as a member of the Charlevoix Board of Education; as a Cub Scout den mother; as a member of the Charlevoix Garden Club and on the Waterfront Art Fair committee for many years, including as chairperson for one year and as neighborhood chairperson for many fund-raising campaigns.

In 1986 she was recognized for her service to the community by being named grand marshal of the annual Venetian Festival Street Parade.

Surviving are one son, Kit of East Lansing; five grandchildren, Kit III, Kelly, Christopher, Cory and Kirk; and two sisters, Aura Stevenson of East Jordan and Eva Brown of Battle Creek.

The family suggests memorials to the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Evnelopes are available at Winchester Funeral Home which was in charge of arrangements.

Harold McFarland

Harold E. McFarland, 80, of Charlevoix, died Monday, Sept. 21, at Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey.

Graveside services were held at Sunset Hill Cemetery in East Jordan Friday, Sept. 25. The Rev. Robert Bellairs of Barnard United Methodist Church officiated.

Born Nov. 6, 1906, at Forent, Ont., Canada, son of Robert and Mary (Brush) McFarland, he came to the United States as a young man. He was a barber at the Pantlind Hotel in Grand Rapids for many years.

A resident of Charlevoix since 1980, he was a veteran of World War II. He lived at Pine River Place and organized recreational activities at the facility.

He was an avid barbershop singer and for many years was a member of a Grand Rapids chapter of SPEBSQSA. He enjoyed music and sports and attended many activities in the area.

Surviving are his wife, the former Ione McClanaghan, whom he married in Norwood Township on Sept. 14, 1985; two sons, Harold Corser of Gregory and Fred Corser of Canton; three step-daughters, Delores Chanda of East Jordan, Vivian Sumerville of Alba and Verenea Sullivan of Austin, Texas; three step-sons, Reginald Corey of Mt. Morris, Harold McClanaghan and Lionel McClanaghan, both of Charlevoix; several grandchildren; several great-grandchildren; and a brother, Reese McFarland of Pompano Beach, FL.

The family suggests memorials to Pine River Place. Paullen Funeral Home of East Jordan was in charge of arrangements.

St. Mary's Parish gets new priest

The Rev. James K. Gardiner has assumed his new pastorate at St. Mary's Parish.

He came to Charlevoix from St. Ann's parish in Alpena where he also served the St. Rose mission at Herron.

Gardiner succeeds the Rev. Casimir J. Zawacki who, at his request, was transferred to the smaller parish of Hannah after three years at St. Mary's.

In addition to his duties as pastor, Gardiner has been named vicar of this area by Bishop Robert J. Rose of the Gaylord Diocese.

In this position, he will serve as liaison among the priests and laity of parishes in East Jordan, Boyne City, Petoskey and Harbor Springs, their respective mission and Bishop Rose.

Gardiner has had a varied career during 18 years in the priesthood. He served as director of the American Indian Apostolate at Peshawbestown in Leelanau County and the missions at St. Wenceslas at Gill's Pier and St. Gertrude at Northport for eight years.

During a hitch in the U.S. Navy he was staff chaplain at Norfolk, Va.

United Way kicks off campaign

The United Way of the Charlevoix area will officially kick off its 1987 fund-raising drive at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 1, in the council chambers of Charlevoix City Hall. Campaign chairman, board members and leaders of various solicitation divisions will gather to review campaign strategy and make final preparations for the fall program.

The organization hopes to raise $37,000 in this campaign. Approximately $5,000 has already been pledged in a summer-resident campaign.

Payroll-deduction – which has ensured strong support in the past – will be a key theme in this year's program. To encourage as much payroll deduction as possible, solicitation division leaders will be approaching local businesses to ask their support in making necessary arrangements in their payroll and accounting departments.

Campaign chairman Nancy Porter has announced that this year's division leaders will be: industrial, Bill Sherman; financial, Tom Bickersteth; marine, Frank North; medical, Jeff Porter; public schools, Gayle Gennett; government, Mike Wiesner; realtors, Alyce Lesser; contractors, Traver Wood; merchants, Mike Greeley and Mike Holmes; bars and restaurants, Mark Martin; lodges, Doug Shaw, beauty shops, Sandy Bonello; insurance, Dick Martin and Don Voisin; special gifts, Nancy Porter; Norwood area, Liz Mielke; Island View-Clipperview, Darrell Linder; accountants, Sam Supernaw; Coast Guard, Pauline Cook.

This year's campaign will run through October and November, coinciding with other campaigns conducted on the local and national levels.

Medusa gives new carrier big welcome

by PEG OHLE

Medusa's newest barge -- the Conquest.

The christening of a new ship gave Medusa Cement Co. and area officials an opportunity to remind Charlevoix of the company's importance to the community.

Medusa president Daniel Somes said the company proved wrong gloomy warnings the Great Lakes area was on the decline as an industrial center.

Medusa came to Charlevoix in 1967, and since 1979 it has spent more than $75 million to expand and upgrade the operations because the company recognizes the abundance of natural resources, skilled labor and deep water transportation the area provides, Somes said.

"Instead of dying, the whole Great Lakes area has rebounded much faster than anyone had predicted," Somes said.

County commissioner Don Smith spoke of the economic impact Medusa has on the area, noting it employs 140 people directly, leading to another estimated 280 service-related jobs, for a total of 420 jobs.

Since there are only about 3,000 jobs in the Charlevoix area, Smith said, Medusa is responsible for about 14 percent of the jobs.

And, Smith continued, "it pays $820,000 in property taxes."

Mayor Ralph McRae also noted the importance of Medusa to Charlevoix.

"The by-product of Medusa is money for the Charlevoix area," he said. "Its tax money has helped Charlevoix Township (where the plant is located) pave its roads and bring in homeowners. Now the township is growing faster than the city."

McRae said Medusa's $2 million annual payroll benefits retail sales, services and the general welfare of the community.

The Conquest is Medusa's second cement-hauling vessel. It is 420 feet long, 55 feet wide, and has a load capacity of 8,500 tons.

It is somewhat smaller than its sister ship, the Challenger, which has been familiar to Charlevoix residents for many years.

The Conquest will make regular runs to Medusa terminals in Milwaukee, Manitowoc, Chicago, Detroit, Ferrysburg, Cleveland and Toledo.

It is not yet known whether it will have the same hex on the Michigan Avenue bridge in Chicago as The Challenger did in its early days.

On several occasions, that bridge became stuck in an upright position after The Challenger passed under it, leaving big-city traffic in hours-long traffic snarls and drivers denouncing Medusa.

Dan Staublin, local Medusa official, said he hoped the hex would not carry over to the Conquest.

Staublin and Diane Kline of Medusa's Cleveland plant were co-winners in a company contest to name the new cement vessel.

They received identical prizes and Kline was assigned the task of breaking a bottle of champagne over the bow of the Conquest.

History group opens museum for daily tours

In recognition of Michigan Museum Week, the Charlevoix Historical Society will host an open house from 1 until 4 p.m. at Harsha House, 103 State St., Saturday, Oct. 3, through Saturday, Oct. 10.

Historical society members will serve as guides and answer questions about the community which was established early in the 1800's as Pine River.

During the past 15 years, Harsha House, donated to the society by the late Anne Harsha, has been converted into a museum. Contributions have been catalogued and are on display.

The society will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 6, for its regular meeting.

Alice Bellinger will present a program on "Music" and will demonstrate the antique organ at the museum.

Guests are invited.

Senior citizen party takes on flapper theme

Charlevoix County's three senior centers are sponsoring their third annual "Pink Tea" on Tuesday, Oct. 6, from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Wolverine-Dilworth Hotel in Boyne City.

Although the mode of dress is not mandatory, guests are asked to wear flapper-era clothes to carry out the party's theme.

There will be a style show and other entertainment, and hors d'oeuvres will be served with the tea.

A limited number of tickets, at $6 each, are available. They may be obtained from the senior center in Charlevoix, East Jordan or Boyne City. The Charlevoix phone number is 547-5361.

Green space-living space swap endorsed

Trading building space for green space seems like a good idea to the planning commission and zoning board of appeals.

Now, it will be up to the city council to decide if the swap is allowed.

Both city boards have given approval to a plan for the old Fairport Marine property on Belvedere that would let four apartments there are revamped into larger units.

In exchange, parking – which now covers a good chunk of the Round Lake-front property – would be moved entirely into an underground garage and the outdoor lot would be made into lawn.

That would return an area about 130- by 50-feet along the lake to more attractive use, says Gilbert Ziegler, owner of the property.

The proposal has been on hold for most of the summer as planning commission and zoning board of appeals members studied and resolved questions concerning use of the property and exceptions to zoning regulations.

First was whether expansion of the site was allowable because the building is a non-conforming use. A non-conforming use is a building with a certain purpose that was allowed on a site before the zoning ordinance was adopted but which would not be allowed to be built there now.

The zoning board in July decided the building could be rebuilt, but only on the "footprint" – building outline – of the original building.

In September, the board changed that to allow a footprint about 25 percent larger because the parking lot would be moved inside.

"Look at the entire envelop," Ziegler had asked, not just at the building itself.

The zoning board's decision to allow expansion of the non-conforming use confused some council members, who thought no new construction was allowed on a non-conforming building.

City attorney Jeff VanTreese explained that there is a difference between a non-conforming use (one which pre-existed the zoning ordinance) and a non-conforming structure (one which does not meet building standards).

Next it had to be determined how many apartment units the site traditionally had. City records showed two utility meters, but the plan showed four units.

Statements from a former owner and from a contractor (and former council member) who added two units around 1970 reassured everyone that there were four.

Then variances from zoning regulations for building height, chimney height and building space had to be decided:

The zoning board, which has final say on such matters, decided to ignore a 2½-story rule in the marine commercial zone because the building met the overall 35-foot limitation.

The board said it had no jurisdiction over the chimneys because the zoning ordinance does not address chimney height in the marine commercial zone. It does limit chimneys to the 35-foot limit in other zones.

And the board determined that trading about 1,000 square feet of building space (which includes the underground parking) for green space was a reasonable swap.

Board members noted that under marine commercial use, it is permissible to add other buildings on the property without variance or zoning approvals. They thought this plan would be more attractive than a pole barn along the waterfront, for instance.

The planning commission then approved the site plan – a drawing showing where the building, parking and other items – would be.

City council must now pass judgment on the site plan, but it has no say on the variances and other determinations made by the zoning board.

Council consideration could come at the Monday, Oct. 5, meeting.

Gun club holds turkey shoot

The Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club will hold a turkey shoot at 10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 3.

Events will be a running deer for both rifle and muzzle loaders, benchrest shooting for rifles, 100-yard polker shoot, pistol silhouette shooting and archery competition.

Food and drink will be available throughout the day.

Rain date will be Sunday, Oct. 4.

Last week's front page photo of Charlevoix Elementary students left many readers confused. The information explaining what was going on was left off the page.

The entire student body of the school was reciting the Pledge of Allegiance at the same time students around the nation were as part of the celebration of the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

City gives OK to 11-unit condo plan industry officials Thursday, Oct. 1.

A request for hotel use in the commercial scenic zone along the channel was rejected twice by the planning commission, then approved by the zoning board of appeals in a vote later ruled invalid by the city attorney.

A second vote is anticipated after proper notification procedures are followed to allow neighbors to voice their opinions.

A request for a residential club has been stalled as the zoning board has not been able to define the term in relation to the zoning ordinance.

The planning commission passed on an opportunity to interpret the ordinance.

Berlage withdrew requests for variances to allow a nine-unit condo after the zoning board approved variances for the 11-unit site.

Consideration of Berlage's plan came in the midst of a citizen-group attempt, led by Mayor Ralph McRae, to halt construction of high-density projects along the lakes.

With community interest in the project high, the zoning board and planning commission endorsed changes in the plan to ensure a continued view of Lake Michigan from Hoffmann Park.

The changes involved pushing the building back from the water's edge about 15 to 20 feet beyond the 40 feet originally planned.

In exchange, the building could be built wider than normal, but no wider than the overall width of the houses it would replace.

Berlage has one year to begin construction or the city's approval lapses. He said after council approval of the city plan that he is being forced into construction he had not intended.

FALLFUNFEST

Industry – one of the area's lesser-recognized resources – goes on parade Saturday for the third Charlevoix County Industrial Fair.

The event, in the high school gymnasium, will be open to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. On Friday, exhibitors will meet with high school students.

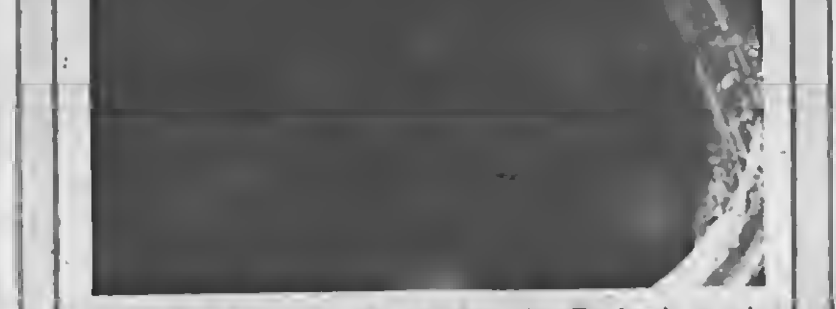
A special section on the Industrial Fair is included with today's Courier.

Homecoming weekend kicks off with the traditional parade, football game and coronation on Friday. Following the game is a dance.

Vying for king and queen of the festivities are 10 Charlevoix High seniors (above and on page 10). The royalty will be crowned at halftime of the game with Gaylord.

Another big sporting event this weekend is the annual Claire Martin cross-country invitational Saturday at Belvedere Golf Club. This year's field is the biggest yet, with 13 schools entered.

For more about homecoming activities, turn to page 10. For more about the cross-country meet, turn to page 6.



It's time again for the Applefest, the Charlevoix area's celebration of fall. This year's two-day event comes at the peak of the color season – Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 10-11.

Apple farmers and civic organizations will line East Park with foods and drinks for sale – singly and by the bushel or gallon. Fall color wagon tours will be available at Lake Charlevoix Farms.

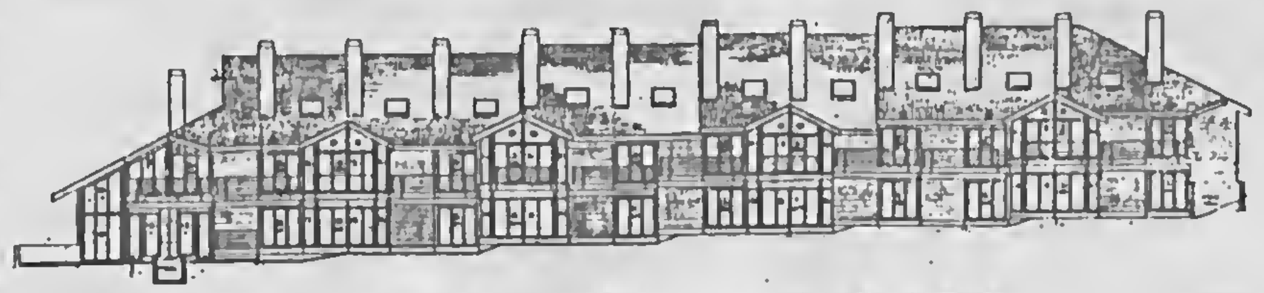
An annual part of the festivities is the arts and crafts show in the Market Mall. This year there are 10 exhibitors. For more information, turn to page 10.

The city's new municipal water treatment plant will be dedicated with a ribbon-cutting ceremony at 10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 10.

Following the ceremony, the facility will be open to the public until 3 p.m. Visitors will be able to tour the facility, and refreshments will be served.

Rysberg shrinks a little

New plans put peaked roof on city's newest hotel project



How the Rysberg Inn would look from Michigan Avenue

A new plan for the Rysberg Inn calls for the hotel to be one-story lower than originally drawn, but only a couple feet shorter.

The hotel, which is under construction on Michigan Avenue across from the Edgewater Inn, is now a 24-unit building.

In its original conception the hotel contained 33 units. The site plan has been redrawn by architect H. Jack Begrow to eliminate one story and nine units.

The overall height of the structure would be about 33 feet – compared with a 35-foot top in the first plan.

The change allows for the roofline to become peaked and calls for dormers from the second-story lofts to peak through the roof.

The three-story plan had a flatter roof.

Begrow has been in recent discussion with the planning commission over ways to put pitched roofs on larger buildings in the city.

Under the zoning ordinance's present provisions, he said, buildings would be constructed with fewer stories than sometimes economically feasible to carry a peaked roof.

The planners have been studying alternative methods of determining building height in an attempt to encourage pitched roofs.

Begrow told planners a few weeks ago that Charlevoix is the only city in northern Michigan which uses the measurement method prescribed in the zoning code.

The new plans will have to go through the normal site plan review process, city planner Gerry Harsch says, even though there are no changes in the project's footprint.

The hotel did not require any variances the first time through, Harsch said, and he did not foresee the need for any this time.

About the only exterior change – except for those caused by the roofline – is an alteration in the parking, he said, which is in line with the reduced number of hotel rooms.

Plans call for inclusion of an approximately 50- by 60-foot space on the basement level for future conference rooms.

The hotel is being built by Bryan Rysberg of Okemos. It will sit in the middle of the hotel complex north of the bridge, with the Edgewater, Lodge and Weathervane encircling the building.

Earlier plans referred to the structure as the Rysberg Inn, but the latest drawings call it Pine River Inn – the same name Don Berlage has been using on plans for his proposed project on Park Avenue.

Under developmental site plan review, the project must pass muster with the planning commission, an advisory body, and with the city council.

These panels determine whether the plan meets the requirements set down by the city zoning ordinance.

High winds caused waves to rip Friday at the north pier on the Pine River Channel. The winds were recorded in the mid-30s on land but reached into the 60s on Lake Michigan. As waves landed atop the pier, the water from them cascaded down the sides of the structure – creating a waterfall effect.

AROUND THE TOWN

Charlevoix ought to be in pictures and, in fact, is – at least in a special videotape.... The city is the star attraction in a promotional video produced to try to entice more businesses to open operations in the area....

The videotape was produced by a Cedar firm for the Charlevoix Industrial Development Committee, which is trying to sell lots in the city industrial park and attract industry to other parts of the area...

The tape, called "Charlevoix – A City Without Limits" includes aerial and ground-level views of the city and features residents talking about its attributes.... Appearing on the tape are Mayor Ralph McRae, Tim Moore, Don Voison, Mike Wiesner, Josh Barnes, Max Hosmer, Ron Pair, Gordon Wellman, Gordon VanWieren, Barbara Skeel and Jim Hater....

Those on the committee are Wiesner, Hater, Voison, McRae, Earl Muma, Elbert Kaiser, Dick Beagle, Tom Wieland and Jacquie Merta.

Charlevoix is getting plenty of tourism promotion from the state this year.... A photo of Round Lake Harbor has been featured in two Michigan Travel Bureau publications....

First, the full-color aerial photo appeared as the cover for the bureau's Summer Travel Planner, filling both the front and back covers of the booklet.... Now, the same photo has been reproduced inside A Guide to Group Tours in Michigan....

The photo was taken during Venetian Festival a few years ago and shows the Mesquite, Beaver Islander, South Shore and Star of Charlevoix as well as several smaller boats in the harbor.... The accompanying text invites tourists to visit the Brumm gallery and Earl Young "subdivision," browse the shops on Bridge Street and (oops) take a ride on the Star.... At least they were thinking of us.

Voters unable to make it to the polls for the November general election can obtain absentee ballots now.....Talk to the clerk's office at city hall about what you need to do....

Offices open for election this year are city clerk and three council posts, one from each ward.... Clerk Arlene Staley is unopposed, as are council members Norm Probert and Earl Muma.... Facing opposition is Bob Timms, who is being challenged by Alvin "Butch" Russell....

There was no primary in August because there were no more than two candidates for any position.

Conference center explored for city

If Charlevoix were to build a conference center, it shouldn't expect to make any money off it.

That's the advice of Chuck Skelton, a consultant in hotel and conference center construction.

Skelton is head of the Michigan business consulting group of Laventhol and Horvath certified public accountants.

He was invited to Charlevoix to talk to city and hospitality industry representatives about the possibility of adding a conference center to city attractions.

"The good news is conference centers are great" for pulling visitors into town, he said. "The bad news is they don't make any money."

But making money directly off a convention or conference facility is not always the motivating force for building one, he said.

A conference center is a "demand builder," a device for filling hotel rooms, restaurants and retail shops.

Charlevoix doesn't need added demand builders during the mid-summer tourist season, he said, but is trying to extend the season by padding the "shoulder" seasons of late spring and early fall.

Courier receives 4 awards

The Charlevoix Courier has been awarded four prizes in the annual Michigan Press Association competition. The awards were announced in conjunction with National Newspaper Week.

In competition of other weekly newspapers of its size, the Courier received a second place award and three honorable mentions. Doug Truax was editor during the period judged.

The Courier's use of color on its pages received a second place award from the judges, who were members of the Nebraska Press Association.

Receiving honorable mentions were Edith Gilbert, whose column 'Round Town appears every other week, and the special Christmas Carol book distributed with the paper in December.

The Courier also was given an honorable mention for overall general excellence.

There were 86 weekly and 42 daily newspapers entered in the competition, which is judged in categories based on circulation.

Icelander spending year in Charlevoix

by PEG OHLE

Dora Drofn Skuladottir was in the cafeteria eating her lunch of combination salad and milk. The noise and activity around her led Dora to agree Charlevoix High is different than her old school of 70 students in Raufarhofn, Iceland.

Dora is an American Scandinavian Exchange Student who is spending the entire school year away from the fishing village in which she grew up.

She had already completed nine years of schooling and graduated from the small high school in Raufarhofn before becoming a senior at Charlevoix High School, from which she will also graduate next June.

Like so many Charlevoix students, Dora is engaged in school activities other than classes. She is on the staff of The Rayder yearbook and is a member of the girls' cross country team, where she is steadily improving.

Dora is studying English, history, sociology, art and performing arts. Her command of English, which she studied in Iceland, is good enough to carry on a conversation.

She explained that the native language of Iceland is Norse, which, unlike other Scandinavian languages, has changed little through the last several hundred years.

The high school in Raufarhofn differs in many ways from Charlevoix High, Dora said. There, students cannot choose their classes; that is left up to the teachers, and class schedules differ from day to day.

However, Dora did study Danish (Iceland was part of Denmark for almost 600 years), English, mathematics, world history and other subjects familiar to American students, including art and band music.

Dora spends more time on homework here than she did in Raufarhofn, but that is because of the language difference, she explained.

When she is not in school or practicing cross country running, Dora likes to go to movies, drive around town with her friends or watch television. American television is a revelation to her because in Iceland there are only two channels, although they do receive some American programs.

When asked about football, Dora admitted she did not think much of the game. It is too rough a sport for her.

Dora does not yet know what she will study in college, although in Iceland most jobs are open to both men and women. As in this country, there are many specialized schools for nursing, teaching, engineering and other occupations.

Both of Dora's parents are engaged in the fishing industry, which is Iceland's major employer. Most of the fish caught and brought into Raufarhofn are cod, which are prepared for export by freezing, salting or canning.

"We eat much fish," Dora said, adding that she is surprised at the variety of food in this country. Although on this particular day Dora ate a salad for lunch, she does like hamburgers, hot dogs and pizza, she confessed.

Since exchange students are not permitted to drive automobiles, Dora rides a bus to school, a new experience for her, but sometimes she gets a ride with a neighboring student.

Dora's host family for the year is that of Norman and Elaine Tolman of Islandview, south of Charlevoix. According to Dora, they did a great job of preparing her for life in Charlevoix. "They wrote me letters and sent me pictures," she said, "so I wasn't too surprised when I came here."

Dora's family consists of her father and mother, sisters age 20 and 12 and a brother age 11. They write to her regularly, because "I made them promise." she recalls. And she writes regularly too.

Dora has made only one phone call home since arriving in Charlevoix, that to tell her family she had arrived safely. "Telephone costs too much," she added.

Dora will not be home for Christmas this year, the first time she has not been with her family at holiday time. However, she is looking forward to receiving their gifts and plans to send them typically American gifts.

Public school enrollment slips, while St. Mary's increases

Official Fourth Friday enrollment counts in Charlevoix Public Schools reveal a 28-student decrease from last year.

This year's enrollment of 1310 is down from 1,338 in 1986.

The high school suffered the only loss – 60 students – cutting enrollment back to 428.

Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren says part of the decrease can be attributed to a graduating class of 138 being followed by a freshman class of 91. This accounts for 47 of the students. Other classes show decreases mainly as the result of families moving from the school district.

The other school have increases, 11 in the elementary and 19 in the middle school.

Kindergarten enrollment numbers 97, compared to 109 in 1986. This decrease is due in part to St. Mary's having a kindergarten for the first time with 11 students.

While the first grade and fourth grade show increases, the number of students in the other grades decreased.

Students from St. Mary's – eight who were in the sixth grade in 1986 and 10 who would have been in the sixth grade this year – account for most of the increase in the middle school this year. St. Mary's does not have a sixth grade.

The decrease in enrollment follows a trend which began in the mid-1970's and has continued at a varying rate.

A breakdown of enrollment by grades and schools follows:

Grade	1987	1986
Kind.	97	109
First	105	94
Second	88	90
Third	86	98
Fourth	107	87
Fifth	88	82
	571	560
Sixth	95	98
Seventh	106	109
Eighth	110	85
	311	292
Ninth	91	114
Tenth	109	114
Eleventh	114	120
Twelfth	114	138
	428	486
Grand Total	1310	1338

Enrollment at St. Mary's increased seven students to 77 in kindergarten through fifth grade.

Last year there were 70 in first through sixth grades.

The school, which is offering kindergarten for the first time, has 11 students enrolled in the class. First and fourth grades also have increases while the others have slight decreases.

Enrollment figures follow:

Grade	1987	1986
Kind.	11	-
First	17	12
Second	13	14
Third	17	18
Fourth	13	8
Fifth	6	10
Sixth	-	8
	77	70

New principal, teachers join St. Mary's School

A new principal and two new teachers have joined St. Mary's School.

They are Sister Lydia Korson, principal; Ann Kelly, who is teaching kindergarten and an afternoon session of third grade; and Jeff Greene, who teaches fourth and fifth grades.

Sister Lydia, who teaches religion in second and third grades, has a master's degree in administration from Central Michigan University, a bachelor's degree in education and a certificate in theology from Aquinas College.

She is a member of the Dominican Order and has served in dioceses of Sante Fe, N.M., Saginaw, Grand Rapids, and Gaylord. She comes to Charlevoix from Alpena and is a native of Leelanau County.

Kelly has become the school's first kindergarten teacher. She has a bachelor's degree from Ohio Dominican College and an early childhood endorsement from Central Michigan University.

She has also taught creative writing and done freelance writing for area newspapers. Her home is in Charlevoix.

Greene is a recent graduate of Central Michigan University with a bachelor's degree in math. He is also a Charlevoix resident.

New staff members at St. Mary's School are the Rev. James K. Gardiner, Sister Lydia Korson, O.P., and teachers Anne Kelly and Jeff Greene. The school's staff: (seated from left) Eileen Heck, art instructor; Greene, 4th and 5th grades; Sister Lydia, principal and religion teacher; Kelly, kindergarten and afternoon 3rd grade; Jeanne Dubey, first grade. Standing: Gardiner; Linda Moore, second grade and morning third grade. Missing: Jeanie Lignell, music instructor.

Opinion

Visiting team treated to rude behavior

Letters to the editor:

Editor,

I went to the Charlevoix-Boyne City football game on Friday the 25th, and I was really ashamed to have people know that I was from Charlevoix because of what I saw was downright "rude" to the visiting team. For one thing there was no bleachers for the visiting team (some type of seating could have been arranged for family and friends).

Also as I looked around the field I noticed that the Charlevoix cheerleaders had a platform for them to cheer on so that everyone could see them but nothing was fixed for the cheerleaders of the visiting team. What's the matter, does the Charlevoix School feel that they might be outshined by another school?

Also the Charlevoix girls had a place to sit down and I sure didn't see anything for the visiting cheerleaders. I didn't even see the Charlevoix cheerleaders try to be a good hostess to the Boyne City girls, which to me is of very poor taste. I am sure that they would feel lousy and left out if this would happen to them. I feel that they show very poor sportsmanship.

Last year I went to a Boyne City game, as my grandson Scott Crain is on the team, and I was really impressed that the cheerleaders met in the field and exchanged greetings to one another and even after that they tried to make the visiting team feel at home. This is good sportsmanship and I really congratulate Boyne City for their warm hospitality.

It is too bad that our school doesn't have more courtesy to other visiting teams instead of thinking to themselves and glory. There is more to life than that and I hope that they learn this. It is great to win but in the meantime you have to be more courteous and make people want to come back because they know that they will be welcome.

I am really ashamed to say that I am from Charlevoix and I know that there are a few others that feel the same way because I heard quite a few comments the other night, so I know that other people saw what I saw.

Come on Charlevoix students, start treating the visiting schools as you like to be treated.

Message on Contras clear

Editor:

An Open Letter to Rep. Robert Davis:

Dear Rep. Davis:

After the revelations of the Iran-/Contra investigations, I felt sure that Congress would vote against further aid to the Contras. Was I wrong?

Apparently the House (and you) have already voted for $3.5 million in "humanitarian" aid for the Contras. This was attached to a necessary "stop-gap" measure to keep our own government functioning beyond the Sept. 30 end of fiscal 1987. It also is a "stop-gap" measure to keep alive a rebel force that, without U.S. aid would rapidly disintegrate.

You say that you are still undecided how you will vote on the coming administration request for $270 million in military aid. If your indecision indicates a willingness to give the Central American peace plan a chance then you will wait at least until Nov. 7 before voting on any more Contra aid. However, your past voting record suggests that your indecision is prompted more by a desire to test which way the political winds are blowing back home, before publicly committing yourself on this issue. So here's one voice from your home district to help you decide.

U.S. aid of any kind to the Contras, at this point in the Central American peace process, sends the wrong signal. It tells the Central American leadership in all five Central American countries, that any rhetoric about peaceful diplomacy coming from this administration or this Congress, is just empty words. It tells the American people that Congress has learned nothing from the Iran/Contra revelations of the past year. It lends legitimacy to a rebel fighting force that has no unified base of support among Nicaraguans and is entirely dependent on the United States for its continued existence. It tells the whole world that the U.S. Congress is willing to overlook corruption on the part of Contra leaders and terrorist acts on the part of Contra forces.

The message from Congress at this time ought to be a clear and unequivocal "NO" to all forms of aid to the Contras. Give peace in Central America a chance!

Knowing Henry Ford

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

I wonder if reporters sometimes leave the wrong impression of the people we write about, since, of necessity, we do deal more with conflict than we do with harmony.

A case in point is Henry Ford II, grandson of the automotive pioneer who died last week in Detroit at age 70.

It came as something of a surprise that members of the Detroit news media didn't know him better than they apparently did.

The first stories about his death detailed his role in the history of the Ford Motor Co. which he ran for most of his adult life. The stories painted Ford in the stereotype of an auto industry tycoon, hard, brittle, cold, unfeeling — and thrice married.

When the columnists jumped in with their post-mortems, most of them pointed out that Mr. Ford was generally referred to as "Hank the Deuce" behind his back, an sobriquet that scarcely conveyed much warmth or humanity.

THEN CAME COMMENTS at the funeral Friday by Mr. Ford's son Edsel, who, even though he is in his 30s, repeatedly referred to his father as "Daddy." He said Daddy was a man who never forgot to say "please" and "thank you."

This doesn't sound much like a wheeling and dealing auto executive, does it?

Edsel also was visibly shaken by his father's death and didn't try to hide his grief.

Hmmm. There must have been more to Henry Ford II than an auto magnate in a grey flannel suit, a jet-setter who hob-nobbed with the rich and famous.

Finally over the weekend, the Detroit Free Press decided to interview a few people who really knew Mr. Ford, such as Marjorie Fisher, wife of Detroit developer Max Fisher; Mort Lieberman, president of Dynamic Industries in Warren; Joyce Garrett, personnel director for the city of Detroit; Tony Spina, Free Press photographer; and Judge Damon Keith of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

SUDDENLY, an altogether different picture of the late industrialist emerged — a man who laughed a lot, a man who was a wonderful dinner companion, a man who was kind, courteous and helpful to his friends, a man who put the concerns of others before his own.

"It was so much fun sitting next to him at dinner," Mrs. Fisher recalled.

"The man exuded warmth," Lieberman added.

Joyce Garrett remembered that Mr. Ford enjoyed practical jokes.

Spina said that whenever he and the late industrialist attended any kind of gathering, Mr. Ford always went out of his way to speak to him.

"As a black man, I felt comfortable around him because I felt as though he empathized with the struggle of black people," Keith said.

Of course, this is the real Henry Ford II. I am terribly sorry that in the rush to publish the day's news we sometimes stereotype people who don't fit the stereotype at all.

Mrs. Garrett herself is a case in point. If you derived all of your opinions from the Detroit newspapers, you would think that Mrs. Garrett, the off-and-on companion of Mayor Coleman Young, is a brazen hussy, pulling down megabucks because of her relationship with the mayor.

The metros have pictured Mrs. Garrett almost as a soul-sister to Sapphire Stevens, the termagant wife of The Kingfish on the old Amos 'n' Andy radio show.

Once again they are wrong. Mrs. Garrett is smart, witty and a brilliant conversationalist. Schooled in Europe, she is a gracious hostess and a fine addition to the mayor's staff.

She certainly is worth whatever the mayor pays her.

Beacons of Blessing

Community Church of God

Have you ever been asked that famous philosophical question about a partially filled glass of water? Supposedly, if you say it is half full, you have an optimistic point of view. If you say it is half empty, the suggestion is that your point of view tends to be pessimistic.

The way you look at things does make a difference. A good example is found in II Kings 6:8-17.

God knows our problems, Israel's problem was a war. What are you struggling with? God is just waiting for you to listen and realize just how actively He wants to get involved in seeing you through. In the passage, the King of Aram learned God was repeating the very words he spoke in his bedroom to Elisha. If God could take such pains to work out big problems, imagine what He can do with little ones.

God has the power to deal with our problems. The King of Israel only needed to be convinced one time to heed Elisha's warnings from God. Time and again, his armies avoided ambush because of God's direction.

The devil does not attack you at your strongest points. It is where you are weakest and most vulnerable that he aims his darts. God can make you more sensitive and show you when your weaknesses are leading you into trouble. He can direct you in overcoming them.

God brings us peace in the midst of any problem. The King of Aram finally decided the only way he was going to get anywhere was to capture Elisha. He sent a strong force to capture the prophet. Elisha had a young assistant who hadn't quite learned his teacher's quiet confidence in God. Seeing the soldiers and chariots, he panicked saying, "what shall we do?"

Elisha reminded him and us that no matter what the difficulty, the One who is on our side far out weighs anything that opposes us. He then prayed, "O Lord, open his eyes so he may see." The young assistant then saw God's army more than ready to protect them both.

Your point of view does make a difference. It is my prayer that God will always keep your eyes open to the strength and peace He has for your life.

'Round Town

Concerned reader has never been here

EDITH GILBERT

Rusty Lutz has renewed his Courier for another 3 years. That in itself is no big deal, unless you know, of course, that Rusty has never stepped foot in Charlevoix!

Rusty lives in San Jose, Calif. and works for IBM. He became acquainted with this paper through my niece, Maryellen Smith, about a year ago, and became a subscriber.

For a long time, my curiosity was piqued to meet our Charlevoix booster. The opportunity presented itself when I visited San Jose last week and met Rusty and his girl friend, Judy. My San Jose fan was waiting for us in his lovely restaurant, with a queenly bouquet of a dozen red roses. Rusty, as the name implies, has red hair and a red beard and a kind face. You'd like him.

"Why do you enjoy reading the Charlevoix Courier?" I naturally inquired.

"Because it's interesting to read about a small resort town. I read everything including the district court news. I've also been following the condo controversy with a great deal of interest. I certainly hope that the city fathers will preserve the Charlevoix charm and not overbuild," he added pensively.

"What do you think Charlevoix looks like?" I queried.

Rusty pulled out a pencil and drew on a piece of paper. "I imagine it's laid out something like this. There's Lake Michigan, and there's a channel leading into another lake, and somewhere in between there's a bridge."

After a pause, he continued. "I don't want to look at a map. We'd like to come to visit and then it will be fun to see what it really looks like."

I made Rusty promise to let me accompany him on his initial tour of our town and record his reactions. I can hardly wait.

As long as we're on the subject of our California readers, let me share a letter just received from a former Charlevoix year 'round Dixon Avenue resident, Margery Coleman.

From O'jai, California, she writes she recently received a gift subscription to the Courier and is surprised how our town has "grown up."

"Biggest surprise to me was to learn this gorgeous gal, who made waves when she walked into a room, is now a great-grandmother."

Another former Park Avenue summer resident, Mary Louise Sanders (Rosenthal) trips down memory lane. She remembers back to 1942, when Albert Thorp (our present school bus driver) used to check into the house early each morning to take care of chores, and tend to the garden.

She writes from Los Angeles, "It's bedlam here! How sensible you and Julius were to move north so many years ago. Traffic is bumper to bumper all day every day. Freeways are death traps, street noises are such that I sleep with a machine that can drown out all the night sounds: screeching police sirens, wailing fire engines, impatient motorists honking angrily, alarms going off on unattended cars – it's called progress??"

She adds, "Would I recognize Charlevoix? Park Ave. You?"

Yep. I think you would, Mary Lou. We still have the grassy park on Round Lake... the white "cottages" on the incline on Park Avenue, under the water tower. And I'm still in my tennis outfit in the summer and my ski outfit in the winter. La-de-da!.

And from Clearwater, Fla., we received a signed ballot voting for yours truly for president. (With candidates dropping like flies – stranger things could happen than electing a Charlevoix voter!. Thanks for your vote, Mrs. John G. Barker! Glad to hear you enjoyed the article on aid to the airlines.

Whittaker-Baldwin wedding

Cynthia Whittaker of Charlotte, N.C., and George Baldwin Jr. of Concord, N.C., were married Saturday, Aug. 29, in the gardens of the Perry Hotel in Petoskey.

The bride is the daughter of James Bossbach of Matthews, N.C., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Baldwin of Charlevoix.

The Rev. David Yingling performed the double-ring ceremony before approximately 150 guests.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional antebellum gown of Chantilly lace and taffeta over crinolines.

The gown was embellished with pearls and crystal beading and featured a sweetheart neckline, bishop sleeves and a sweep train.

The veiled picture hat was trimmed with a pink taffeta ribbon and pearls, and the cascading bouquet was composed of orchids, pink tea roses, and baby's breath.

Two sisters of the bridegroom, Catherine Mohan of Battle Creek, and Beth Shields of Fort Wayne, attended the bride as matrons of honor.

They wore identical tea-length gowns of jade taffeta with jewel necklines, off-the-shoulder sleeves, and bubble hems.

Each wore matching lace hand mitts and carried a single pink rose with baby's breath tied with pink ribbon.

The father of the bridegroom, George Baldwin Sr., attended his son as best man.

Steve Michael of Charlotte, S.C., and Gary Novotny of Flushing, were groomsmen.

"The Wedding Song" and "We've Only Just Begun" were sung by Jenny McFadden of Fort Wayne, accompanied by Jim Greenway of Petoskey.

The bridegroom's parents hosted a reception at the Perry Hotel following the ceremony.

The guest book was attended by another sister of the bridegroom, Laura Stebe of Exmouth, Western Australia.

The rehearsal dinner, hosted by the bride's father, was held at the Park Garden Cafe on Friday evening.

After honeymooning on Lake Charlevoix and at Myrtle Beach, S.C., the newlyweds will reside in Concord, where the bridegroom is a realtor and the bride is a graphic artist.

Bridget and William Dohm

Noirot-Dohm wedding

Bridget Sue Noirot and William R. Dohm, II exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, Sept. 12, at First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Noirot of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of William Dohm and Reta Dohm, also of Charlevoix.

The Rev. Philip Schairbaum officiated at the double-ring rites in which the bride's father gave her in marriage. Approximately 150 guests attended.

For the occasion, the church altar was decorated with candelabra to which greenery and pink bows were attached and an arrangement of pink and white flowers. There was also an arrangement of flowers on the piano, and the pews were marked with white bows.

The bride wore a taffeta gown fashioned with butterfly sleeves, beaded bodice, skirt edged in chantilly lace ruffles that came up to form an old-fashioned bustle look in the back, and a chapel-length train.

She carried an arrangement of pink and white roses with baby's breath and greenery, tied with a white satin bow.

Teresa Noirot was maid of honor, and Tami Noirot, Beth Allan and Kathryn Dohm were bridesmaids. They wore pink satin tea-length dresses and carried arrangements of pink roses, baby's breath, greenery, and an assortment of white flowers, tied with pink ribbons.

Elizabeth Dohm served as flower girl, wearing a long pink satin ruffled dress. Marcus Dohm was the ringbearer.

Bryan Noirot served as best man, with Michael Dohm, Michael Martin and Gilbert Noirot assisting as groomsmen.

Vocalist Fran Tollas offered "The Wedding Song" and Melinda Noirot sang "Longer."

The bride's parents hosted a reception at Antrim Dells and the bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Lamplight Inn.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Dohm are at home in East Lansing, where both are seniors at Michigan State University.

Revoir-Lundteigen wedding

Bethany Gay Revoir and Erik John Lundteigen exchanged marriage vows Saturday, Aug. 29, in a candlelight service at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix.

Parents of the newlyweds are Melvin and Shirley Revoir of Charlevoix and Gunnar and Doris Lundteigen, also of Charlevoix.

The Rev. Glen Fitzpatrick of Grand Blanc, uncle of the bride, officiated at the ceremony before an altar decorated with baskets of white lilies, gladiolus, peach carnations, and greens.

Approximately 160 guests were seated in the pews which had been marked with lighted candelabra decorated with silk ivy and white bows.

T. E. Goode participated in the ceremony by reading I Corinthians 13.

Music was provided by organist Frances Boss and vocalist Cindy Manson, who sang "We Have This Moment Today."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a pearl white gown featuring a jeweled neckline, ruffled organza sleeves, and an embroidered bodice with fitted waist.

The skirt of organza flowed into a scalloped hemline with a lily of the valley border. The chapel-length train also was trimmed with lily of the valley embroidery.

The bride's headpiece was an organza wreath of roses and pearl sprays to which her fingertip veil was attached.

The bride's bouquet was fashioned around the white Bible her mother had carried at her wedding, with white lilies, peach mini carnations, white stephanotis, greenery and white ribbon streamers added.

Gail Revoir served her sister as maid of honor, and Susan Duke, Lora Ball, cousin of the bride, and Nina Murphy, sister of the bridegroom, assisted as bridesmaids.

They wore matching tea-length gowns of peach chiffon and crepe-de-chine fashioned with jeweled neckline, puffed sleeves, plain bodice and gathered skirt.

The maid of honor's bouquet also featured a Bible, with white lilies, mini peach carnations, stephanotis, and greenery tied with peach ribbon streamers.

The bridesmaids' bouquets were trailing arrangements of white lilies, peach mini carnations, and baby's breath tied with peach satin ribbon.

Karen Sue Doutre, niece of the bride, served as flower girl. She was dressed like a miniature bride, wearing a princess-style dress of white polyester organza trimmed in lily of the valley lace, with puffed sleeves and skirt gathered at the waist with a lace ruffle overlay and bow at the back.

She carried a small white basket with white lilies, peach mini carnations, baby's breath, and greenery, tied with white satin ribbon.

Steven Joseph Doutre was ringbearer. He wore an all-white tuxedo with a peach mini carnation in his lapel and carried a hand cross-stitched white pillow.

Mark Lignell served as best man, with Greg Loper, Chris Begrow, and Greg Revoir, brother of bride assisting as groomsmen and ushers.

They wore white jackets and pleated shirts and black trousers, ties, and cummerbunds. The bridegroom and his attendants all wore boutonnieres of peach mini carnations.

The bride's mother chose a tea-length dress in bright royal blue for the occasion. It was made with jewel neckline, long sleeves, peplum waist, and pleated skirt. Her corsage was composed of white lilies, stephanotis, greenery, and a white bow.

The bridegroom's mother wore a mid-length dress of baby blue with an antique white collar, short dolman sleeves, fitted waist, and tulip-styled skirt. Her corsage was the same as that of the bride's mother.

The grandmothers present wore corsages made of mini white carnations, baby's breath, and greenery.

The parents of the bride hosted a dinner reception at the Belvedere Club Casino following the wedding ceremony. The food was catered by Dave Phillips, and the wedding cake, made by the bridegroom's mother, was a kransekaki, a traditional Norwegian wedding cake. It was decorated with fresh flowers.

Other fresh flowers, including lilies, peach carnations, and pink and white impatience in handmade baskets, in addition to candies, decorated the dinner tables.

Susan Miller attended the guest book.

The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Weathervane Inn.

Following a wedding trip to Toronto, the newlyweds are at home in Charlevoix, where the bridegroom teaches third grade and the bride is a dental hygienist in the office of Dr. Jeffrey Porter.

Record field entered in Martin cross-country invitational

The Charlevoix High School cross-country team will host the annual Clarie Martin Cross Country Invitational meet at the Belvedere Golf Club course on Saturday, Oct. 10.

Thirteen teams from Cadillac to Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., have accepted invitations to participate in the meet which is scheduled to start at 10 a.m. and continue throughout the morning.

Entered in Division I are Traverse City, Cadillac, Petoskey, Gaylord, Sault Ste. Marie, St. Mary's of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Charlevoix.

Participating in Division II are Mancelona, East Jordan, Boyne City, Alba, Alanson, Mackinaw City and Bawatting, Ont.

All will also enter girls teams with the exception of St. Mary's of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. and Boyne City. Mount St. Mary's of the Canadian Soo will enter a girls team.

Division I teams – from A, B, and larger Class C schools – will open the meet at 10 a.m. They will be followed by Division II teams – small Class C schools and Class D schools – at 10:30 a.m.

All classes will compete in the girls' division at 11 a.m.

Junior varsity, both guys and girls of all classes, will run at 11:30 a.m. and junior high entries, running over a two-mile course, will run at noon.

Coach Pete Spieles said this is the largest field ever entered in the invitational.

Rayder football streak comes to abrupt halt

Any hopes of taking a four-game win streak into homecoming were dashed for the Rayders in a hurry by Cheboygan.

The Chiefs ran over the Rayders 54-12 in their homecoming to lower Charlevoix's record to 3-2 after three straight victories.

The Chiefs, undefeated in five games, rolled up a 35-0 lead in the first quarter to put the game out of reach early.

By halftime, Cheboygan had increased the margin to 48-0 – with all the scoring coming on running plays.

In fact, the Chiefs gained all of their 323 total yards on the ground. The Rayders, despite strong winds, gained 156 of their 231 yards on passes.

But the scoring plays – both in the second half – came too late to make any difference in the outcome.

After Cheboygan pushed the score to 54-0 early in the third period, the Rayders put their first points on the scoreboard.

Dan Drury connected with Scott Miller for an eight-yard touchdown. The conversion attempt failed.

Charlevoix scored again in the final period when Scott DeYoung caught a Drury aerial for 26 yards. Again, the conversion failed.

Drury hit 13 or 25 passes for 156 yards, including five to DeYoung for 76 yards and five to Chad Thorpe for 63 yards.

The leading rusher for the Rayders was Mark LeBlance with 46 yards in nine carries. Thorpe was the second-highest ground-gainer for Charlevoix with 12 yards in a pair of carries as Cheboygan shut down the Rayder running game.

Leading tacklers on defense for Charlevoix were Mike Smith with 18 and Steve Hopkins and Thorpe with 14 each. Derek Dutcher added 11.

Ron Gates may have been the earliest successful hunter in Charlevoix County at the opening of bow season. Gates downed a deer at 7:20 a.m. and made it to work on time at 8.

Basketball squad loses two games

The Rayder girls basketball team lost to two strong opponents, Gaylord 76-27 and Cheboygan 54-23.

Gaylord headed the Rayders 22-7, 38-14 and 56-22 by quarters as the visitors poured in 37 buckets to the Rayders' 10.

The Blue Devils made two of 20 from the free throw line. The Rayders connected on seven of 14 charity shots.

Jill Austin, Melissa Boss and Chrissie Dillon had six points each for Charlevoix.

The Gaylord JV's won 80-18 with Cynthia Boydston accounting for 10 to lead the Rayders.

Though the team lost to Cheboygan, Coach Stan Martin said the Rayders played a better game and handled the press that Cheboygan put on throughout the game.

Cheboygan led 7-6 at the quarters, 17-11 at halftime and 37-17 going into the final period.

The Rayders had 10 field goals, three of four free throws and nine personal fouls while Cheboygan had 26 from the floor, two of four charity shots and seven personal fouls.

Ellen Pearl had eight points for the Rayders.

Charlevoix freshmen defeated

Rayder freshmen lost a football game to Kalkaska 26-6.

"Kalkaska did all its scoring in the first half," said coach Eric Lundteigen. "Our boys stiffened their defense as the second half got underway and held them scoreless.

"We did well on offense but lacked the punch to put the ball over the goal line. However, we're improving."

Kalkaska scored early on a 50-yard run but missed the conversion.

The Rayders countered with a 45-yard pass play from Greg Lewis to Erich McElroy to tie the score 6-6 after failing to score the conversion.

Kalkaska scored late in the period on an 85-yard run and added two more touchdowns in the second period on runs of six and 12 yards plus a conversion on a pass.

Lundteigen said the Rayders put up a strong defense in the last half with Brian Darrah coming through with 11 tackles and a fumble recovery, Chris Burge a fumble recovery and McElroy an interception.

On offense, McElroy caught passes for 141 yards and Terryberry completed 13 of 24 for 189 yards. He also had the ball intercepted three times.

Rayders finish 6th in conference golf

The Rayder golf team, with a score of 373, finished sixth in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference tournament and in sixth place in league standings for the season.

Petoskey finished first in the tournament with a score of 325 followed by Cheboygan at 341, Gaylord at 349, Boyne City at 366, Sault Ste. Marie at 367, Charlevoix at 373, Rogers City at 378, and St. Ignace at 566.

Coach Glen Taylor said his team of young players played well. "They played as well as they could. I was pleased. Webb (Friedly) had an exceptionally good day," the coach said.

Friedly had scores of 40-44—84 for the day. Scott Crain shot 42-53—95, Dan Bickersteth 45-50—95 and Matt Gibbons 50-49—99 for Charlevoix.

The top five players in the meet are named all-conference players. They are Scott Kuhna and Tracy Piehl of Petoskey, Troy Fall of Boyne City, Bruce Bach and Jason Perry of Cheboygan.

The teams will travel to Houghton Lake on Friday for the regional tournament.

Yachting Notes

A. NONY MOUSE

Only two races remain for the CYC racing season as we witness boats being pulled, masts coming down and skippers jockeying not room at marks but for cradle space in the boatyard.

Alias, the weather produces changes in us that allow thoughts of woodpiles to interlude with starting tactics. Oh, woe is us that we can't turn back the weeks just a few to those warmer days of June and July.

We now sail bedeviled in yellow coats and we wear gloves and mittens and yellow boots and continually look westward as the squalls rain in on us.

Such is the Fall Series, however, those of us who toss our hats into the ring have long tasted the foibles of nature.

With two remaining races, the breakdown is as follows:

	Fleet A
Scorerer	.75	2	2	.75	5.5
Gotcha	4	.75	.75	5	10.5
Pygmalion	2	3	3	3	11
Nite Moves	3	4	4	4	15
Columbine	5	7	7	2	21
J-22	6	5	6	6	23
	Fleet B
Blasen II	2	5	2	3	12
Tireless	3	8	.75	.75	12.5
Bandit	.75	.75	3	8	12.5
Foxy Lady	5	4	4	2	15
Nulli Secund	4	2	5	6	17
San Sue She	6	3	8	4	21
Kittiwake	6	6	7	5	24
Cygnus	6	7	6	7	26
	Fleet C
Flash	.75	3	3	2	8.75
Sandpiper	2	6	.75	.75	9.5
Merry Hell	3	2	2	4	11
Maureen	4	.75	6	3	13.75
Hot Mustard	7	7	4	4	22
Apothecary	8	5	7	7	27
Phoenicia	5	10	5	7	27
Canusa	9	4	8	6	28
Cabaret	6	8	10	7	31

The mouse would like to thank Commodore Coolman for the two years that he has given to the club and would like to welcome the incoming Commodore, Karl Jurries, and the two new board members, Gary Gleason and David Strawbridge.

Will be looking for you on the course ... 'til then, watching the western skies.

Boys finish 1st, girls 2nd in cross-country events

The Rayder boys cross-country team won a triangular meet with Petoskey and Sault Ste. Marie while the girls team finished in second place.

"I'm proud of the way they finished," said coach Pete Spieles. "We were behind at the two-mile mark but everyone came through. That last mile was a good one for the boys.

"We were running without two regulars, Pat Rajewski and Tom Merta, which put a load on the others but they made it." Sophomore Scott Miller finished in first place.

Of the girls' race, he said, "Some of our times were better; others fell off.

"Julie (Bush) ran a good race and Kendra (Olinger) bettered her time by a minute which helped. However, there is still a gap that needs to be closed in."

Charlevoix had 29 points in the boys' event to Petoskey's 46 and the Soo's 50. In the girls meet the Rayders had 51 points to trail Petoskey which had 21. The Soo had 55.

In the boys' meet Miller set the pace at 16:15. He was followed by Sean Henne, who was fourth in 17:16, Gehry Weisner seventh in 17:31, Paul Wakulat eighth in 17:43 and Hal Chase ninth in 17:44.

Dylan Stewart finished in 13th place in 17:47, Jon Terry 16th in 18:21, Tim Henne 23rd in 18:50, Bill Crook 24th in 18:59, Mike Stargardt 29th in 19:39, Matt Schnackenberg 31st in 20:16, Matt Stargardt 32nd in 21:35, Mike Ochs 34th in 22:45, Matt Seamon 35th in 22:46, Gregg Seaman 36th in 23:41.

In the girls' meet, Julie Bush in fourth place, had the Rayders best time, 20:53. She was followed by Betsy Haggard in sixth place at 21:36; Heidi Olinger in eighth at 21:39; Kendra Olinger in 16th at 22:36 and Elka Thomas in 17th at 22:59.

Barb Haggard was the teams sixth runner in 18th place in 23:01; Dora Skuladottir was 21st in 26:19, Jenny Greene 24th in 29:26 and Kaye Stoneham 25th in 31:54.

Golfers fall to Boyne City, Harbor Springs in events

Rayder golfers dropped matches to Boyne City, 182-191, and Harbor Springs, 159-197.

In the Boyne City game, Tim Jervis and Troy Falls were co-medalists with scores of 42 each. Ryan Holmes with a 47 and Webb Friedly and Matt Gibbons with 51's rounded out the Rayder scoring.

The Rayders won the JV meet 184-210 with Dave Loder the medalist with a 47. Scott Crain and Chris Pemble had 48 and Randy Wurst 51.

In the Rayder-Harbor match, the Rams had what Charlevoix Coach Glen Taylor called a "terrific day" resulting in a 159-197 win.

For the Rayders Friedly shot 46, Jervis 48, Gibbons 50 and Loder 53.

Harbor also won the JV match 204-211 with Charlevoix's Dan Bickersteth medalist at 41. Crain shot 54 and Pemble and Wurst shot 58.

Junior varsity victorious

The Rayder JV's racked up a 20-14 win over Cheboygan.

Charlevoix scored first on a 25-yard run by Jason Corwin with Greg Lewis passing to James Corwin for the conversion. The Rayders had gained possession when the Chiefs failed on a fourth down attempt with four yards to go on their own 25-yard line.

The chiefs countered with a TD on a four-yard run and passed for the conversion.

The Rayders' Brian Livingston, in the second period, went into the end zone from the two for a 14-8 lead at halftime.

A five-yard run by James Corwin in the third period gave Charlevoix a 20-8 advantage. The Rayders had gained possession on the 20 after a Cheboygan punt was held up by a heavy wind. The conversion failed.

Late in the game, Cheboygan scored on a 30-yard run and missed the conversion.

Coach Brian Certa said the Rayders were strong on defense with Pat Elliott, Livingston, Bill Sherman, Jim Marquardt and Chad DeYoung as standouts.

Everyone also played well on offense he said with the backfield doing a good job of carrying out fakes and with good blocking by the line. DeYoung, Livingston, Tracy Simpson and Lewis were cited by their coach.

Seventh graders defeat Boyne City; eighth graders lose

The middle school girls basketball season got underway with Charlevoix hosting Boyne City seventh and eighth grade teams.

The seventh graders posted a 26-15 win while the eighth graders dropped their game 28-21.

Charlevoix seventh graders took a 12-4 halftime margin and added 14 points in the second half.

They hit 13 shots from the floor and missed two free throws while collecting four personal fouls. The visitors had six field goals and three of four charity shots while picking up five personal fouls.

Jodi Allison had six points to lead Charlevoix.

In the eighth grade game, the visitors led 18-9 at halftime.

Boyne scored 13 field goals and hit two of four free throws, while collecting 15 personal fouls. Charlevoix scored eight times from the floor and made five of 12 from the line.

Gina Webster scored nine for the home team.

Bleachers for visitors installed

Another phase of the work at Kipke Field was completed Saturday with installation of the visitors' bleachers on the east side of the field.

A volunteer crew of Sports Boosters installed the bleachers on a concrete foundation laid earlier. the bleachers offer seating for 200 fans.

The bleachers were purchased by the Sports Boosters at a cost of $9,000.

Giants lead flag football

The Giants have taken the lead in the Flag Football League with a 3-0 record.

The Panthers are second with a 2-1 record followed by the Dolphins at 1-2 and the Wildcats at 0-3 record as the season passes the midway point.

The Panthers defeated the Wildcats 28-16 after the Wildcats took an early lead on runs of four and one yard plus a safety, all by Chris McCallum, to forge to a 14-0 first period lead.

The Panthers got back in the game with a one-yard run by Nick Himebaugh. The Panthers scored touchdowns on a 17-yard pass play from Dave Hunter to Joe Ferolly, a six-yard run by Hunter (with Hunter passing to Will Wildman for the conversion) and an 11-yard run by Ferolly (with Hunter adding the conversion on a run).

The Giants' Brian Coolman had three touchdowns and a safety to lead the scoring in a 40-0 victory over the Dolphins. The first TD was on a 30-yard pass from Luke LaBlance and the runs were for 25 and 12 yards.

A 12-yard pass from LaBlance to Ken Olinger, an eight-yard run by Dan Boss, a one-yard plunge by LaBlance and a conversion run by Boss rounded out the lopsided win.

The Dolphins blanked the Wildcats 44-0 as Dan Avery carried the scoring load, scoring on runs of 21, 27, and 33 yards and on a 19-yard pass interception and one conversion run.

Gabe Brock added one TD on a 35-yard kick-off return, Wayne Joy scored on an 11-yard run and Jamie Crain scored on two safeties.

The Giants were in control all the way to defeat the Panthers 54-8 with LaBlance and Coolman again dominating the scoring.

A 13-yard touchdown pass from LaBlance to Dan Boss was followed by a safety by Chris Pease, a one-yard run by Coolman, an eight-yard run by LaBlance, a 20-yard pass from LaBlance to Coolman, and 11-yard run by Coolman, a safety by Ben Whitley, a seven-yard pass from LaBlance to Boss and a nine-yard pass from LaBlance to Whitley.

Jason Pajtas recorded a safety and Jeff Joy scored on a 38-yard kick-off return to give the Wildcats eight points.

Ship backers get city endorsement

City council has given its endorsement to a plan that may ultimately bring the Star of Charlevoix back to Round Lake.

A group of business people has been attempting to convince Star Line owner John McGoff to return a cruise ship to the city after a one-year absence.

McGoff was oot interested in being primary stockholder in a cruise ship in Charlevoix, Chamber of Commerce executive director Jacquie Merta has said, but indicated he might become a minority owner.

That would mean, of course, someone else would have to become majority shareholder – and the group is considering asking the community to buy stock in the operation.

They are also going back to McGoff to show him the commitment the city council has made to his operation, which had trouble getting a lease approved last spring.

The city has offered the Star a municipal dock for five years in exchange for one percent of the ship's gross revenues (a minimum of $5,000).

The Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau has pledged to pay for any alterations needed in the dock.

The group is facing two fast-approaching deadlines, though. If a new ship is to be built in time for next season, it must be ordered in the next few weeks. And the city's offer expires Jan. 1.

The Star Line withdrew operations from the city last spring when it became apparent the paddlewheel boat being built for Lake Charlevoix use would not be completed on time.

The Star – which began operations as the Bay Queen – carried about 35,000 passengers a year. About 20,000 of those riders would not have come to town if the ship were not here, the business group says.

Conference center

Whether building a conference center, Skelton said, is the answer, though, depends on vital information that has not yet been gathered.

He said it must first be determined whether groups the size of Charlevoix can handle would be interested in coming to a conference here in those seasons.

"The market determines the size of the center," he said.

Then it must be determined if the cost of building and operating a stand-alone center is justified by the number of rooms that are available and would be filled.

Other factors to be considered, be said, are transportation difficulties, weather, financing, management and surrounding competition.

There are not many cities the size of Charlevoix that have conference centers, he said, so it is hard to draw comparisons.

"It is not something that is done a lot," Skelton said, "but there isn't another Charlevoix, either.

"It's a great idea. Can it work? I don't know."

Skelton said he was encouraged by the spirit of cooperation displayed throughout the city, but repeated that the first step is determining whether a market exists.

He agreed with suggestions that a combination conference-community center might be a possibility. Such a facility, he said, might be used as a cultural center during the summer, when conference business may not be as desirable as when hotel rooms are unoccupied.

Conference rooms available in the city now are in the Edgewater Inn and Weathervane Terrace addition. The Edgewater room can hold a couple hundred people for some events; the Weathervane about one-fourth that number.

Skelton said Laventhol and Horvath is the largest organization involved in hotel-related development and has worked on many projects in Northwest Michigan.

He said a study to determine whether a market exists could cost $8,000 to $10,000, and full involvement, complete with financing alternatives, may run about $12,000.

He is preparing a proposal to present to the group.

No determination has been made concerning who might pay for a study, should one be undertaken. Possibilities include the city, the Chamber of Commerce, the Convention and Visitors Bureau, business owners or some combination.

The discussion grew out of a meeting hosted by Don Berlage, who has offered to donate a site beneath a hotel or condominium project proposed on Park Avenue.

Rysberg

If any variances from zoning code restrictions are desired, they must be requested separately and would be judged by the zoning board of appeals.

The project already has permits for foundation work, which is proceeding.

The project will most likely be on the planning commission's agenda on Monday, Oct. 12. The commission meets in city hall at 5:30 p.m.

Obituaries

Harold Harris

Funeral services for Harold G. "Bucky" Harris of Horton Bay were held this morning at St. Matthews Church in Boyne City. Interment was in Greenwood Cemetery, Petoskey.

Mr. Harris, 79, died Oct. 4 at Little Traverse Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals after a short illness. He was born in Petoskey July 5, 1908, to Glenn D. and Mary (Spura) Harris, members of a pioneer Bay Township family.

Following graduation from Petoskey High School in 1925, Mr. Harris attended Lansing Business College and began his long career in the food distribution business. He retired from his own company, Lansing Food Equipment, in 1972 and moved to Horton Bay, where he had been a long-time summer resident.

Mr. Harris and the former Mary Catherine Bourdow were married Sept 2, 1933, in Saginaw. She survives him, as do four sons, Glenn D. and James C., both of Arlington, Texas, Joseph L. of Springfield, Ill, and Thomas D. of Lansing; a brother, Charles J. Harris of Erie, Pa; 12 grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren.

Mr. Harris was an active member of St. Mathews Church and had served as chairman of the Bay Township Planning Commission.

Memorials may be made to the building fund of St. Mathews Church.

Clayton Moore

Clayton L. Moore, 70, of Ellsworth died Sunday, Sept. 27, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral services were held at Lamb Funeral Home in Howell on Wednesday, Sept. 30. Interment was in Green Cemetery at Howell.

Born in Howell May 17, 1917, the son of Shubal and Frances (Ellsworth) Moore lived in Howell until 1963.

He is survived by three daughters, Gail Werda of Alpena, Frances Moses of Howell and Kathy Modrzynski of Crossville, Tenn; 11 grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren; two brothers, Marcus Moore of Charlevoix and Wilford Moore of Weberville; and one sister Doris Thumser of Howell.

Crafts show set in mall

The ninth annual Arts and Crafts show will again be a part of the annual Applefest.

The festival is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 10-11. The Arts and Crafts show, however, will be staged from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday only at the Market Mall.

Appearing in the show will be 11 local artisans whose displays will feature the results of their hobbies.

"This group, though its membership has changed from time to time, is a fine addition to the Apple Festival. This gives the festival another dimension. We are happy to have them, said Jacquie Merta, executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce which sponsors the festival:

One exhibitor who has joined the group for the first time is John Peterson who makes classical wooden toys. Among them are a train with a full quota of cars, planes and trucks.

Handcrafted oak sling rockers will be offered by Jon Emlaw. The canvas in the sling will be available in green, gray and natural.

Mary Lee Huber returns for the second year with hand-blended potpourries, herbal grapevine wreaths and Christmas ornaments and dried flower arrangements. She will also sell German statice, annual statice and other dried flower arrangements.

Hand thrown pottery, in a variety of designs and colors will be exhibited by Kay and Chuck Britton. All are original designs.

Calico prints in a variety of colors and designs will be found in chair pads displayed by Judy Crook, who will also be selling straw weavings.

Heart necklace holders, made by a veteran exhibitor Dawn Fletcher, are featured in a national craft publication this month. Her exhibit also includes Scherenschnitte (German paper cutting) pictures and country paint designs.

Cara Hochhalter will sell wildflower notepaper in original pen and ink drawing, special occasion trillium notepaper and hand-painted watercolor Christmas cards. A limited number of small watercolors will also be available.

Delora Richardson, another longtime exhibitor, will return with hand knitted mittens, hats, infant sweaters, and baked goods.

Local and nature scenes in handcrafted custom-made and matted frames will be sold by Mike Webb and Gary Spencer.

Sue Miller, one of the few remaining original exhibitors, sells hand-painted traditional porcelain Christmas ornaments.

10 seeking homecoming honors

It's homecoming time at Charlevoix High.

Candidates for king and queen have been chosen by the senior class and the student body is casting votes for favorites.

Students are busy decorating floats, using the theme of "cereals".

And the Rayder marching band is preparing for its last outdoor appearance this fall as the countdown continues.

Vying for the honor of reigning over the 1987 festivities are Stephanie Agnew, Jennifer Bonar, Christy Engle, Betsy Haggard and Ellen Pearl as queen candidates and Charles Britton, Chad DeVries, Dan Drury, Tom Merta and Marvin Withoeft as king candidates.

Homecoming parade participants will gather at the middle school at 6 p.m. and, led by the marching band and the flag corps, get underway at 6:30 p.m.

The parade will continue to State Street, then south to Garfield Avenue and east to the Garfield Avenue entrance to the football field.

Following the band will be cheerleaders, 1986 royalty and queen and king candidates riding in convertibles and decorated floats.

Last year's royalty, Jane Scharenbroch and Terry Bonar, will return to officiate at the corontation during halftime of the homecoming game with the Gaylord Blue Devils.

The marching band and flag corps will present a special halftime performance. Michelle Jacobs will serve as mistress of ceremonies for the show.

A homecoming dance in the Charlevoix Elementary School gymnasium will follow.

Homecoming festivities have been planned by the Student Council with Drury and Jill Austin as president and vice president, respectively, and Ken Plude as faculty advisor. The homecoming dance is sponsored by Debate Team candidates.

Marching band holds concert

The high school marching band will present its annual fall concert in the high school gymnasium at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 14.

There will be no admission charge for the concert which is a "thank you" from the band for community support during the recent cheese and sausage sale.

A meeting of the Band Boosters will be held in the cafeteria at 7 p.m., just prior to the concert.

Social Services honors volunteers

Twenty-two Charlevoix County residents have been honored for their volunteer services to the Department of Social Services.

Another 17 volunteers were unable to attend a luncheon at the Edgewater Inn, at which certificates of service were awarded.

Altogether, volunteers in Charlevoix County contributed 8,700 hours of service and drove 100,300 miles, according to Vasco Zucchiatti, volunteer services supervisor for the department.

Volunteers provided many different kinds of services, Zucchiatti noted, including transportation, transportation attendant, third party payee, money management, office assistance, friendly visitor, adult foster care, parent aide, save-share Glen's slips, camperships, newsletter, and emergency food program.

Charlevoix area residents receiving certificates were Lois Lewis and Maxine Bergmann, first year; Mary Helen Riggle, Lucile Martin and George Hamlin, fourth year; Harley Thies, seventh year; Ron Putman, 11th year; and Evelyn Thies, Shirley Roloff, Ivy Woodcock and Genetta Cole, 12th year.

Roloff also received a gold key chain to commemorate over 2,000 hours of volunteer service, and Doris Hamlin received a gold pin to commemorate over 500 hours of service.

Zucchiatti says there is still a need for volunteers in a variety of areas, with time commitments ranging from one contact a month to daily activities.

"I can use anyone if they have time to offer," he added. "Volunteering isn't limited to adults or senior citizens, but to everyone, including children."

Barbara Conrad, volunteer program specialist with Social Services' central office in Lansing, was present at the awards luncheon to tell about the impact volunteers make when they contribute their time to others.

She indicated that there are almost as many volunteers working with the Michigan Department of Social Services as there are state employees. She also noted that approximately 49 percent of the population nationwide volunteers time in some capacity to a variety of programs.

Anyone interested in volunteering time to the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services may contact Zucchiatti at 547-4471, or visit the office on M-66, across from Kit Carson Lumber.

Several area people have received certificates and awards for volunteer services to the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services. They are: (kneeling, left to right) Anne Willis, George Hemlin and Evelyn Thies; standing, Doris Hemlin, Ivy Woodcock, Lucile Mertin, Shirley Roloff, Maxine Bergmenn, Berbere Conred and Genette Cole.

Art historian speaks at McCune

Hope Palmer, art historian and lecturer from the Detroit Institute of Arts, will speak and show slides dealing with contemporary photography at the McCune Arts Center at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 10.

Her presentation coincides with a juried exhibition of photography by northern Michigan artists on display in the arts center's exhibition gallery.

The gallery will be open for viewing at 7 p.m. prior to the lecture. There is no admission fee for the lecture or the gallery.

Grandparents invited to lunch at school

Charlevoix Elementary School will hold its annual Grandparents' Day on Friday, Oct. 9.

On that day, grandparents of students in all grades but the kindergarten are invited to join them for lunch. The cost is $2.

Grandparents are requested to purchase their lunch ticket at the elementary school office today so the staff will know how many meals to prepare.

Ticket money may be sent to the office in an envelope bearing both the grandparent and child's name, and the ticket will be sent home with the child.

Grandparents unable to purchase a ticket in advance but are planning to attend are asked to phone the elementary office and reserve a ticket. The telephone number is 547-3215. Participants are asked to pick up reserved tickets prior to the lunch period on Friday.

The luncheon menu will be tender sliced roast beef, potatoes au gratin, mixed vegetables and roll and butter – or pizza. A salad bar will be available with both entrees. Dessert will be cake. There will be a choice of chocolate or white milk or coffee.

Students who take a brown bag lunch may take one for their grandparent instead of ordering a hot lunch ticket if they choose.

Grandparents Day has become a popular tradition at the school, principal Vane Smith said. However, it has created problems because of the limited seating.

It is requested that only grandparents join students for lunch, Smith said. In cases where grandparents cannot attend, substitute grandparents are welcome.

For the first time, the kindergarten will join in Grandparents Day. Grandparents of the morning students may stop in between 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. and those of afternoon may attend class from 1 until 2 p.m.

The following luncheon schedule lists the time students will be having lunch. It is based on home-room teachers.

First lunch hour (11-11:45 a.m.): Mrs. Bentley, Mrs. Britton, Mrs. Hoffmann, Mrs. Mellon, Mrs. Austin, Mr. Martin and Ms. Rogers.

Second lunch hour ((11:45 a.m.-12:30 p.m.): Mrs. May, Mrs. Tillotson, Mrs. Carland, Mrs. Raecke, Mrs. Silberhorn, Mr. Lundteigen and Mr. Cox.

Third lunch period (12:30-1:15 p.m.): Mrs. Chew, Mr. Glynn, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Tallberg, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Gowell, Mrs. Elliott, and Mrs. Seymour.

1987 Charlevoix County

Industrial Fair

A look at local industry.

OCT
1987

In behalf of the entire Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, its Board, and Membership, we wish to extend Special Thanks to LoAnne Brown, Gordon Wellman and the members of Charlevoix County State Bank for developing and organizing the Charlevoix County Industrial Fair.

We, the business organization of the Charlevoix area SALUTE Charlevoix County Industries and their contribution to the growth and economic well being of the county.

"THANK YOU" for providing:

- Year Round Jobs
- Increased Tax Base
- Community Pride
- Involvement in Community Activities
- A Good Neighbor Atmosphere
- New Payroll Dollars to Circulate in the County

We're glad you chose to invest in Charlevoix County

INDUSTRIAL FAIR:
3rd event biggest yet

Tourism is Charlevoix County's most visible industry, but the area is also rich in manufacturing job opportunities.

The industrial side of the county's economy has been somewhat of a silent partner in the area's economic growth.

But through the efforts of Charlevoix County State Bank, the silence has been broken.

In 1984, the first county-wide industrial fair was organized to show the outside world – and a lot of local people – what industry does in Charlevoix County.

The success of that endeavor led to a bigger fair the following year and the biggest yet set for Friday and Saturday, Oct. 9-10, at Charlevoix High School.

The brainchild of LoAnne Brown, vice president and cashier at Charlevoix County State Bank, the fair has been an eye-opener for many.

Charlevoix County's industries make products that are known and used around the world, products that are used in space and under-sea.

And, what they make sometimes surprises area residents.

Bank president Gordon Wellman overheard several residents at the earlier exhibits commenting that they had had no idea before what products were made at plants near their own work places.

This year there are 33 exhibitors in the Industrial Fair, and that's not even all of the county's manufacturing facilities.

The fair for the second time will be held in the high school gymnasium. The first fair was held at the elementary school, which proved too small the second time around. There was no fair in 1986 so manufacturers could participate in a regional exhibition in Traverse City.

On Friday, the fair will be open only to high school students, who will have an opportunity to meet with industrialists and get to know their products and operations.

On Saturday, the fair will be open to the general public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

It was during the bank's centennial celebration that Brown decided the role of the industrial sector of the county's economy had been neglected for too long.

"I'm still of the belief that tourism is important, but we've got to have people who can rely on year-round employment," she says. "I'm not trying to downgrade tourism, but this is important in providing year-round stability.

"It's too bad our young people have had to go elsewhere."

Wellman says the bank is proud to be a force behind the event, which is put on with the assistance of the Antrim-Charlevoix Growth Alliance's Richard Beagle.

"If there's something we can do to promote Charlevoix County's economy, we want to be involved in it," Wellman said. 'If we can promote existing industry and add some new businesses, we certainly want to do it."

The fair coincides with several other events in Charlevoix's busiest fall weekend – making it an event that may attract potential business owners who will see the wide variety and versatility of products built in the area.

Also taking place this weekend are Charlevoix High's homecoming celebration on Friday, the annual Applefest, the grand opening of the city's new water treatment plant and the region-wide Claire Martin Invitational high school cross-country runs.

We salute the industries which continue to provide a stable economic base and a productive environment in which to live and work.

Much success to the Charlevoix County Industries and to the 1987 Industrial Fair.

MEDUSA CEMENT CO.
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

MEDUSA CEMENT COMPANY:
20 years of innovation, renovation, reclamation

The Medusa Challenger

The Medusa Conquest

It was in 1967 that Medusa Cement Company started production at its South Point plant in Charlevoix Township.

The abundance in the area's geology of the natural materials needed to manufacture cement plus the ability to ship to major Midwestern markets by large lake carrier made the 1,350-acre Charlevoix location an ideal one for Medusa.

The cement produced by Medusa is known as the Portland variety and is used primarily for road construction, block work and other large-scale building projects.

The plant has a production capacity of 1,364,000 tons of cement from its kiln process and 1,360,000 tons of clinker on the grinder end.

Limestone and shale, two of the raw materials used in the manufacturing process, are mined from two surface mines on the Medusa site.

An innovative land reclamation project has been ongoing at the plant in which areas where mining has been completed are restored to their natural states using sludge from the City of Charlevoix's waste treatment plant as a fertilizer.

At present, there are 115 hourly and 25 salaried employees at Medusa. The plant's estimated annual payroll for 1987 will be $5 million.

The plant is currently a subsidiary of the Crane Company whose corporate offices are located in New York City. Medusa's corporate headquarters are in Cleveland.

Shipping of the cement from the Charlevoix plant is done largely by lake carriers. The 552-foot Medusa Challenger is capable of carrying over 11,000 tons of cement, the Medusa Conquest, 8,500 tons. Cement is shipped to Great Lakes ports of Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Toledo, Milwaukee, Manitowoc, and Grand Haven.

The plant underwent a major renovation project in 1979 when it converted from the "wet" process of manufacturing cement to a "flash calcining" system, a more energy efficient system developed in Japan in 1966.

The $50 million conversion included the addition of state-of-the-art equipment that make the Medusa facility one of the most technologically sopbisticated cement manufacturing operations in the world.

In flash calcining, the kiln feed, a mixture of finely ground limestone, sand and shale is metered and transported to the top of the preheater tower.

The preheater consists of a series of four cyclones and a flash furnace in which the hot waste heat gases contact and heat the kiln feed prior, to the feed actually entering the kiln.

After a third preheater stage, the kiln feed is discharged into a flash furnace where fuel is burned to further increase the temperature.

The flash furnace discharges to a fourth stage where final preheating occurs prior to the feed entering the kiln. During this process the particles of kiln feed is suspended in the gas stream resulting in very efficient heat transfer.

The resulting "clinker" discharges from the kiln into a cooler where ambient air is used to cool it to a compatible temperature for handling and storage.

WOJAN ALUMINUM: Pace-setter in window industry

Wojan Aluminum has set the pace for the window and door industry ever since Walter Wojan introduced his aluminum windows and doors 30 years ago.

In 1983, he proved to a skeptical industry that properly constructed aluminum windows and doors are energy efficient, durable, maintenance free and economical.

Today, Dennis and Kenneth Wojan oversee a growing business, with a growing demand for Wojan Aluminum products.

Wojan's engineering staff keeps pace with the needs of home owners and businesses north and south – wherever energy efficiency means savings.

At Wojan Aluminum's modern 45,000 square foot facility on Stover Road, the company designs and manufactures single, double and triple glazed windows and doors.

Each is carefully engineered with Wojan's unique combination of triple weatherstripping and thermal barrier, offering home owners, architects and contractors a wide range of choices.

Wojan Windows are tested by the American Aluminum Manufacturers Association (AAMA), in approved testing labs. These tests have shown that Wojan products all surpass AAMA standards for thermal performance, structural performance, air infiltration and water infiltration.

In hot climates, where the cost of air conditioning can be more expensive that heating in harsh northern climates, Wojan products keep the heat out and the comfortable cool air in.

In the north, Wojan's Triple Shield Windows, with the highly perfected hollow vinyl tubing thermal break and triple polypropylene weatherstripping keep the heat in and the cold out.

BULLFROG CANDLE: Glow of success

Bill Stewart

The elegant pillar candles of Charlevoix's Bullfrog Light Company are unique: created in carefully selected contemporary colors, they warmly glow from top to bottom when lighted.

The company opened its headquarters with a "factory outlet shop" in Charlevoix in 1985 on Loeb Road just off M-66. The candles were developed in 1981 by Bill Stewart, an engineer, artist and businessman.

Handcrafted with "just a little magic," as Stewart likes to describe his otherwise "secret" process, the candles are in demand across the country: Macy's in Manhattan, fine gift shops throughout California, and specialty shops from Texas to Maine.

In Charlevoix, Bullfrog Candles are sold by Mayfair and Barb's Hallmark Harbor. The candles come in four sizes, 4-inch, 6-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch pillars.

Stewart personally develops each season's new candles, creating and testing colors and the affect when they glow.

This year, colors are soft, sophisticated and elegant. Solids and delicately contrasting spirals of lavender, mulberry, dusty pink, light blue, warm champagne, peach or apricot are accentuated by translucent lines.

An addition to the Christmas line of candy cane stripes and solid reds and whites is a new "decorator ribbon" candle in red and green.

Preview of the fall, Christmas and developing spring line, as well as what Stewart describes as "just barely seconds," may be purchased at the "factory outlet" shop at less than wholesale prices.

C&D: Woman-owned firm grows

Lynne Osterbeck

C&D Inc. of Boyne City is a woman-owned business specializing in small runs of percision parts primarily for the aerospace industry.

Lynn Osterbeck is president and general manager of the company, who left a Cranbrook Schools teaching career to take over the firm.

She and her husband, Gary, purchased the company from the founders in 1976. When one of the founders, who had been hired to operate the plant for them, retired, Osterbeck took over operations and majority ownership.

The firm is certified by the state Department of Civil Rights as a woman-owned business.

Gary Osterbeck, with more than 30 years of marketing experience in the Detroit area, is the chief salesman – the first time the firm has had an outside salesman.

The company makes small parts such as pins, braces, nuts, end bells, posts, shafts, washers and rings, mainly to fit into engines and mechanisms for airplanes and missiles.

It also makes some parts for the automotive industry.

Customers include National Water Lift Co., Bendix Aerospace, Connector Industries of America, Control Engineerings, ITT Automotive Division, Industrial Magneties, United Technologies and LexaLite.

The firm has seven employees and Osterbeck expects to be adding to the workforce. Michael Pearson is plant manager.

SEELYE EQUIPMENT: Solar panels latest technology

Seelye Equipment Specialists has changed its accent – now concentrating on a new product, solar electric generators.

Owner Don Seelye has added a distribution and warehousing operation in Marinette, Wisconsin, to his Charlevoix operations.

At his Charlevoix general office and production facility, he is selling Flexcharge solar electric generators.

Unlike standard solar power devices, these generators are portable and virtually unbreakable. They bend, some fold and they come in a variety of wattages and voltages.

The generators can be used to charge batteries for household needs, such as running fans, operating VCRs and radios, and powering appliances.

Their versatility allows them to be mounted to boats, trucks, cars and motorhomes to keep batteries charged.

The expected life of the solar collectors is more than 30 years. They can be hammered, punctured and bent, and they continue to work.

Multiple units may be connected together to obtain any wattage or voltage necessary to provide home or farm power.

On the farm, for instance, they can provide the power to run electric fences, water pumping systems, refrigeration and radio transmission devices.

They can be used to power units directly or to feed storage batteries for later use. The power can be converted from direct current to alternating current with an optional attachment.

Besides being sturdy and rugged, the units are thin – 3-16th of an inch, allowing some to be mounted even on rounded surfaces.

They come in complete units with vinyl backing and bound edges or in 1-16th inch thick laminates without backing.

The units are covered by a two-year guarantee and are designed to generate electricity on overcast days.

BENDIX-COURTER: Aiding the aerospace industry

Roy Bowman shows Bendix products to Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths at tha 1985 Industrial Fair

The Courter Operation of the Bendix Aerospace Guidance Systems Division located in Boyne City is one of many facilities that comprise the Aerospace Sector of the Allied-Bendix organization.

Now, with the recent merger of Allied and The Signal Companies, it is one of the largest diversified corporations in the world, with facilities in every state in the union as well as the free world at large.

The aerospace industry served by the Courter Operation from the Boyne City facility includes over 500 customers worldwide, and the sophisticated products manufactured at Courter are flying on virtually every aircraft in the inventory of the U.S. Department of Defense.

In addition, defense products are manufactured for land, sea and air missile systems, such as air to ground missiles, undersea torpedoes, surface to surface rockets and land navigation systems.

The aircraft product line includes indicators, position transmitters, pressure transmitters and accelerometers, used primarily to provide information to the pilot of the aircraft with respect to aircraft engine performance and wing surface configuration during takeoff and landing.

The missile product line consists primarily of gyroscopes and accelerometers for guidance and control of the missile.

The land navigation systems are extremely precise gyro platforms utilizing advanced state of the art floated gyroscopes and leveling devices (electrolytic switches) to pinpoint military vehicles to exact latitude and longitude on a battlefield terrain and establish the correct elevation and azimuth for precision launching of rocket missiles.

These high technology system designs were developed by the parent organization, Bendix Guidance Systems Division located in Teterboro, New Jersey, and the manufacturing effort subsequently transferred to the Courter Operation.

The Bendix Courter Operation is also a major supplier to the commercial airline industry as they furnish the flap position transmitters on all of the Boeing jet aircraft.

Reliability is crucial in the manufacture of aerospace products. To foster this high level of reliability, manufacture of the products are assembled in controlled "clean rooms" where temperature, humidity and cleanliness are maintained to precise levels; and employees wear caps and gowns to prevent contamination of delicate component parts.

Typical of the latest technology in manufacturing equipment at Courter are computer controlled lathes and mills, laser welding, and chemical deburring equipment. Computerized "go" - "no go" test equipment assures that the products meet exacting standard and eliminates the possibility of human error.

All of the Bendix-Courter Operation instruments and missile gyroscopes with the exception of the land navigation systems, are designed and developed at Courter by its engineering staff and in many instances the Bendix-Courter Operation is the sole source of supply for these sophisticated aerospace products.

The Courter Operation located in Boyne City will soon celebrate 37 years at its present location. Over that period of time it has increased its employment several hundred times to the present level of over 600 employees.

With a payroll in excess of $12 million a year, it is a major contributor to the economy of Charlevoix County.

BERGMANN CENTER: Helping people while aiding industry

Bergmann Canter uses realistic work satting

Quality training for 43 mentally and physically handicapped individuals and dependable service for area industry are the goals of the Bergmann Center.

Founded in 1954 by Lillian and Robert Bergmann, the Bergmann Center has evolved to a work activity center which accepts subcontract work from area industry.

Bergmann Center workers also produce their own products, including rag rugs, pinecone wreaths and candle holders, glass love bites and quilts.

These products are available at the Bergmann Center.

Bergmann Center workers, under the careful supervision of six staff members, assemble wingbolts, terminals and packaging for Lexalite International; clean spools for Hoskins Manufacturing and engrave for Midwest International.

For 33 years the Bergmann Center workers have been provided meaningful work experience and training with the goal of becoming competent employees in the competitive work world.

The activities of the Bergmann Center are overseen by a nine-person board of directors, with the guidance of the Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services Board and the ACT 258 Board.

The work atmosphere is realistic with close supervision by skilled personnel. Good work habits are encouraged, including proper care of equipment and materials, correct handling of tools and machines, good attendance, punctuality and safety.

Interpersonal relationships with supervisors and co-workers are emphasized as well as personal discipline.

Work tolerance is promoted and work is designed at a pace consistent with the person's potential. Supervisors focus on maximizing the skills required for independent living.

TOP O' MICHIGAN RURAL ELECTRIC:
Anniversary year for state's largest cooperative

Celebrating Top O' Michigan's birthday

Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Company is celebrating a 50th anniversary this year.

The state's largest rural electric distribution cooperative was incorporated in 1937 by area farmers eager to bring electricity to rural Northwestern Lower Michigan. The first pole was set in 1938 with 51 rural residents receiving power for the first time that year.

From its modest beginning, the small farmer-organized cooperative began to expand its service to neighboring regions in response to the growing demand for reliable, low cost electricity for rural Northern Michigan.

The increased need for more electricity resulted in part from increased residential and agricultural growth in Northern Michigan, the later was due to development of tourism, small business, and oil refining in the area. In 1937, Top O' Michigan was organized to serve Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego and Antrim counties.

Today, the cooperative serves more than 32,000 members in 12 counties which, in addition to the initial four counties, include Cheboygan, Crawford, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Missaukee, Montorency, Oscoda and Wexford.

To provide its members with the electricity they needed, Top O' Michigan and neighboring rural electric cooperatives formed a wholesale cooperative called Northern Michigan Electric Cooperative (NMEC). NMEC, with offices in Boyne City, later merged with another wholesale generation and transmission cooperative in the state to form Wolverine Power Supply Cooperative (WPSC).

Top O' Michigan is one of seven rural distribution cooperatives in the state that buys its electricity exclusively from WPSC.

Although much has changed in 50 years, Top O' Michigan's ownership philosophy has not. Top O' Michigan's cooperative motto "Owned by those we serve" is still used today to recognize that philosophy.

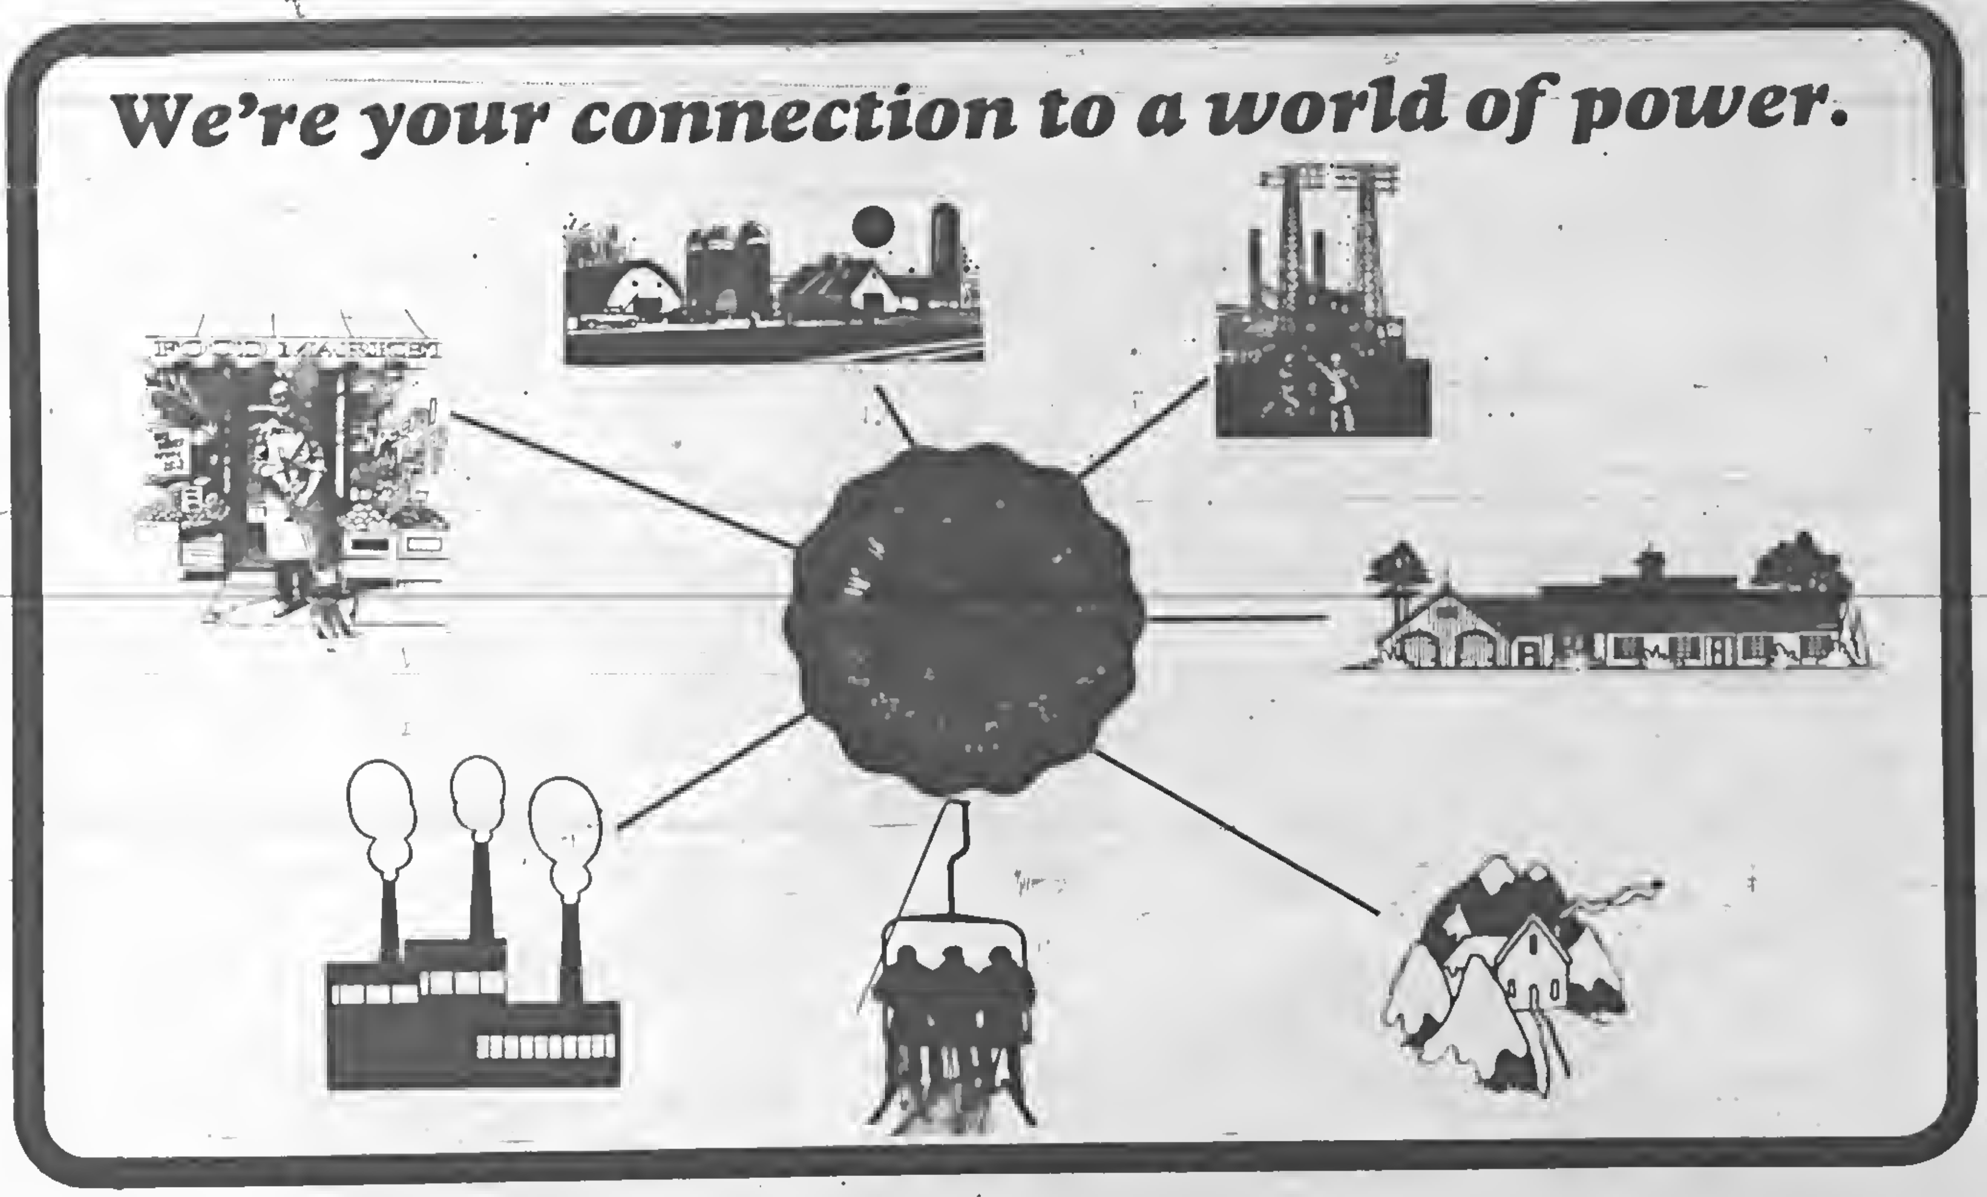
Each Top O' Michigan customer is a member-owner of the business. Each year the members meet to elect directors from among themselves to serve on the cooperative's governing board.

Top O' Michigan's cooperative concept also involves the return of Patronage Capital to its members. Money members pay in excess of the cost for their electric services is returned to them as Patronage Capital refunds. In the last three years, Top O' Michigan refunded more than $5 million in Patronage Capital to its members.

In addition, Top O' Michigan contributes nearly $4 million annually to the area economy through its payrolls, property taxes, and purchase of supplies, services, and equipment in the local area.

In the last year, some 297 million kilowatt-hours were distributed through Top O' Michigan's nearly 5,000 miles of line.

Top O' Michigan is also actively engaged in education, safety and training programs for employees, members and area communities. Through the use of a portable, overhead power line system, Top O' Michigan conducts safety demonstrations for area schools, fire departments and civic groups. Employee safety and training programs are also an important part of the cooperative's operation.



We're your connection to a world of power.

DCL INC.:
Dust control devices help keep industry clean

DCL Inc. is a relative newcomer to the industrial scene in Charlevoix. But in that short time the company has grown steadily in size and output and currently is the largest supplier of retractable loading spouts in the country.

DCL Inc. was founded in 1981 by three Charlevoix residents – Reinhard Mayte, Phillip Camilleri, and Werner Egger. The company has grown to include 35 employees and a payroll in excess of $.5 million.

DCL is located on Ance Road in Charlevoix's new industrial park. The present facility was recently enlarged and now includes 20,000 square feet.

DCL gets its name from the Dust Control and Loading systems the company manufactures for industry throughout the world. Its equipment is used primarily for the handling and loading of dry dusty materials like cement, coal and grain.

It manufactures retractable loading spouts that facilitate the loading of drums, trucks, railcars, barges, and ships without releasing dusty discharges into the atmosphere.

In addition to the loading spouts, the company has expanded its operations in recent years to the production of other products including conveyors, flow controls, electrical controls and dust collectors.

DCL Inc. prides itself on its ability to provide custom designs for any customer's application. "Our designs, service, and custom engineering have been important to us from the beginning," says company vice-president Camilleri.

DCL's customers include many of the world's largest handlers of bulk material located throughout the United States and in many areas of the world including the Middle East, Australia, and Indonesia.

"Sales have grown consistently since we have been in business," Camilleri says, " and the outlook is good." He notes that the company expects to continue to employ many more people in the Charlevoix area as business expands.

CHARLEVOIX AREA HOSPITAL:
Working closely with area industry

Industry - and industrial growth - depend to a great extent on access to good medical facilities. Charlevoix Area Hospital has always worked closely with local manufacturing firms to provide such conventional services as pre-employment physical exams and an emergency room ready to handle industrial accidents and illnesses.

In recent years, however, the hospital's involvement in the field of industrial medicine has grown as a growing number of employers realize the value of health and wellness to overall productivity.

The hospital now offers not only the services to deal with job-related injury or illness but also assistance in the prevention of work loss through injury or illness.

A comprehensive wellness program can provide many benefits for typical business or industry. It enhances employee health, lowers absenteeism, improves morale, reduces the number of accidents, lowers disability and, on the bottom line, reduces the health care costs.

In addition to wellness programming, Charlevoix Area Hospital deals with area business and industry needs in most of its departments. Following are some the specific services offered to the business and industrial community:

-The Radiology department provides lower back x-rays for pre-employment evaluations plus several other diagnostic and treatment procedures.

-The Respiratory Therapy department also does employee evaluations of lung function and can test for problems when toxic and irritative inhalants are present in the workplace.

-Physical Therapy is instrumental in getting people back on the job who have been injured or ill.

-The Laboratory provides vital screening capability for such work-related possibilities as blood poisoning or, in the case of the Big Rock power plant, irradiation exposure.

-State of the art equipment is available in the hospital's Operating Room and Intensive Coronary Care Unit to deal with serious injuries or illness that might occur in the workplace.

-The hospital, along with Chip Counseling Center, will be sponsoring an Occupational Health Seminar for personnel directors of area businesses and industries on November 12.

There is much involved with creating a good climate for industry in Charlevoix County. Having a good hospital with the special needs of business and industry in mind is one of them. That is why Charlevoix Area Hospital has always been a willing partner in progress for the area and will continue to develop new and better ways to keep industry - and employment - healthy.

High Tech Health Care

Advances in the technology of modern health care have enabled physicians and hospitals to detect illness earlier and treat it more effectively than ever before. Charlevoix Area Hospital has made a commitment to keep up with these advances by providing its staff with many sophisticated and highly specialized pieces of equipment. CONTROL ENGINEERING:
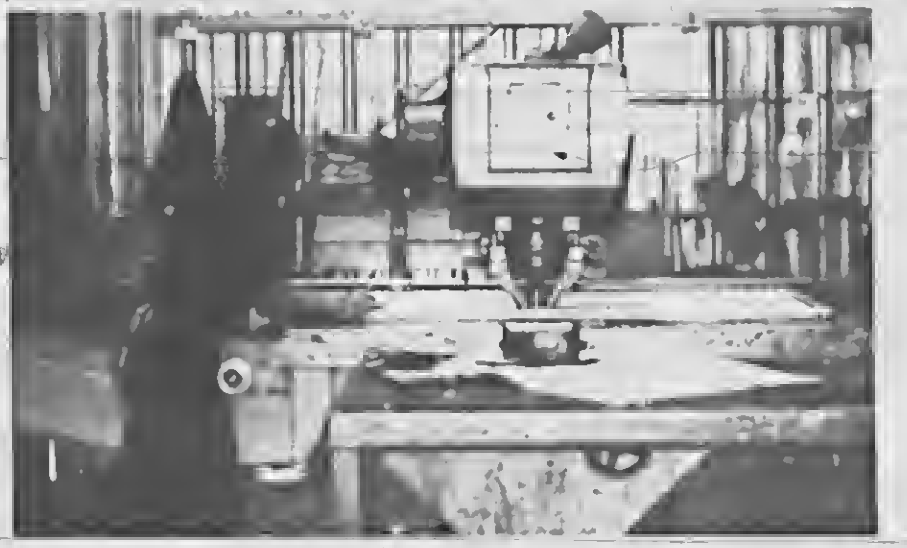
Custom-engineered systems



Control Engineering is an affiliate of the Jervis B. Webb Co., one of the the largest producers of material-handling systems in the world.

It has four plants operating in northern Michigan employing 300 employees. These plants are located in Harbor Springs, Pellston, and Boyne City, where 63 are employed.

Lewis Poole, of Boyne City's Control Engineering facility, explained their product.

"Our product is stainless steel and custom designed electrical enclosures. The enclosures are used by the machine tool industry, the food processing industry, the automotive industry and chemical companies."

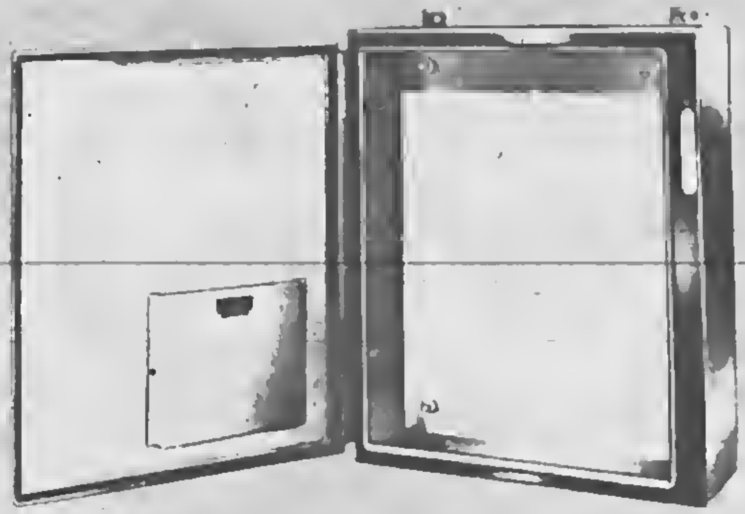
Boyne City's Control Engineering produces only the sheet metal portion. Electronic components are installed elsewhere.

Poole pointed out that the enclosures house the electronic equipment for industry, i.e. conveyor lines and machine tool industries.

Control Engineering also manufactures permanent aluminum castings and the enclosures for automatic guided vehicles used in loading and unloading materials.

Additional plants are located in Farmington Hills and Atlanta, Ga. Their products are shipped to all 50 states and overseas.

Do you have a design problem that won't fit a standard enclosure?



- Size?
- Shape?
- Environment?
- Special Requirements?

Control Engineering Company specializes in stainless steel and custom designed electrical enclosures.

We also offer a complete line of steel enclosures. All manufactured to meet or exceed NEMA 12 or J.I.C. specifications. U.L. listings available.

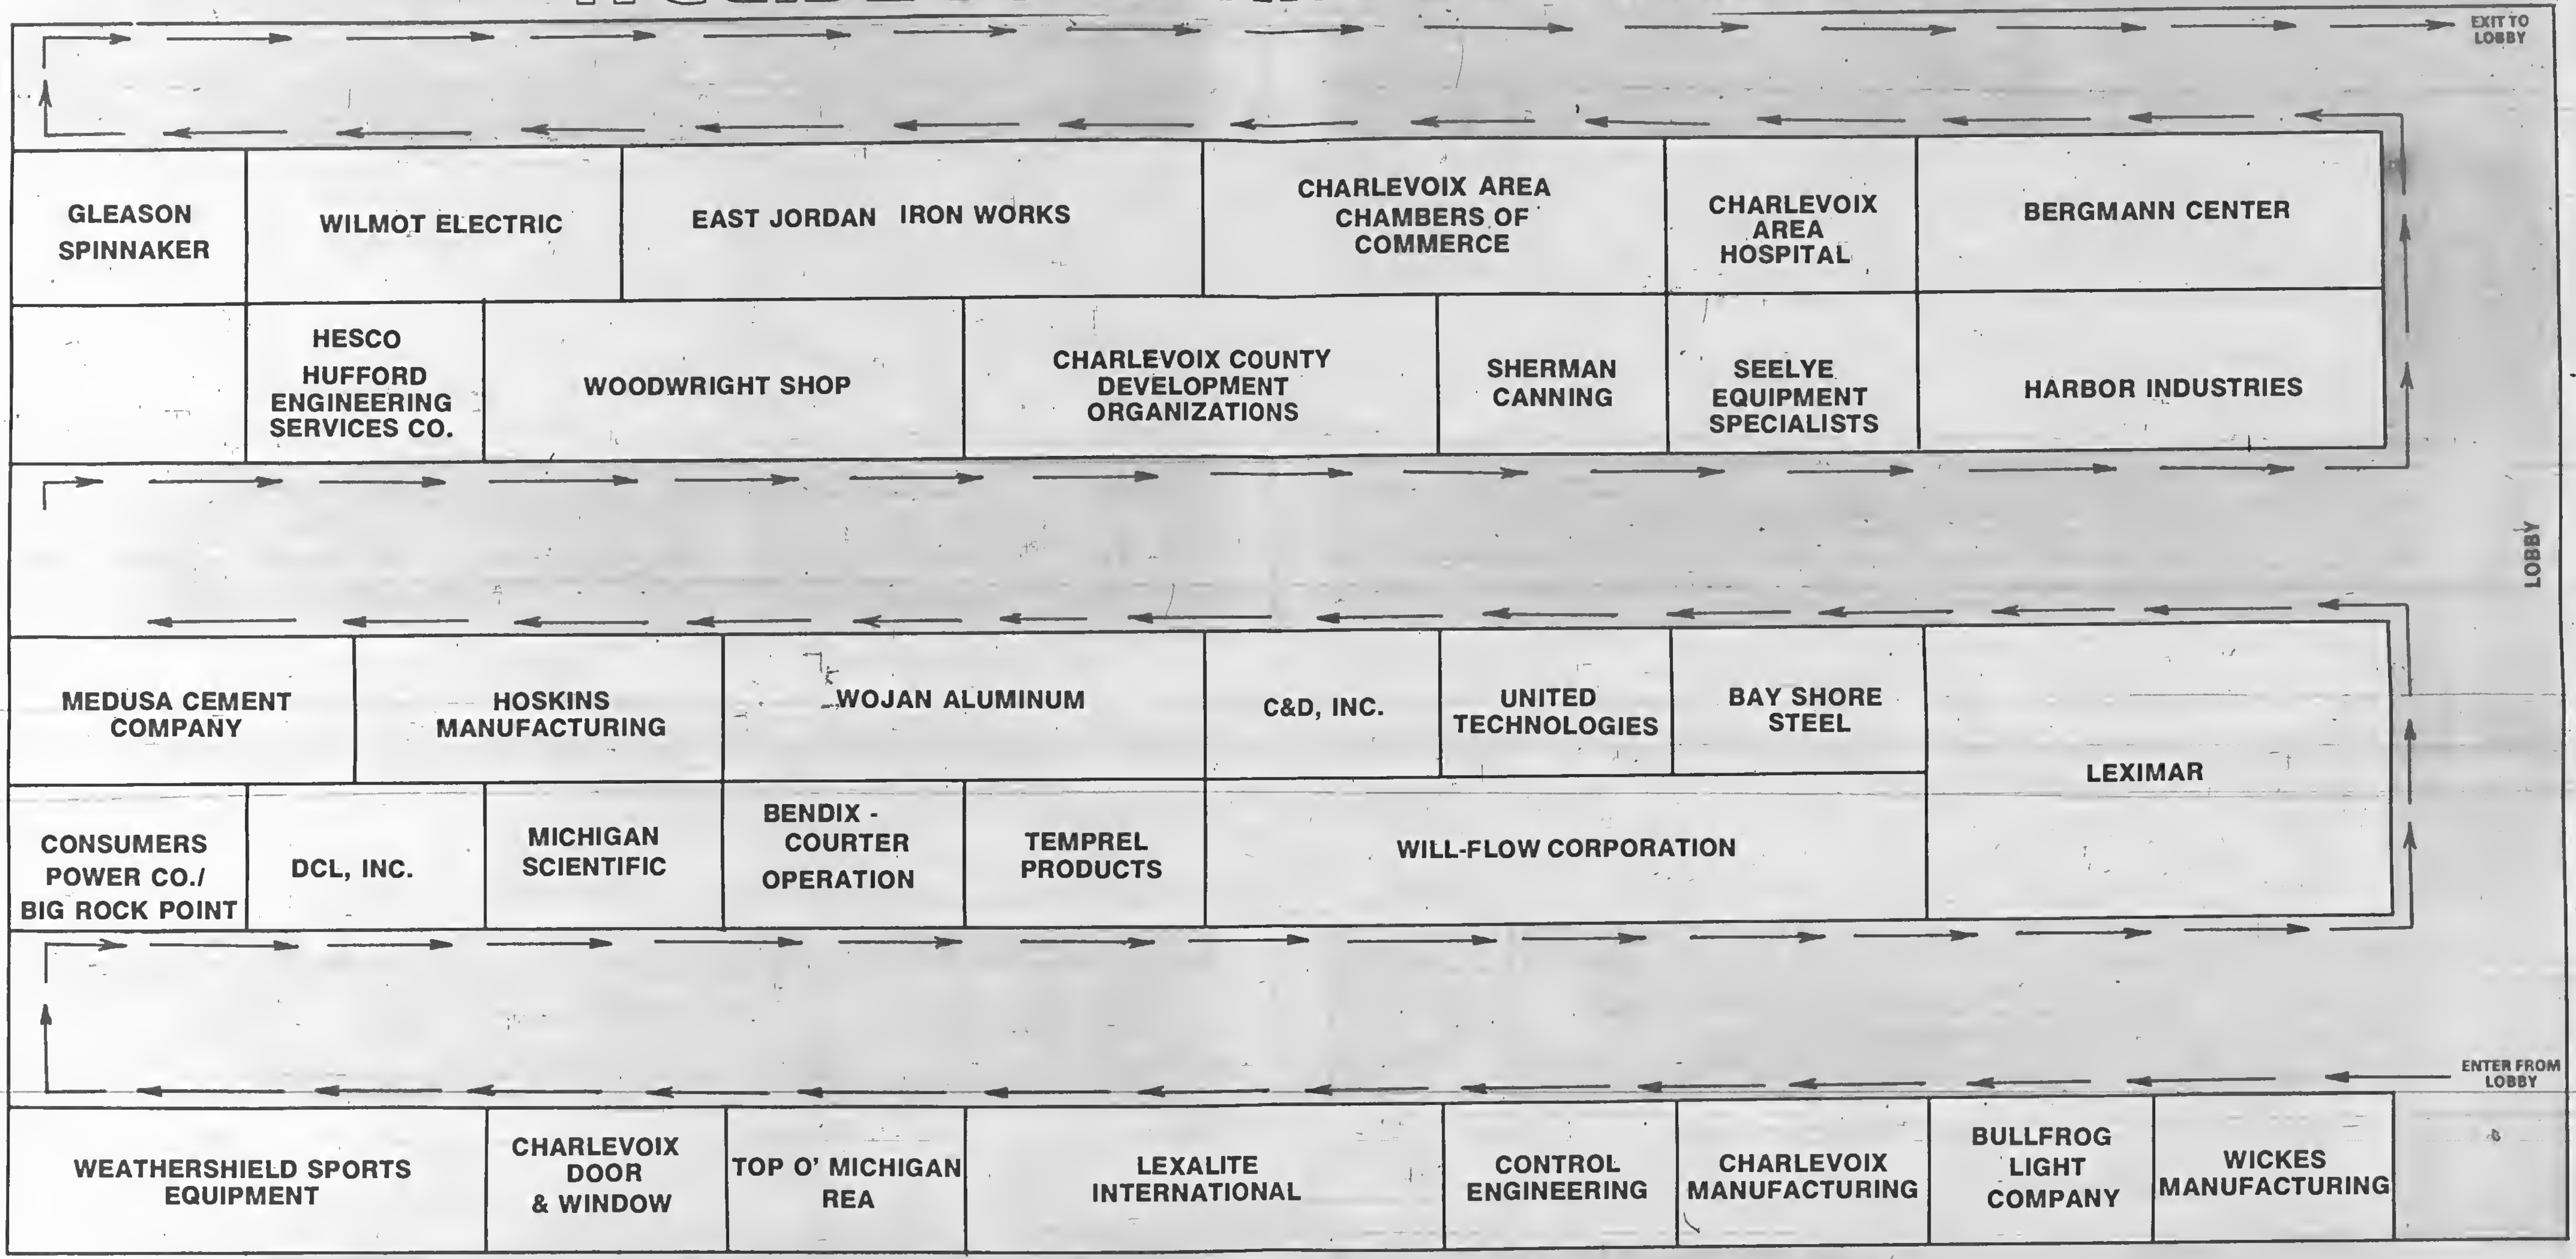
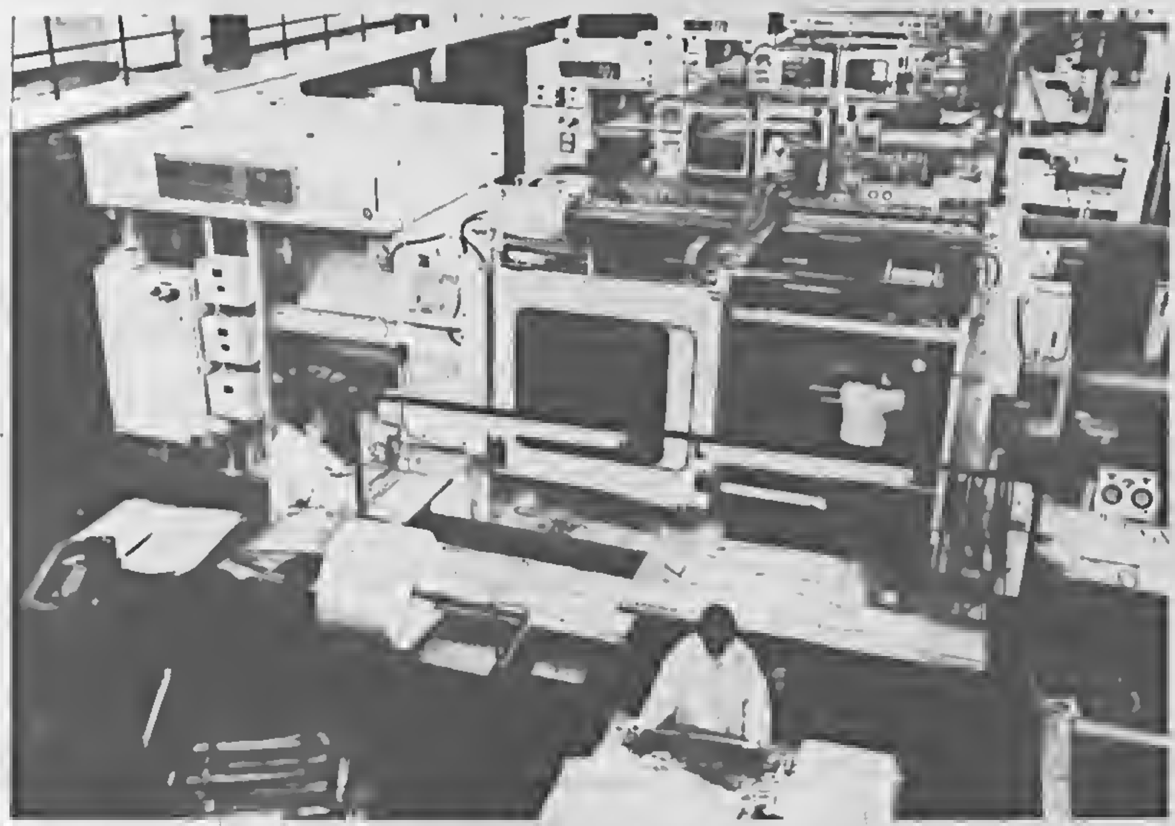
A GUIDE TO THE INDUSTRIAL FAIR



1987 CHARLEVOIX COUNTY INDUSTRIAL FAIR
CHARLEVOIX HIGH SCHOOL

LEXALITE: World-class success story



LexaLite began in 1961 with an idea for a completely vandal-proof, unbreakable polycarbonate street lighting globe.

The trade name was derived from "Lexan," a General Electric trade name for the molding material used in the first globes, and "Light," obviously from the crystal clear transparency and lighting application of the product.

This globe, known as LexaLite's Model 100, proved to be the answer to vandalism in many U.S. cities.

LexaLite was incorporated in 1963 in Southfield. Due to a rapid acceptance and demand for the products and need for a company capable of tooling a vast quantity of different styles and optical types of globes and refractors, the firm moved north to Charlevoix in 1965.

The present site for the all-electric plant on the Lake Michigan shoreline in Hayes Township was chosen not only because of its scenic beauty but also to avoid the dust and dirt contamination that is common to most industrial areas and which is detrimental to the production of clear products.

A steady growth in sales resulted in plant expansions in 1968, 1972 and 1978. Following a major fire in 1981, the main plant was completely rebuilt. LexaLite has just completed an expansion program bringing total square footage to approximately 95,000.

In early 1980 a second building was acquired within the city of Charlevoix containing about 7,500 square feet. Later that year another expansion project doubled its size, and that building is now occupied by its assembly division, LexaLite Specialty Products.

The newest facility is in Dickson, Tennessee, which has 35,000 square feet of plant and office and has successfully added to the income of LexaLite for over two years.

LexaLite now employs 220 people between its Dickson, Tennessee, and Charlevoix facilities and its annual sales exceeded $14,000,000 during the past fiscal year.

Subsidiaries and joint ventures of the parent company, LexaLite International Corporation (a Delaware corporation), include Charlevoix Tool and Engineering, LexaLite Specialty Products Company, LexaLite Europe, S.A. (France), LexaLite Corporation of Canada and LexaLite Mexicana, S.A. (Mexico).

Together, they design, tool and manufacture specialized plastic products for the lighting, signal devices, communications, appliance and automotive industries on a worldwide basis.

HARBOR INDUSTRIES: Nation's largest display rack maker

Harbor Industries, with manufacturing facilities in Charlevoix, Los Angeles and Grand Haven, is the largest full-service manufacturer of permanent and semi-permanent displays in the United States.

This year alone Harbor Industries will move in excess of 100,000,000 products in more than 200,000 retail outlets.

From greeting card display racks to electronic touch-tone control display showcases for General Electric products, table tennis displays for Sears to showcases for Smurfs, Smurfettes, Snorks and other creatures, Harbor Industries designs units to enhance the presentation of any product.

The quality of today's Harbor Industries' products is a Charlevoix tradition.

During World War II, Gordon Freedman, a Cincinnati engineer, had designed wooden propellers for a variety of vital aircraft, including the liaison planes known as "Grasshoppers."

Following the war, Freedman turned his engineering skills to the civilian market, moving to Charlevoix to open Freedman Artcraft Engineering in 1946. The company became an innovative leader in display cases, particularly for greeting cards.

Freedman's produced the first self-service racks for records and soon was creating fixtures for any self-service item, including greeting cards, candles, threads and zippers. Major accounts included Rust Craft and Gibson.

In April 1981, Freedman Artcraft merged with Harbor Industries, combining businesses that had paralleled each other for more than 30 years. While Freedman Artcraft had specialized in wood products, Harbor Industries was moving into extensive use of metals and plastic.

The combining of engineering skills and traditions has brought growth to the Charlevoix plant. Major accounts include: Sears, Anheuser-Busch, Clorox, General Electric, Masonite, Oneida Silversmiths, Teledyne, Weyerhaeuser, Whitman's Chocolates, Homer Formby Wood Finishing Products, 3M Company and Glidden Paints.

A major acquisition and expansion is planned at the Charlevoix plant, where installation of a $240,000 angular panel saw will increase the workforce by 15 employees.

WOODWRIGHT SHOP: Custom-made products

Handcrafted rich cedar saunas, custom furniture, wood-trimmed spas, engineer-designed wood products for commercial and private use, the Woodwright Sbop creates it all.

The Woodwright Sauna is an elegant and functional piece, suitable for installation indoors or out.

The Woodwright Shop's residential spas, redwood trimmed, surrounded by custom decking, are designed as self-contained units. The shop's commercial spa installations include the Wellness Center in Boyne City, the Boyne Falls Motel, and Harbor West condominiums in Traverse City.

Custom furniture, spas, saunas, a variety of picnic tables and other outdoor furniture, and other wood products are elegantly displayed in the Woodwright Shop's Showroom-Studio across from the Foster Boat Works Inn on Ferry Avenue.

Lynn Cook presides over the showroom while Frank Cook and one other employee meet the growing demand for the Woodwright Shop's products.

WILMOT ELECTRIC: Providing support for industry

Since 1983, Wilmot Electric has been designing and building electrical systems for industry - from computer driven heat control panels to robotics, three-phase power system monitoring signals to programmable process controllers.

Serving both industrial and residential customers, Wilmot's industrial electric business mottos are to: "Keep Industry Up and Running;" "Meet Impossible Deadlines;" and "Create Solutions."

Charles Wilmot explains his company's business, saying, "We do it all. If a non-standard breaker goes bad in a factory, any time of the day or night, we will find the solution. We custom design systems.

"We have a wide range of customers and a wide range of resources.

"We work with application engineers throughout industry and maintain an extensive resource library."

Wilmot and his 8 employees - including three state licensed journeymen electricians, four master electricians - create, install, trouble shoot, maintain and train people to use highly sophisticated systems.

Support power panels made by Wilmot for LexaLite International analyze and monitor power supply, signalling undetected losses in three-phase power before they can create inefficiency or machinery damage. Other Wilmot projects include:

- Heat control panels at Hoskins Manufacturing to measure and control crucial temperatures in the annealing furnaces.

- Computerized preventive maintenance programs for several area industries, guaranteeing a systematic maintenance program that minimizes down time.

- Machine signal systems at LexaLite International's Dickson, Tennessee plant, permit continuous monitoring all machines and quick communication of trouble spots in busy production areas.

- Process controller systems for several local manufacturers controls atmospheric gasses as well as heat during important processing.

- Programmable controllers for McGill Quantum 2000 Program Controllers, using Kaypro computers, installed to monitor the drying ovens for Hoskins.

HOSKINS MANUFACTURING:
Wire company has long line of successes

Drawing wire at Hoskins

Even during times over the past two decades of uncertainty and retreat for many industrial operations in the area and state, the Hoskins Manufacturing Company's Charlevoix plant has experienced steady growth.

In June 1985, the plant completed a $500,000, 15,000-square foot expansion project with bonding assistance from the Charlevoix County Economic Development Corporation.

The addition brings the total amount of manufacturing space at the plant just south of Charlevoix on M-66 to 35,000 square feet.

It has employed as many as 90 in the past and now provides work for about 75 employees.

Established in the area in 1961 with help from the Charlevoix Development Corporation, the first Hoskins plant and its seven employees were located in a rented building on the north side while a permanent plant was being constructed on 35 acres of the former Loeb estate.

That first building provided 10,000 square feet and was intended primarily for the production of ultra-fine wire – as small as .0005" in diameter – for the precision resistor and potentiometer industries.

As electronic technology changed, phasing out such devices as transistors, Hoskins' product line adjusted. The wire size-range that was produced gradually increased until it included wire as large as .028" in diameter, still technically a fine wire product.

These materials were supplied mostly to appliance manufacturers where the wire formed the heating element for such products as clothes driers, baseboard heaters and electric blankets.

Hoskins' precision alloys were also used in devices used for temperature measurement and control.

Ten-thousand more square feet were added to the plant in 1966 and in 1971 a second building of 3,000 square feet was constructed.

These expansions saw the inclusion of helical coils and stranded wire, or cable, in the Charlevoix plant's product line.

Not only is the plant manager, Barbara Skeel, a woman, but female employees have outnumbered males by as much as 40 to 1 in recent years and hold almost all supervisory positions as well.

Hoskins Manufacturing Company, founded in 1908 by a Chicago scientist, is currently a subsidiary of the Armada Corporation based in Detroit. Other Hoskins plants are located in Mio, Hamburg and New Paris, Indiana, Ireland and Canada.

DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATIONS

Several organizations have been formed over the years to promote business and industry in the Charlevoix county area.

Some date back many years and were responsible for assisting industries which have become mainstays of the local economy to locate in the area. Others are new and represent an effort by local units of government to join with the state, business and industry, and citizens' groups to improve the business outlook for the northern Michigan economy.

Listed below are the various groups in Charlevoix County which are working to maintain and attract business to various parts of the county.

ANTRIM-CHARLEVOIX GROWTH ALLIANCE

The Antrim-Charlevoix Growth Alliance received formal recognition from the governor's office of the State of Michigan in 1985, and has made many contributions to business and industry in the two-county area.

The growth Alliance was organized to help bring new business and industry to the two-county area, and to assist established businesses in dealing with state and local regulations and other problems.

It is an outgrowth of the Business and Industry Task Force and is funded by state monies as well as contributions from Charlevoix and Antrim counties, the cities and towns within the two counties, and various economic development corporations.

Richard Beagle is coordinator of the Growth Alliance and has offices in Boyne City. He lists the main purposes of the Growth Alliance as follows:

- Coordination among local development organizations and the state.
- A data base for industrial development through the state computer network.
- A business and industry site inventory.
- A retention program for existing business and industry on problem-solving and expansion.
- A community assistance effort.
- A marketing program for the promotion of industrial development in the area, contact with new prospects, and follow-up on new business leads.

Officers for the current year include: Dick Wieland, farmer, president; Susan Van Wieren, assistant superintendent of vocational and general education for the Char-Em Intermediate School District, vice president; Pauline Truesdell, representing villages and councils, from Elk Rapids, secretary; and Andy Frykberg, Boyne City manager, treasurer.

The Antrim-Charlevoix Growth Alliance provides the county with a central work point for volunteer business and industry groups.

EAST JORDAN INDUSTRIAL ECONOMIC COMMISSION

This commission was organized about a year ago to work with the city council in developing the East Jordan area. Among other things, the commission is working to establish an industrial park adjacent to the airport.

Officers of the East Jordan Industrial Economic Commission are Michael Longton, chairman; Richard Wheeler, vice chairman; and Mary Longton, secretary.

Commission members are Dr. John Richter, Walter Goebel Jr., and Fran Morris.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

The Charlevoix County Economic Development Corporation was organized in 1981 to provide tax exempt industrial revenue bonds under the state act authorizing EDC's.

It has also sought to promote business and industrial development in the county and to develop a policy with regard to the use of incentives.

The Charlevoix County EDC acts as a development arm for the county as a whole.

With the use of tax exempt bonding, it has provided help to the Weathervane Terrace, two projects for LexaLite International and Hoskins.

A nine-member board is appointed by the county board of commissioners with representatives from throughout the county. The contact person is Lee Moerland of the Belvedere Club.

CHARLEVOIX DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

The Charlevoix Development Corporation is chaired by Tom Wieland.

It was formed to assist in the funding of development projects in the City of Charlevoix.

During its tenure, it has provided financial assistance to several businesses and industries.

CHARLEVOIX INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEE

This committee was formed in 1987 as a cooperative effort with the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and industrialists in the area.

The committee has produced a video presentation of the Charlevoix area to send to industrial prospects. The video will also be played in the harbor master's office, at the Charlevoix Airport and at the Chamber of Commerce.

EAST JORDAN INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

The oldest development organization in the county, the East Jordan Development Corporation was organized in 1954. It is a non-profit corporation with a nine-member board of directors and operates independent of any government authority.

BOYNE CITY ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

The Boyne City Economic Development Corporation was formed in 1979 to encourage economic growth in Boyne City.

It helped develop the Air-Industrial park and to locate Lexamar, Prestige Press, Boyne Precision and Engineering, Temprel Products and RBI Mechanical in the park.

The Boyne City ECC will work to provide tax-exempt bond financing for business and industry where appropriate, as it has already done with Glen's Market.

It has also developed a policy statement for the city with regard to the use of incentives in attracting business.

The Boyne City EDC also acts as the tax increment financing authority for the Air-Industrial park.

The group is controlled by a nine-member board of directors. Richard May serves as chairman and Randy Frykberg, Boyne City manager, is the contact person.

CHARLEVOIX MANUFACTURING:
Family-owned company specializes in automotive brake pistons

Charlevoix Manufacturing Company started operations in Charlevoix on July 16, 1978.

It is a family-owned company currently under the supervision of James Hater.

Charlevoix Manufacturing Company employs about 70 local people and this year had a total annual payroll of $900,000.

Its attractively designed and landscaped 17,000 square foot building on Martin Road houses two basic functions, casting and machining.

The firm's main product is a master cylinder brake piston manufactured for the automotive industry. Finished products are shipped to the Delco Moraine facility in Dayton, Ohio, which is the brake division for General Motors.

BAY SHORE STEEL:
Government, private orders lead to plant expansion

The Bay Shore Steel Company is 25 years old and still growing.

Orders from the General Dynamics Corporation for hull structure parts of the Army's Main Battle Tank and other orders for a bulk loading system are keeping the plant humming, according to Rob Wojan, company vice president. He added that the loading systems are designed for small particulate loads, such as grains and cement.

This combination of work for the government and for private industry customers also presents an especially bright light for the future of the local industry Wojan added.

Bay Shore Steel was started in Charlevoix by Ted Wojan, who was later joined by his son, Rob. The company moved to its present 14,500 square foot facility in Bay Shore 10 years ago. Now, with anticipated new business from both the government and private industry, the company plans to expand its plant next spring. In fact, a multi-thousand dollar piece of equipment to handle government work is now on its way to Bay Shore Steel.

Rob Wojan stresses that the success of a business such as theirs is based on the ability to do the work right. "You have to do the work right or you won't get it," he says. Rob, himself, learned how to do it "on the job" under the watchful eye of his father and now they have top rating with the government for their production and a multi-year contract with General Dynamics.

Although most of Bay Shore Steel's work now comes to them as the result of past performances on jobs, they still take local business and are always glad to take more.

In addition to their contribution to the country's defense and the progress of American industry, the Wojans and Bay Shore Steel are proud of their contribution to the local economy: Hiring 20 people, most of them with "steady work." Their payroll amounts to about half a million dollars annually, and with taxes, they figure they put about $1 million each year into the local economy.

The Wojans are a local family who have learned to do by doing. They are happy to be a part of Charlevoix County's industrial community.

HASTINGS WILL-FLOW: Stainless tanks used world-wide

Of all the industrial products manufactured in Charlevoix County, those from Will-Flow may enjoy the broadest variety of uses and the most extensive geographic range.

Will-Flow specializes in the manufacture of stainless steel tanks, pressure vessels and other related equipment.

Its plant along U.S. 31 on Charlevoix's north edge was built in 1950. It has been expanded periodically since that time, the last major project adding 2,500 square feet 12 years ago.

It now covers 54,000 square feet and employs about 80, almost all of whom live in the surrounding area.

Will-Flow is unusual for a small industrial facility in that its in-house engineering, accounting, research and development, and manufacturing departments make the plant almost completely self-contained.

Only for the most specialized technical assistance does it turn to the parent company.

Will-Flow not only supplies equipment to the country's largest corporations (Dow Chemical, DuPont, Borden, Oscar Mayer, Kodak, Gillette, Eli Lilly, Coca-Cola, Miller Brewing, Mobil Oil, just to name a few) but also ships internationally.

It has serviced customers from 40 countries worldwide and even filled an order for 21 stainless steel tanks from the U.S.S.R. a few years ago.

The list of applications for Will-Flow products is almost endless. Some of the industries that use Will-Flow manufactured equipment include: chemical, food, meat packing, textile, paint, photographic, toiletries, tobacco, perfume, pharmaceutical, beverage, wine-making, liquor, brewing, paper, petroleum, transportation, cosmetic, soap and detergent and citrus.

The Charlevoix firm has also supplied several major American universities with specially designed stainless steel equipment for laboratory research.

For local residents, however, probably the most memorable application of a Will-Flow product, was in the bicentennial year of 1976 when it was a specially-made Will-Flow stainless steel pie tin, 14 feet across and weighing 3,700 pounds, that made possible the baking of what was then the "World's Largest Cherry Pie," a feat noted by the Guinness Book of World Records.

MECHANICAL COMPONENTS: One of the county's largest

The Mechanical Components Division, Wickes Manufacturing Co. (formerly Gulf & Western Stamping, Gulf & Western Manufacturing Co.) employs nearly 300 workers and is one of the county's largest employers.

The 117,000 square foot facility on M-66 in East Jordan assembles automotive components from parts that are stamped in Mancelona, the location of the other Mechanical Components Division facility.

The division supplies such items as parking brake assemblies, shifter assemblies, hood hinges, hood latches, window regulators and other automotive hardware.

Customers include manufacturers of all automobile makes and models but most business is done with the Big Three in the U.S. – GM, Ford and Chrysler. Products are shipped not only to Detroit-area factories but to plants in California, Kentucky, New Jersey, Georgia, Illinois, Mexico, Canada... basically everywhere in North America where cars are made.

The East Jordan Plant was built in 1953 when Mount Clemens Metal Products Co., a fastener manufacturer which had expanded from its Mt. Clemens base to Mancelona in 1947, decided to expand again.

The decision to locate at its present site was aided by efforts from the East Jordan Industrial Development Corp.

The post-war years saw the company's product line concentrated more and more on automotive stampings and mechanical assemblies.

In 1968, both the East Jordan and Mancelona plants were acquired by GulfWestern Industries. A year ago the Consumers and Industrial Products Group of GulfWestern Industries (of which the Stamping Division was a part) was acquired by Wickes Companies Inc.

The Stamping Division was renamed Mechanical Components Division to more accurately identify with the type of products produced and to better reflect the future direction of the company's product lines.

Until 1973, both plants had their own stamping and assembly operations but, to increase efficiency, the decision was made that year to do all the stamping at Mancelona and all the assembly at East Jordan.

Together, the two facilities have employed as many as 700 Charlevoix and Antrim County residents in recent years. The payroll at the East Jordan plant alone is in the $5 million range.

HUFFORD SERVICES: Programmable controllers

Hufford Engineering Services is a new company in Charlevoix – but it is operated by a well-known name on the Northwestern Michigan industrial scene.

Walt Hufford, owner and principal employee of the firm, owned Hufford Industries Inc. for 18 years before selling it a year ago.

Since last summer he has been a consultant in machine shop operations – working with companies needing programmable controllers for their machinery.

Hufford works on conversions and repairs of specialized computer control systems for machinery, dealing mainly with local firms.

He does design work at his office, but farms out most of the assembly work.

Right now, Hufford is the company's lone employee although he does call in specialists in related fields when designing control devices for industry.

The Petoskey native, who has been a Charlevoix resident since 1966, has extensive background in the field.

He has worked with automatic machinery for 25 to 30 years and with programmable controllers for about 15 years.

At Hufford Industries, which was established in 1968, he and his employees produced specialized equipment for material handling, including conveyor units for the major automotive companies.

EAST JORDAN IRON WORKS:
Manufacturing iron castings for world-wide use since 1883

East Jordan Iron Works has been an integral part of the Charlevoix County economy for over one hundred years.

At the time the foundry was established by William E. Malpass, East Jordan was the center of lumbering operations. Railroads had not yet penetrated this region and eleven sawmills and the Pine Lake Iron Company were dependent on water for transportation.

Hand hewn timbers were floated to the mills and as many as 14 lumber schooners could be seen loading simultaneously at the East Jordan docks.

All this activity created a demand for the foundry and machine shop operation. The foundry was built in 1883 and was followed by a machine shop two years later. Casting demands for miscellaneous machine parts, ship parts, agricultural and eventually castings for the railroads later followed.

Closing of mills and lessening of lake shipping in the 1920's were met by changing types of manufacture. In 1928, the machine shop was enlarged and the production of fire hydrants, water works valves, and street castings began.

Through the support of the community and many dedicated employees, the company grew and has continued to do so. Today East Jordan Iron Works employs approximately 350-400 people and has an annual payroll of $8-$10 million.

Besides the corporate office and manufacturing facilities located on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix, the company operates branch offices and warehouses in Grand Rapids and Detroit, Michigan, Cleveland and Columbus, Ohio, and Chicago, Illinois. Additionally, there is an extensive network of product distributors.

East Jordan Iron Works manufactures a variety of gray and ductile iron castings to remain flexible in a fluctuating market and economy. Products include a full line of street castings, such as manhole covers, grates, and frames.

Additionally, the company is a major supplier of fire hydrants, valves, watermain fittings, valve and service boxes, tapping and repair sleeves, and supplementary water distribution supplies.

The company also manufactures industrial castings such as tractor and trailer brake drums, off the road brake drums, gear housings, valve bodies and other specialty items.

East Jordan Iron Works' services and facilities include:

– Sales and Engineering departments to assist customers in placing their order and in assuring that the customer takes advantage of the right casting for the job. All sales data such as orders, inventories, and production schedules are computerized on an IBM Systems 38 computer linked to numerous individual terminals including sales offices and yards.

– The Engineering Department includes manufacturing, industrial, product, and process engineering. Continuous evaluation of procedures and processes assures efficient, accurate and reliable production resulting in on-time delivery and competitive pricing.

– A complete pattern shop ready to construct any new pattern required. East Jordan Iron Works also maintains thousands of patterns.

– Green sand and hardened sand molding on high pressure hydraulic automated machines producing castings from fifty to four thousand pounds.

– A number of core making technologies including automated shell core, no-bake and oil sand.

– A state of the art water cooled cupola with a 1,000-degree recuperative hot blast, oxygen enrichment system capable of delivering fifty tons of molten iron per hour. This is coupled with a 40-ton electric induction holding furnace to insure that the iron is delivered to the molding centers at the proper temperature and analysis.

– Machining operations are performed on computer numerical controlled vertical and horizontal turret lathes from 10-inch chuck size up through a 68-inch swing diameter. These lathers are programmed in the engineering department utilizing Compact II computer assist, a graphic plotter, and floppy disc storage. Additional manual and automatic metal working equipment includes milling machines, radial drill presses, multi-spindle drills, horizontal lathers and grinders.

– One of the largest casting inventories in the world, ready for immediate delivery. Rail and truck delivery are available for on-time delivery of all products.

– Sand lab to assure that sand-mix prepared for each molding center has been properly formulated: A melt lab where testing of the iron's physical properties are performed. Additionally, chemical analysis on an in-house spectrometer, and microscopic inspection of the iron's structure are performed.

East Jrodan Iron Works, Inc. and its employees continue to be one of the most stable, progressive, well-tooled, manufacturing facilities in the nation and are vigorously working to meet future demands for quality products.

Conservancy races clock to buy dunes

The deal has just been signed, but a conservation group attempting to buy the North Point dunes area is already facing a monetary deadline.

By Jan. 8, the Little Traverse Conservancy must obtain $26,000 of the $700,000 total to keep an option on the property for a year.

The conservancy signed an option with the family of the late Richard Turner, owner of the Lake Michigan property, late last week.

Now fund-raising efforts begin. The group has until October 1989 to come up with the purchase price.

Already the state Land Trust Fund has been approached in an effort to obtain up to $400,000 from its acquisition fund. That $14 million fund is separate from the $5 million pot communities are trying to get funding for projects such as Charlevoix's Ferry Beach from.

In fact, conservancy director Tom Bailey filed an application – containing no specifics – last April to get consideration this year. Last week he appeared before the trust fund board to fill in the blanks.

Funding approval could come in January, Bailey said. The fund board could choose to help out with the entire $400,000, a portion of it or nothing at all, Bailey said.

So major fund-raising is aimed at community members. Bailey points out that tax law changes make it advantageous for donations to be made before the end of the year.

The property, which was the center of controversy in 1985-86, has a half-mile of frontage on Lake Michigan adjacent to Mount McSauba.

The conservancy has offered to pay about $700,000 – including option payments, land costs and project expenses.

Bailey said the money must be raised in two years, which he said is time for three annual calendar-year donations.

If the money can be raised to buy the property, the land will be turned over to Charlevoix Township as a public park and nature preserve, Bailey said. West Traverse Township in Emmet County operates Thorne Swift Preserve.

The North Point site is ideal for a park, Bailey said, with sandy and rock beach giving way to sand dunes and forested uplands. There are also small pockets of wetlands.

"Being adjacent to an existing park is also an ideal feature of the Used ship may give Star allies more time

The possibility of obtaining a used paddlewheel cruise ship may give organizers of an effort to return the Star of Charlevoix to Round Lake added time to put together finances.

The group of business people approached Star Line owner John McGoff to see if he was willing to bring back the ship after a one-year absence.

McGoff, at the first contact, was reluctant to become a major investor in the enterprise. But at a second meeting last week he indicated he may make a "substantial financial commitment," said Jacquie Merta of the chamber of commerce.

McGoff's involvement hinges on local efforts to raise a large portion of the estimated $600,000 needed to purchase and operate a ship.

The ship would be operated by Star Line, which has cruise ships in several large U.S. port cities.

Because a ship would have to be built, the group was looking at a

AROUND THE TOWN

The idea of replacing the East Park bandshell with a sturdy and attractive structure has resurfaced – again.... It's an proposal that is resurrected every few years....

The present bandshell – just a glorified stage, actually – was built in 1952 but never finished, because, as Clarence Odmark said years later, "we ran out of money."... Various groups have gotten behind numerous efforts to do something, and at one time a state grant was sought, but not approved, for $50,000 of a $100,000 project....

There are a couple of bank accounts sitting with money – apparently more than $10,000 – in them for East Park or bandshell improvements.... It's been suggested they could be the seed to get the project growing.

Warren Shapton, community band business manager, has been associated with the band for 60 years.... With the dog run behind the bandshell closed for the past couple years because of crumbling block, be says people kid him about the structure not being safe for dogs but being OK for people.

Say goodbye to petunias. They'll all be gone in a few days.... After a long, hot summer of babying the community's five-mile flower bed, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful is plowing them under....

In past years, the civic organization has let the flowers stay in place – until the snowplows did them in.... But, as part of an effort to revitalize the beds – and maybe halt weeding forever – the 50,000 petunias are being rototilled....

After the rototilling, the beds will be planted with rye grass, which in turn will be rototilled under in the spring.... This process will enrich the soil.

By then, KCB will have had an opportunity to evaluate the effectiveness and winterability of a trial "weed blanket."... If the petroleum-based sheeting used on a portion of bed at the golf course holds up, KCB plans to purchase enough to cover the entire stretch.... That would eliminate the need for paid weeders, which this year cost more than the 10-year-guaranteed weed blanket would.

Rescue boat finds haven in Charlevoix

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

"We'd welcome a gale to push us to Chicago," Warren Scott said with a grin and a strong hint of a Scottish burr.

He stood, watching the weather, from the deck of his 46-foot gaff-rigged yawl, SWN Y MOR, a salty boat with dusky red square-rigged sails.

SWN Y MOR and its crew of three – Warren and Jill Scott and their six-year-old daughter Helen – had been blown into Charlevoix, where they spent a good part of last week.

For the past seven years SWN Y MOR – Welsh for "Sound of the Sea" – has been Scott's home. For the past three years they havew been sailing the world.

Their home port is St. David's, Wales, and like many ocean sailors they were surprised by what the Great Lakes could produce in the way of a bumpy ride.

The British flag flying from the stern indicated southwest winds were rocking the sturdy-looking craft. Two days after they arrived, the winds had come around to the north but the rain was steady, the seas were indeed lumpy and there was a threat of snow. The clearer but cold weather predicted for the next day gave some hope.

"The SWN Y MOR was built for ultimate seaworthiness. She had to be. And she can take almost anything. But these short and steep waves on the lakes, they're a bit uncomfortable. I think we'll wait another day," Warren Scott mused, even as he recounted sail blowouts and gales, "which the SWN Y MOR loves," on the oceans.

A famed North Sea and North Atlantic rescue boat, the SWN Y MOR is retired from the Royal National Lifeboat Institution of Britain.

En route to Charlevoix, the Scotts sailed the Mediterranean, the west coast of Africa, the Atlantic, the Caribbean, the coast of South America and up the inland waterway along the eastern United States.

A professor of physics at Leeds University in Yorkshire, England, Warren purchased the boat from another sailor who had gotten it out of retirement from the rescue service.

Warren and Jill lived aboard for three years while he continued his teaching. When Warren suggested taking off, Jill was delighted to throw away the small beater which made the boat bearable in winter.

"I'd had enough of cold winters. I was ready," Jill remembered. The SWN Y MOR is the only home six-year-old Helen has known.

They came to the Great Lakes because, as Warren said, "We decided it would be a shame to do the usual circumnavigation thing. You know, cross the Atlantic to the Caribbean, head for Panaman and then on to the Pacific. It would be a shame not to see North America.

"We came up the inland waterway and then the New York state barge canal into Lake Erie. We got into the lakes in August."

Cruising the lakes, they've called at Toronto, Georgian Bay, Mackinac Island and Beaver Island. From Charlevoix they planned to call at several ports down the coast, beginning with Leland, en route to Chicago. How much time they spend in Chicago will depend on how long it takes for a repaired self-steering device to arrive from Boston.

As they layered on sweaters and listened to predictions of snow, Jill reiterated how anxious she was to get to warmer climes.

"We'll go down the Calumet River

Hotel appeal returns to zoning board

The zoning board of appeals will have a second opportunity to decide if a hotel is an allowed use on a Park Avenue parcel.

The board, in hearing an appeal of a planning commission decision, has voted once that a hotel is a use comparable to those allowed in the zoning ordinance.

But that decision was declared void by the city attorney, who said proper notification was not given to neighbors.

The zoning board will hear the request to overturn the planning commission decision at its 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 21, meeting at city hall.

Word of the zoning board's initial decision rippled through the city quickly, upsetting many people who earlier this summer were involved in an effort to halt construction of multiple-unit buildings near the waterfront.

Rumors spread that the zoning board had given the go-ahead for construction of a hotel. The decision involves only the narrow question of whether a hotel is an allowed use in a commercial-scenic zoned district.

Should the zoning board again overrule the planning commission's interpretation of the zoning ordinance, any hotel project would have to go through the entire site plan and variance approval processes.

Approvals given by the zoning board, planning commission and city council to an 11-unit condominium-ownership, multiple-unit housing project would not apply.

The hotel plan, as submitted to the city in June, calls for a 21-unit building essentially identical externally to the original plan for the condos.

The condo plan was altered during variance and site plan reviews, and a hotel plan would also face possible revisions. Different variances from zoning ordinance rules may also be needed, depending on the plan presented.

Also on the zoning board agenda is further discussion of the definition of the term private club as it would be applied to the multiple-housing portions of the zoning ordinance.

Attorney Don Berlage, who has submitted four site plans for the lots at 105 and 107 Park, labled one plan a 21-unit private club.

The planning commission and now the zoning board have wrestled with that phrase.

The dispute over Berlage's plans for the site led to a change by city council in the path a development plan must follow through city hall.

Site plans would return to council after review by the advisory planning commission. The council could rule on plans before they go to the zoning board contingent on approval or denial of requested variances.

City attorney Jeff VanTreese has cautioned the council, however, that under Michigan law they cannot try to influence the autonomous zoning board's decisions.

He cited court decisions preventing council members from appearing before or given written opinions to the zoning board.

Mayor Ralph McRae has suggested that council members attend the zoning board's meeting. Not to speak, one council member quipped, but "to give them the evil eye."

PLANTS SHOW OFF WARES

Thousands of visitors wandered through the third Charlevoix County Industrial Fair and learned about the many products made in the area. From the East Jordan Iron Works display to the Michigan Scientific and Medusa Cement exhibits they discovered the diversity of Charlevoix County industry. Sam Chulick, however, found the fair a nice place for a quick nap as father David checked out the Charlevoix Manufacturing booth.

Beach plan is back on state list

Charlevoix's Ferry Beach grant request has been kept from drowning – at least for awhile.

A delegation from the community went to Lansing last week to plead for the project's life and was rewarded with a reprieve.

The request for up to a half-million dollars was not on the Department of Natural Resources' funding list for the Natural Resources Trust Fund.

So City Manager Mike Wiesner, council member Earl Muma, charter fisherman Jim Withers, youth activities director Mike Davis and Larry Levengood of the health department appeared before the trust fund board.

They weren't alone. But of the 15 or 20 communities which made five-minute presentations, Wiesner said, only three were added to the list.

"Whatever we did, it worked," he said, adding that he was concerned when the board members asked no questions of the group. Charlevoix was the first to speak that morning.

Being returned to the list does not guarantee funding, however. The DNR has 25 projects on its list and money for about half.

The city will be asked to either reduce the scope of the project or reduce the amount it is requesting, Wiesner said. He is awaiting a letter from the DNR detailing the next step.

A funding decision is expected in January.

The city's plan would expand the boat launch area, install a fish cleaning station, construct new restrooms, move the children's play area away from Lake Charlevoix and enlarge the parking lot.

Also proposed, but not in the grant application, is moving Ferry Avenue further from the water to allow for park enlargement.

The state program would pay for up to 75 percent of the project. The Trust Fund board has between $4 million and $5 million to work with.

The Trust Fund formerly was called the Kammer Land Trust Fund and receives its money from gas and oil exploration leases on state land.

The city also applied for funds from a federal program administered by the same state agency.

That program, the Land and Water Conservation Fund, is held up in Congress. If money becomes available, there could be 50 percent funding through that program.

Lake planners attempt to clarify duties of proposed authority

by PEG OHLE

The Lake Charlevoix Management Planning Advisory Committee is working on language to clarify the part a proposed lake authority would play in monitoring use of the lake and its shoreline.

Establishment of such an authority has been the main opposition to the lake plan as it has been discussed at public hearings in recent weeks.

The opposition comes from municipalities who fear they would have to give up some of their governing powers if a lake authority were established.

Others of the general public have expressed concern that the authority would be "just another layer of government."

County Planner Larry Sullivan, who has been working with the advisory committee during its almost three years of existence, believes that all these concerns can be alleviated by the use of clear, concise language.

"The committee is trying to make it clear what the duties and responsibilites of a lake authority would be," Sullivan explained. "They are also thinking about the necessity of hiring someone to carry on the work of the Lake authority. Perhaps it could be a job combined with some other government office."

Sullivan further said that the seven townships and three cities that would be part of the Lake Charlevoix Management plan, when adopted, would have an opportunity to select a board to oversee the work of the person hired to run the lake authority.

There has also been some talk about changing the name of the overseeing body to something like "Lake Charlevoix Basin Committee," which probably would not sound as authoritative, according to Sullivan.

The Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory plan contains 15 specific suggestions dealing with the land surrounding the lake and three dealing with the lake itself.

They cover such land use points as vertical and horizontal setbacks, greenbelts, use of soil types in determining land use, restricted development of wetlands, expansion of existing sewer systems to lakeshore areas, a site review plan that would consider the aesthetic and environmental impacts on the lake, and uniformity of zoning throughout Charlevoix County.

In dealing with the water, the plan calls for preserving the fish habitat by carefully regulating dredging and filling on the lake; regulating use of lake surface areas by addressing boat density; and establishing a system for transfer of dockage rights between properties.

The above recommendations will be made to the seven townships and three cities bordering Lake Charlevoix in the hope that those bodies of government will incorporate them into their own zoning ordinances.

The Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory plan has been submitted to nine of these local units of government. The last presentation, to Marion Township, will be made Oct. 20.

The Lake Charlevoix Management Planning Advisory Committee will hold one more meeting to cross "T's" and dot "I's", and after acceptance of its report by the County Planning Commission, it will disband. The plan will be turned over to the County Board of Commissioners at its Oct. 14 meeting, and to the County Planning Commission for discussion at its November meeting.

Members of the Lake Charlevoix Management Planning Advisory Committee have been working on the plan since January, 1985. They have held monthly meetings and heard experts in many fields of land and water quality and protection, studied reams of written material on related subjects, and written and rewritten hundreds of pages of reports, ideas, and recommendations. They have served without remuneration and have more often been criticized than complimented.

Last week, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, a local environmental organization, took notice of the committee's work in a resolution citing its service to the community, ending with the words:

"Now therefore be it resolved that Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc. expresses its appreciation to the Lake Charlevoix Management Planning Advisory Committee for the many hours of work and study that went into the concept of a Lake Charlevoix Management plan that will provide for maximum enjoyment of this precious resource, with minimum damage to it. for many generations to come."

Song lost in time

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

Does anyone remember the Korean War?

Let me hum you a few bars.

Of all the wars the United States has fought over the years, the Korean War — or the Korean conflict, or the Korean police action as the government preferred to call it — seems to be one of the least remembered.

Although it was a costly war in terms of lives and materiel, it wasn't exactly a popular war. Unless you were in Korea itself, or in nearby Japan, as I was, you wouldn't even know the war was going on.

Few of life's necessities were in short supply in the United States and there was no need for rationing, as there was during World War II. The war was so low-key that Irving Berlin, who gave us "Over There" during World War I and "This is the Army" during World War II, apparently had wearied of "war songs" and decided to sit out the Korean conflict.

In short, we had no music to whip us into a patriotic frenzy.

Maybe if the Korean War had had its own music it would be easier to remember.

The only song I recall from that era — aside from a popular Japanese ditty about butterfly girls — was a little number that Major Edith Eames, R.N., head of the Army Nurse Corps in Korea, used to sing, accompanying herself on the ukulele. Legend has it that Major Eames used to visit field hospitals at night, long after her day's work was done, in an effort to boost the morale of wounded fighting men.

The song must have a name, but I don't know what it is. However I remember the melody and some of the lyrics:

"So here's to you,
May your dreams come true,
May old Father Time,
Never be unkind.
And through the years;
Save your smiles and tears,
They'll be souvenirs.

Remember this,
Each new day's a kiss,
Sent from up above,
With a Father's love...

The rest of the song is lost in the mists of time, but I still can hear Major Eames singing it while seated on the tatami floor of a Japanese hotel in Nikko, a shrine city in the Japanese Alps about 100 miles northwest of Tokyo. I had gone to Nikko to see the shrines and Major Eames and two or three other nurses from Korea stopped at the hotel on rest and recuperation leave.

Being the only Americans on the premises, it was inevitable that we got together after dinner to sip sake and talk. At one point during the evening, Major Eames broke out her ukulele and sang for us.

Robust and motherly, Major Eames, who must have been in her 40s at the time, was an unusual lady in many respects. In an effort to recruit more nurses for duty in Korea, she contacted an old friend, Carleton E. Morse, originator of the radio show "One Man's Family," and talked Morse into having one of his characters — Teddie Barbour — enlist in the Nurse Corps.

Thereafter, whenever Major Eames wrote to Morse, Father Barbour would read her letter on nationwide radio as though it came directly from Teddie in Korea. A wheezing asthmatic, Father Barbour was perpetually short of breath, giving other members of the Barbour family an opportunity to add comments of their own on the important role nurses were playing in Korea.

Major Eames, alias Teddie Barbour, probably did more to help bolster nursing recruitment than any of the slick government-sponsored programs.

But that was 35 years ago. I have no idea where Major Eames is today. And I can't even remember the name of the song that so many GIs must have heard while lying wounded in MASH hospitals across the blood-soaked Korean Peninsula.

It was probably the last song that some of them ever heard.

If you know the name of the song or the rest of the words, please let me know.

As for Major Eames, I certainly hope Father Time hasn't been unkind. He wouldn't dare, because Major Edith Eames, R.N., was as tough as she was gentle.

Enticing more manufacturers to Northland

Charlevoix County has a well-deserved reputation as a tourist area. So it surprises many to find out that almost 45 percent of the area's jobs are in industry.

That's twice as high as the state average, but – judging from winter unemployment rates and the rate of attrition by young people – not high enough. The retail, hospitality and agriculture seasons are too short to provide all-season jobs.

To create more year-round employment either a longer, bigger tourist season is needed or more manufacturing plants must be enticed to locate nearby.

The tourist season can be expanded somewhat – through such present efforts as returning a cruise ship to Lake Charlevoix and luring conference and convention business during the off-seasons.

But the major focus must be in attracting industry. And, while not always readily apparent, strong efforts are being made.

A walk through last weekend's industrial fair showed that industry is attracted to the area. Joining long-established firms are new names – large companies such as Lexamar and small ones such as Michigan Scientific.

Organizations in all parts of the county – economic development groups, chambers of commerce, the Antrim-Charlevoix Growth Alliance – are working out of the spotlight to convince businessmen to locate new facilities here.

North Force, a 30-county coalition of development agencies, has taken a big step in spreading the word about the advantages of working and living in the North. The first issue of North Force Magazine is fresh off the press and into the hands of 10,000 decision makers.

All three cities in the county are developing industrial parks, where manufacturing facilities are welcome neighbors.

Boyne City has already gained some major tenants, and Charlevoix has taken an aggressive marketing approach by hiring a Detroit area real estate firm to promote its industrial park downstate.

Charlevoix has also developed an inviting videotape of its industrial community which shows off the area's attractions and character.

As all these, and other, efforts pay off, they will help ensure that full-time jobs are part of the area's future.

Only money will make this dream come true

It's put your money where your mouth is time.

By helping to raise $700,000, people who fought development of the North Point dunes area can see to it that the area remains forever parkland:

The Little Traverse Conservancy has convinced the owner of the 28-acre Lake Michigan site to give the organization two years to raise the money to buy the property.

The prime piece of land, with a half-mile beach, became a battleground in early 1986 over a proposal to build 120 condo units.

The debate came to a tragic end when the owner and developer of the property both died in a plane crash. But concern over the future of the dune- and forest-covered area's future remained.

That was where the conservancy went to work, as it has done before in the Harbor Springs, Walloon Lake and Burt Lake areas.

Armed with the proof it could pull off a major fund-raising effort – the proof being the $780,000 raised to rescue a stand of tall oaks at Colonial Point – the conservancy convinced the owner's survivors to give two years to come up with the $700,000.

But that was just the start. Now it's time for the people of the acronym organizations – KCB, DUNE, WATCH – and others who pleaded for preservation of the site to come forward again.

This time, they need to bring their checkbooks.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared
by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

Do you know what it is to be discouraged? You get discouraged when you leave your lights on after driving to work in the morning and you try to start your car eight hours later in the middle of a snowstorm. You get discouraged when the shoes you bought for $32.95 yesterday go on sale for $22.95 today.

In some ways, I'll grant you that those are silly, even trivial, things. But discouragement is a real problem for a lot of people and the devil loves it. In fact, it is one of his favorite tools to pry us away from the faith, hope, and love that is ours as God's children.

If things do get you down, rely on God's power. In Psalm 40, David writes, "I waited patiently for God, He turned to me and heard my cry." When we try to take on too much of life in our own right, we're asking for trouble. God as our creator, as the source of life, has the experience and the knowledge we don't have, to get us through life's dark moments.

If the blues are about to get to you, remember God has a plan. David continues, "many O Lord my God, are the wonders you have done. The things you have planned for us no one can recount to you; were I to speak and tell of them they would be too many to declare."

You know what the problem is? Instead of remembering that God has given us a faith that can move mountains, we settle for a belief that is only a match for an occasional molehill. Why, life's molehills ought to be small bumps that hardly phase us and the mountains we face ought to plant a sense of expectation over what neat things God will do next.

Reflect God's praise. When you're facing a rough time, you don't have to spill your insides. Ask others to pray with you and believe. Praise God in advance for His answer. Troubles don't look near as dark in the ligth of praise.

The final ingredient in overcoming discouragement is essential. Rejoice in God's peace. Whatever it is that gets you, really give it to God and get happy. You may not get an instant answer but you can rejoice. You can lay any burden down before the Lord with full assurance from His Holy Spirit that you will be answered.

Postman delivers more than mail

Editor,

Here's a story with a happy ending. I hope you have room to print it.

On Oct. 3 of this year, while visiting my parents in Charlevoix, our four-year-old son, Jesse, wandered away from the house on Antrim Street.

A mailman spotted him crying on a corner two blocks away and took the time to calm him down and ask him questions. When Jesse said that he was staying with "Grandma Gert" the mailman knew where he belonged and walked him home.

We were so relieved to see our son that we failed to ask the mailman's name or even thank him properly. Please let him know how very much we appreciate his kindness. May God bless that mailman.

Out of the Blue

The Loch Ness monster bobs from view,
He doesn't bother me —
And if he doesn't bother you,
Why not just let him be?

Kleinpell-Sullivan wedding

Virginia Mott Kleinpell became the bride of John E. Sullivan on Saturday, Sept. 5, in a garden setting overlooking Round Lake.

The bride, who has been making her home in Madison, Wis., is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter D. Kleinpell of Flint and Naples, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth C. MacGillivray of Charlevoix and Stuart, Fla.

The bridgroom, also of Madison, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Sullivan of Milwaukee.

The garden wedding took place at the home of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Arthur and Sue Kleinpell.

Approximately 250 guests witnessed the double-ring rites read by Judge George W. Alexander of Ann Arbor, a close family friend.

Sue Kleinpell and the bridegroom's brother, Joseph Sullivan, participated in the ceremony by offering inspirational readings.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore an ankle-length gown of raw Chinese white silk fashioned with a high collar, dropped waist, puffed sleeves tight at the wrist, and full skirt. Small fans of fabric with tiny rhinestones were inserted on the shoulder and hips of the gown.

The bride's headpiece was an off-center cap of the same raw silk, and her bouquet was a specially designed arrangement of Casa Blanca lilies accented with rhinestones.

Polly Peterson of Chicago assisted the bride as maid of honor. Other attendants were Kathleen Bollman of Atlanta, Ga., Erika MacGillivray and Susan Kleinpell of Stuart, Fla., Elizabeth Sullivan of Chicago, Betsy Hudson of London, England, Kay Miller of Madison, and Andrea Kostanecki of Greenwich, Conn.

They wore Liberty cotton gowns in delphinium shades, fashioned with a dropped waist, and carried bouquets of white call lilies.

Seven-year-old Mary Elizabeth Kleinpell and four-year-old Laura Mitchell served as flower girls.

They wore paper white embroidered dresses and wreaths of white flowers. Seven-year-old Richard Hudson and three-year-old Arthur Kleinpell III were ringbearers.

Joseph Weir of Laguna Negal, Calif., served as best man. Groomsmen and ushers were Brooks Bollman, Arthur Kleinpell, Peter Kleinpell, Patrick Sullivan, Joseph Sullivan, Mathew Sullivan and Scott Haumersem.

Ceremonial trumpet music was played by John Lindeman of Interlochen, whose band later played for dancing.

The reception dinner was served under tents on the Kleinpell lawn. The reception line was formed aboard the Beaver Island Ferry, docked nearby.

The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Turtle Hill home of the bride's mother.

Honored guests at the wedding were Mrs. Charles Stuart Mott of Flint, the bride's great grandmother; Mrs. Kenneth A. Ives of New York City and Bermuda, the bride's grandmother; and Mrs. James G. Randolph, wife of Maj. Gen. Randolph of Oklahoma City, the bride's aunt.

The newlyweds are now at home at 133 East Gilman Street, Madison, where the bride owns an accessory business and the bridegroom is a student at the University of Wisconsin law school.

Annual style show set by women's club

The Charlevoix Women's Club annual holiday dinner and style show will be presented at Grey Gables Inn on Tuesday, Oct. 27.

President and general chairman Lucy Witthoeft said seven local shops will be modeling fall and winter fashions including special holiday fashions. Jeanie Lignell will be the commentator.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. preceding the fashion show. Entrees are stuffed pork chops, white fish and shrimp. Tickets (including gratuity) are $16.

Reservations, including choice of entree, must be made no later than Tuesday, Oct. 20, with Wittheoft or Nancy Wood.

Carla and Paul Bradley

Carla Marie Left and Paul Eric Bradley were united in marriage Friday afternoon, Sept. 18, at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

Parents of the newlyweds are Lillian Left and Francis Left, both of Charlevoix, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bradley of Rhinebeck, New York.

Father James Gardiner officiated at the double-ring rites in which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Approximately 200 guests were gathered in the church which was decorated with pink and white flowers and other accessories.

The bride wore a gown of white satin fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves. The bodice was trimmed with Venise lace and pearls, and the skirt was trimmed with rows of ruffles attached to a cathedral-length train. The matching veil was made of illusion.

The bride's cascading bouquet contained pink and white carnations and pink sweetheart roses.

Connie Left served her sister as maid of honor, and Patti Left, Cindy Novotny, and Kathy Boomhower were bridesmaids. They wore long pink gowns with sweetheart necklines and carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Francis Boss provided organ music for the occasion and vocal music was offered by Barry and Marylee Pischner and the four Supernaw sisters, Mary J., Linda, Arlene and Julie.

A reception, hosted by the bride'a parents, was held at the American Legion Hall. Edward Bradley, father of the bridegroom, cut the wedding cake and it was served by Kim Ryan, sister of the bridegreoom and Alice Bradley, sister-in-law of the bridegroom.

The rehearsal dinner was held at the Argonne Supper Club.

The newlyweds are now at home on Bay Harbor Island, Florida.

Elzinga-Matthew wedding

Cheryl and Jim Matthew

Cheryl Elzinga and Jim Matthew were married Saturday, Sept. 19, at Belltower Reformed Church of Ellsworth.

The bride, who has been living in Grand Rapids, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Elzinga of Atwood, and the bridegroom, also of Grand Rapids, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Matthew of Lansing and East Torch Lake Drive.

The Rev. James Heneveld officiated at the double-ring ceremony before approximately 225 guests.

The church was decorated with fresh white chrysanthemum plants, lighted hurricane candelabra decorated with red and white flowers and fresh greens, basket arrangements of red and white gladiolus, red and white carnations with baby's breath, and a unity candle. White satin bows marked the pews.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore an heirloom gown of antique satin featuring a high embroidered lace neckline, fitted bodice with basque waist, and long chantilly lace sleeves with appliques which tapered to points at the wrists. The skirt ended in a cathedral-length train, and the two-tier pouf of bridal illusion was attached to a flower wreath headpiece with pearl sprays.

The bride's cascading bouquet was composed of silk white rubrum lilies, white roses, and miniature red stephanotis, with accents of greens, pearls, white lace, and red ribbon streamers.

Susan Whiteside assisted her sister as matron of honor, and Jan Bolser, cousin of the bride; Barb Matthew, sister-in-law of the bridegroom; and Theresa Burns, Julia DeKorne and Tessa McFarland were bridesmaids.

The attendants wore red satin floor-length gowns featuring a Queen Anne's neckline, gathered sleeves and bodice, V-waistline and a short train. They carried cascading bouquets of silk cream tiger lilies, miniature red stephanotis, and baby's breath, accented with pearls, lace and ribbon streamers.

Jay Matthew, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man, with Jeff Matthew, another brother; Scott and Rusty Thie, cousins of the bridegroom; and Kevin Crampton and Brian Deuel assisting as groomsmen and ushers.

Music for the ceremony was provided by organist Artie Jones; vocalists were Max Bolser, cousin of the bride, who offered "The Lord's Prayer" and Val Nolf, who sang "Looking Through the Eyes of Love" and "We've Only Just Begun."

The bride's parents hosted a reception at Roma's of Torch Lake following the marriage ceremony. They were assisted by Max and Joan Bolser, master and mistress of ceremony; Theola Elzinga, aunt of the bride, who baked the wedding cake; Julia Bolser and Coleen Dewey, who served the cake; and Jennifer and Kristen Matthew, nieces of the bridegroom, who attended the guest book.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at Shanty Creek Resort.

Following a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico, the newlyweds are at home in Grand Rapids, where both are employed by Benefit Actuaries Insurance Co., he as a sales representative and she as a claims adjuster.

Mr. and Mrs. Jon J. Spieles

North-Spieles wedding

Sheila Marie North became the bride of Jon Jacob Spieles on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 22, at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Frank North and Ruth North, both of Charlevoix, and Peter and Alessandra Spieles, also of Charlevoix.

Father James Gardiner officiated at the double ring ceremony which was witnessed by approximately 100 guests.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin gown trimmed with seed pearls. The bodice was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and short layered sleeves trimmed with seed pearls. The fingertip veil of illusion was also accented with seed pearls and secured to a pearl headpiece.

The bride's bouquet was an arrangement of gardenias, stephanotis, and ivy.

April Michelle North assisted her sister as maid of honor, and another sister, Christia-Lee North, was bridesmaid. They wore aqua blue taffeta tea-length gowns with a floral net overlay on the skirt. Each carried a pink sweetheart rose.

Gregg Whitley served as best man, and Jeff Bergmann was groomsman.

Jeanie Lignell furnished music for the ceremony.

The bride's grandmother, Jeannette Kigar, provided the reception, which was held in St. Mary's Parish House. She was assisted by Steve Stargardt, who offered piano music, and Wendy Smith and Connie Left.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at their home.

The newlyweds are at home in Charlevoix after a wedding trip to the Smokey Mountains. The bridegroom is employed by Bendix-Courter in Boyne City and the bride is employed by Jensen's Animal Hospital in Petoskey. Both are also part time students at North Central Michigan College.

MALL MARKET

An added attraction at Applefest activities was an arts and crafts show and sale with 10 exhibitors in the Market Mall. Crafts varied from Christmas ornaments to intricately carved wooden trains and from stationary to potpourri. Decorative measuring sticks and mounted chalkboards were among the items drawing the attention of the hundreds who crowded into the mall during the day.

Wales rescue boat finds safe harbor in Charlevoix to the Illinois to the Mississippi to the gulf. We'll not try to get the bridges to raise for us on the Chicago River, so we'll have to take our masts down," Warren said.

"When we get to the gulf, we must decide whether to turn right or left. We have to decide if we will head into the Pacific and on to Australia or if I will go back to Europe, possibly the Mediterranean and go back to work for awhile. The coffers may be getting a little low," he said explaining he has helped finance life aboard by working as a consultant to oil drilling ventures, largely in Spain. They've budgeted $150 a week for living expenses.

Asked of the history of the SWN Y MOR, Warren set aside a complicated repair job on his echo sounder. Perched on a tall stool in the high topped wheel house, he offered scrapbooks and hard-bound volumes on the Royal National Lifeboat Service.

He described the tough volunteers who for generations have crewed the rescue boats through the unrelenting storms of the North Sea and North Atlantic.

The SWN Y MOR's career as a lifeboat was served at St. David's, Wales, one of 284 lifeboat stations throughout the British Isles and southern Ireland.

It was built in 1935 and served for over 30 years. The scrapbook tells of endless rescues of sailors from sinking ships.

When the calls came it was launched down a long marine railway to plunge into the teeth of gales and crash through mammoth waves. Weighing 28 metric tons, the boat ws considered unsinkable and is credited with saving 121 lives.

It was the invincible history that convinced Warren to buy the boat.

"I'd had a lot of wooden boats and they are a lot of work. When I sold my last one, I promised myself, no more wooden boats unless it was one that could take me anywhere in the world."

Standing on the stern deck, Warren was dwarfed by the tall wheelhouse. A staysail swung on its boom behind, helping hold the boat steady in the winds that were rocking every boat tied up in Round Lake.

Helen scampered around the deck, chattering, pointing out important points like a tour guide.

"She's our official spokesperson," Jill said with a laugh. "When we're in port we attract a lot of attention. But we're often too busy to stop and explain everything to everyone. So Helen does it."

"You see that up there," Helen burst in, pointing to a wooden oval-shaped structure rising some three feet off the foredeck. "That's a cuddy for breaking the waves."

As the Scotts described their sailing experiences, the value of owning a boat like the SWN Y MOR became apparent. Its desinger, G.L. Watson, designed a large class of lifeboats as well as King Edward's racing yacht Britannia.

For the lifeboats, Watson evolved his designs from the designs of generations of North Atlantic rescue boats, maintaining the tradition of sail, adding the engines. After World War II, sails were removed and twin-screw diesel engines installed.

"Before the war, no self-respecting fisherman would consider going to sea in a boat without sails," Warren continued. "The war produced the technology that led to sails giving way to power."

'When I bought her in 1980 she only needed refitting and cosmetic work. She was in first-class condition otherwise. And she was so beautiful, plus she had room. She has three watertight compartments," he said.

The price was right, as well. Scott paid 20,000 British pounds (approximately $35,000) for the boat, adding another equal sum as he rerigged her. He oversaw the design and building of the two masts, had sails made and added sophisticated electronics including Radar and SatNav, a satellite navigation system.

"But she was structurally sound. The hull is double-planked in teak and Honduras mahogany. The frame is Canadian rock elm and the keel is English oak and teak. This wheelhouse is made of an aluminum alloy, duralium, which was developed for aircraft."

Trimmed in beautiful varnished wood, the wheelhouse now looks an integral part of the boat. A lapstraked wood dinghy is secured to the foredeck, just behind the wave-breaking cuddy. The deck is all teak.

Leaving England, the Scotts sailed the Mediterranean for three years, then last January crossed the Atlantic, making the sail from the Canary Islands to Barbados in 21 days.

Every port, each crossing is trist for a tale. In the Mediterranean SWN Y MOR proved its seaworthiness by surviving a massive tide aberration in a Spanish harbor one midnight, powering through two successive 15-foot walls of water to safety.

Also off Spain, the Scotts learned the difficulty of reading the difference between two blinking buoy lights, one at two-second intervals the other at three, while fighting through 12-foot seas. The correct reading allowed them entry to a major port and saved them from breaking up on rocky shoals.

Their Atlantic crossing began with 14 days of hard-blowing cold weather and no sun. "We blew out a head sail the first day out," Jill recounted.

"A hard blow is great for this boat, but with no sun for most of the crossing, we were dependent on StaNav for navigation," Warren remembered. "I missed my first chance to get a sun sighting when we ran into a pod of humpback and pilot whales. That was day 19."

When there was a "hole in the weather" after four days in Charlevoix, the Scotts decided to make a dash for it. They departed Charlevoix with the noon bridge, headed for Leland.

They cleared the breakwater and raised sails. The sun cut through the clouds then retreated. The horizon beyond the Medusa bouy looked bumpy. SWN Y MOR, however, looked snug and secure.

CHIP center holds meeting

Jo Way, a chemical dependency counselor with Williamsburg Recovery Center, will be the featured speaker at CHIP Counseling's annual meeting.

The meeting is planned for Thursday, Oct. 22, at the Fellowship Hall of First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

The public is invited for refreshments at 7 p.m. with the CHIP board and staff. Way will speak at 7:30 p.m. on fetal alcohol syndrome and special needs of women alcoholics.

Intruder scared from house

An early morning intruder in a home on East Upright was reported to Charlevoix Police.

Chief Dennis Halverson said a resident, sleeping in a downstairs bedroom, was awakened at 1:30 a.m. by a neighbor's cat. As she opened her eyes, she saw a man in her room.

She screamed and he ran, escaping through an unlocked garage door that led to the house, the same way he and the cat had apparently gained entry.

ELECT
ALVIN "BUTCH" RUSSELL
FOR CITY COUNCIL

Dear Second Ward Resident:

I would like to take this opportunity to introduce myself as a candidate for Second Ward Councilman.

I believe that it is time to keep finances on par and to keep Charlevoix, the town where many of us were born, a nice place to live so that our grandchildren and generations to come can enjoy it as we have. We need responsible leadership in our city government that will look after the interest of our residents and the good of our community.

I would like to take this opportunity to tell you a little about myself.:
- I am 43 years old and I live at 407 W. Hurlbut
- I am married and the father of two children who reside in Charlevoix

My work experiences Include:
- Manager of Russell Gulf for ten years
- Owner of Butch Russell's Shell for three years
- Manager of Budget Rent a Car in Petoskey for five years
- Present owner of Butch Russell's Auto Reconditioning

Community Involvement Includes:
- I have donated time and paint for the Petunia Truck
- A donation of a VCR to the Bergmann Center
- Time and material donated to the playground at the city ball park

Goals and Commitments
- Will be a voice for the people of the Second Ward in Charlevoix
- Will strive to establish a communication network throughout the Second Ward
- Will strive to keep city finances on par as a homeowner and a tax payer
- Will work for maintaining and future improvements in all areas of the city
- Will work for young people, senior citizens as well as those in between
- Will support the development and proper use of our resources to continue the atmosphere of Charlevoix The Beautiful
- Will strive to maintain contact between the city of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Township and surrounding townships
- Will strive to improve Charlevoix with a close watch on toxic, environmental and solid waste pollution

Sincerely,
Alvin "Butch" Russell

Paid for by the committee to elect Alvin Russell

North Point

Point," he said, "because it allows us to create more recreational land in an area already established as a place to enjoy the outdoors."

The conservancy is attempting to purchase the property from the estate of Turner, who died in a March 1986 plane crash with Jeffrey DeGayner. DeGayner was the developer of a proposed 120-unit condominium project on the property.

After Turner and DeGayner's deaths, an option to buy the property was acquired from Turner's family by Lester Turner (no relation), but he eventually let the option expire.

Bailey praised Turner's family for having an interest in seeing the property reserved for recreational use.

The conservancy has acquired other properties through fund-raising efforts, the most widely known of these a project to save the Colonial Point forest area near Burt Lake from timbermen's sawblades.

Private donations are the key to the conservancy's success, Bailey said.

"It's the local people who make it happen," Bailey told the Courier.

"The time is right for a project like this. There has been a lot to be against in Charlevoix recently," he said, citing anti-development efforts in the city and township. "This is something people can be for."

Area organizations which have been involved in environmental activities are also being asked to support the fund-raising effort. These groups, Bailey said, include Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, WATCH (Water and Air Team Charlevoix) and DUNE (Defenders United for Northpoint Ecology).

The conservancy, which is a non-profit land conservation organization, has set up a special account for North Point donations.

Contributions, which are tax-deductible, may be sent to Little Traverse Conservancy, 3264 Powell Road, Harbor Springs 49740.

Pledges payable over three years, 1987-89, may also be made.

Nov. 1 deadline to have local investors in line – and may still be.

But the possible availability of a used ship became known late last week. The group hopes to determine the feasibility of using an existing ship by the end of this week, Merta said.

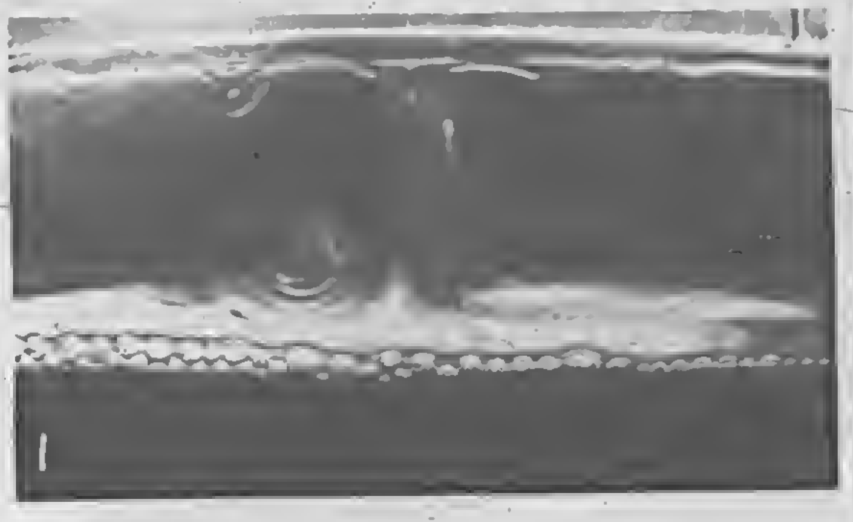
One problem with the ship that may be available, she said, is that the larger vessel has a higher price tag than a new, smaller one.

Efforts to put together a group of investors are being headed by Jon Hisey of the Edgewater Inn and Harold Krutsch of the Weathervane Terrace.

Already the group has been approached by several people who say they may be interested in investing. A prospectus will be worked up as soon as it is determined which ship the group will be going after.

The group wants to have the ship operating by June, Merta said.

DELICIOUS DISPLAY



One of the largest crowds in Applefest history jammed the Bridge Street side of East Park for the seventh annual event. And while products -- including bubbling cider -- were the mainstay of the two-day festival, vegetables, flowers and other fruits were also in abundance. Polish sausage cooking on a grill also caught the eye of some young shoppers.

Phone work closes State Street

Park Avenue between Bridge and State streets is closed to traffic while Michigan Bell lays a cable under Pine River Channel.

Heavy equipment used in excavation will necessitate closing the street to all but pedestrian traffic on the south side of the street.

Bell will place seven conduits under the channel through an oil-well drilling technique.

High school conferences slated

Parent-teacher conferences at Charlevoix High School will be held Monday, Nov. 9.

Conferences will be held from 6:30 until 9:30 p.m. Parents desiring to schedule individual conferences with teachers may call the school office at 547-3222 from Oct. 26 to Nov. 4. Each conference is 20 minutes.

Information sheets concerning conferences will be sent home with students Friday, Oct. 23.

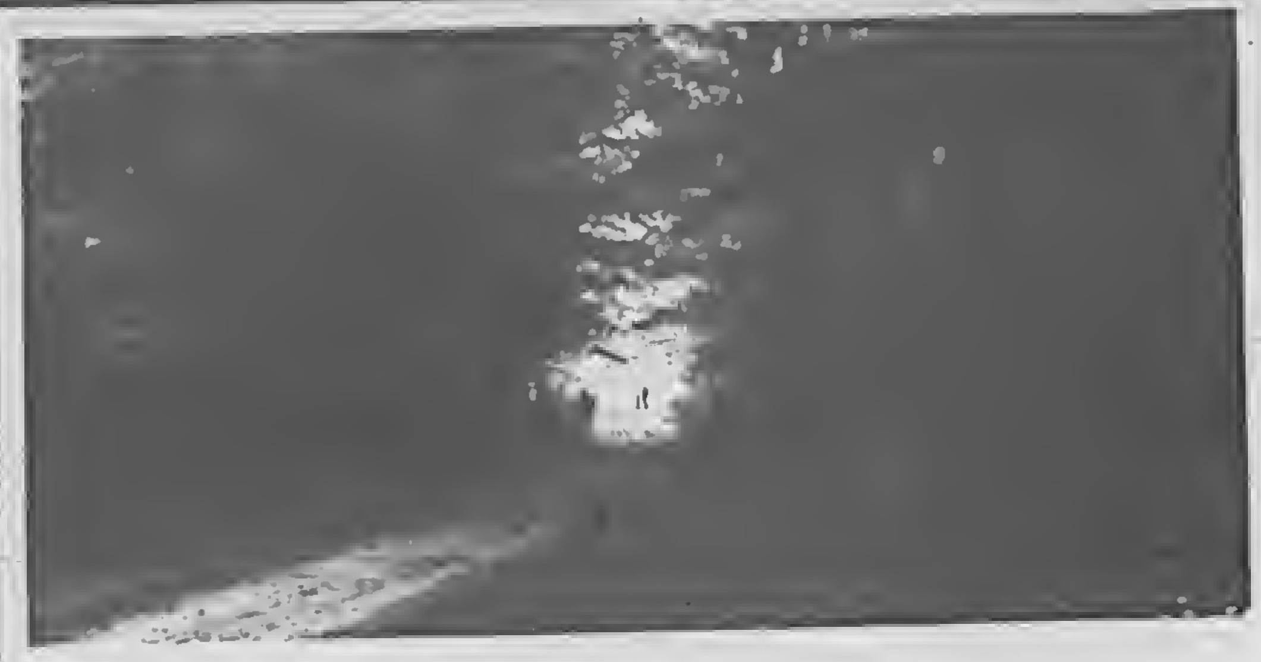
Sports



Brisk temperatures, but a dry trail greeted more than 250 runners in the annual Claire Mertin Invitational cross-country meet. The Belvedere Golf Course course provided en ideal setting for runners and fans. The girl racers spread out across the bluff on the ninth feirway end the boys kept close to the woods along the sixth fairwey. Host Charlevoix was victorious in both boys and girls divisions.

Rayder runners triumph

Charlevoix's top rated boys cross-country team won the Claire Martin Invitational race in competition with larger schools, while the Rayder girls topped the competition in their own class.

Charlevoix is the No. 1 ranked team in the Michigan high school cross country association for Classes C-D, smaller schools. But in the Martin event, which the Rayders host at Belvedere Golf Club, they compete against larger Class A and B schools.

Though not having the first place finisher in the race, Charlevoix ran away with the event. The Rayders finished with 87 points to second place Gaylord's 206.

In the Class C-D girls race, Charlevoix nipped East Jordan 128-139. Elk Rapids won the C-D boys event and Traverse City won the A-B girls race.

In the A-B boys race, Gaylord was followed by St. Mary's of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., 249, Traverse City 272 and Cadillac 308. Sault Ste. Marie and Petoskey also partieipated.

Each team was allowed 10 runners with the scores of the top eight counted. Soo and Petoskey had seven runners each.

Elk Rapids with 30 points was followed in Class C-D by Mancelona with 56, Boyne City 73 and Alanson 97. East Jordan participated with four runners. This raee was run with seven-man teams and five scorers.

The top 15 runners in each division were awarded medals.

The girls division was run as an open race with Traverse City, the defending ehampion, winning A-B with 57 points followed by Petoskey with 72, Gaylord with 96, Sault Ste. Marie 120 and Cadillac 140.

Charlevoix won Class-C-D with 128 points as East Jordan was second with 139 points, Mancelona 145 and Elk Rapids 190.

The top 20 runners were awarded medals.

Charlevoix's Pat Rajewski placed second in A-B with a time of 16:01, followed by Scott Miller also in 16:01. Tom Merta was sixth in 16:46, Sean Henne seventh in 15:53, Paul Wakulat 13th in 17:14, Gehry Wiesner 17th in 17:24, Dylan Stewart 18th in 17:24 and Hal Chase 21st in 17:31.

Other Rayder runners were Bill Crook 38th in 18:09 and Tim Henne 49th in 18:45.

Eric Dickerson of Gaylord had the winning time of 15:44, five seconds above the course record set by Bill Taylor of Charlevoix in 1983.

In the girls race Charlevoix's Julie Bush finished in 11th place in 20:45, Betsy Haggard was 10th in 21:16, Heidi Olinger 24th in 21:33, Elka Thomas 28th in 21:49 and Dora Skuladottir 46th in 23:23.

Jenny Greene was 55th in 27:36 and Kaye Stoneham 57th in 29:03.

The race was won by Becky Austin of Cadillac in 19:36. The course record of 19:02 was set by Anne VanDam of Petoskey in 1984.

In the open boys JV division, Charlevoix runners' results follow: Mike Stargardt 8th in 19:00, Matt Schnaekenberg 19th in 19:14, Matt Stargardt 18th in 20:27, Jerry Thayer 28th in 21:10, Mike Ochs 29th in 21:13 and Lorrie Raymond 41st in 24:25.

The junior high division had runners from Charlevoix, East Jordan, and Gaylord. Charlevoix runners were: Jake Porath in 20th place in 15:41 on the two-mile course, Michelle Keem 27th in 16:33, Maria Seaman 36th in 18:20.

Cagers add 2 more defeats

The Rayder girls basketball team fell victim 46-31 to Grayling and 37-27 to Rogers City.

The Rayders' record fell to 1-9.

In the Viking game, the Rayders trailed 14-6, 25-12 and 38-21 by quarters as the visitors poured in 21 buckets to 13 for the Rayders.

Grayling hit four of 12 from the the line. Charlevoix made five of 13 charity shots.

Stacy Gebott had 12 points to lead Charlevoix.

Grayling won the JV game 31-22 after leading 16-7 at halftime. Cynthia Boydston had 10 for the Rayders.

In the Rogers City game the Hurons led 7-4 at the quarter before the Rayders took a 15-14 lead at halftime. Rogers City outscored the visitors 12-2 as the second half got underway and then went on the win by 10 points.

The Hurons had 14 baskets from the floor and made nine of 17 shots form the line. The Rayders had 10 field goals, seven of 14 free throws.

Ellen Pearl had 10 points to lead Charlevoix.

In the JV game, the Hurons won 58-26, after leading 26-15 at halftime. Melissa Ritt had 17 points for Charlevoix.

Young golf team 6th in league

The Rayder golf team finished in a tie for eighth plaee in the 12-team Class C regional tournament at Houghton Lake.

The Rayders had a score of 384 for the 18-hole match.

Scott Crain shot 46-46–92, Webb Friedly 45-48–93, Tim Jervis 50-47–97 and Dan Bickersteth 52-49–101 to give Charlevoix eighth place.

The meet was won by Harbor Springs with a 346. The Rams were followed by Kalkaska with 367 strokes and Houghton Lake 370.

Other area teams were Mancelona in fourth place at 371, Benzie Central at 372, Elk Rapids at 378, Roscommon at 384, Boyne City at 386 and Traverse City St. Francis at 391.

Coach Glen Taylor said the Rayder players have gained a lot of experienee during the season.

"We started with a young team that got off to a bad start but they have improved as the season progressed. We are looking forward to a good year in 1988."

Doug Bergmenn shot this 180-pound buck with bow end arrow on a weekend trip home from college at Centrel Michigan University.

Harriers win 60th straight meet

The Rayder boys cross country team closed out another season of dual meets with a perfect record – as their win string reached 60.

With only invitational and state playoff meets remaining on their schedule, the Rayders were ranked No. 1 in the state in Class C.

The 8-0 Rayders defeated Rogers City and Sault Ste. Marie, scoring 20 points, to Rogers City's 33 and the Soo's 40.

In the girls event, Rogers was first with 33 points, followed by Soo with 40 and Charlevoix with 48.

Charlevoix's junior varsity won its race, tallying 22 points to Soo's 42 and Rogers City's 68.

Coach Pete Spieles said the boys ran exceptionally well in the meet.

"One of our goals has been to close the gap between our first and fifth runners. Tom Merta did that and both Gehry Wiesner and Paul Wakulat moved up. They really ran a great race," Spieles said.

Among the girls, Betsy Haggard improved her time as did Elka Thomas and Doro Skuladottir. Otherwise, it was not a particularly outstanding race Spieles said. Julie Bush did not run.

All the JV boys ran well, he said. "This is the first time we've defeated the JV's from the Soo. They did a good job."

In the boys varsity race, the Rayders took the top three places. Pat Rajewski set the pace at 15:30, followed by Scott Miller in 15:35 and Tom Merta in 16:20.

Sean Henne was sixth in 16:40 and Gehry Wiesner seventh in 16:45. Paul Wakulat finished in eighth place in 16:57 and Hal Chase 11th in 17:26.

In the girls race, Haggard finished in second place in 20:44, Heidi Olinger seventh in 21:25, Thomas ninth in 21:44, Skuladottir, 14th in 22:23 and Kendra Olinger 16th in 22:49.

Shelly Ferguson, back in ection after an absence of several weeks due to an injury was 20th in 24:35.

Dylan Stewart and Bill Crook placed one-two and Jon Terry fifth in the JV meet. Stewart's time was 17:18, Crook's 18:09 and Terry's 18:32.

Tim Henne finished in sixth place with an 18:37 and Mike Stargardt was eighth in 18:47. They were followed by Matt Schnackenberg in 11th in 20:01, Mike Ochs 13th in 20:24, Matt Stargardt 15th in 20:29 and Kevin Campbell 21st in 21:55.

Flag football Giants remain undefeated as season winds down

The Giants, with a perfect record, continue to lead the flag football league as the season goes into the home stretch.

The Giants defeated the Panthers 26-14. The score was 6-6 at the end of the first period after Dave Hunter scored on a four-yard run for the Panthers and Luke LaBlance passed four yards to Ken Olinger for the Giants.

The score remained knotted until the final period when Hunter got off a 20-yard pass to Joe Ferolly and then a conversion pass to the same receiver for another eight points for the Panthers.

The Giants, however, with their first place standing at stake, rallied to score three more times, twice by Brian Coolman on runs of 37 and 32 yards and once by Mike Wiedner on a one-yard plunge. LaBlance passes to Olinger for the conversion on Coolman's first touchdown.

Dan Avery scored four touchdown runs as the Dolphins defeated the Wildcats 30-8.

Avery's first score was on a two-yard plunge in the first period. He added the conversion run. The team added a safety in the second period for a 10-0 halftime lead.

Early in the second half the Wildcats got on the board with a safety to Troy Bonar and a 28-yard TD kickoff return by Chris McCallum.

Avery countered with e 13-yard scoring run in the third period and scoring runs of 21 and 17 yards plus a conversion run in the final period.

Freshmen fall to Cheboygan

The Rayder freshman football team fell victim to the invading Cheboygan Chiefs 48-20.

Cheboygan scored early and was leading 28-0 when the Rayders scored on a six-yard run by James McGee late in the first half. A conversion pass from Dan Terryberry to Scott Campbell made the score 28-8 at halftime.

The Rayders were held scoreless until the final period when a 56-yard pass play from Terryberry to Scott Kehrer gave the Rayders another six points.

They added a third touchdown on a six-yard run by McGee late in the period.

Rayder coach Erik Lundteigen said Cheboygan scored on ground plays early in the game and on passes during the second half.

Kehrer, he said, played a superb game on offense, aecounting for 140 yards. Joe Prevo also did a good job blocking, he said.

Cody Bush had 15 tackles. Mike Phenix had seven tackles.

7th grade wins, 8th loses

The Charlevoix Middle School seventh grade girls basketball team has added two victories while the eighth grade still seeks its first win.

The seventh graders defeated Harbor Springs 29-11 while the eighth graders lost 29-24.

The seventh graders jumped to e 17-9 halftime lead and increased the advantage to 25-11 going into the final period. Eliana Gebott had 12 to lead Charlevoix.

The eighth graders lost after leading through the first three quarters. Gina Webster was top scorer with 11 and Dorothy Perrault had nine.

The Rayder seventh graders defeated Petoskey 28-16. Charlevoix outscored Petoskey 12-7 from the floor. Jodi Allison had 15 points for the victors.

After Petoskey's eighth graders got off to an 11-4 first period lead, Charlevoix nibbled away at the lead – closing it to 13-10 at halftime and 19-18 at the final buzzer.

Charlevoix lost the game at the free throw line where the Rayders failed to capitalize on 12 attempts.

Homecoming king Dan Drury watches es queen Betsy Haggard accepts her crown from last yeer's queen, Jane Scharenbroch. The festive ectivities at halftime preceded a late Red Devil touchdown that gave Geylord a 13-12 victory over the Rayders.

Late touchdown spoils homecoming

A fourth quarter Gaylord touchdown spoiled Charlevoix's homecoming as the Blue Devils won 13-12.

After Gaylord took a first period lead, the Rayders scored twice before halftime. But a late fumble proved their downfall.

The Blue Devils' first touchdown eame on a 13-yard run to cap Gaylord's first possession. The conversion attempt failed.

Charlevoix came back in the second period with a six-yard touchdown pass from Dan Drury to Shawn Putman. The touchdown concluded a drive that included a 39-yard pass from Drury to Scott DeYoung.

An 80-yard drive put Charlevoix ahead 12-6 as Drury hit DeYoung with a 24-yard scoring pass. The march included a 20-yard run by David Miller and a 26-yard pass to Putman.

A Rayder fumble in the fourth period led to the game-winning touchdown. After getting the ball on Charlevoix'x 20, the Blue Devils scored on a two-yard run.

A conversion kick rounded out the scoring.

The Rayders had 247 total yards, with 147 coming through the air. Drury connected on 10 of 18 passes for 143 yards.

Top receivers were DeYoung with five catches for 36 yards and a touchdown and Putman with three for 25 yards and a touchdown. Miller was the leading receiver with eight carries for 47 yards.

On defense, Mike Smith recorded 15 tackles, while Mark LaBlance had 14 and Scott Denny and Jim Tilton each had 11. With 10 tackles each were Steve Hopkins, Chad Thorpe and DeYoung.

JV's beat Gaylord by conversion

The Rayder junior varsity continued its winning season with a 30-28 win over Gaylord.

Coach Brian Certa said it was the Rayders first victory over Gaylord in recent years and was the result of a team effort to eome back after trailing.

Charlevoix trailed at halftime 22-14 before two scoring plays in the third period that put them ahead.

Greg Lewis scored the games first touchdown on a three-yard run after the Rayders recovered a fumble on the Blue Devil 30. The conversion was not good.

Gaylord scored on a three-yard run and added the conversion to go ahead 8-6.

A seven-yard pass play from Lewis to James Corwin put the Rayders back in front. A Lewis to Corwin conversion pass gave the Rayders a 14-8 advantage.

Gaylord came back with two scoring plays – a 50-yard pass and a 35-yard run – for a 22-14 halftime lead.

As the second half play started, the Rayders launched a drive that took them to the four. Lewis scored from there and then passed to Chad DeYoung for the conversion. On the next possession, Corwin broke away for a 70-yard rump to score. Brian Livingston earried the ball in on the conversion for a 30-22 lead.

Gaylord scored again on a two-yard run but the Rayders halted the conversion run for the two-point win.

Livingston led the defense with 13 tackles and Pat Elliott had nine.

DEPARTMENT OF NATURAL RESOURCES COMMISSION ORDER CFI-131.87

(Under authority of Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended)

ORDER TO RESTRICT SPEARING SEASON

Under authority of Act 230, Public Acts of 1925, as amended, being sections 300.1 through 300.5 of the Michigan Compiled Laws, the Natural Resources Commission, at its September 11, 1987, meeting, ordered that for a period of five years in the Lower Peninsula it shall be unlawful to take or attempt to take any species of fish with a spear or bow and arrow, from any waters north of Highway M-72 during the month of April, or south of Highway M-72 and north of Highway M-46 from April 1 through April 15, all dates inclusive.

This order supersedes the previous order entitled "Order to Restrict Spearing Season" effective April 1, 1983, and given number CFI-131.82.

This order shall take effect November 1, 1987, and shall remain effective through March 31, 1992.

Obituaries

Bernice C. Wexstaff

Bernice C. Wexstaff, 89, died Friday, Oct. 9, at her Hayes Township home.

Funeral services were held Monday at First Congregational Church. The Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Born in Marion Township, the former Bernice Crandall was the daughter of Loren E. and May (Ward) Crandall. She was a 1917 graduate of Charlevoix High School and later attended Alma College.

On Oct. 1, 1921, she married Arthur Wexstaff at Petoskey. They always made their home in Charlevoix. She was associated with her late husband in the operation of Arts Dry Cleaners until the business was sold in 1970.

She was an accomplished pianist and played with the Wexstaff Orchestra for many years. She was the author of several children's books and wrote for other publications.

In recent years the couple resided in Hayes Township. Mr. Wexstaff preceded her in death Aug. 22, 1986.

She was a member of First Congregational Church, a member and past matron of Charlevoix Chapter No. 72, Order of the Eastern Star; and member of the Petosega chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Mary Brewster Circle of First Congregational Church and Charlevoix Historical Society.

She is survived by one son, Robert E. Wexstaff of Charlevoix.

The family suggests memorials to First Congregational Church. Envelopes are available at Winchester Funeral Home, which was in charge of arrangements.

Thomas L. Arnold

Thomas L. Arnold, 39, died Friday, Oct. 9, in Marion Township.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at Winchester Funeral Home. Robert L. Reid of Charlevoix officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Born in Bay City Nov. 16, 1947, the son of Edgar C. and Mabel C. (Deering) Arnold was raised in Bay City where he graduated from T.L. Handy High School in 1965.

He served with the U.S. Navy 1967-71. He attended Saginaw Valley State College and graduated from Michigan State University in 1974.

On Oct. 4, 1973, he married Betsy A. Frank in Lansing. The couple resided in Charlevoix since 1976.

Arnold had been employed at the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services for eight years. He was an avid outdoorsman and enjoyed hunting and fishing.

Surviving are his wife; two sons, Seth and Shay, and a daughter, Molly, all at home; his parents, Edgar A. and Mable C. Arnold of Bay City; two brothers, Gene F. and Timothy E., both of Bay City; two sisters Barbara McMann of Kalamazoo and Tudi M. Sprague of Marietta, Ga.; and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Molly Deering of Pigeon.

Memorials to Arnold Children's Educational Fund are suggested.

Titus J. Sineway

Titus John Sineway, 79, died Thursday, Oct. 8, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral services were held Sunday, Oct. 11, at Greensky United Methodist Church. The Rev. David W. Yingling, pastor of the church officiated. Interment was in Greensky Cemetery.

Born at Good Hart on Oct. 19, 1907, Mr. Sineway was a lumberjack who worked in lumber camps in this area, including East Jordan and Beaver Island.

In 1939, he married Gladys H. Paul. They lived in Charlevoix in recent years.

Surviving are his wife; two sons, Robert Paul of Charlevoix and Stanley M. Sr. of Mount Pleasant; three daughters, Elsie Mayjack of Traverse City, Lila Marie Hoeksema and Mary Lou Whiteloon, both of Charlevoix; 12 grandchildren; one great-grandchild; and a brother, Anthony of East Jordan.

Winchester Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Community band gets tiny raise

The Charlevoix community band has been given a raise – but it's not money for the band members.

The volunteer band, which plays a series of concerts in the East Park bandshell each summer, has been getting by on an $2,100 allotment from the city since 1984.

And, this year, expenditures caught up with revenues. When he couldn't quite pay all the bills, band business manager Warren Shapton went to city council to seek a $300 a year increase.

The band's bank balance at the end of July was $12.57, Shapton said, and the school district had not yet been paid for use of instruments, bandstands and other equipment.

Council has agreed to increase the band's monthly allotment from $175 to $200 beginning in November. That will give the organization $2,400 for the year.

When Mayor Ralph McRae mentioned to Shapton that the council is seldom approached for so little money, the band booster said he could gladly ask for more.

But he didn't.

Focus group schedules talk about wetlands

Focus community forum will present a program on environmental issues on Wednesday, Oct. 21, at 7:30 p.m. in the Charlevoix Elementary School library.

Three speakers will talk and field questions from the audience: Gregory Lyman, assistant director of the Department of Natural Resources; Gail Gruenwald, executive director, and Stephen Brown, water resource issues specialist, both of Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council.

Lyman will review the findings of a committee to review the administration of wetlands, which he chaired.

Gruenwald has served as staff attorney and wetlands project coordinator for the council and is a specialist in natural resource law.

Brown is also a wetlands project coordinator for Tip of the Mitt

Church women hold bazaar, luncheon

The women of the Community Church of God will host a luncheon, Christmas bazaar and bake sale Thursday, Oct. 22, at the fellowship hall at 202 W. Hurlbut Avenue.

Serving will begin at 11 a.m. and continue until 1 p.m. according to Agnues Warner, co-chairman with Helen Cunningham.

Tickets are $3.50 for adults and $3 for senior citizens.

The luncheon will feature hot casseroles, the bazaar handcrafted articles and the bake sale home-prepared foods.

Elsie Joyce and Virginia Jarvis are in charge of the bazaar and bake sale.

Jazz band coming to arts center

The Percy Gabriel New Orleans Jazz Band will return to the stage at McCune Community Arts Center on Friday, Oct. 23, at 8 p.m.

Tickets are on sale at the center, 461 E. Mitchell, Petoskey. Admission is $10.

The band appeared in Petoskey in October 1986 with its performance styled after the original New Orleans Preservation Hall Jazz Band.

GETTING THE ROYAL TREATMENT

More than 250 people toured the Charlevoix water treatment plant following dedication ceremonies. The plant has been serving the community with water for several months. Plant superintendent Mike Reinhart conducted a tour for former city clerk Hugh Meyne through the facility, showing him the intricacies of a modern three-million gallon a day facility. Included on the tour were the flocculation and filtering facilities and the laboratory where more than five hours of testing is done each day.

Crash kills passenger; second driver charged

A passenger in a pickup truck struck from behind by an automobile died when the truck left the road and tipped over.

Thomas Lee Arnold, 39, of Charlevoix was riding in the pickup driven by Gary Aschim, 33, of East Jordan. The accident occurred on M-66 one-fourth mile east of Loeb Road in Marion Township at 8:45 p.m. Friday, Oct. 9.

The driver of the second vehicle, Robert L. DeNise, 23, of Charlevoix, has been charged with manslaughter and with leaving the scene of a fatal accident.

He has been released on $500 bond following a Monday appearance in 90th District Court. He will return to district court Tuesday, Oct. 20, for preliminary examination.

Aschim was taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital by Charlevoix ambulance. He was treated and released.

Robert Sandahl, in his early 20s and also of Charlevoix was a passenger in the DeNise vehicle. He was not injured.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, the Aschim vehicle was east-bound on M-66 when it was struck from the rear by the DeNise vehicle.

Seat belts were not in use in either vehicle, deputies said.

North advocacy magazine debuts

A 40-page magazine called "North Force, the Magazine of Economic Development in Northern Lower Michigan," promoting what the area has to offer business and industry, has been unveiled.

Designed to foster economic development, the nationally-circulated magazine was started with the financial help of MichCon.

North Force Inc. is a consortium of six Community Growth Alliances which comprise 30 counties across the tip of northern lower Michigan.

The alliances are non-profit community developers trying to attract prospective industries into expanding or relocating to northern lower Michigan.

"The magazine's initial press run of 10,000 copies will focus on our abundant industry potential," said Richard Beagle, North Force publications committee chairman and head of the Antrim-Charlevoix Growth Alliance.

The magazine will be circulated to targeted local and Michigan industries, county developers and selected industrial realtors.

The contract was awarded by the Port of Kaoshiung, through Central Trust of China.

Tax laws change for second homes

Last year's federal tax changes could play a significant role in summer plans of vacation home landlords or renters, according to the Michigan Tax Information Council.

People who plan to rent a vacation home this year may find it more costly as some landlords increase rents to make-up for write-offs lost under the Tax Reform Act.

The council predicts, full mortgage interest and property taxes on second homes will still be deductible if the home is used for personal enjoyment only.

If the home is rented out, however, stricter rules may apply. This list highlights the lastest changes under the new law:

– Deductible loses on rented vacation homes are capped at $25,000; this cap is reduced for taxpayers with adjusted gross income over $100,000 a year.

– Losses are not deductible within the $25,000 cap unless you actively participate in managing the property.

– The real estate depreciation period has been extended from 19 years to 27½ years.

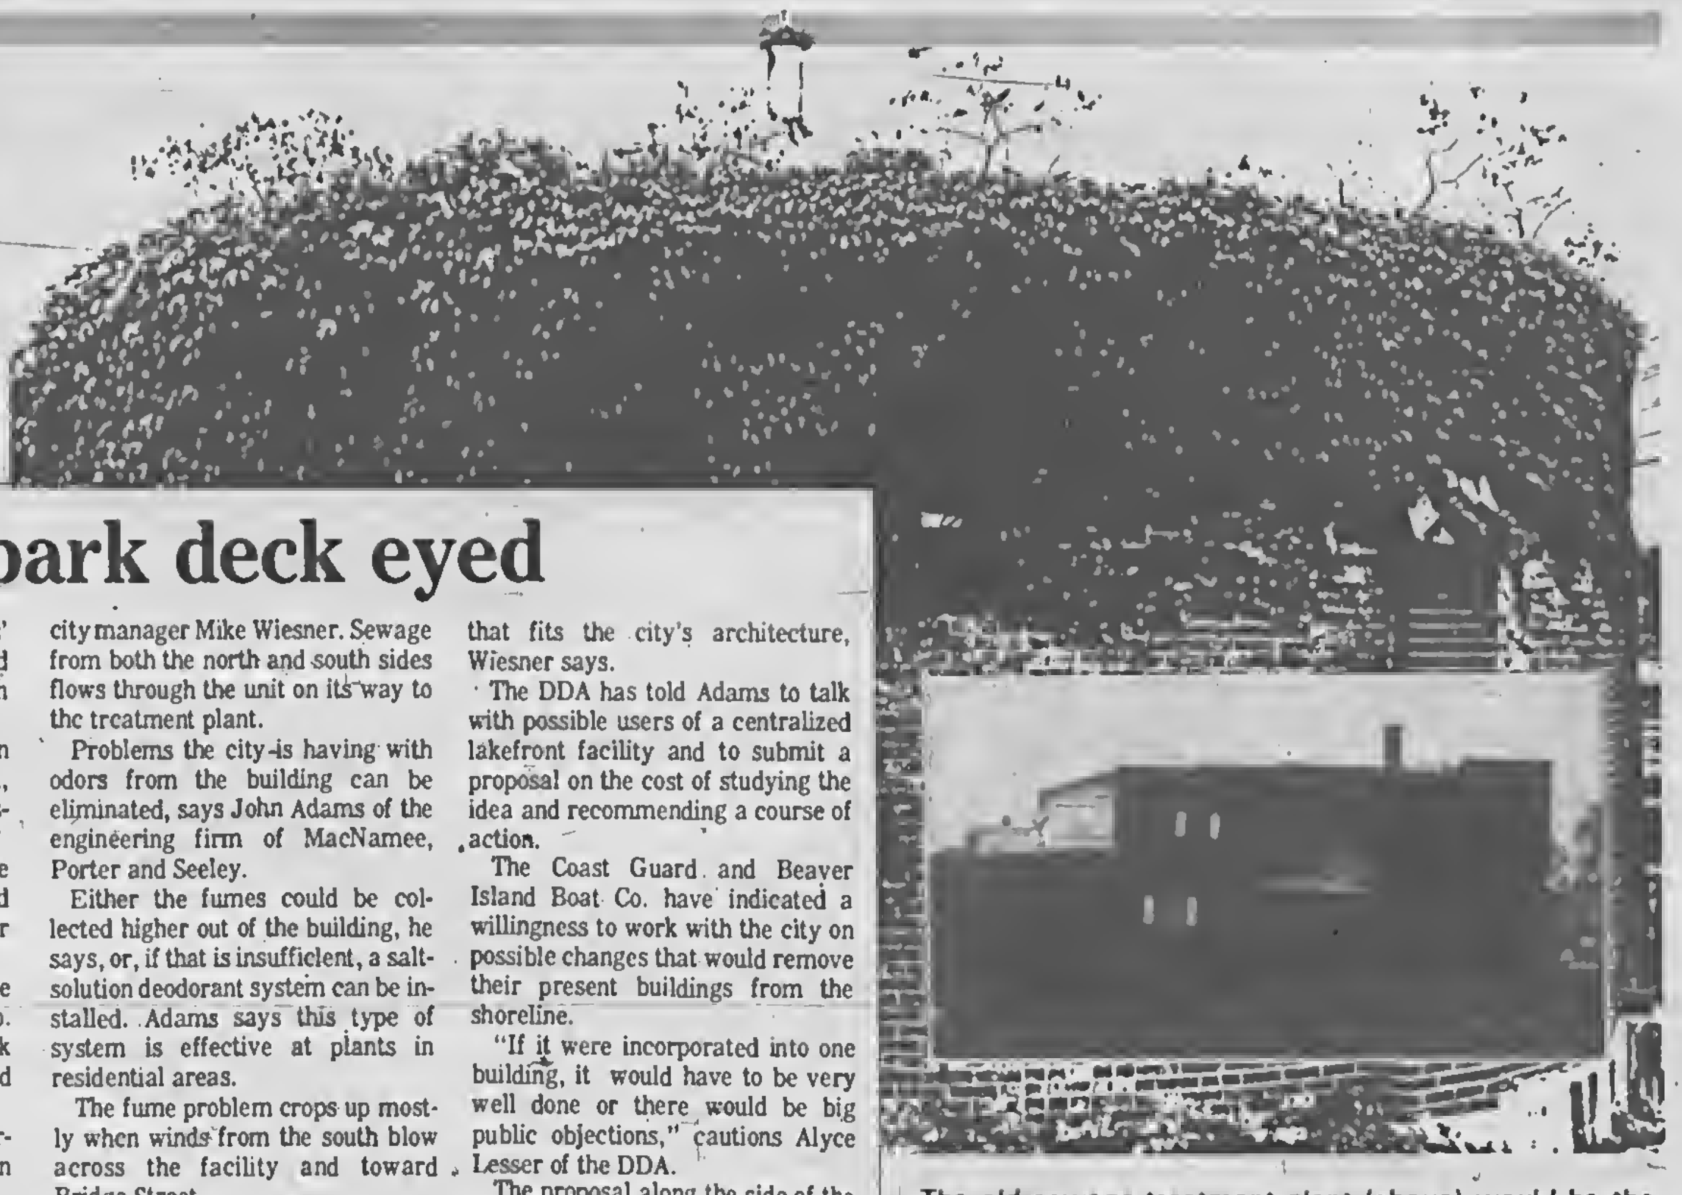
NEW VIEW FROM THE BRIDGE?



Tha old sewaga traatmant plant (abova) would ba the hub of a cantralizad Round Laka usars' facility. Tha appaaranca of Bridga Park would ba significantly altered if a plaza-lika walkway wara built along tha sida of tha Burnsidas building (Insat).

Round Lake facility, park deck eyed

Substantial changes to the Bridge Park-commercial dock area could be coming.

The area was at the core of a debate a year ago when a plan to build a gazebo with restrooms was approved, then set aside by city council.

Now, a consulting engineer is looking at the possibility of consolidating Round Lake-front services and structures.

And a proposal to change Burnsides' building into five stores includes plans to make major changes in Bridge Park.

A central consideration in both possibilities – as it was last fall – is the location of rest rooms at the north end of the strip of parks along the harbor.

The Downtown Development Authority has considered putting restrooms in either the Burnsides' project or in a revamped wastewater treatment building on the dock.

And it has put its endorsement on the lakefront site. The city council, in an informal vote, has also endorsed the treatment building site.

What the DDA envisions for the treatment building is a centralized facility eliminating the need for several smaller structures.

Such a facility could include the restrooms, Beaver Island Boat Co. office, Coast Guard quarterdeck shack, cruise ship office and dockmaster office.

Any plan would have to incorporate the waste digester already in the building into the structure.

The digester pumping station is a central element of the city wastewater treatment system, says city manager Mike Wiesner. Sewage from both the north and south sides flows through the unit on its way to the treatment plant.

Problems the city is having with odors from the building can be eliminated, says John Adams of the engineering firm of MacNamee, Porter and Seeley.

Either the fumes could be collected higher out of the building, he says, or, if that is insufficient, a salt-solution deodorant system can be installed. Adams says this type of system is effective at plants in residential areas.

The fume problem crops up mostly when winds from the south blow across the facility and toward Bridge Street.

Adams, who designed the city's water treatment plant, would work with a local architect on a building that fits the city's architecture, Wiesner says.

The DDA has told Adams to talk with possible users of a centralized lakefront facility and to submit a proposal on the cost of studying the idea and recommending a course of action.

The Coast Guard and Beaver Island Boat Co. have indicated a willingness to work with the city on possible changes that would remove their present buildings from the shoreline.

"If it were incorporated into one building, it would have to be very well done or there would be big public objections," cautions Alyce Lesser of the DDA.

The proposal along the side of the Burnsides building could also cause controversy, says DDA chairman

A peek inside a fantasy world

'Yoda' maker brings puppet creations to family reunion

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

Wendy Midener Froud laughs.

"I have never been completely in tune with the 20th century," she says, her dress, her long hair, her wide blue eyes giving her an Alice in Wonderland quality.

"We should have been working at the turn of the century," Brian Froud agrees. His eyes sparkle behind his glasses. His face is framed by ear-length auburn hair.

Brian and Wendy Midener Froud have immersed their artistic careers in their love for the fantastic, the surreal, other eras. They met, 10 years ago while working with Muppet-maker Jim Jenson on the creation of his other-worldly "Dark Crystal."

Now, an unusual small collection of their current works is on display at Charlevoix's Koucky Gallery. It is the only show of their current works in the United States and will continue at least until the end of this month.

She is a Detroiter with Northern Michigan ties, he is British. They live and work full-time in Devon, England. Their mutual credits include the movies "Labyrinthe," "Dark Crystal" and "Star Wars."

The small show is the result of the Froud's return to northern Michigan to celebrate the 75th birthday of her father, sculptor Walter Midener. Midener is retired and living in East Jordan with his wife Peggy, a painter and creator of fantasy boxes. He is president emeritus of Detroit's Center for Creative Studies, College of Art and Design where he was director and president from 1968 until 1977.

Their Charlevoix show includes drawings, modified marionettes, a puppet and masks that draw inspiration from the characters and costumes the couple have designed for Henson projects.

The centerpiece is Wendy Midener Froud's tall "fairy princess" rod puppet.

Evoking the surrealism of several Henson projects, the ethereal "adult doll" is dressed in a ball gown of the same lightly gold-toned diaphanous synthetic material which dancers wore in the ball scene in "Labyrinthe." Midener Froud created the doll's long white translucent hair from individual threads of the same material, which she says was developed in France.

Wendy Midaner Froud's creatlons hava rangad from a dalicata fairy princass includad In a Charlavoix axhibit to Yoda of "Star Wars."

Also on display are two smaller modified marionette sculpture pieces of surrealistic-animal inspired characters.

One doleful character, a slim creature, perhaps part elephant or rhino, dressed in impeccable tuxedo, clutches flowers shyly behind his back. He bows from the waist when controlled by supporting strings.

Another, a sad and homely hairy gnome-like gent is tweed suit, reads a "Dear John" letter, as he pathetically raises and lowers his head.

Brian Froud's series of decorative surreal masks, derived from masks used in the "Labyrinthe" ball scene, hang above his wife's sculptures. Darkly colored leaves – some frosted with mergings of purples, deep reds and pinks, hints of peaked ears or pointed horns – draw inspiration from Froud's years of drawing faeries and other fantastic creations..

For the gallery, Froud created a series of miniature drawings of his faeries and elves. Some are reminscent of "Dark Crystal" and "Labyrinthe" characters, others are inspired by his best-selling book "Faeries," published in 1978.

The subjects of these detailed colored pencil and acrylic drawings seem to have just emerged from a subterranean world.

And, inspired by their son Toby, who got his first movie credit as a one-year-old playing the baby in "Labyrinthe,". Wendy Midener Froud has developed a series of dolls for children.

Made of pressed felt, these dolls too reflect the Froud's preoccupation with fairy tales and legends. A tousle-haired blue eyed boy, dressed all in green, might be Antoine de Saint-Exupery's "Little Prince"

AROUND THE TOWN

Look for new sidewalks all around town next year.... The city council has moved sidewalk repair in neighborhoods up a year on its citywide improvement schedule.... And the Downtown Development Authority is looking at replacing downtown sidewalks next year, too....

The neighborhood work would include replacement of damaged sidewalks everywhere in town except along Bridge Street from the bridge to Belvedere and for the half-block west of Bridge to the alley behind the main street stores....

City workers have started going around town to mark areas that need to be replaced.... Those are the little red spray-painted dots showing up on sidewalks.... The project will be paid for partly by funds from the four-mill tax increase OK'd this summer for sewer, road and sidewalk work and partly by homeowners.... The city has a long-standing policy of paying 40 percent of sidewalk replacement costs, with the property owner paying the other 60 percent....

The DDA is expected to replace all the sidewalks in the business district, using money from the two-mill added tax downtown businesses pay into the DDA fund.... But exactly when it will replace them is not yet decided.... The businesses will not have to pay the normal 60 percent, because they are already paying the extra tax.

The Ghost Ship has a new trick this year – it's disappeared.... Duty called, and the Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite won't be in town for Halloween....

The annual transformation of the ship into the Ghost Guard, complete with creatures above and below deck, has become an area holiday tradition.... But another tradition has called the ship's crew this year – military readiness.... The Mesquite has departed for Cleveland, where it will take part in a rigorous refresher training program....

On the Great Lakes, the Mesquite's prime mission is maintenance of Aids to Navigation.... But the ship must ready to function effectively with the Navy if the need arises.... A couple years ago, the Mesquite spent part of the winter in south Florida, helping catch drug smugglers.

Courier judged 2nd best in state

The Charlevoix Courier has been judged the second-best small weekly newspaper in the state by the University Press Club of Michigan.

The organization presented Excellence in Journalism awards in six newspaper and two television categories at its 70th annual meeting.

In competition among weeklies of less than 10,000 circulation, the Courier was praised for its "clean, imaginative layout with readers' needs kept in mind," good features, "strong, thoughtful interpretive coverage of important local issues," good use of color and good writing.

Judged were newspapers published on dates in June and July selected by the organization.

Taking first place in the division was the Novi News, which was lauded by the judges for its extensive coverage of a tornado which struck that area.

Other papers receiving first place awards were the Detroit News, Muskegon Chronicle, Sturgis Journal, Riverview-Taylor News-Herald and Tuscola County Advertiser. Television stations honored were WJBK in Detroit and WJRT in Flint.

Charlevoix Yesterday

This picture postcard labeled "Aeroplane View of Charlevoix, Mich. and its Lake Region" was mailed from Charlevoix to St. James, Beaver Island on Dec. 23, 1911. It shows Round Lake (looking rather square) in the center of town, Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) in the foreground, Susan Lake, Walloon Lake and Lake Michigan in the background. It also shows Boyne City between Charlevoix and Susan Lake. The postcard was sent to the Courier by John G. McCann of Jackson, who wrote, "During World War II, I received the Courier gratis like all service people from the area. I have been a subscriber ever since and look forward to every issue."

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful board gets 2 new members

Two new members have joined the board of directors of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful.

They are Jackie Krutsch, office manager of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, and Richard Rathke, internal auditor of Charlevoix County State Bank.

Krutsch, who has been with the chamber for 1½ years, has been a city resident for three years. She was administrative assistant for Universal Engineering in Frankenmuth for 15 years.

Krutch and her husband Harold, manager of the Weathervane Terrace, have two grown children.

Rathke has been an area resident since 1985 and formerly owned a business in Traverse City. He graduated from Eastern Michigan University in 1978 with a bachelor's degree in accounting.

His wife, Janet, is home economist for the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service office for Charlevoix County. His stepson, Steve Hopkins, is a senior at Charlevoix High School.

ELECT ALVIN "BUTCH" RUSSELL FOR CITY COUNCIL

Dear Second Ward Resident:

I would like to take this opportunity to introduce myself as a candidate for Second Ward Councilman.

I believe that it is time to keep finances on par and to keep Charlevoix, the town where many of us were born, a nice place to live so that our grandchildren and generations to come can enjoy it as we have. We need responsible leadership in our city government that will look after the interest of our residents and the good of our community.

I would like to take this opportunity to tell you a little about myself.:
- I am 43 years old and I live at 407 W. Hurlbut
- I am married and the father of two children who reside in Charlevoix

My work experiences include:
- Manager of Russell Gulf for ten years
- Owner of Butch Russell's Shell for three years
- Manager of Budget Rent a Car in Petoskey for five years
- Present owner of Butch Russell's Auto Reconditioning

Community involvement includes:
- I have donated time and paint for the Petunia Truck
- A donation of a VCR to the Bergmann Center
- Time and material donated to the playground at the city ball park

Goals and Commitments
- Will be a voice for the people of the Second Ward in Charlevoix
- Will strive to establish a communication network throughout the Second Ward
- Will strive to keep city finances on par as a homeowner and a tax payer
- Will work for maintaining and future improvements in all areas of the city
- Will work for young people, senior citizens as well as those in between
- Will support the development and proper use of our resources to continue the atmosphere of Charlevoix The Beautiful

Teachers' pact, budget get 1st nod

The Charlevoix school board has given tentative approval to a teachers' contract and a budget.

The teachers' pact was given tentative approval as agreed upon in negotiations that ended Sept. 16, said superintendent Gordon VanWieren.

Also approved was an agreement on extra-curriculur activities and severance pay, which VanWieren said was negotiated following the original negotiations.

The board's action begins the ratification process, the superintendent said.

The teachers' union is scheduled to meet Thursday.

Barry Anderson, who represents the teachers in the negotiations, said he preferred not to comment at this time.

"We will be meeting Thursday and possibly I will have a statement at that time," he said.

During the board's Monday meeting, a delegation of about 70 people – most of them teachers – was told by board president Max Novak that the contract was not on the agenda but would be addressed in a closed session following the meeting.

Following the executive session, the board gave its tentative approval to the Sept. 16 agreement.

The board's approval of a budget is also tentative. The $5,189,652 document is 2.7 percent higher than the present year's, said business manager Vince Olach.

Olach said the increase is due chiefly to increases in salaries and benefits.

The budget cannot be completed until all figures are known, Olach said. Among those not complete, he said, are teacher salaries, insurance and dental benefits.

"For the present, this is the closest I can come with a budget. The completed budget will be offered for approval when I have the figures," Olach said.

VanWieren said the district would be repaying Chicago Club approximately $35,000 from settlement of a court case over property assessments and the district would not be getting about $198,000 in taxes that will be filtered into the Downtown Development Authority and Ferry Beach tax increment financing districts.

The board gave its approval to tuition rates of $4,536 for kindergarten through eighth grade and $4,694 for ninth through 12th grades for out-of-district students.

Ron Gates, a parent, aired his dissatisfaction with the faculty, board and administrtion for lack of support of the Students Against Driving Drunk program.

Tabled was a discussion of the possible use of a student sobriety test.

Nomis Mol (left), widow of the former police chief, chats with Gladys Guerci (center) and Patti Jo Resch after the two LexaLite International employees received the first Jack Mol awards for heroism.

2 women honored for saving life

Two women credited with rescuing a man from a building fire have received the first Jack Mol award.

The award "acknowledges citizens who have demonstrated behavior which has benefitted the community," police chief Dennis Halverson said.

Patti Jo Resch and Gladys Guerci, both LexaLite International employees, were the first people to respond to cries for help and Resch pulled Gary Hickman to safety.

Fire chief John Martin thought Hickman probably would have been killed by the fire and smoke if she had not acted as quickly as she did, Halverson said.

When the pair heard screams at 11:30 p.m. Aug. 12 from their apartment on East Garfield, they found smoke coming from a second floor apartment above Jerry's Meats on East Lincoln.

After searching for an entrance, they found the stairwell and attempted to enter. Asthma prevented Guerci from continuing and she awoke neighbors to call the fire department.

Resch went inside and found the unconscious, badly burned Hickman, then dragged him from the apartment.

The awards were presented to the women by Martin and by Mike Mol, son of the former chief who is a Department of Natural Resources conservation officer.

Mol's widow Nomis and son Don also participated in the ceremony, which was attended by area police executives, city officials and fellow employees of the honored pair.

Meeting planned on bandshell future

A new effort to replace the deteriorating bandshell in East Park may be started.

City council has asked the city recreation commission to take up the issue, which resurfaces every few years.

Prompting the renewed interest was a visit to council a week ago by Warren Shapton, community band business manager.

Shapton's request for a $25 a month increase in the city allotment to the band led to discussion of the condition of the bandshell, which was begun in 1952 but never finished.

There is $15,200 in three bank accounts that could be used to get work begun on a replacement project.

City manager Mike Wiesner is calling a meeting of the recreation commission at Mayor Ralph McRae's request.

Wiesner said he will have plans that were drawn up about eight years ago at that meeting, the date of which has not yet been set.

Spearheading the attempt back then to get the project moving were Bob Miles, Alvin Ranger and Hans Wiemer, city officials recalled.

City tax bills rise as township rates remain fairly steady

by PEG OHLE

When they receive their 1987 property tax bills before Christmas, Charlevoix city residents will find an increase over 1986 taxes.

Residents of neighboring townships will pay the same or only slightly more than they did last year.

That's the outlook in Charlevoix County Equalization Director Joan Blanchard's apportionment report.

Her charts indicate Charlevoix city residents with property assessed at $30,000 will pay $1,538 in taxes, or $146 more than last year. Assessed value is half the market value.

Charlevoix Township residents will pay $1,115 in taxes, the same as last year, on a comparable house.

Marion Township residents in the Charlevoix school district will pay $1,055, the same as last year, and Marion residents in the Ellsworth district will pay $1,412, or $57 more than last year.

Norwood Township residents will pay $1,055, the same as last year.

The increase in city taxes is due largely to a four-mill tax added this summer for improvements in the infrastructure (streets, sidewalks, sewers), and for debt retirement. A mill is $1 in tax for $1,000 in assessed value.

There is a decrease of approximately one-third of a mill in levies for both the Charlevoix school district and county government, but the levy for the intermediate school district is up by approximately one-third of a mill.

More than $20 million will be collected countywide to support county government, city and township governments, schools, the intermediate school district, and the County Transit System.

This is up 7.51 percent over last year's county tax bill of $18,865,689, due to new construction, new taxes and some increase in assessments.

Of the total county tax collection, $3,664,751 will come from property owners in the city of Charlevoix, $1,301,400 from Charlevoix Township, $537,240 from Marion Township, and $367,293 from Norwood Township.

This tax money will be spent as follows: 67.43 percent to support local school systems, 15.72 percent to support city and township governments, 10.65 percent to support county government, 5.28 percent to support the intermediate school district, .57 percent to support the County Transit System, and .35 percent to support the Jordan Valley District Library (collected in that area only).

All of the recipients of tax monies prepare their own budgets to carry on the services they render.

The highest tax rate in Charlevoix County is levied in East Jordan at 62.1042 mills, bringing taxes on a $30,000 property to $1,863.

The highest township rate is in the Ellsworth school district area of South Arm Township at 47.0747, bringing taxes on a $30,000 property to $1,412.

On the other hand, the lowest tax rate is levied in St. James Township on Beaver Island at 30.6016 mills, bringing taxes on a $30,000 property to $918.

Opinion

Driving them away

There are efforts underway in many areas of Northwest Michigan to influence the eventual route of a U.S. 131 freeway.

It might be a good idea for Charlevoix to let the state know – we don't want it. Logic says we wouldn't ever get it anyway, but the state doesn't... well, let's just say it wouldn't hurt to tell them.

Right now the 131 freeway stops a long way from Charlevoix – in the Cadillac area. But extension of the freeway, at least the next stage of it, is part of a 10-year Department of Transportation project list.

Which way the freeway swings could have mammoth long-range effects on the communities in its path. The freeway is a major link with the Grand Rapids area and, ultimately, with tourists from the Chicago region.

Should the road veer a little northwest near Traverse City? Should it connect with I-75 near Gaylord or Grayling? Should it head into Petoskey?

These are million dollar, no, zillion dollar, questions. The easier it is for tourists to get to a tourist town, the larger the numbers that come.

So why wouldn't Charlevoix – as interested in tourists as any of those other towns – want the freeway to come here?

Geography. As we all already know, there's only one way to get through town. And in mid-summer some people say there is no way to get through town.

Estimates by the state indicate that up to 70 percent of the cars backed up on Bridge Street during the summer are on their way to somewhere else.

These people are just passing through – on their way from places like Traverse City to places like Mackinaw City and Petoskey. They didn't intend to stop here – and most likely won't because they fear if they get out of line they may never get out of town.

If those people who weren't going to stop anyway had an easy way to get from where they were to where they want to be, the traffic burden downtown would be lessened considerably.

And it would make Charlevoix a more pleasant memory for those who do stop.

Charlevoices

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

"Ask and ye shall receive..."

One of the nicest things about writing a newspaper column is the instant response you sometimes get from readers.

Last week I reflected upon a song an Army nurse, Major Edith Eames, used to sing to wounded soldiers during the Korean War. I didn't know the name of the song, but I did know some of the lyrics and I was interested in filling in the blanks.

Dr. Gilbert Saltonstall called to say remembered the song well. It was one of the numbers that a Charlevoix trio used to sing in the 1940s and 50s and was one of his favorites.

Called the "Charlevoices," the trio was composed of the tate Esther Hawley, who sang soprano; Alice Bellinger of Charlevoix, who sang tenor; and Mildred Webster, now living in Jacksonville, Fla., who sang baritone.

"Sometimes I'd join then as a bass," Saltonstall recalls. "Then we had a trio plus one."

Gib couldn't recall all the words to the song, but he put me in touch with Alice Bellinger, who did.

Alice, who was organist at the Congregational Church for 35 years, said the song was entitled "My Best to You," but the Charlevoices always sang it as "Our Best to Your" because there were three singers involved.

I was surprised how many of the words I remembered correctly, after hearing Major Eames sing it only once or twice. What I missed entirely was the final verse:

So here's to you,
May your skies be blue,
And your love blest,
That's my (our) best to you.

Alice recalls that the Charlevoices was formed during the days when groups of both male and female vocalists were big in the entertainment world.

Remember all the "sisters" and "brothers" we used to hear on radio?

So the three young Charlevoix women got together, worked up a repertoire of popular songs —good old songs, with intelligible words and a pretty melodies. Soon they were singing at social functions in Charlevoix, then around Northern Michigan and finally throughout the whole state.

Alice remembers performing in Grand Rapids and Lansing.

"Someone even wanted to take us to New York," Alice says today, somewhat wistfully.

"What really happened," chimes in Alice's husband, Charlie, is that the husbands wanted their wives back. They were getting too popular."

So the Charlevoices never made the big time — but they were big hits with the home folks for many, many years.

Alice still plays a mean organ and during the winter is much in demand at social functions sponsored by their mobile home court in Florida.

When I stopped at the Bellingers' to pick up the words to "My Best to You," Alice had written out the words to another song for me at the request of Gib Saltonstall. It's a song about Charlevoix composed by the late Ralph Price of Ironton. It is called simply "The Charlevoix Song" and is sung to the tune of "A Little Bit of Heaven." It was one of the Charlevoices' most popular numbers. Here are the words:

'Tis a little bit of heaven,
Mixed with land and lake and sky.
It nestles in the valley with Lake Michigan close by.
And when the angels found it,
Sure it looked so sweet and fair,
They said suppose we leave it,
For it looks so peaceful there.
So they sprinkled it with birches,
And they made the pine trees grow,
O're all the land you'll find them,
No matter where you go.
Then they dotted it with blue lakes,
While the angels sang for joy,
And when they had it finished,
Sure they called it Char-le-voix!

So dust off the piano, unearth your Irish song book, limber up the old vocal cords and give it a whirl. Altogether now: "'Tis a little bit of heaven..."

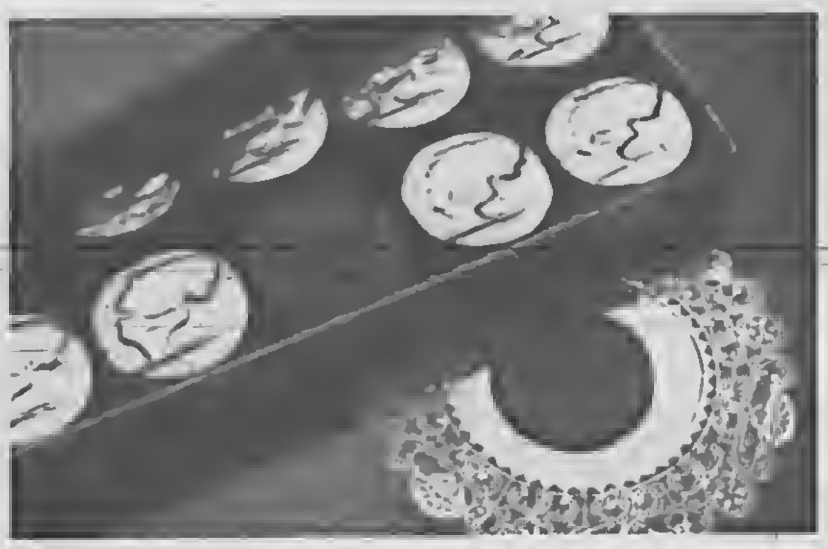
Three-hour photo in mint condition

EDITH GILBERT



It took three hours, but only one frame of film to make this picture.

If f had known this fund-raising project would take so long and be so difficult, f never would have become involved. Never.

All we intended to do is design an attractive box of candy to sell in behalf of the Crooked Tree Arts Council. No big deal. Or is it?

Just look at this picture of the Art Mints photographed by Don Rutt in Traverse City. He specializes in food ads for companies such as Sara Lee at $85 an hour. Because the Crooked Tree Arts Council is a non-profit organization, he generously contributed his services. We arrived at his studio at 9 a.m. and t-h-r-e-e hours later he took the one and only picture you see here.

For three hours we stood around and watched his work. First there was the interminable time in placing the box of candy, in adjusting the lid, the lights, the camera. Then be brought out a hair dryer and aimed it at the Crooked Tree logo.

"Why are you doing that?" f asked.

"To bring out the cocoa butter and make the mint shine," he explained. Then he brought out some hair spray and sprayed the gold foil.

"Why are you doing that?" f asked again.

"To dull the foil," he answered. "We don't want any hot spots."

Then he removed the foil from one of the mints so that the well-fashioned logo made by Charlevoix artist Barbara Godwin would show up better.

Then there was discussion as to where the chocolate mint should be placed in relationship to the foil-wrapped mints. Finally, he took a Polaroid picture of a section of the candy box filled with Kilwin's Art Mints, adjusted a few lights, took another Polaroid picture and we all agreed it was perfect. Then he made the final one-shot picture.

I won't go into all the finicky details of having the gorgeous Sue Bolt angel printed in color (Isn't she an angel to let us use it?); or having it matted in gold, suitable for framing, and making it fit on top of the box; or deciding on the size and thickness of the box; and the decisions of having the entire package shrink-wrapped or not; and should we finish off the package with a gold elastic bow? Thank heaven, Wayne Rose of Kilwin's candy advised us on the legal rules and regulations of the candy-making business.

But I will tell you that the committee, headed by Kathy Raney, tasted more chocolate mints than were good for us – some were too sweet, some were too thick – until we got just the right flavor and size. When you first take a bite, you taste pure chocolate, then a hint of mint, then a mild sweet sensation follows. Suddenly the chocolate, mint and gentle sweetness melt into a combined new flavor sensation, and then the Art Mint is gone, but a pleasant, light flavor lingers on. They're addictive!

They are also available for holiday entertaining and personal or corporate gifts. Write or call the McCune Arts Center, 461 E. Mitchell St., Petoskey 49770, 347-4337. Orders are coming in fast!

Well, it happened again! f received a postcard from the Taj Mahal, India, with the nice note telling me that India is a land of contrasts, the monuments beautiful, the life style the lowest possible. The card is signed love, —, but for the life of me f can't read the signature. Who do I know en route to India? f lay awake at night before going to sleep wondering.

Frequently I've received post cards from exotic places signed Anne or Mary or Jane with no last name, which also leaves me wondering. f shrug my shoulders and hope I'll run into Anne or Mary or Jane, and in the course of conversation they will mention that they have just returned from Bora Bora, or Tibet or Helsinki. Then I can blithely say, "Oh, I enjoyed so much hearing from you!"

Post cards are not the only puzzlement. Christmas cards can be equally mysterious. Every year we receive at least one card with no return address to boot, and a name like Barb, or Bud or Bob, that's hard to decipher.

People nowadays resist using a last name even on the telephone. f have three friends named Charlotte, two Gails, Alices and Sallys, two Edwins, need I go on? I know f'm supposed to recognize the friendly voice, and sometimes f do. But more often than not, the doorbell is ringing, the dog is barking, the TV is on and f haven't a clue who is on the other end of the phone.

f know this subject of signing ones first and last name legibly or identifying oneself on the phone with a first and last name is a lost cause, but f feel better having gotten it off my chest! So says Edith Gilbert.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

One thing that I don't believe we ever outgrow is the love of a good story. Being a preacher, I look for stories that have something you can really sink your teeth into as well as stories that make you smile. Such is the case of a story of Soren Kierkegaard, the philosopher, that I am about to paraphrase for you. Soren, hope you don't mind if f put it in my own words.

Once upon a time, there was a world made up of nothing but ducks. These ducks had towns and villages just like we do.

On Sunday mornings, every duck would get up nice and early. They would get dressed in their finest attire and would waddle their way downtown to Duck Church. There'd be the usual chit-chat at the door. But as the hour for service approached, everybody waddled inside and squatted down in their places. The duck choir came in and took its place down front. The duck preacher waddles in and found his place and the service began.

Now even the ducks were big on the latest Bible translations. The duck preacher chose a passage from Isaiah in the New Duck-national Version. He began an impassioned message about the wonders and powers of God.

"They that wait upon the Lord will renew their strength!" "Amen!" quacked the congregation. "They shall mount up with wings as eagles." "Amen!" The congregation was beginning to get excited.

"My brethren," the duck preacher cried, "that's you and I. We have wings." "Amen," quacked the church. "We can slip the surly bonds on sin and fly higher than we ever thought possible before!" "Amen," the congregation agreed. "Let us not settle for the same old way of doing things anymore. Let's stretch out our wings and really fly!" "Amen!" was the united cry.

Then they sang the last hymn, told the preacher what a great sermon it was, and all waddled home just as if they never heard a single word that the Lord's servant had tried to share with them.

Now realize again, that's just a made up story from the world of ducks. But it does have something to say. God has done some tremendous things for you and f by faith. Our lives ought to be showing the difference faith makes more than they do. Besides that, why waddle when you can fly?

Shari and Douglas Huyser

Mol-Huyser wedding

Shari Mol and Douglas Huyser exchanged marriage vows Saturday afternoon, Sept. 26, at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Jack Mol of Charlevoix and the late Mr. Mol. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Huyser of Grand Rapids.

The Rev. Philip Schairbaum officiated at the double-ring ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her brother, Michael Mol. Approximately 150 guests were in attendance.

For the occasion, the altar and stairway of the church were draped with roping of live greens. There was also an altar arrangement of gladiolus and carnations and candelabra decorated with pink carnations and white chyrsanthemums.

Baskets of white baby's breath and pink spirea were placed in the foyer and along the stairway.

Each pew was marked with a white lace wide-brimmed hat, decorated at the crown with a band of mixed statice and accented with an aqua ribbon. The pew decorations were hand-crocheted by the bride's grandmother.

The bride wore a gown of white summer satin featuring a long line bodice and tulip sleeves trimmed with French re-embroidered Alencon lace accented with hand-sewn seed pearls. The bateau neckline dropped to a deep V in the back.

Matching lace edged the full-skirted hemline and cathedral-length train.

The veil was of illusion in fingertip length attached to a wreath of silk organza roses and seed pearls. The bride's bouquet was a cascading arrangement of white roses, white stephanotis, varigated ivy, and Boston fern.

Organist Elizabeth Humphrey and vocalist Fran Tollas provided music for the ceremony, the latter offering "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee" and "One Hand, One Heart."

Lynne Crumbaugh served the bride as matron of honor, and Kristine Mol and Beth Mol, sisters-in-law of the bride, and Nancy Longest, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids.

The attendants wore tea-length gowns of aqua polished cotton fashioned with puffed sleeves, bateau neckline, and deep V-cut back. They carried bouquets of ivy, fern, white roses, pink baby carnations, and white button chrysanthemums, tied with tufts of aqua ribbon.

Terry Mol, brother of the bride, assisted as best man, and Donald Mol, another brother, James Huyser, brother of the bridegroom, and William McDonald served as groomsmen and ushers.

A dinner reception at Stafford's Bay View Inn, hosted by the bride's mother, followed the wedding ceremony. David and Nancy Fowler and Brandt and Sandy Fischer, sister and brother-in-law of the bridegroom, served as greeters.

A special feature of the dinner was the wedding cake which was decorated with fresh flowers. Music and dancing added to the festivities.

The rehearsal dinner was held at Grey Gables Inn, hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

The newlyweds are at home at 3368 Devenwood Hills, N.E., Grand Rapids 49505. They are both graduates of Michigan Technology University.

The bridegroom is a structural engineer with Entela Inc. of Grand Rapids, and the bride, also a structural engineer, is presently seeking teachers certification at Grand Valley State College.

Workshop focuses on eating right

A program on healthy eating habits will be conducted by Janet Rathke, Cooperative Extension Service home economist, Thursday, Oct. 29, at Ellsworth Town Hall from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Included will be ideas for monitoring fat and cholesterol intake while eating favorite foods and information on healthy foods prepared in the microwave.

Pre-registration is necessary. Call 582-6232 by Tuesday, Oct. 27. A fee of $1 will be collected at the door.

Tickets available for fashion show

Tickets are still available for the annual fashion show and dinner at the Grey Gables Inn on Tuesday, Oct. 27, sponsored by the Charlevoix Women's Club.

Fashions will be shown by Country Casuals, North Country Kids, Burnsides, Mettler's, Bahnhof Sports, The Clothing Company and Bridge Street Artists.

Fall and winter fashions will be shown, club president Lucy Witthoeft said.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. with the fashion show to follow. A social hour begins at 5:30 p.m.

Choice of entree can be made when tickets are purchased. The deadline is Friday, Oct. 23.

Scouts sell popcorn

Boy Scout Troop 11 will conduct its 17th annual popcorn sale on the evening of Monday, Oct. 26.

People who are missed but want to buy popcorn may call Scoutmaster Louis Edwards at 547-6630.

Cub Scouts get together

Cub Scout Den 6 met with Jesse Antaya, Jesse Wood, Noel Kammermann, Mike McCann, Brad Eaton and Scott Blechel present. Absent were Jon Browe, Seth Kilander and Jeremy Biggerstaff.

Noel Kammermann demonstrated Japanese paper folding and the cubs made a bird. They also practiced folding the flag.

Drug treatment workshop slated

Questions about substance abuse prevention and treatment will be addressed in a workshop sponsored by CHIP Counseling Center.

The workshop will be held in Petoskey on Thursday, Oct. 29, at the Holiday Inn. For information, call 533-6330.

Preparing for the United Methodist Church bazaar are Cheryel Yingling (standing) and (seated from left) Helen Sneathan, Marguerite Ikens and Jill Washburn.

Annual yule buffet, bazaar is next week

A buffet-luncheon, Christmas bazaar and bake sale will be hosted by the United Methodist Women in the church dining room on Friday, Oct. 30.

The luncheon will be served from 11 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. Tickets will be $4 for adults and $3.50 for senior citizens.

Lunch will feature hot casseroles and salads.

The bazaar will have handcrafted items including Christmas gifts. The bake sale features home-prepared items.

Jill Washburn and Maxine Hooker will staff bazaar and bake sale tables. Marguerite Ikens heads the menu committee, Marcia Taylor the dining room, Laura Chew the pantry and Helen Moerland the kitchen. Lynne Salmonson is in charge of publicity.

Albright-Schmidt wedding

Michael and Darlene Schmidt

Darlene Albright and Michael William Schmidt exchanged marriage vows Saturday afternoon, Aug. 15, at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix.

The bride, who has been living in Charlevoix, is the daughter of Duane B. and Jantina Albright of Mendon, and the bridegroom is the son of Joseph I. and Claire Rose Schmidt of Charlevoix.

Approximately 150 guests witnessed the ceremony at which the Rev. David W. Yingling officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and her brother, Duane. Her gown was a hand-made creation of Julie A. Mason of East Jordan, fashioned of white satin covered with bridal lace, sequins, and white pearls. Her cascading bouquet was made by Dana Ward and contained silk stephanotis, lilies of the valley, pink and white sweetheart roses, and dried baby's breath.

Julie Anne Mason also assisted the bride as maid of honor, and Teresa Leaman of Charlevoix and Tricia Morgan of Grand Rapids were bridesmaids. They wore tea-length pink satin gowns decorated in front and back with embroidered and sequin-covered leaves. They were also hand-made by Julie Anne Mason.

Mark Drenth of Charlevoix served the bridegroom as best man; Tim Louiselle and Larry Lemerand, both of Charlevoix, were groomsmen; and Randy Schnackenberg and Steve Schmidt, also of Charlevoix, were ushers.

For the ceremony, the church was decorated with pink gladiolus and white carnations. Traditional organ music was played by Robin Mayner.

Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt hosted a reception at the American Legion Hall following the wedding ceremony, assisted by Mark Drenth.

Liz Meadows prepared the food. The rehearsal dinner was held at the bridegroom's home.

Following a trip through northern Michigan, the newlyweds are at home in Charlevoix. The bride is employed as an artist by Brumm Studios in Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is employed by Pat McKeown Ford as an automobile painter.

Rayders withstand Onaway comeback for 4th grid victory

Charlevoix edged over the .500 mark by withstanding a late surge by Onaway in Michigan-Huron Shores Conference football.

The Rayders built up a comfortable 27-0 lead, then watched Onaway score three times in the final period. Charlevoix held on to win, 27-22.

The win puts Charlevoix at 4-3 for the year with two games to play.

Quarterback Dan Drury threw three touchdown passes, two of them to Scott DeYoung.

In the first period, Drury hit Shawn Putman with a 17-yard pass for the first score. Putman then kicked the extra point.

After a scoreless second quarter, the Rayders put three touchdowns on the scoreboard in the third stanza.

Marv Witthoeft scored from the four to cap an 85-yard march after the opening kickoff. Putman kicked the conversion.

Then Drury hit DeYoung for a 37-yard scoring play and again Putman's kick was good. A couple minutes later, Drury and DeYoung connected again, this time on a five-yard TD pass following a fumble recovery.

The kick missed the mark, but the Rayders had what seemed to be a more-than-comfortable margin.

The final period belonged to Onaway sophomore fullback Cory Kubacki, though. Kubacki scored on runs of three, six and three yards and added a pair of two-point conversions to make the score close.

Drury hit nine of 14 passes for 172 yards, as the Rayders racked up 314 total yards. Five of those receptions were made by DeYoung, who had 127 yards to go with hits two touchdowns.

Steve Hopkins led the ground attack with 51 yards in seven carries, while Witthoeft added 46 yards in eight carries.

Mike Smith, Jason Whitley, Chad Thorpe and Derek Dutcher each had 10 tackles to lead the defense, while Hopkins, Witthoeft, David Miller and Scott Denny each recorded five.

Witthoeft made an interception and DeYoung recovered a fumble for the Rayders.

Penalties hurt each team significantly as officials walked off 20 flags – 10 against each team. Charlevoix was penalized 100 yards and Onsway 70.

Unbeaten junior varsity breezes past Onaway

The undefeated Rayder JV's posted their sixth victory of the season with a 44-0 win over Onaway.

The offensive line did a good job of sustaining blocking, giving the backs a chance to score, Coach Brian Certa said of his team, which has a 6-0-1 record.

Five Rayders scored as they put six touchdowns on the board in three periods. The final quarter was scoreless as Certa emptied the bench.

James Corwin opened the scoring with a 23-yard-run early in the first period. The conversion pass was missed. Greg Lewis then passed six yards to Corwin and again the conversion was missed.

Following a long drive, Lewis scored from the one with Brian Livingston running for the conversion.

Jason Corwin returned the second half kickoff 83 yards for a touchdown, with Lewis passing to James Corwin for the conversion.

Livingston scored on a 24-yard run with James Corwin adding the conversion, then Tony Mervyn scored on a 10-yard run with James Corwin passing to Livingston for the conversion.

Boy runners continue to dominate events

The Rayder boys cross-country team topped a field of 10 teams to win the Shepherd Invitational meet.

The girls team tied for second with Carson City Crystal but fell to third as the result of the tie breaker. Rogers City finished first.

The Charlevoix boys JV's also placed first.

"Our varsity ran its best race of the year," said coach Pete Spieles. "The runners attitudes were excellent. Everyone was positive in his thinking. It was a good way to go into the final meets."

Spieles said the girls lost their opportunity to win the meet during the first mile.

"They held back too long and then were unable to catch up. The last two miles were great but by then it was too late. If they want to win, they've got to go out like winners."

Spieles said Julie Bush and Heidi Olinger ran well and Elka Thomas' last two miles were super. Dora Skuladottir, the fifth runner, also did well.

In the JV race, Bill Crook, a sophomore, placed first for the first time. All the Charlevoix runners bettered their personal records Spieles said.

In the boys race, Charlevoix had 32 points to second place Clares 78.

Pat Rejewski and Scott Miller came in one-two with time of 15:56.81 and 16:00.19. Gehry Wiesner placed fifth in 16:50.01, Sean Henne seventh in 16:56.53 and Paul Wakulat 17th in 17:22.91.

The sixth and seventh runners, Hal Chase and Dylan Stewart, finished in 19th and 20th places with times of 17:32.16 and 17:35.26.

In the girls' meet Bush came in third in 20.29.88. Olinger was 13th in 21:22.21, Betsy Haggard 16th in 21:39.68, Thomas 18th in 21:43.53 and Skuldottir 33rd in 22:34.22.

Lori Raymond finished in 48th place in 23:43.58, Shelly Ferguson 49th in 23:51.29 and the eighth runner, Barb Haggard recorded a time of 24:15.89.

Bill Crook set the pace in the JV division at 18:18.16 followed by Tim Henne in sixth place in 18:51.65, Mike Stargardt 13th in 19:11.03, Matt Schnackenberg 15th in 19:25.01 and Jon Terry 21st in 19:57.38. Matt Stargardt finished in 23rd at 20:01.04.

Freshmen sacked by Gaylord

The Rayder freshman football team lost to Gaylord 35-14.

The Rayders were held scoreless until the final period when Dan Terryberry got off a pass to Cody Bush for a scoring play that covered 86 yards. Terryberry passed Erich McElroy for the conversion to make the score 35-8.

Later in the period, the Rayders moved the ball to the six-yard-line from which James McGee went in to score. The cooversion attempt, a pass, was short.

The Blue Devils scored on two running plays in the first half and on a run and two passes in the second half.

8th graders record 1st victory, 7th splits

Middle school basketball teams split their games with seventh graders losing to Central Lake 16-14 in overtime and defeating Boyne City 32-8 on Thursday.

The eighth graders posted their first win, a 32-31 victory over Central Lake and lost 24-21 to Boyne City.

Against Central Lake, the seventh grade led 7-2 at the half only to have Central Lake tie the score 12-12 at the gun. In overtime the Lakers scored four points to Charlevoix's two for the win. Ellana Gebott had six points for the losers.

The eighth grade game was tied 18-18 at halftime before Charlevoix pulled out its first victory, winning from the free throw line after each team scored 15 field goals.

Charlevoix made two of 14 from the line to Central Lake's one of three. Gena Webster had 15 points and Dorothy Perrault 11 for the victors.

At Boyne City the seventh graders got back on the victory trail, winning 32-8 after leading 18-4 at halftime.

Genna McElroy had 10 points, Jody Allison eight and Danielle Lee six for Charlevoix.

The Boyne City eighth graders won 24-21 after leading 18-10 at the half. Gena Webster had seven and Becky Martin six points for Charlevoix.

Giants lead flag football

With one game left in the 1987 flag football season the Giants have clinched the title with a 5-0 record.

The Giants and Dolphins were scoreless in the first quarter before the Giants began to pull away to an eventual 28-12 victory. A safety was followed by a 23-yard TD run by Brian Coolman. Luke LaBlance passed to Dan Boss for the two-point conversion.

Dan Avery then broke away on a 32-yard scoring play to put the Dolphins back in contention.

A 21-yard pass play from LaBlance to Ben Whitley added six more Giants' points and a safety make the halftime lead 18-6.

The Giants final touchdown came in the third period on a one-yard keeper by LaBlance, who then passed to Ken Olinger for the conversion. Olinger added a safety in the final period.

The Dolphins scored again on a 17-yard pass from Jamie Crain to Vince Voisin.

The Panthers tied for second place with a 3-2 record, got off to a fast start against the Wildcats and won 22-8. Dave Hunter's 15-yard pass to Joe Ferroll gave the Panthers a 6-0 lead.

The Wildcats knotted the score with a 20-yard pass play from Chris McCallum to Luke Porath. Herb Pines scored the conversion.

The Dolphins then took command and scored twice more in the second period on runs of 23 and one yard by Ferroli.

Chargers win

The Chargers defeated the Wildcats, while the Turbos and Scorpions played to a scoreless tie in Charlevoix soccer action.

Steven Carland got the scoring underway in the Chargers' 7-1 win by scoring three unanswered goals.

Mark Boss tallied for the Wildcats, but Chris Mattye returned the lead to three goals before Kevin Schaberg added the final three points.

Soccer club wins

The Charlevoix Soccer Club shut out the Petoskey Junior Varsity Club 5-0.

Nick Mellios scored three goals and Chad Morrow and Webb Friedly added one each.

Yachting Notes

A. NONY MOUSE

The last three weeks of the 1987 CYC fall season will live in the winter memories of many race participants as one of the wildest, wettest and windiest in years. With three weeks to go the Sept. 30 race gave us winds of 40-42 knots and blinding rain squalls.

Mother Nature in her inimitable charm followed this with the Oct. 7 race in near gale force winds and a first leg that took this skipper 45 minutes of mindbending paranoia to accomplish. Before that race had even begun, she had crumpled the mast of Hot Mustard and left her crew frantically attempting to clear sheets, pull sails from beneath the hull while still trying to hold the bow head to weather without power.

And then, to send us off to winter storage, she finished us off with warm, soft wind and kindles in us the thoughts of what we'll be able to do "Next Year."

Our final matchup of the year brought home some old regulars. In Fleet A Gotcha, a J-29, co-helmed by Mike Dow and Tom Mueller captured the gun followed by Gary Gleason in Sorcerer, with his newest crewman, Scotty, clearing the ropes. Pygmalion, Columbine, Craig Tallberg in his J-22 and Nitemoves completed the fleet.

In Fleet B, Tireless eked out a 6-second win over Cygnus by being on the favored end of the finish, and in winning, captured Fleet honors for the series. Cygnus was followed by Commodore Karl Jurries in Blasen, Bandit with our esteemed mentor, Hank Cauthra back at the helm, Nulli-Secundus, San-Sue-She and Kittiwake.

The JAM Fleet brought home John Gordon in his P-30, Flash, followed by Maureen, Merry Hell, Sandpiper, Canusa, Cabaret and Cool Whip.

For the Fall Series, the totals (minus one throwout) are: Sorcerer 7.5; Gotcha 9.25; Pygmalion 14; Nite Moves 17; Columbine 18.75; Tallberg's J-22 27; and Wingnut 28.

Fleet B: Tireless 7.25; Blasen 10.75; Bandit 16.5; Foxy Lady 18; Nulli-Secundus 21; Cygnus and San-Sue-She 27 and Kittiwake 28.

Basketball girls post 2nd victory

Charlevoix's girls basketball team posted its second win of the season with a 39-27 win over Boyne City.

The Rayders got off to an 11-2 first period lead and increased it to 18-10 at halftime. Boyne narrowed the gap to 29-23 going into the final period.

Ramblers 11 and hit nine of 21 shots from the line. Boyne City hit five of 10 free throws.

Stacy Gebott paced the scoring with 19 points.

The Rambler JV's won 50-32 after leading 19-16 at halftime. Cynthia Boydston had 16 for Charlevoix.

Earlier the Rayders lost 40-17 to St. Ignace. The Saints led 12-6, 19-8 and 34-11 at the quarters.

St. Ignace had 17 field goals and made six of 11 free throws. The Rayders made seven field goals and hit three of 10 from the line.

Gebott had six points to lead Charlevoix.

The Saints JV quintet won 44-12 after leading 27-4 at halftime. Melissa Ritt had four points for Charlevoix.

Bridge Park area changes eyed

Gene Steele, recalling last year's fight.

City council approved by the narrowest of margins – with the mayor twice breaking tie votes – the gazebo-restroom plan, then started pulling away from it.

Council members backed off from their approval when citizen pressure to leave the park alone mounted.

"This is a new posture for us," says Steele, of DDA backing for a plan to alter public parkland to encourage private development.

The proposal was made by Arch Wright and Dick Georgi of Charlevoix Development Co. in an effort to turn the side of the Burnsides building into a five-store "front."

The storefronts would be constructed to look like older downtown buildings. And, says Georgi, the result would be a more-attractive entrance to downtown than the present massive sidewall.

Georgi originally talked to the DDA about putting a sidewalk along the new front of the building, which would mean terracing and leveling the end of the now-sloped park.

As specific plans were drawn up, the sidewalk took on a more patio-like appearance, with a circular stairway, brick surface, underwalk heating devices and – at the suggestion of the DDA – underdeck restrooms.

The DDA has balked at the estimated $70,000 price tag of the project, but has embraced the idea.

Jeanine Wallace, whose Shop of the Gulls is across the street from the park, says the site goes mostly unused.

And Lesser says the proposal would turn the park into a more attractive, more inviting place.

The project would take up about 10 percent of the parkland – all up against the building, says Bill Fuller, architect for Wright and Georgi.

At the same time, though, it would draw people into the park and onto the patio, the developers say.

Georgi scrapped an original, less expensive plan for the storefronts because DDA members were concerned it looked too modern to fit in with the downtown.

Because it wants to have money to re-do downtown sidewalks, the DDA has endorsed the plan but not the specifics in an effort to trim costs.

The proposal now goes back to city council, which passed on an earlier opportunity to discuss it.

Fantasy creations on display

from asteroid B-612. One doll, Midener Froud admits, is Tody in 'Labryinthe."

When Wendy Midener Froud graduated from The Center for Creative Studies in 1975, with a degree in fabric design and ceramics, she headed for New York.

"I had enough money to survive for three months," she remembers.

Near the end of the three months she held a show of her already unusual dolls in her 23rd Street loft. A friend of Muppet creator Henson bought a rod puppet of an Egyptian fantasy figure. Within days Henson called her to join the crew working toward "Dark Crystal."

Brian Froud came to New York the same year, also recruited by Henson for the movie. Froud was a graduate of the Maidstone College of Art in Kent, England. While establishing a successful career in commercial illustration, he began work on "Faeries" and another published collection of drawings, "The Land of Froud."

In New York Brian devoted his energies to "Dark Crystal" and Wendy joined Henson's staff, actually designing and building puppets for TV's Muppet Show and for movies as well. She is also credited as a major designer of Yoda for "Star Wars."

She remembers the extraordinary confusion on movie sets when the action of one Muppet might require "up to six people coordinating the eyes, the ears and all the movements. It took a lot of choreography, a lot of rehearsal, and sometimes 15 takes for one scene.

Brian Froud's current projects have included Henson's "Story Teller" series on both American and British television, a proposed project in which Froud would create an animated film from J.R. Tolkien's "Father Christmas Letters," and a too soon to be revealed" animation project in Hollywood.

Wendy Midener Froud says she is free-lancing her work full time, focusing on producing a group of her felt dolls for a London gallery.

Statewide association invited to Charlevoix

Charlevoix has invited Keep Michigan Beautiful to pay a visit.

The state organization honored the Charlevoix Historical Society with an award for its Harsha House landscaping project.

And Lou Orlowski, president of the historical society, presented the group with a weighty package of materials gathered by Bruce MacArthur, president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful.

Included were letters from KCB, Mayor Ralph McRae, the Chamber of Commerce and the Convention and Visitors Bureau. There was also a professionally produced videotape of Charlevoix, extolling the city's business climate while showing off its natural beauty.

Orlowski suggested the group consider a small town for its annual meeting.

When the organization meets in a large city, he said, only the hotel where members stay is involved with them. But in a town like Charlevoix, he said, the whole city would become interested.

While the group made no commitment during its meeting, Orlowski said that a couple members later spoke favorably of the idea.

An organization such as Keep Michigan Beautiful, which meets in the autumn, is the kind of group promoters of extending Charlevoix's "shoulder" seasons are interested in.

A group that size would bring to town between 100 and 200 people, which could be accommodated in such places as the conference room at the Edgewater Inn.

Displaying a poster for Women's Health Day at Charlevoix Area Hospital are Sue Bartlett (left) president of Xi Epsilon Gamma Sorority, and project committee member Tensley Stewart.

Day's activities at hospital concentrate on women's health

Women's Health Day, an afternoon program of timely health information for women, will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 24, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Sponsored by the hospital and the Xi Epsilon Gamma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, Women's Health Day is free and open to the public. Charlevoix area women of all ages are invited to attend.

Featured will be three lecture-discussions held in the hospital classroom. JoAnn Lutze of CHIP Counseling Center will talk about stress and the modern woman. Lutze, a prevention educator for CHIP Counseling, will devote special attention to problems faced by the working woman.

William Mosher, M.D., a obstetrics and gynecology specialist on the hospital medical staff, will discuss estrogen therapy in the post-menopausal years.

Susan Killam, R.N., of District Health Department No. 3 will present a program on breast cancer.

Because of limited seating, reservations are requested. Call Charlevoix Area Hospital at 547-4024.

Obituaries

Goldie F. Bennett

Goldie F. Bennett, 90, of Ellsworth died Wednesday, Oct. 13, at the home of her grand-daughter, Darlene Crawford of Ellsworth.

Funeral services were held Saturday at East Jordan Missionary Church. The Rev. James W. Duncan officiated. Interment was in Morehouse Cenetery in Echo Township.

The former Goldie Fern Bolser was born in Echo Township, the daughter of Benjamin and Fannie (Barnes) Bolser, May 29, 1897. On May 19, 1916, she married Samuel Bennett.

They lived on the family farm on Vance Road in Echo Township since 1928. Mr. Bennett died in 1971. She was a member of the East Jordan Missionary Church.

Surviving are three sons, James, Percy and Lawrence, all of East Jordan; 13 grandchildren; 32 great-grandchildren; 12 great-great-grandchildren; and a sister, Sylvia Folsom of East Jordan.

The family suggests memorials to East Jordan Missionary Church. Envelopes are available at Hastings Funeral Home.

Edna M. Weidman

Edna Marie Augusta Weidman died Oct. 20, and a memorial service was held Oct. 23 at Community Church of God in Charlevoix.

The former Edna Loach was born Oct. 28, 1910, to James and Lena Loach in McKeesport, Pa. She married Theodore R. Weidman on Dec. 10, 1926. He preceded her in death in 1980.

She was employed for many years at the Charlevoix city golf course.

Surviving are eight children, Edna Stuart, Kitty Sipple, Jean Diana Vogler, Florence Caldwell, Emmaline Weidman, Sally Geer, Lynne Cook and Ted Weidman; 17 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Donations to the Multiple Sclerosis Society are requested.

OCT 1987

Brakes - Fluid leakage anywhere in the brake system can occur without warning. One drop of fluid lost each time the brakes are applied can empty the master cylinder in just a short time. A spongy brake pedal feel, reduced stopping ability and erratic brake action are often caused by air entering the fluid pressure system because of fluid loss. If necessary, "top off" the reservoir with brake fluid.

Engine Oil - An oil level below the "safe" mark on the dipstick seriously effects the life of the engine. All moving parts must be protected from grinding themselves to pieces by a film of motor oil thinner than a piece of hair. Internal bearing pressures exceed 1,000 pounds per square inch, the pistons often reach 400 degrees Fahrenheit. More reasons for keeping oil at the correct level. Change oil at realistic intervals, and don't forget a filter, too.

Spark Plugs - Many drivers think that spark plugs are designed for perpetual life and will last forever, especially with today's high-technology, electronically controlled ignition systems. Far from the truth. Plugs are battered by high combustion temperatures, sometimes reaching 4000 degrees Fahrenheit. Combustion deposits accumulate on internal surfaces, and plugs get tired and worn out. Plugs should be checked regularly and replaced at realistic intervals for maximum gas economy and peak engine efficiency. If you want better engine performance, then a fresh set of spark plugs is the place to start.

Transmission - Too little or too much fluid can cause serious transmission problems and often lead to early failure of this expensive component. Excessive low fluid causes bands and clutches to slip and wear rapidly. Overfilling causes air to enter internal pressure lines, causing erratic shifting and damage to vital parts. Keep fluid at the recommended level.

Battery - Although a battery is a silent partner of the entire electrical system and is usually "forgotten," it is vital to the dependable starting and operation of your car. Corrosion that naturally develops on battery clamps and terminals "eats away" the metal and eventually destroys them. Corrosion can also block current flow and prevent the battery from delivering needed electrical power. Loose or missing holddown clamps cause battery vibration and will "kill" it faster than most anything else. So check your battery regularly. Without it, you're sure to become stranded. Keep it clean, keep it tight, make it last!

Tires - Underinflated tires rob you of good fuel economy and are one of the major causes of rapid tread wear. Low tire pressure also seriously weakens the tire carcass through excessive sidewall flexing as the car is driven. Steering and braking control also suffer from excessively low tire pressure. Never judge tire pressure by looking; use an accurate pressure gauge.

Radiator - Thousands of gallons of coolant must circulate throughout the cooling system every hour of engine operation or it would virtually melt into a mass of molten metal. You can prevent costly engine damage and costly repairs by keeping the coolant at the correct level.

Steering Fluid - Too little fluid in the power steering pump reservoir causes the pump to operate without sufficient reserve supply. Pumps can produce up to 1000 pounds per square inch. They therefore need the right amount of fluid to handle the driver's steering demands. If pumps "starve for fluid," higher steering effort will result and the driver's control will be seriously reduced. Use quality fluid to "top off" the reservoir to the correct dipstick level.

Air Filter - Clogged air filters prevent the engine from breathing easily. Engines that can't "inhale" properly because of restricted air passages in the filter element cause a too-rich fuel-air mixture, "robbing" you of gas mileage. More fuel than necessary to operate the engine at peak efficiency fouls spark plugs with combustion deposits and causes an increase in exhaust pollutants. A new air filter can save you money and will keep the engine running smoothly.

Belts/Hoses - Hoses that burst without warning and drive belts that crack and suddenly break as you're driving will lead to serious engine damage. Hoses rot internally and belts get weak and tired from the underside. Outward appearance is no indication of their condition. Belts stretch and begin to slip and squeal. Then water pumps, alternators and fans lose their efficiency. For safe insurance, change all belts and hoses every 20,000 miles.

Lights - In all 50 states it is illegal to drive without all running lights working properly. Good lighting (front, rear and turn signal indicators) makes driving safe for you and all others on the road. Headlight alignment and stoplights should be checked regularly. With lights on, walk around the car to make sure they all work property. Have someone tell you about stoplight operation as you apply the brakes. Replace burned out bulbs immediately.

Wipers - Poor visibility during rainy or snowy conditions destroys your ability to see the road ahead clearly. Tired, worn-out wiper blades cause windshield streaking and reduce your "road ahead" visibility. Hot weather bakes the life out of blade contact-to-windshield surfaces and leads to poor wiping. Road salts splashed on glass surface literally grind away the blade material. New wiper blades and/or refills are cheap insurance for safety.

Hospital offers meals to seniors

Starting Sunday, Oct. 25, senior citizens will be able to eat a nutritious meal and enjoy good company on Sunday afternoons with the start of Charlevoix Area Hospital's Senior Sunday Dinner program.

For $2.50 each, senior citizens may eat dinner in the hospital cafeteria from 1 to 2 p.m. every Sunday. Dinners will be prepared by the hospital dietary department and will be served cafeteria style.

From time to time, health information materials will also be distributed at the Senior Sunday Dinners.

The weekday meal program at the Charlevoix Senior Center at the VFW Hall does not operate on weekends.

The special price applies to senior citizens only. For other guests, regular cafeteria prices will apply.

Photographic show at arts center

Crooked Tree Arts Council's seventh annual photography continues through October. The theme of the juried show is "Michigan." The center is open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Sundays.

Awarded the $300 best of show prize was Dave Wellman of Indian River. The $125 second place award went to Stan Gregg of Spring Arbor and third place was awarded to Gerald II Hoffman of Alanson.

Capturing honorable mentions were Timothy Nathan Leach of East Jordan, Lynn Carson of East Jordan and Kurt I. Hoffman of Alanson.

One hundred and forty Charlevoixens who have worked for the Rainbow Shop were honored and entertained at the Rainbow Shop Volunteer Appreciation Dinner at the Assembly of God Church. The resale shop, sponsored by 10 community churches, returns its profits through projects for needy people. Varsity members of the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts Team provided a 40 minute variety show of song and dance.

Kiwanis aids hospital

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club has given $500 to Charlevoix Area Hospital in recognition of contributions made to the club by Glenn Kenney.

The money is to be used to help upgrade communications equipment in the emergency room.

The hospital has long been of special interest to Kenney. The past member of the hospital board of directors and one of its biggest supporters is also a past president of Kiwanis.

Window displays receive prizes

A window decoration contest was conducted during the Applefest by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Taking first place was Venture Video, followed by The Clothing Company and North Country Kids.

Gathering law rejection upsets townships group

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners has voted down a mass gathering ordinance it requested.

The defeat of the ordinance was a blow to members of the Charlevoix County Townships Association who have been pushing for a county gathering ordinance for almost three years.

The need for such an ordinance was originally brought up by Marion Township, where crowds attending concerts at The Castle have posed law enforcement problems the township has not been able to handle on its own.

Another township has been faced with problems arising from stock car races, and still another was almost the sight of an outdoor rock concert which at the last minute did not materialize.

The proposed ordinance was written by county prosecutor Kraag Lieberman at the county board's request.

As presented to the county board, the law was designed to "permit, license, regulate and control, in the interest of public safety, health and welfare, outdoor gatherings of persons in excess of 2,000 in number...."

The ordinance specifically would exempt "an event which is conducted or sponsored by a governmental unit or agency on publicly owned land or property," such as the Venetian Festival, Horton Bay Fourth of July Parade and Boyne Falls Polish Festival.

The resolution offering the ordinance for adoption gave townships the alternative of passing their own gathering ordinance, which would supersede the county law.

The ordinance was rejected 3-2, with Bud Heeres, who represents the City of Charlevoix; Ralph Harmon, who represents several townships in the eastern part of the county; and Tom Breakey, who represents the East Jordan area; voting against it.

"Yes" votes were cast by Oral Sutliff, who represents Boyne City, and Don Smith, who represents the townships surrounding Charlevoix, including Marion Township. Chairman Larry Matthew was not present. He represents the most populous rural area of the six districts – Hayes, Bay, Evangeline and Melrose townships.

Heeres said he did not vote for the ordinance because "I didn't know anything about it."

Harmon said, "The townships are just trying to get the county to do their job." And Breakey said, "I think it can be handled better on the township level."

The townships association is made up of officials of the 15 townships in the county. Harold Pletz, supervisor of South Arm Township, is president of the association.

Pletz told the Courier that the county board's rejection of the gathering ordinance would be brought up at the association's meeting on Monday, Oct. 26, in Boyne City.

"They didn't tell us the ordinance would be brought up at that meeting (on Oct. 14)," Pletz said. Consideration of the ordinance was not on the agenda.

"At almost every meeting we have asked Oral Sutliff how the ordinance was coming along," Pletz said. Sutliff is the county board's liaison to the townships association.

When he learned that Breakey, South Arm Township's representative on the county board, voted against adopting the ordinance, Pletz said, "He never even talked to us (the township) about it. Those commissioners just don't talk to the people they represent."

Children top recipients of agencies' work

by PEG OHLE

Children in Charlevoix and Emmet counties have more human needs that are not being met than do persons in any other age group.

The Human Services Coordinating Body of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties came to this conclusion after holding a conference to assess the human needs of the community and to pinpoint those needs that are not being met.

Approximately 100 representatives from area-wide human services agencies participated in a program designed to coordinate their efforts to better serve those in need.

The result of the conference is a written Community Needs Assessment indicating the areas of need most often mentioned by conference attendees and which the Human Services Coordinating Body has chosen to concentrate on this coming year.

Five specific areas of need are included in the assessment, three of them specifically dealing with children. Each of these areas of need have been assigned to a steering committee with a human services agency responsible for coordinating the steering committee. They are:

–Coordination of prevention and treatment services for school-age children, under the direction of the District Health Department.

–Coordination of parenting education, under the direction of the Cooperative Extension Service.

--Coordination of day care facilities and listing of providers, under the direction of the county Department of Social Services.

–Coordination of all human services (networking and a resources directory), under the direction of the Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency.

–AIDS education (community awareness), under the direction of the District Health Department.

In the first area of need among children, matters to be considered include education of school staffs to handle dysfunctional families, alternative education programs, and services to "vulnerable" children.

Parenting education will include, among other factors, training for parents of handicapped children and parenting skills for mothers and fathers of infants and young children.

In the third category of human needs for children are listed the need for licensed, affordable child care, a day care drop-in center, a day care directory, and education of those taking care of children.

Since there is some overlapping of services provided by the various human services agencies, a networking program and resources directory will be designed to help make all agencies' work more efficient.

The inclusion of AIDS education in the area of human services needs is the result of the overwhelming feeling that the sooner this health problem is brought to general attention, the better the public will be able to cope with it, according to some who attended the conference.

Congressman Bob Davis, who addressed the conference, told his listeners that Congress is sympathetic to the human needs that are concerning caregivers in northwest Michigan and is taking legislative steps to remedy many of the ills.

He especially mentioned the proposed creation of a Young Americans Act to oversee the needs of children, food programs for both children and senior citizens, issues of child and elder abuse, and proposed legislation concerning enforcement of child support orders.

The Human Services Coordinating Body of Charlevoix and Emmet County was formed last April.

Bill Knapp of the Human Services Agency in Petoskey is secretary of the Human Services Coordinating Board and will answer any questions about the Coordinating Board and its work.

Jon Hisey has divided the Edgewater Inn conference center into two rooms -- the Michigan Room and the State Room -- which can be used separately or in combination.

EDGEWATER OWNER: HERE'S COMMUNITY MEETING CENTER

If the community decides it wants a conference center, Jon Hisey knows where it can get one.

Cheap – at least compared to the prices being suggested for putting up a facility from scratch.

Hisey looks at talk of building a community room and conference center as being a little curious. Because he just built a community room and conference center.

But the Edgewater Inn developer agrees a professional study should be done to see if a conference center is a good idea. Because he isn't always so sure.

"We thought there was a need in Charlevoix for a conference room," says Hisey. "But profit-wise, it's a negative."

It's too soon to see if that negative will bring positive results, he says, but the hotel management company is working on it. Groups book months and years in advance, he says, so it will be awhile before interest can be gauged.

"Every week we get a call," he says, "but it's really too soon to say." The center opened Labor Day and has been used for civic functions and wedding receptions.

Dreams of Charlevoix having a conference center have been around for years – the idea being that a conference center can help attract people to town during the off-seasons.

When Joel Altman proposed a hotel complex where Hisey eventually built the Edgewater, he included a stand-alone conference center in his plans. Construction of that facility was predicated by approval of a federal Urban Development Action Grant, which did not materialize.

A recent discussion of conference center feasibility started by Don Berlage

Another Belvedere event possible

One of sport's long streaks is coming to an end – but Carl Schumacher hopes parting is not a bitter sorrow.

Next spring's Michigan Amateur golf tournament will be the last in a string of 26 straight annual events at Belvedere Golf Club.

The Golf Association of Michigan has decided to begin a long-talked-about rotation of the event among interested courses.

"It's a great disappointment," said Belvedere president Schumacher. "But we have been honored for a quarter of a century and things cannot go on forever."

It looked in August as if the Charlevoix course would be the tournament site for at least one more year when the GAM requested use of the club in 1989. A final agreement was not reached, though.

"While (GAM executive director) Jeff Rivard had said he hoped maybe things would work out," Schumacher said, "there was a terrific amount of pressure from GAM directors for a rotation."

Schumacher learned of the move at his St. Louis home when he received a letter from Rivard last week.

"It did not come as a shock," he said.

Moving the tournament was not intended as a slap toward Charlevoix or Belvedere, Rivard and GAM president Vic Cuiss told the Courier. Cuiss is the president of the Country Club of Jackson.

"We just decided that based on the presentation and the meetings we had with Jackson that was the best thing to do with the championship," Rivard said. Jackson has hosted the Amateur five times, including 1954-56.

Returning to Charlevoix as part of the rotation is a very strong possibility, Rivard said. "I don't think there's anybody on our committee that doesn't want to come back," he said.

He said the GAM is attempting to remain flexible in its choice of sites and has not considered what to do in any other year.

There is a possibility the GAM may request the use of the Belvedere course for another of its seven championships, Rivard said, noting that the three-day state Mid-Am is held in the fall.

Schumacher agreed that an event such as that 135-golfer, three-day tournament might be desirable. At that time of year, he said, club members would be off the course. The Amateur is played during Belvedere's prime season.

The Mid-Am event for players 25 years and older includes many golfers who have been coming to Belvedere for years, Rivard said, and who would enjoy returning.

Schumacher praised the efforts of a community group led by former mayor Hal Hill in attempting to improve conditions for the players in the 1988 Amateur.

"I'm sorry it happened when it did," Schumacher said. "I hope that the local group will put on the best possible show for 1988. Then the GAM will leave with a good taste for Charlevoix and come back early in the rotation system."

Cuiss, who has been involved in about 25 Amateurs, said converting to the rotation was not a reflection on how Belvedere handled the tournament in the past.

"There was no refusal by either party," he said, "we just had no negatives with Belvedere.

"We're looking forward to being there next year."

AROUND THE TOWN

No more weeding.... Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has decided not to wait until spring to see if expanding its experimental weed blanket is a smart move.... It has decided it is....

The Operation Petunia people were going to see how well the petroleum-based sheet withstood the winter after doing a fine job in summer.... But, when someone from Elk Rapids came along offering to buy KCB's planting hole puncher, the almost-certain decision became certain....

Even with all its volunteer help, KCB spent more during the summer on paid weed pullers along the five-mile, 50,000-flower petunia bed than the weed blanket will cost.... And the blanket is guaranteed to work for 10 years....

Speaking of petunias, you'll be able to see the Operation Petunia watering truck and the Chamber of Commerce float on TV soon.... Formal approval has been received from the Detroit Thanksgiving Day parade organizers for the entry to participate in the parade....

Since the event is telecast nationally as part of the networks' turkey day activities, it's an opportunity for Charlevoix to receive some broad recognition for its community flower project.... Only sour spot is the parade committee does not let "queen floats" participate, so Venetian Festival queen Wendy Voison and her court will have to ride in something other than traditional royal style.

Remember the guy on the paddleboard who landed on Michigan Beach earlier this summer and announced he was paddling by hand to Washington, D.C.?.... Well, he's made it....

Larry Capune, a former California lifeguard, completed his 164-day, 4,090-mile journey last week.... He said he was paddling to show young people there is a world of alternatives to drugs and all they have to do is put their mind to something they want to accomplish....

Capune's intended short rest stop in Charlevoix became an afternoon and evening sightseeing tour and an overnight stay for the paddler and his brother Marty, who served as advance man from a Volkswagen van.... When Capune isn't paddling – he's done both coasts – he gives motivational speeches.

The good news continues as the Army Corps of Engineers reports the elevation of Lakes Michigan and Charlevoix at the end of September was down 24 inches from a year ago.... And it was down four inches from the August reading....

It is expected that at the end of October the level will be down another four inches, with the seasonal decline continuing into February.... At the end of March, the lakes are expected to be about 19 inches below the level of February 1987....

However, at that time the lake level will still be above the long-term average.

Area landscape architects have volunteered to draw up informal design concepts for the Bridge Park area, which stretches from Burnsides to the bridge. A separate look at possibly turning the old waste treatment plant (behind the Corps of Engineers' boat on left) into a multi-purpose marina office facility is being taken by a consultant engineer.

Makeover suggested for Bridge Park

A full-blown conceptual design may be in Bridge Park's future – or no changes at all.

This wide range of choices grew out of a city council discussion of a proposal to put a plaza-type walkway along the side of the Burnsides building.

Developers Dick Georgi and Arch Wright, as Charlevoix Development Co., envision turning the building into five shops facing the park.

In order to turn the dream into reality, though, they need access from the park. The hillside landscape does not allow entry so their architect has come up with the patio approach.

Central to that plan is the city – through its Downtown Development Authority – paying up to $70,000 for park improvements, primarily the walkway.

If the developers had to pay for the walkway along with the estimated $280,000 building rehabilitation, Wright said, they would not be able to make back their money.

"If we have to spend more money than projected for rehabbing the building, we probably will just leave the building the way it is," Wright said.

The DDA has given its approval to the concept of the plan, but wants control over how much is spent on park changes. Wright has agreed to that.

Much conversation at Monday's council meeting dealt with what should happen to the park – most of it involving future use of the whole park and little concerning leaving the park as is.

Several council members objected at first to the proposal, but later generally agreed with the idea of forming an overall plan for the future of the park.

That idea came from landscape architect Pat Jackson, chairman of the city Shade Tree Commission.

Jackson and John Campbell, another landscape designer, volunteered to draw up informal proposals for the park area – possibly to include the adjacent commercial dock and parking lot areas.

"Look at the total area and blend in this proposal with it," Jackson suggested.

If changing a small part of the park, as Wright and Georgi suggest, leads to larger use of the park, Jackson said, then changing the entire park would lead to even greater use.

Several speakers said the Bridge Park proposal could pay for itself since taxes generated by improvements to the building would go into the DDA fund.

Wright's figures showed about $7,000 a year in new taxes being filtered back to the DDA.

A straw vote of council showed some support for the concept but disapproval of the amount of money involved.

This picture of a building on Lake Charlevoix was taken after it was the Foster Boat Works factory and before it became the Foster Boat Works condominium. Despite the massive renovation, the present building bears a subtle resemblance to its ancestor. (We are running out of pictures for "Charlevoix Yesterday." Please send us any you have that you would like to share. Good care and prompt return are promised.)

Panel studying solid waste tries to reach consensus

by PEG OHLE

When members of the Charlevoix County Solid Waste Committee meet Thursday night, they will discuss answers to a questionnaire they filled out.

The survey was prepared by County Planner Larry Sullivan "in an attempt to establish a concensus as to the thinking of the committee."

The committee, which has been meeting since the first of the year to rewrite the County's Solid Waste Management plan as required by law, has become bogged down.

The survey consists of 10 questions, all of which have to do with the disposal of the county's garbage and trash, most of which is now deposited in a privately owned landfill in Eveline Township.

Because of fears the landfill will fill up before its allotted lifetime, the committee has been wrestling with whether out-of-county haulers should be permitted to use the landfill.

This question, as well as others dealing with supplemental means of disposal, are addressed in the survey.

Committee members were asked to "answer each question without reference to the answers that you have provided to any of the other questions."

Answers to the following questions will be the basis for discussion:

– Should Charlevoix County limit the service area of the existing Type II landfill?

– To what geographic area should the landfill be limited?

– Based upon discussions you have heard at the committee meetings, what is your best estimate as to the life expectancy of the 40-acre site Type II disposal site that is currently licensed and included in the Solid Waste Management plan?

– At that point in time when the 40-acre site reaches capacity, should the site be allowed to expand?

– When the existing landfill is closed, should a new landfill be located in Charlevoix County?

– If a new landfill is needed in Charlevoix County, where in the county should it be located?

– What is your position on the concept of a surcharge on waste that is being disposed of in the county?

– If a surcharge is to be imposed, for what do you believe the resulting funds should be used?

– If a surcharge were to be imposed, what amount do you believe should be charged per cubic yard of waste?

– In detail, provide what you believe to be the best possible set of conditions that could exist or actions that could be taken to solve the solid waste problems in Charlevoix County, based upon what you know today?

The committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the commissioners room of the county building annex. The public is invited.

German student fits in in Charlevoix

2 years in service await his return

by PEG OHLE

He's a typical 16-year-old high school student – tall, lanky, seemingly all arms and legs, with a shock of blondish hair; wearing light rimmed glasses, a Central Michigan T-shirt under a rumpled jacket; and ready with a fast quip.

He speaks good English but with a German accent, as if he were brought up in a German-speaking home.

Mark Dietrich was brought up in a German-speaking home -- in Pulheim, in the western part of West Germany, only 15 minutes from the cathedral city of Cologne, on the Rhine River.

Mark is an exchange student at Charlevoix High School this year, making good use of the English language which he studied in school for six years.

Mark arrived here in early August to spend the year at the home of Lloyd and Phyllis Burgener and their daughter, Lea-Anne Geer, near Atwood.

"It was kind of boring the first week or so," Mark admits, "but then we started football practice and I met a lot of the guys."

He is playing left end on the football team, a position for which his height of six feet four inches equips him well.

This is his first experience in playing football, which in Germany is superseded by soccer.

"I don't play much," Mark explained, "but I like it."

Unlike a lot of Americans, however, he does not much care for television football. "I think it's kind of boring and it lasts too long," he says.

On the other hand, Mark agrees with a lot of Americans who think "Magnum" is the best television show on the air. "It's my favorite," he says.

Mark Dietrich

Mark attended school for 10 years in Germany and will have two more years to go after finishing his year at Charlevoix High.

His school of 1,300 students in Pulheim encompasses grades five through 13, with the upper grades offering such subjects as English, French (Mark also studied French for four years), various levels and types of math, chemistry, German, comparative religions, politics, history, art and music.

At Charlevoix High School, Mark is studying English, history, civics, calculus and computers. He is also working on the school newspaper. The computer course is his favorite, he says.

After he completes his high school level education, Mark will be required either to join the army for two years or to engage in some kind of volunteer work for two years.

The latter could be in a hospital, old peoples home, youth hostel or similar human services field.

At this time, Mark thinks he will probably choose the volunteer work. If he does, he will receive a small maintenance salary, and, depending upon where he works, he could live on the grounds.

At the end of his military or volunteer service (he will be 20 years old by then), Mark will enter a university to study computer science or some type of engineering.

The study of engineering would come naturally to Mark because his father is an engineer employed by a branch of Exxon Chemical Co.

Both his parents have visited the United States for business and pleasure. An older brother was an exchange student in North Carolina and is now training for work in the insurance business.

Mark hopes his parents will visit him in Charlevoix some time next spring.

It's kind of a two-way proposition with Mark and the Burgener family. Mrs. Burgener and Lea-Anne recently visited Lea-Anne's brother John in Germany, where he is stationed with the Army.

While there, they went to Pulheim to visit Mark's family.

Mark doesn't know what he will do during the Christmas holidays. He has thought about Christmas shopping, though, and thinks he will send his family Charlevoix sweatshirts as gifts.

Site plan process begins after hotel use OK'd on Park

The site plan approval process for a hotel on Park Avenue has been reactivated following determination such a use is allowed.

Application for a 21-unit hotel-motel at 105-107 Park has been on hold all summer as debate continued over whether the city zoning ordinance allows overnight lodging in commercial-scenic zones.

Lawyer Don Berlage of Northern Michigan Realty Services Inc. asked for a ruling on whether hotels were a similar use to others allowed in the zone.

The planning commission twice had tie votes on the request, so Berlage appealed to the zoning board for an interpretation.

The zoning board of appeals twice voted to allow the use. The first zoning board vote was declared void by the city attorney because notification procedures were not properly followed.

Now the site plan approval process can proceed. The plan is expected to be on a planning commission agenda in November.

Berlage is proposing 21 units on three levels overlooking the Pine River Channel. The hotel proposal is one of four he has submitted for the site.

Berlage has said he has taken the unusual approach because of citizen efforts to halt multiple-unit dwellings near waterfronts.

A committee formed by city planner Gerry Harsch was scheduled to present its recommendations on lakefront zoning limitations Monday, but did not. Harsch was not able to attend the meeting, Mayor Ralph McRae said.

Berlage has already obtained site plan approval for an 11-unit residential condominium originally contained in about the same exterior shell as the proposed hotel.

That plan was altered by planning commission, zoning board and city council demands that the building be jogged to preserve site lines from Hoffmann Park.

Variance and site approvals granted for the 11-unit building have no bearing on the hotel plan, however, as that proposal will be considered separately.

The other two plans for the site have been put on hold by Berlage.

He withdrew a request for a nine-unit residential condo when the 11-unit building was OK'd. And continuing discussion of a residential club concept has been tabled at his request.

Discussions have taken place outside city hall on the idea of placing a conference center on the lower level of the building, but none of the plans submitted to the city have contained such a facility.

Four nominated for chamber board

Four Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce members have been nominated for election to the board of directors.

Selected were attorney Dan Barron; certified public accountant Hugh Mason; Dennis Wojan, president of Wojan Aluminum Products; and Terry Left, owner of Great Lakes Fish and Chips, The Villager Pub and Terry's Place.

The four were selected by a nominating committee, but others who wish to run may also have their names included on the ballot.

Others wishing to be placed on the ballot must be nominated by two other chamber members. Nominations must be at the chamber office by Nov. 10.

The election will be held before the end of the year.

High school in new career choice project

Charlevoix High School has signed up as a charter participant in the American College Testing Program's (ACT) new P-ACT+ a comprehensive guidance and information program for high school sophomores.

P-ACT+ will be administered for the first time in October at 3,500 schools around the nation.

The program was developed to help students make post-secondary plans and preparation early in high school years, while they still have time to explore career options and develop skills to make the transition to college or work.

The program consists of academic tests in writing skills, mathematics, reading and science reasoning; an interest inventory; a study skills assessment; and a student information section.

American College Testing Program is an independent non-profit organization that provides measurement and research services.

More information about P-ACT+ is available from the student services office at Charlevoix High.

Re-elect Robert Timms, Sr.
Second Ward Councilman
Common sense voting for the residents of the second ward have given us:
- the new Erber parking lot.
- newly repaved streets.
- State Street storm sewer.
- new street lighting.
- the new water treatment plant.
Because of my concern for senior citizens, I worked to get Pine River Place.
Re-elect Robert Timms, Sr. and we will work together for more progress in the future for all of Charlevoix.

Cheerleaders' acts of kindness missed

Editor,

We would like to respond to the letter written by Katie Wade regarding the Charlevoix vs. Boyne City football game.

We are sorry if people feel ashamed to be from Charlevoix. We agree, it should not be that way, but why does it seem that most of the blame was put on the Cheerleaders?

First of all, the platform we cheer on is not there because we feel we will be "outshined" by another school. It is there so that we can try to get the crowd more involved at their same level, and so we can see over the top of the football players. Is that our fault?

The Charlevoix cheerleaders did not have a place to sit during halftime. We were sitting on a bench put there for the football teams, not for us. The Cheerleaders from Boyne City were more than welcome to sit with us if they wanted.

If you did not see us trying to be good hostesses maybe it was because you weren't there at the right time. We did exchange greetings, talked to the Boyne City girls, and brought them in the school with us where it was warmer and they could practice or use the restrooms. We're sorry you feel that that was showing poor sportsmanship.

Although seating for Boyne City fans was not available at the time, that is no one's fault. Before the game started, the visitors were told that they were welcome to sit in the bleachers with the Charlevoix fans. The announcer also expressed apology for the inconvenience. Is that really "rude"?

We are truly sorry if you feel that Charlevoix Cheerleaders and students are terribly unkind.

How about big headquarters building in downtown park?

Dear council members:

The much discussed project on the north side of Burnsides seems to justify the loss of city park land on the basis of increased tax base and or employment.

If the city is serious about such a program, I, and possibly LexaLite, have an interest in presenting proposals that would yield for higher increases in both tax base and year-round employment than would be realized from seasonal retail stores.

As an example, picture an engineering center or perhaps LexaLite World Headquarters on that site, or even in East Park. The cost of mowing grass would be eliminated, no more crumbling bandshell, etc. Of course, the public use would also be gone; but then, that's also true of the present proposal!

Thanks to loving community

Editor,

We would like to thank the people of Charlevoix and surrounding communities for their many acts of kindness at the time of the death of our much loved brother-in-law, Tom Arnold. Thank you to all the friends, neighbors and to all the people we don't personally know, who gave of their prayers, food and time.

In our sorrow, we are comforted knowing that our sister and her family are part of such a loving community. We will keep all of you in our prayers and are forever grateful to you.

Trash spoils natural beauty

Editor,

God gave us the beauty of this land. Charlevoix is called the beautiful. What about the country? The gorgeous rolling hills filled with colors that would catch anyone's eye. Right? Wrong.

Now this area has become Charlevoix's new dump site filled with Burger King bags, McDonald's, Slurples and garbage bags filled with trash.

Just plain downright unscrupulous, unconsidering people who destroy this by littering. I enjoy walking and the view but when I see this disasterous mess I become outraged.

A person who cares about our country living....

Catherine J. Novotny

Beacons of Blessing

by Rev. David Yingling
United Methodist Church

1st Corinthians 12:25-26: "care for one another; if one suffers, all suffer together."

Nov. 1 is, for many churches, All Saints Sunday. This is a day in which we affirm the "saints" of our faith, past and present. Who or what is a saint? For me, a saint is a person who is a "care-giver." Someone who has been (or is) in a caring relationship with others.

I am sure many people come to our minds as we reflect on the "care-givers," the saints of our church; or even, the people who have been with us on our journey of faith, who have cared for us.

Stop reading this now and do these acts of thanks:

1. Pray about that person (or people). Thank God for their ministry.
2. If possible, affirm them (i.e. a card, a call a handshake).
3. Become a "saint," a "care-giver."

Who me? Become a saint, care-giver? Yes, You! But how?

1. Be actively involved in your church as a worshipper and a receiver of the faith (i.e. worship and Sunday school).
2. Daily pray for God's strength and healing in your life, so you can discern what it is that God wants you to do in the life of your church.
3. Daily read scripture. Begin with a gospel, add the Psalm or one of Paul's letters. Look for links to your life today.
4. Weekly pray for the leaders of your church, lay and clergy, that they may be filled with God's love in order to lead the church.
5. Weekly find a job in your church that God wants you to do and "do it."

Sounds like a lot of work? You're right it is! Day after day you are building the foundation of your faith. Soon people will seek you out, because they need the foundation that you are witnessing to. And then one day the Lord will graciously call you, "Saint —!, Well done, good and faithful servant!"

Through the love of Christ we have this important ministry, to be "care-giving" to one another. Through our Lord and Savior, we are the saints of the church. We are the hope of the world; our world, indeed is in our hands.

So be it! Amen.

Playing 'possum

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

Is it true what they say about Dixie?
Does the sun really shine all the time?
Do the sweet magnolias blossom,
'Round everybody's door,
Do the folks keep eatin' 'possum,
'Til they can't eat no more?

Ugh!

Isn't that a revolting thought, eating 'possum?

But the songsmiths of yesteryear made it sound almost palatable.

Being a Yankee born and bred, I had never clamped eyes on a live opossum until one night last week when I was strolling down Bridge Street after the stores had closed.

Suddenly, at the corner of Mason Street, a small animal darted across the street, hopped up the curb and proceeded north along the sidewalk, making small excursions into each doorway until it reached the alley. Then it proceeded west toward the parking lot and disappeared.

At first I wasn't sure what the critter was. It looked something like a large rat. But it walked well off the ground and didn't scurry like a rat. Furthermore, it had a white triangular face, with bright little eyes. The tail was long and straight, much larger in circumference than a rat's tail.

For most of my lifetime, opossums were considered creatures of the Deep South. But naturalists have noticed that they gradually are working their way north and apparently have no trouble surviving a northern winter.

The opossum is unique among American mammals, eighty species of which are found in the Western Hemisphere. Its uniqueness stems from the fact it is a marsupial — like Australia's kangaroo. Unlike other mammals, female marsupials have a pouch in which to carry and suckle their young until they are old enough to venture forth on their own.

However in some species the pouch is either rudimentary or absent.

The opossum's diet varies by species. Probably much of the disgust associated with the opossum has to do with the fact the omnivorous species eat carrion of every description. But don't stop reading: other species are completely insectivorous and still others eat only aquatic animals.

According to my encyclopedia, the largest opossum is the common American species, Didelphis virginiana, found throughout eastern United States. It has a 20-inch body and a 10-inch tail.

I suppose the reason we see so few opossums is that they are both aboreal and nocturnal. This means they sleep in trees during the day and prowl for food at night.

My encyclopedia also tells me that the opossum is a culinary delicacy in the South, often baked with sweet potatoes.

Thanks, but no thanks.

Pass the barbecued ribs.

THE FOOD PANTRY at the First Congregational Church, which is supported by all the churches in Charlevoix, needs donations.

Marian Kohn says the pantry has used up its Department of Social Services funds and no more money will be forthcoming until the first of the year.

On the shopping list are peanut butter, evaporated milk, canned tomatoes, apple juice, canned peaches, fruit gelatin, tuna fish, dry cereal, canned stew (or any other meat-in-a-can foods), graham crackers and small jars of salad dressing.

Non-food items needed include shampoo, bar soap, laundry soap, dishwashing soap and toilet tissue.

So the next time you shop, remember those on tight budgets and pick up a few items for the pantry.

I know it's a mite early for Thanksgiving and Christmas giving — but who cares?

I hope you do.

North Point purchase attempt praised

Preserving natural beauty vital for area

Editor,

The Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau would like to take this opportunity to support Little Traverse Conservancy in their efforts to preserve North Point.

It is vital to Charlevoix's beautiful appeal to our visitors to preserve our natural beauty. Often we are asked by visitors where they can simply walk on the beach and gather Petoskey stones. We refer them to Mount McSauba Recreation Area, but once North Point becomes public property they may wander in both directions to enjoy the beauty of the Lake Michigan shoreline.

Harold J. Krutsch, President
Charlevoix Convention & Visitors Bureau

Letters to the editor:

Purchase most equitable method of ensuring preservation of dunes

Editor,

As president of the Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors, I thought it was appropriate for our organization to comment on local efforts to acquire the dunes property at North Point in Charlevoix. I also hope the public will more fully understand our role in land use issues as a result of this letter.

We, as Realtors, have taken positions in the past regarding land use as this is our realm of expertise. It is also our obligation through oath and pledge to our organization to "uphold the right of private property ownership and to oppose legislation harmful thereto." Private property ownership is a basic right as Americans and we will always fight to preserve this inherent right.

We have continually said that the surest and most equitable way to control the future use of a parcel of land is to buy it. Consequently, we applaud the efforts of the Little Traverse Conservancy and local citizens to acquire this parcel that will be enjoyed by future generations.

Negative attitude not needed

Editor,

In reference to your latest editorial on the North Point project, I would like to say one thing - wake up! I'd like to ask the question, "Where do you think the idea came from for "saving North Point?"

DUNE (Defenders for North Point Ecology) was not formed to discuss sandpipers. This group, along with WATCH (Water and Air Team for Charlevoix), and KCB (Keep Charlevoix Beautiful), organized efforts to help initiate the action for acquisition. Extensive time and effort was, and still is, being put forth to see this important resource saved.

WATCH showed support for this project and felt it worthwhile for the community when it was first presented a few years back, by DUNE's president, Tom Ramsey. We are all continuing to support and work together.

We, the people who form these groups, do not appreciate the negative intonation expressed in your article. We, the pro environment groups together with they, the pro development groups could all benefit from this project and positive support from your publication. Only by saving some of its scenic beauty will Charlevoix continue to attract visitors and future residents. We do not need crepe hangers.

We are confident that the area's visitors and residents want and will support the North Point project. We encourage you and all interested parties to join the leaders. We will be asking you to put your checkbook where your pen is.

If et first.... Michigan Bell hes hed some troubles trying to put seven electrical conduits under the Pine River Channel. The utility is using a new-technology oil well drilling technique, but has encountared some problems, apparently beceuse of fina send under the channel. A drill head with a speciel monitoring device was drilled under the channel from Hoffmenn Park but it ceme up on Pine River Lena a little off its mark. Mud pushed through the pipe to see where the bit came up oozed through the rock well in front of the Weathervane Terrace (above). So the bit was pulled back and repositioned. Then, the crew lost two cables under the channal when the sand wore away the grip a device hed on them es it pulled them through. Digging and removel of some trees in Hoffmann Park followed es ettempts were made to retrieva the cebles. Bell's egreement with the city cells for the park, Park Avenue and Pine River Lene to be restored when the work is done.

Lone election race in 2nd Ward

There is one contest in next Tuesday's city election – a two-man race for a Second Ward council seat.

Incumbent Bob Timms is being challenged by Alvin "Butch" Russell for a two-year west side council post.

Also on the ballot, but unopposed, are clerk Arlene Staley, First Ward councilman Norm Probert and Third Ward councilman Earl Muma.

Timms, 53, has been on council for about 12 years with a short gap in the middle – being appointed, then elected, appointed again and elected again.

The self-employed TV and appliance serviceman lives at 603 Norwood Road. He is married and has three children.

He is an Army veteran and studied electronics at Western Michigan College.

Timms says he is running for office again because he enjoys making decisions for the good of the entire city.

"It's a challenge because there are so many issues that come up before the council," he said.

He sees the infrastructure improvement program now underway as the city's biggest challenge. A four-mill tax increase is financing the repairs to streets, sidewalks and sewers.

Timms also noted that the city is upgrading its electrical system and adding to its parking facilities.

Though he doesn't always agree with the direction the Downtown Development Authority takes, he thinks the group has a good purpose and is making the business district a better place.

The councilman says recommendations from a committee on multiple-unit dwellings "will hopefully control lakefront development to some extent."

He says controlled growth is desirable. "People hate to see change, but it's inevitable," Timms said.

Timms said the construction of Pine River Place was a big accomplishment for the city and helped many senior citizens have a good place to live.

And he looks to development of the industrial park as a key to providing future employment opportunities for area residents.

Russell, 43, is owner of Butch Russell's Auto Reconditioning. He lives at 407 West Hurlbut, is married and has two children.

He is running for council because "I feel it is time for a change in Charlevoix."

While he says the present council is doing a good job, he disagrees with some of the ways council is operating.

Russell disagrees in particular with the four-mill tax being levied for street and sidewalk work. He would prefer a program with a smaller number of projects being tackled each year.

He also does not think the city should consider going into the cable television business in competition with private companies.

He said he did not think the city could justify a $1 million start-up expenditure. It would be better to try to convince another business to provide the competition, he said, noting that one firm had approached the city, then pulled back.

Saying the lakefront condo issue is the most important in the city, Russell said he is not against multiple-unit dwellings but opposes putting any more near Round Lake or the Pine River Channel.

"I think the rezoning that they're talking about is great," he said of proposed limits on lakefront construction. "Most people I talk to feel there's enough in that area and I'd just as soon not see any more there."

He is not against growth, Russell said, but opposes it in waterfront areas.

He said the Downtown Development Authority is doing a good job in developing parking areas but he does not agree with a proposal to build a walkway along the side of the Burnside building.

Putting the plaza-like sidewalk in Bridge Park "is going to improve that area but I don't know if I'm willing to give up city park to improve the area."

Russell said the city should support efforts to aid senior citizens more than it does.

"That's one issue Mr. Timms has talked against," Russell said, saying that the incumbent then voted for a $1,000 contribution to seniors' programs.

"They've been in town and paid taxes all their life and deserve city support," Russell said.

The polls in city hall will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Lake authority scope changed to advisory

by PEG OHLE

The Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee has finalized its report and, as promised, took heed of the public's input into its Lake Managment Plan.

The most criticized recommendation in the plan, a "Lake Charlevoix Authority," was changed in name and purpose. Now called the "Lake Charlevoix Watershed Commission," it would be only an advisory body, with the duty of making recommendations to governmental units on projects on and near Lake Charlevoix.

As the original Lake Charlevoix Authority, the body would have had enforcement powers on watercraft regulations, responsibility for monitoring land use and reporting violations, monitoring water quality, setting safety stands for docks and moorings and approving all new marinas, public access sites, expansions and mooring fields.

Objections to the proposed Lake Charlevoix Authority came from units of government, which feared they would have to give up some of their rights, and from the general public, which saw the authority as another layer of government.

One of the highly criticized recommendations in the plan – that of limiting the number of boats on the lake through a process of restricting the number of boat docks, marina spaces, and sites – was kept, with provisions for changes.

Recommendations in the original plan for land use standards were never seriously questioned. They were kept, including suggested horizontal and vertical setbacks for construction on the lakeshore, greenbelts, and acreage and frontage requirements for developments of varying sizes. An added recommendation calls for encouraging cluster development, which would provide more open space.

Recognizing that conditions along the shores of Charlevoix county's three cities differ from those in rural areas, the committee suggested different standards for each.

The Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee was appointed by the county board of commissioners almost three years ago to study problems and submit recommendations for a Lake Management Plan. Its work was funded by WATCH, the local environmental group; the Coastal Management Program of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources; and the county, with committee members working without remuneration.

The call for some kind of a lake management plan grew out of construction of large developments on the shores of Lake Charlevoix, and plans for more, which could affect the lake's water quality as well as the quality of the land surrounding the lake.

ELECT
ALVIN "BUTCH" RUSSELL
FOR CITY COUNCIL

Dear Second Ward Resident:

I would like to take this opportunity to introduce myself as a candidate for Second Ward Councilman.

I believe that it is time to keep finances on par and to keep Charlevoix, the town where many of us were born, a nice place to live so that our grandchildren and generations to come can enjoy it as we have. We need responsible leadership in our city government that will look after the interest of our residents and the good of our community.

I would like to take this opportunity to tell you a little about myself.:
- I am 43 years old and I live at 407 W. Hurlbut
- I am married and the father of two children who reside in Charlevoix

My work experiences include:
- Manager of Russell Gulf for ten years
- Owner of Butch Russell's Shell for three years
- Manager of Budget Rent a Car in Petoskey for five years
- Present owner of Butch Russell's Auto Reconditioning

Community involvement includes:
- I have donated time and paint for the Petunia Truck
- A donation of a VCR to the Bergmann Center
- Time and material donated to the playground at the city ball park

Goals and Commitments
- Will be a voice for the people of the Second Ward in Charlevoix
- Will strive to establish a communication network throughout the Second Ward
- Will strive to keep city finances on par as a homeowner and a tax payer
- Will work for maintaining and future improvements in all areas of the city
- Will work for young people, senior citizens as well as those in between
- Will support the development and proper use of our resources to continue the atmosphere of Charlevoix The Beautiful
- Will strive to maintain contact between the city of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Township and surrounding townships
- Will strive to improve Charlevoix with a close watch on toxic, environmental and solid waste pollution

Sincerely,
Alvin "Butch" Russell

Obituaries

Dr. Howard O. Messmore

Dr. Howard O. Messmore, 80, of Charlevoix and Naples, Fla., died Monday, Oct. 19, at Mount Clemens General Hospital.

A memorial service was held Thursday, Oct. 22 at William Sullivan & Son Funeral Home in Utica. The body was cremated.

Dr. Messmore was born Jan. 2, 1907, in Utica to Howard and Julia S. Messmore. Dr. Messmore graduated in 1927 from the College of Osteopathy in Kirksville, Mo., and went into practice the same year at Ada, a suburb of Grand Rapids.

He retired in 1962 and moved to Charlevoix where he joined the staff of Charlevoix Area Hospital and conducted a small private practice for several years.

He married Alice D. Broadbent in 1933. In more recent years, they spent the summer at their cottage on Lake Charlevoix and the winter in Naples, Fla.

He was a member of the Michigan Osteopathic Association and the Kiwanis Club.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, Lawrence of Naples, Fla; two daughters, Marjorie Buckley of Philadelphia and Barbara J. of San Francisco; four grandchildren; one great-grandchild, and a sister, Lucille Sieman of Utica.

The family suggests memorials to the American Heart or American Cancer Societies.

James Knight Duke

James Knight Duke, 23, died Wednesday, Oct. 21, in Ann Arbor. Funeral services were held Monday, Oct. 26, at Thayer-Rock Funeral Home in Farmington. Interment was in Oakwood Cemetery in Farmington.

Born in Detroit on April 20, 1964, the son of George and Joyce Duke came to Charlevoix with his family in 1972. He was active in Scouts, was a member of the cross country team for three years, was an honor student and member of the National Honor Society and, as a senior, was enrolled in North Central Michigan College.

An avid sailor in his teens, his boat Halycon took first place trophies at the Charlevoix Yacht Club. He also took first place in offshore racing in Florida.

He attended the University of Michigan, where he was an honor student. As a senior, he was forced to leave school because of illness.

Surviving are his parents, George and Joyce Duke of Charlevoix and Florida; three brothers, George Duke II of Milford, Dean Duke of Farmington and Kevin Duke of Ann Arbor; a sister, Linda Tache of Charlevoix; grandfather Gordon Elliott; uncles and aunts Tom and Gail Duke of Charlevoix and Bruce and Peg Duke of Farmington; and several nieces and nephews.

The family suggests memorials to Charlevoix Area Hospital.

William J. Burns

William J. Burns, 67, of St. James, Beaver Island, died Friday, Oct. 23, at Charlevoix Area Hospital. A funeral mass was held at Holy Cross Church in St. James Tuesday, Oct. 27. The Rev. Hugolinus Kiener, O.F.M., of St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey was the celebrant.

Interment was in Holy Cross Cemetery. The rosary was recited at Holy Cross Monday evening.

Born in Ecorse on June 16, 1920, Mr. Burns grew up in Ecorse and graduated from Ecorse High School in 1939. On Oct. 10, 1942, he married Marion Gregoire in River Rouge.

He was a veteran of World War II, serving as a supply sergeant with the Army-Air Force in the Philippines and Japan 1942-46.

He and his wife lived in River Rouge, Lincoln Park and Trenton before moving to Beaver Island in 1978. He was employed by Great Lakes Steel Co. as a supervisor in the supply department for 38½ years, retiring in 1978.

Mr. Burns was a member of Holy Cross Church in St. James; Salliotte-Reeve Post No. 310, American Legion for 25 years in Ecorse; VFW; Knights of Columbus; Great Lakes Steel Management Club; and the Wildlife Division of Great Lakes Steel.

Surviving are his wife, Marion, of St. James; a son, Thomas W. of Whitmore Lake; two daughters, Janet Ueoka of Kahului, Hawaii, and Marilou Spears of Harold, Ky; six grandchildren; and two sisters Katherine Casebolt of Wyandotte and Rita Ford of Lincoln Park.

The family suggests memorials to Holy Cross Church or the Beaver Island Medical Center Ambulance Garage Fund. Winchester Funeral Home handled arrangements.

Mayor Ralph McRae (right) turns a shovelful of dirt around one of 65 shade trees planted along Charlevoix streets. Looking on are City Manager Michael Wiesner (left), John Gaskin of the Shade Tree Commission, electrical superintendent Ed Whitley and street superintendent Leonard Dubey.

City plants 65 trees in beautification project

The first snow of the season did not deter the planting of trees in Charlevoix.

As part of the city's long-term tree planting project, employees planted 65 trees of seven varieties along city streets.

Included were Marshall seedless maples, superform maples, emerald queen maples, skyline honey locusts, red sunset maples, Schedler maples and crimson king maples.

The varieties were selected by members of the Shade Tree Commission with the help of Dr. James Kielbasco of the Michigan State University Urban Forestry Department and graduate student Ken Larison, who spent the summer working in Charlevoix on the city's planting and pruning projects.

William (Pat) Jackson is chairman of the Shade Tree Commission, which also includes Barbara MacArthur and John Gaskin.

The commission has the responsibility of implementing a landscape plan to beautify entrances to the city with additional tree plantings over a period of years.

Sign-up deadline for high school conferences is near

Parents of students at Charlevoix High School have until Nov. 4 to schedule conferences with teachers on Monday, Nov. 9.

Conferences may be scheduled by calling 547-3222 between 7:15 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. Conferences of 20 minutes each will be held 6:30-8:30 p.m. on Nov. 9.

Congressman's aide set to visit city

Cong. Robert Davis' district representative, Betty Mankowski, will be in Charlevoix Tuesday, Nov. 3. Anyone wishing to meet with Mankowski may do so without an appointment.

She will be available to discuss problems with federal or state government. She will be at the county building from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m.

Panel discussion scheduled on education finances

A financial planning seminar will be held at Charlevoix Elementary School at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 3.

The seminar aims to assist parents who want to plan a sound financial program for their child's educational future, says elementary school counselor Gayle Gennett, who is planning the seminar.

Participating in the panel discussion will be Ronald Agnello, Thomas Bickersteth and Phil Kluzynski.

Rayders win 8th straight cross country league crown

Charlevoix's boys cross country team has won its eighth consecutive Michigan-Huron Shores Conference title.

The No. 1 state-ranked Rayders took the crown with 23 points followed by Gaylord with 59, Petoskey with 69 and Rogers City with 104 points. Boyne City did not field a full team.

The girls team finished third with 64 points. Charlevoix's Julie Bush set the pace at 21:30, a half-second ahead of Petoskey's Heidi Johnecheck.

Petoskey won the meet with 36 points, Gaylord had 46 and Rogers City 79. Boyne City does not have a girls' team.

The JV race was an open event for boys and girls. The Rayders' Dylan Stewart set the pace.

"The boys ran a super race. They have cut the time between our first and fifth runners to 41 seconds. I hope we can continue at that pace," coach Pete Spieles said. Spieles noted that Paul Wakulat in 10th place, finished only eight seconds behind the fifth place runner.

Pat Rajewski, second overall, finished in 17:13, Scott Miller was third in 17:14, Tom Merta was fourth in 17:48 and Gehry Wiesner sixth in 17:54.

Paul Wakulat finished in 10th in 18:03 and Hal Chase 17th in 18:48.

Medals were awarded to the top 10 runners with Charlevoix runners claiming six of them.

The winning time of 16:44 was run by Eric Dickinson of Gaylord. The race was run at Ye Nyne Olde Holles Golf Club for the first time so there are no records for the 3.1 mile course.

Spieles said the girls ran a good race and said Dora Skuladottir made a super effort.

Julie Bush, a freshman, ran a smart race in finishing first he said. Betsy Haggard was 10th in 22:43, Skuladottir 13th in 22:19, Heidi Olinger 15th in 23:31.32 and Shelly Ferguson 25th in 25:01. Kendra Olinger finished 26th in 25:07 and Barb Haggard 27th in 25:16.

Stewart placed first in the JV event in 18:46, Bill Crook was third in 19:17, Tim Henne 6th in 19:56, Jon Terry seventh in 20:13 and Mike Stargardt 10th in 20:37.

Matt Schnackenberg placed 11th in 21:03, Matt Stargardt 12th in 21:32 and Jerry Thayer 19th in 23:05. Jennie Greene, one of three girls running was clocked in 29:58.

Football victory sets up showdown for 1st place in tier

Although they are out of the running for the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference championship, Charlevoix's Rayders can still walk away with a title.

They are tied at 4-0 with St. Ignace in the six-team Class C tier of the league standings with each team having one game left – against each other. The Rayders are 5-3 in all games.

Cheboygan leads the four-team Class B tier at 2-0 and the entire league at 5-0. The Chiefs are 7-0 in all games.

Charlevoix set up the Class C title shot by clipping Grayling 32-24 in a touchdown-for-touchdown shootout. Meanwhile, St. Ignace lost to Petoskey.

After Grayling opened the scoring in the first period, the Rayders came back in the second stanza on a 35-yard interception by David Miller. Shawn Putman kicked the extra point.

Grayling again moved ahead on a 34-yard pass before Charlevoix again took a one-point lead. This time Dan Drury threw a 47-yard touchdown pass to Scott DeYoung. The extra point attempt failed.

The pattern remained in the third period as Grayling scored first, this time on a two-yard run, and Charlevoix followed with a 35-yard TD pass from Drury to Chad Thorpe.

Again, in the fourth period, Grayling went ahead with a two-yard run. And again, Charlevoix came back. Mark LaBlance scored on a 43-yard run.

Finally the Rayders were able to break the pattern as LaBlance ran in from the 14 with the game's final touchdown. Putman added the conversion.

Leading the Rayder ground game were Miller with 98 yards in 10 carries and LaBlance with 85 yards in eight tries.

Drury completed four of nine passes for 88 yards as the Rayders compiled a total of 325 yards on offense to Grayling's 277.

DeYoung was the leading pass-catcher with two receptions for 56 yards.

On defense Miller added a fumble recovery to his interception. Thorpe also recovered a fumble.

Cited by coach Roger Gowell for their defensive efforts were Mike Smith, Scott Denny, Jamie Montieth, Steve Hopkins, Thrope, Putman, Jim Tilton and Jason Whitley.

Unbeaten Giants capture flag

The Giants wrapped up the flag football league title with a 36-20 victory over the Wildcats.

The Panthers defeated the Dolphins 42-20 to earn the No. 2 spot in the final standings.

Four of the six Giants' scoring plays came on aerials. Luke LaBlance passed five yards to Dan Boss and 20 yards to Brian Coolman, Coolman threw nine yards to Ben Whitley and Travis Blissett 20 yards to Coolman for six-pointers. Coolman scored twice more on runs, a 40-yard kick return and a two-yard plunge.

The Wildcats' Chris McCallum scored on a 13-yard run and a two-yard run. He also passed 24 yards to Buzzy Miller for a score and ran the conversion.

The Panthers Joe Ferroli scored on passes of 21 and one yard from Dave Hunter and on a run of 27 yards. Don Jess scored on a one-yard run and Hunter on runs of 19 and 14 yards. Hunter and Jess scored conversions and Shawn Young a safety.

Dan Avery accounted for all of the Dolphin points on runs of 12 and 11 yards and on a 45-yard kick-off return. He also scored a conversion.

The final standings show the Giants at 6-0, Panthers 4-2, Dolphins 2-4 and Wildcats 0-6.

Middle school teams triumph

Charlevoix Middle School girls' basketball teams posted victories over Petoskey with the seventh grade team winning 22-14 and the eighth grade 12-10.

The seventh graders took a 4-2 first period lead, increased it to 12-10 at halftime and 16-12 going into the final period.

Charlevoix had 11 field goals and missed all five free throw attempts. Petoskey made no free throw tries.

Sheila Siegwart, Jody Allison and Eliana Gebott had four points each for Charlevoix.

In posting their second win of the season, the eighth graders led 2-0, 6-4 and 12-6 by quarters. Charlevoix had six field goals to Petoskey's five. Neither team scored a charity shot.

Gena Webster and Dorothy Perrault had four points each for Charlevoix.

Soccer games low-scoring

Low-scoring games dominated Charlevoix soccer action, as the Wildcats hold first place.

The Wildcats beat the Rowdies 1-0 in fourth-sixth grade action as Travis Wood scored the lone goal.

The Wildcats also won on a forfeit, when the Cosmos could not field a full team in a makeup game. A scrimmage was held, instead.

Amanda Eaton scored the only goal in the Tornadoes' 1-0 victory over the Turbos in kindergarten-third grade play.

Island holds tourney

The fourth annual invitational soccer tournament, hosted by Beaver Island Community School, was won by Harbor Springs.

Beaver Island placed second and Washington Island (Wis.) third. Goalie Christopher Petrak was named Beaver Island's most valuable player.

Stacy Gebott finds out how tight Petoskey plays defense during the Rayders' close loss to the Northmen. She puts up a shot over Kerri Rosevear (above) and finds her vision impaired on another shot.

Rayders lose 2 close games in basketball

Playing improved ball, the Rayder girls basketball team held Suttons Bay to a 38-33 win and Petoskey to a 35-23 victory.

"We lost the game at Suttons Bay on the free throw line after leading all the way," said coach Stan Martin. "However, we played better ball in both games last week and have become a little more competitive.

Against Suttons Bay, the Rayders were ahead by five points with three minutes remaining but turnovers and fouls were their downfall.

Charlevoix trailed 9-8 at the quarter before going ahead 18-17 at the half and 24-22 going into the final period.

Charlevoix outscored Suttons Bay 15-14 from the floor but scored on only three of 10 free throw attempts while Suttons Bay hit nine of 15 attempts.

Melissa Boss set the pace for the Rayders with 10 points.

Suttons Bay won the JV game 28-25 after leading 12-9 at halftime. Melissa Ritt had 10 points for Charlevoix.

In the game with Petoskey, the teams played to an 8-8 first quarter tie before Petoskey moved ahead 16-10 at the half and 25-16 after three quarters.

Petoskey made 17 field goals and one of 11 free throws. Charlevoix had 10 buckets and made three of six free throws.

Ellen Pearl scored six points for the Rayders.

Petoskey took the JV game 37-27 after leading 19-10 at halftime.

Cynthia Boydston had 15 points for Charlevoix.

JV's win 7th in row

The Charlevoix JV football team made it seven in a row with a 42-14 win over Grayling.

The Rayders roared to a 36-14 halftime lead and scored only once more as coach Brian Certa emptied the bench.

Grayling scored on its first possession, marching the length of the field before going in from the three-yard line. The Vikings passed for the conversion.

Jason Corwin put the Rayders on a board later in the period and James Corwin ran the ball in for the conversion.

Jason Corwin added six points on a one-yard plunge. Grayling snapped back with a 75-yard end sweep.

James Corwin scored on a 70-yard kick-off return and then on runs of 11 and 23 yards. He also scored the conversions.

Brian Livingston scored from the three to make the score 42-14 before substitutions started.

Pat Elliott made 20 tackles, Livingston 10 and Bill Sherman seven. Fumbles were recovered by James Corwin, Mike Stoneham, and Chad DeYoung.

Freshmen victors 1st time

The freshman football team finished its season on a high note with a 22-8 win over Petoskey.

The win was the first of the season for coach Erik Lundteigen's team.

"This was a team that had defeated them 48-0 in their first meeting," Lundteigen said. "They've come a long way, they've learned how to play football and they used all their knowledge to win."

James McGee scored twice on 6- and 63-yard runs to give the Rayders a 14-0 first period lead. Dan Terryberry passed on Erich McElroy for the conversion.

Scott Kehrer scored on a one-yard run in the second period. McElroy added the conversion.

Halloween: No ghost ship, but goblins galore

Trick-or-treat hours set

Halloween is a time of tradition, but a couple familiar Charlevoix traditions will be missing this year.

The Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite will not be in harbor this year to hold its annual Ghost Ship. And Vacation Properties Network will not hold its pumpkin-decorating contest.

But kindergarten children will parade around the elementary school in Halloween costumes, and there will be a Halloween movie for all elementary students on Friday afternoon.

Also, some Scout troops and church groups are having dress-up parties to celebrate this for-fun-only night of the year.

The police department has set aside the hours of 6 to 9 for children to be on the streets Halloween night.

Last week, Sheriff George T. Lasater and Police Chief Dennis Halverson spoke to the younger school children about being careful while making their begging rounds.

They also handed out trick-or-treat bags imprinted with safety slogans.

The police department have extra patrol cars out Halloween night and Devil's night.

A jack-o-lantern at Dr. Deve Strawbridge's office braces for Halloween ectivities.

Ancient traditions at root of holiday

When the small – and some not so small – children of Charlevoix put on rags and tags to go begging for sweets or money Saturday night, they will be celebrating a festival that dates back at least 2,000 years to the Celts of Britain, Ireland and southern France.

Back then, the story goes, the new year began on Nov. 1 and Oct. 31 was the festival day of Samhain, honoring Samhain, the Celtic lord of death.

It also marked the beginning of shorter days with their cold and darkness, as associated with human death. Therefrom came skulls and vultures and symbols of mysticism such as black cats and witches.

Even the rise of Christianity – when Nov. 1 became All Saints Day and the night before became known as "All Hallow Eve," now Halloween – did not stop the celebration of things dead and dark and mystical.

Jack-o-lanterns date back hundreds of years, when in England people carved beets, potatoes, and turnips to hold a lighted candle.

The story surrounding this custom concerns a man named Jack who could not enter heaven because he was a miser or enter hell because he had played jokes on the devil. Therefore he had to walk the Earth until judgment day carrying a candle.

Tips to ensure kids' safety

To insure Halloween trick-or-treat activities are happy ones, District Health Department No. 3 reminds parents of the following safety suggestions.

– Warn children not to eat any treats before they get home. Examine all treats carefully.

– Look for costumes, masks, beards and wigs labeled "flame resistant." Although these items could still catch fire, they will resist burning and should extinguish quickly once removed from the ignition source. Flimsy materials and outfits with big, baggy sleeves or billowing skirts have greater risk of contact with candles or other sources of ignition.

– Make or buy costumes light and bright enough to be clearly visible to motorists. For greater visibility, costumes can be decorated with reflective tape. Children may also carry flashlights.

– Costumes should be short enough to prevent children from tripping and falling. Children should wear well-fitting, sturdy shoes.

– Hats and scarfs should be tied securely to prevent them from slipping over children's eyes.

– Apply a natural mask of cosmetics rather than have a child wear a loose-fitting mask which might restrict breathing or obscure vision. If a mask is used, make sure it fits securely and has eyeholes large enough to allow full vision.

– Swords, knives and similar costume accessories should be of soft or flexible material.

– Smaller children should always be accompanied by an older responsible child or an adult.

– Children should only go to homes where residents have outside lights on as a sign of welcome. Children should not enter homes or apartments unless accompanied by the adult accompanying them on their rounds.

– Those receiving trick-or-treaters should remove anything that could be an obstacle from steps, lawns and porches.

High school art classes hold contest

Chrissy Dillon's painted pumpkin – complete with false eyelashes – was the winning entry in a contest among Charlevoix High art students.

Taking second place was Fred Falting, third was Shannon Dreyer and fourth was Peggy Wilson. Art teacher Mercedes Mathers presented the winners with art supplies provided by Northern Art.

Harold Krutsch

Convention bureau picks new officers

Officers have been elected for the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Taking over the presidency is Harold Krutsch of the Weathervane Terrace Hotel, while former president Sandy Alward of the Archway Motel becomes secretary-treasurer.

Doug Shaw of Bridge Street Inn is vice president of the board. Jacquie Merta, executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, is a permanent member.

Two new board members have been elected. They are Jay Burns of Edgewater Inn and Jack Uhrick of the Lodge Motel. They replace Sue Barnard of Nanny's Old Place and Frank Hamilton of Capri Motel.

The convention and visitors bureau was formed in 1986 to develop and maintain a climate to attract conventions and visitors to the Charlevoix area.

There are 13 hotels-motels, five bed and breakfasts and two management companies in the group's membership.

Eastern Star installation set

Lois Lewis will be installed as worthy matron of Charlevoix Chapter No. 72, Order of the Eastern Star at the Masonic Temple at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 31. She will succeed Hazel Rehkopf.

Other officers elected recently who will be installed are: Ray Wood worthy patron, Hazel Rehkopf associate matron, Otto Yemmans associate patron, Janada Rehkoph secretary, Carla Spencer treasurer and Mary Ann Wise associate conductress.

Appointive officers are Mildred Hiller chaplain, Walter Hufford marshal, Alice Bellinger organist, Ann Hufford as Adah, Madelyn Heise as Ruth, Joanne Grubaugh as Esther, Diane Rosendahl as Martha, Joann Dannecker as Electa, Nancy Wood as warder, Geneva Smith as sentinel and Marjorie Plum as candlebearer.

Evelyn Gould of Boyne City, past matron of Evangeline Chapter No. 95, will be installing officer.

led to Convention and Visitors Bureau contact with a leading national hotel consulting firm, which is drawing up a proposal for a market study.

That study, according to Chuck Skelton of Leventhol and Horvath, will tell the area hospitality industry whether a conference center could attract the size and kind of groups at the time Charlevoix wants to attract them.

Though about 20 people attended a meeting with Skelton, Hisey doesn't see a groundswell of interest. "It's not a concerted effort," he says, "there are only two or three people really pushing for a conference center."

Skelton visited the Edgewater conference center the day after meeting with the local group. Hisey says his impression was that Skelton thought the community should wait to "see if this works."

If some community or private group would like to see if it can make a conference center work, Hisey says he would consider selling his. While the hotel is condominiumized, Hisey says, he owns the conference rooms because unit owners don't want the hassle the facility represents.

Right now, Hisey has about 2,000 square feet of conference space.

Beyond those rooms – on the second floor along Michigan Avenue – is up to 3,000 square feet intended for future offices that could easily be added.

The present space can handle about 200 people auditorium-style or 150 banquet-style, Hisey says.

Outside ownership of the center could help alleviate problems among competing hotels, but Hisey says the existing hotels cooperate nicely.

A conference of 200 people from outside the area would fill both his hotel and the Weathervane, for instance, he says.

The Weathervane has a meeting room and plans for the Rysberg Inn include future conference rooms in the basement. City approval of Brian Rysberg's plans, however, precluded use of the rooms in July and August.

"We don't need any help in July and August," Hisey says of the busy season, but he wonders aloud if any group would pick Charlevoix over a sunny climate for a conference in mid-winter.

"I just don't see it," he says, "I don't see the need to have a full-blown conference center."

Conflict resolution workshop slated

Christ Episcopal Church is sponsoring "Conflict Resolution: The Call of the Christian," a two-evening workshop on Tuesdays, Nov. 3 and Nov. 10, from 7 to 10 p.m.

The workshops are open to the public. Register by calling the church office at 547-6322.

All Dressed Up With The Best Place To Go...

...Charlevoix for Halloween.

Burger King: Treat Our Kids With Care!™ with a Gift Certificate. French Fries aren't frightening! Book of 10 for $1. Get your orange Halloween trick-or-treat bag at Burger King, too!

Halloween Safety Tips From 7-Eleven.

1. Make sure children are accompanied by an adult or responsible teenager when they go door-to-door. Go with them yourself if you can.
2. Instruct children never to eat anything until they are home and the treats have been examined. Cut and wash fruit before eating. Throw away anything unwrapped.
3. Check the wrappers of commercial treats for signs of tampering.
4. Call the police if there are any suspicious treats.
5. Make sure children's costumes fit and they can be seen well.
6. Tell your children to trick or treat in their own neighborhood and in well lighted streets. Daylight hours are best.
7. If children are going to be out after dark, make sure they carry a flashlight.
8. Teach your children to use the sidewalks if they can. If there are no sidewalks, walk on the left side of the street facing cars.
9. Know which friends your children will be with and which route they are taking.
10. Leave your porch light on so children will know it's OK to visit your home.

IDEA: Have a Halloween party in your home for all the neighborhood kids.

New Creations Hair Design: Be Boo-T-Ful for Halloween. Have us design your Halloween face or just "treat" yourself to a bewitching new look.

Accents by Burlew: Hideous? You bet! We have costuming to make you really creepy or fantastically lovely. Pick up your party gags here, too. We have a large selection for you.

McDonald's: Give safe treats to our kids! Give McDonald's Halloween certificates. Book of 12, $1 plus tax - a $4.59 value!

Oleson Food Store: Look what we've brewed up for Halloween: cider & donuts, pumpkins, all kinds of Halloween treats and candy. Shop now!

Little Red Shoe House: Take the "bite" out of buying your winter boots. Our everyday prices are "thrilling".

Och's Central Rexall Drug Store: Are you tired of bloodthirsty prices that drain you? Our Halloween candy and costumes are 50% off!

Ben Franklin: Get your "spooktakular" Halloween costumes, fabrics and candy all in one spot. All your Halloween items are at Ben Franklin!

ON THEIR WAY TO STATE MEET

Dunes deal hinges on state grant

The campaign to acquire North Point may be a short one if the state does not agree to participate in the purchase.

There is a clause in the option to purchase the 28-acre site that allows the seller to be released from the deal if the state Land Trust Fund does not support the project.

That support would be in the form of a check for $400,000 if the Little Traverse Conservancy's application is approved as submitted.

The total price of the Lake Michigan site is about $700,000, when option payments and other costs are included.

A Land Trust Fund decision on funding is forthcoming in January.

"The project meets so many of their criteria that I'm very confident," conservancy executive director Tom Bailey says of the chances of obtaining trust funds.

He notes that the site contains threatened species, is adjacent to an existing park, has dunes and wooded areas, and provides lake access.

The trust fund has about $14 million set aside for acquisitions in the coming year.

At a December trust fund meeting, Bailey says, staff recommendations will be presented to the board, which is part of the state Department of Natural Resources.

"One thing that's going to improve our chances of securing a grant," Bailey says, "is we will be able to show strong community support."

The purchase has been endorsed by organizations ranging from WATCH (Water and Air Team Charlevoix) to the Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors.

And there is no shortage of community support, Bailey says. In fact, he jokes that efforts to obtain sponsoring organizations for a fund drive are going so well they may need a three-page letterhead on their solicitation request.

Little Traverse has been involved in several past land purchases for preservation, the most notable being a campaign to raise $720,000 of $1.4 million needed to buy the Colonial Point virgin forest area near Burt Lake.

While that effort, too, involved intense community support, he says,

The North Point area is a mostly undisturbed parcel with a half mile of lakefront, flowing dunes and heavily wooded areas. If $700,000 can be raised, the site will be turned over to Charlevoix Township for park use.

Grandvue chief steps down amid money woes

by PEG OHLE

Grandvue Medical Care Facility is looking for a new administrator to succeed Ronald Conkle.

The first public knowledge that Conkle was leaving his job came at last Wednesday night's meeting of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, when Conkle and a group of Grandvue employees appeared "in support of" the administrator.

It was then learned that Conkle had tendered his resignation as requested by the Social Services Board, which oversees Grandvue.

In a written communication, Conkle told the county board he knew there were money problems at Grandvue (over $100,000 more in expenditures than revenues last year), but that he was operating the facility as he had been told – keeping the residential and nursing units separate.

The large deficit, which was made up from county funds, was due largely to the cost of operating the residential unit, which is not eligible for Medicaid funds.

If the 27 beds in that unit were part of the nursing care unit, they would have been eligible for $1,982,190 in Medicaid funds since 1980, according to Conkle's figures.

However, the residential unit was paid for by county millage levied over a period of three years, designated specifically for residential care.

Conkle told the Courier that the financial problems are "pretty much the story."

Although Conkle admitted money problems, other Grandvue employees had only good things to

Russell tops Timms in 2nd Ward; Probert holds off write-in in 1st

One incumbent council member was defeated and another withstood a late-minute write-in campaign.

Second Ward councilman Bob Timms was soundly defeated by Alvin "Butch" Russell, who outtallied the 12-year veteran 179-64.

In the First Ward, incumbent Norm Probert garnered 88 votes to 39 write-ins for Sam Supernaw, a former councilman and mayor.

Earl Muma was unopposed for reelection in the Third Ward and received 42 votes.

Clerk Arlene Staley was unopposed in the only citywide vote, picking up 388 votes. Marilyn Gibbons received one write-in vote for clerk.

There were 140 votes cast in the First Ward for a 17 percent turnout among the ward's 754 voters. In the Second Ward, 248 votes among 753 registered voters produced a 32 percent turnout, while in the Third Ward 51 votes from a possible 791 voters accounted for a 6 percent turnout.

AROUND THE TOWN

There's no law against burning those leaves in the city.... But there is a law against burning them in the street – if the street is paved....

An alternative to smoking out your neighbors does exist, though.... The city is once again using its vacuum truck to suck up leaves from the gutter.

Charlevoix is well represented in the third edition of the Michigan Gift Guide.... The publication is put out by the Office of Michigan Products Promotion of the state Department of Commerce.... The 68-page booklet is aimed at promoting "Made in Michigan" products....

Included are candles from the Bullfrog Light Co, sculptures from Norman and Judith Brumm, packaged Christmas trees from Green Pines: Christmas Tree Co. and ski storage racks from Treehouse Products.... Nearby firms in the catalog are Rocky Top Farms of Ellsworth, Heartwood Products of East Jordan and American Spoon Foods of Petoskey.

When is a fence not a fence?.... When it's a hedge.... At least, that's now the official verdict of the city zoning board of appeals....

The board was approached by city planner-zoning administrator Gerry Harsch to decide if tall hedges in various parts of town could be regulated.... The city limits view-blocking fences to four feet high, but view-blocking hedges are not covered by the city zoning ordinance, the zoning board decided....

There are several places around town where hedges have been let to grow exceptionally high, the zoning board agreed, apparently with the intent of blocking views, but the board said the city has no control over natural growth except to promote public safety at street corners.

Charlevoix Yesterday

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad depot has baan a Charlevoix landmark since 1892, when the first train cama to town. Passenger service was discontinued in 1962, and since 1975, the depot has been the home of the Charlavoix Yacht Club. As shown ebove, yeers ago, at the height of tha tourist season, the depot sarved hundreds of passengers daily. Local historian Ralph Hemilton has this to say about the Foster Boat Works picture we ran lst week: "The renovated building of the boet company wes the Ferry Saed Co. which opereted in the early part of this century, and also a shingle factory was locatad close to this building. They manufactured butter bowls that still may be in the hands of some old timers in this community."(Depot picture courtesy of Edith Gilbert).

Kindergarten train ride

A morning kindergarten class from Charlevoix Elementary ridas the tourist train from Patoskey to Conway. An anonymous donor paid for the trip, which was taken by Dorothy Miller end Diane Priess' morning and afternoon classes.

A GHOULISH GOOD TIME

Halloween was e time of tricks and treats. While city police reported about a dozen instances of vandalism, large crowds of costumed creatures roamed the streets. Bruce Meggison and Lori Holtzman (above left) helped give out about 500 hot dogs at the Holtzmans' haunted house, while epparitions welked the streets (above right).

Many parents accompanying their youngsters to houses (left) were greeted by ghosts on ropes, eerie music, friendly jack-o-lanterns and not-so-friendly faces. During Mary Ann Chew's fourth grede play at the elementary school, two aliens from outer space (below right) were misteken for kids in Halloween costume.

Letters to the editor:

Food Pantry needs community's help

Editor,

Just 54 days until Christmas and only 52 until Dec. 23. That's the day the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry and its sponsors, the community churches, will be seeing that our less fortunate neighbors get the makings of a Chirstmas dinner and a few extras.

Each year many civic-minded organizations and other individuals outside the churches have joined forces with the Food Pantry in this happy event. You are cordially invited to participate again this year. Food and gifts will be purchased on Dec. 18.

It will be appreciated if your contribution or promises of them, can be delivered to the Congregational Church before that date, so that only needed items will be bought. Of course, cash contributions will also be most helpful.

Please clearly mark any contributions, cash or material, "Christmas Project," so that they will not be confused with donations to the ongoing work of the Food Pantry. Call Mary Helen Riggle at 547-9515, Rita Orlowski at 547-5518 or Lucy Martin at 547-6746 if you have questions.

Such community-wide sharing of our blessings has been one of the happiest parts of Charlevoix's Christmas celebrations for several years. We trust it will be again this year.

Downtown gridlock drives shoppers to alternatives

Editor:

I notice that an editorial in the Courier bemoans the lack of crowds on Bridge Street. It is a real shame that the city council can't keep the summer gridlock up all year long - maybe you can drive out all of the summer residents in order to catch a quick dollar or two from the passerby who has to wait for the bridge to open.

On a "good" day in July, it is possible to wait 10 minutes to be able to get from M-66 to U.S. 31. On an even better weekend, cars are lined up for miles to get to the rock concerts.

I'm among the old-time summer residents who have found alternatives to shopping in downtown Charlevoix.

College staff deserves raise

Editor:

When I graduated from North Central Michigan College and began my studies at Lake Superior State College (a small school with a reputation as being a very "tough" college), it soon became apparent to me that the quality education I had received at NCMC was of enormous value in the pursuit of higher education.

After graduation from Lake Superior State College, I entered Graduate School at Central Michigan University where I am currently attending.

Although I owe a great deal to the professors at NCMC for preparing me extremely well for endeavors into higher education, I believe the students and the people in the Petoskey and surrounding areas deserve much of the credit also - because of the support rendered by them, NCMC was able to hire only professional educators who are themselves contributing members of the surrounding areas and have devoted many years of their lives toward the quality education Northern Michigan residents deserve.

Today I am very concerned about whether the quality of education will continue to be a top priority or whether school administration will choose to install inferior educators with only a bachelor's degree to replace these excellent professionals with master's degrees and many years of experience teaching college. This possibility was made evident when an ad for bachelor level teachers was recently ran in a downstate newspaper.

Why is all this happening? I believe the main reason is school administration is trying to "bust" the teachers union at NCMC. Although the teachers asked for only a modest raise in their salary, commensurate with other area school systems, NCMC administration has thus far remained steadfast in their refusal to grant this well deserved salary increase, although school enrollment is up, along the federal tax dollars (yours and mine) having increased significantly.

I cannot understand why the school administratin would feel it necessary to replace master's level educators with bacehelor's level - unless it is a ploy being used to break the teachers union and leave the quality educators at the mercy of the school administration who it seems to me certainly does not have the community's welfare as a priority on its agenda.

Who benefits from all this? If the teachers union is broken the whole community will suffer because this will mean that most likely a great many of the college professors will leave the communtiy never to return because they can make considerably more money elsewhere.

Also, the people in the community would suffer because this would mean their children would not be able to receive a quality two year education comparable with any large university.

What can you do to prevent this catastrophe? We, the students, especially the student senate, can organize campaigns and let other students know exactly what is going on right under their noses. Why do you think the professors are wearing those little buttons saying simply "X days without a contract." Students, along with the people in the community, can write letters to the school president, the school board of governors and let them know you do not, and will not support inferior education in your community. One could also write to your congressional representative letting him know you don't like what is going on, and will not tolerate your children's future being jeopardized due to an administration who is unwilling to listen to reason.

Again I want to thank the people of the Petoskey area for supporting the hiring of quality professors by sending their children to this institution with confidence they will receive an educational parallel to any – which gave me the motivation to continue even after a 20-year career in the United States Air Force.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared
by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

It was one of those nights around the dinner table where only the wisdom of Solomon was going to do. My brother and sister and I were arguing about everything. When it was time for dessert they protested loud and long, "It isn't fair! His piece of cake is bigger than ours!" Now, I didn't think that was so bad. After all, I was the oldest.

But Mom had other ideas. She took back the pieces she had already sliced, returned with the whole cake and a ruler. She then proceeded to measure each slice, precisely and deliberately before our eyes. She made sure each of us was "fairly" treated.

I didn't get the point that night. Time and getting older make you appreciate those kinds of lessons a little later on.

Have you ever gotten picky over something that you knew was really kind of silly? Have you ever been on the receiving end of such pickiness? It really is amazing to look at what we think is unfair.

Was it fair for God to give up His only begotten Son? Was it fair for Jesus to have to become human in every way? Was it fair for someone who did nothing but love, care for and encourage others to be so mistreated and misunderstood? Was it fair for Jesus to die on the cross?

It is only fair that we realize just what is important in life. It is only fair that we recognize that others' dreams and hopes are as important as our own. It is only fair that if we want others' help in realizing our goals then we help them where we can with their goals.

Jesus did not die to see that we each got our fair slice of the cake. He died, and He lives, that we might enjoy the part of life that was best for us.

Binge is over

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

Teetotalers, members of the WCTU and others who adhere to the straight-and-narrow might be interested to know they are winning the war against Demon Rum.

In fact, a revolution of sorts is taking place in the bar business in Charlevoix and elsewhere in this once-sodden old land.

And the changes, insofar as they reflect the drinking habits of Americans, are probably are all for the good, although barkeeps may argue the point.

For one thing, bars aren't staying open as long as they used to. On one memorable evening last summer, two of Charlevoix's most popular downtown watering holes were closed — while the ice cream shops were still open.

Furthermore, folks don't seem to be drinking as much as they used to — at least in public — what with the police crackdown on drunk-driving and tougher penalties for those who drive under the influence. After all, no one wants to spend time in the pokey — and that's what a drunk driving citation will get you nowadays.

It has gotten so bad that some bar patrons have taken to walking downtown, just to avoid the gendarmes.

In the old days, most bars stayed open until 2 a.m., and bartenders sometimes were hard pressed to get the revelers off the premises by 2:30 a.m. But the hard-core drinkers of yore now are home in bed hours before last-call. And they probably feel a lot better the next morning.

Supper clubs seem to be setting the pace when it comes to early closings. One delightful old inn on the south side of town used to do a booming bar business until the wee hours. But not any longer. A sign out in front says the restaurant-bar will close at 10 p.m. on Wednesdays and Thursdays and 11 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays.

Other restaurants which once had a lusty after-dinner bar trade are playing it by ear. When the crowd thins out, the bartender declares last-call and everyone goes home. There is no point in keeping the lights on and the heat turned up for one or two solitary drinkers.

One downtown bar which used to be a favorite among area servicemen started closing early several months ago. Now a sign in the window says the bar will be closed for the winter.

Although some area bars are maintaining their old hours, others have become more flexible. Most bars in the Petoskey area don't even bother to open on Sunday.

One notable exception to the down-trend in the bar business is an attractive new bistro on Charlevoix's Bridge Street which is wall-to-wall people whenever live music is offered.

All in all, I think it's a healthy development, a sign that — 55 years after Prohibition — Americans are finally taking a sane, adult approach to the consumption of alcoholic beverages and tavern owners are responding in kind.

In short, the post-Prohibition binge is over.

WHY AM I so all-fired interested in the bar business?

Aside from the fact that I enjoy a nip now and then, I have discovered, as a newsman, that bars are a good place to find out what's going on in town.

Furthermore, I've got booze in the blood. The first members of the family to emigrate from Ireland to Canada were in the hospitality business. Great-great Grandpa and Grandma Huston, late of Ballymoney, County Antrim, opened a hotel — and bar — for seafarers on Georgian Bay near Wiarton 125 years ago.

Later their daughter Jane, my great-grandmother, who was 18 when the family moved to Canada, talked her husband, David John Mallard, into building her a five-story hotel — and bar — in the village of Oxenden (pop. 35).

Jane, I am told, loved her "bitters room," but David J., a stiff-necked Huguenot, was uncomfortable selling liquor. So they would run the hotel for a while, and then move back to the farm, or the sawmill or the general store — other irons old David J. had in the fire.

Finally one night, the hotel with its lovely "bitters room" burned to the ground. Poor Jane was heartbroken, but David J. probably saw the fire as a sign that the Almighty was in his corner in his off-again, on-again battle against liquid sin.

'Round Town

Good reception — is it just a dream?

EDITH GILBERT

My trip to Mackinac Island last week – where 300 weddings took place this summer – combined with yet another phone call from the perplexed mother of a prospective bride points up again the lack of wedding reception sites in Charlevoix. We're talking about space for well over 100 people.

We also lack spaces where one can seat more than 100 people at a banquet with a speakers table, and where there are no pillars. We lack a room where a fashion show may be held for more than 100 people, again a room with no pillars and space for a platform or a runway. We lack space where performances may be held to seat 250 or 300 people, where the ceilings are not too low for musical performances or theater productions. We lack a place to hold proms.

Before we continue, let me remind you that the interior of the former Lewis Grand Opera House, built in 1881 and located on Bridge Street on the south side of the Pine River Channel, seated 800 people. Of course, there was no parking space required.

And the original Beach Hotel, built in 1915, and tauted as "a new haven of splendor," was located on the present site of LaCroft condominiums. It had a dining room that seated 400 guests. Again, we must remember, guests arrived by train and there was no parking or traffic problem, then as there is today.

But getting back to the subject of Charlevoix weddings, it's true most couples prefer getting married in their own home church. But then there's the recurring problem of where to hold the reception? Many couples have opted to leave town, in favor of Petoskey or Boyne City. The drawback here is that parents are now concerned about our stricter drinking and driving laws.

Some wedding receptions are held at the Charlevoix Yacht Club or Elm Pointe. Both sites have a lot of charm if the attendance is limited, but what if it rains? Renting tents runs into a lot of extra expense. Stroud Hall at Shanahan Field is not available to the public, even though it's a most attractive site.

Many couples are looking for a reception site in town, a place that is easy and comfortable to have a wedding for 150 or more guests. A spacious room, with a pleasant view of the water, preferable where seating could be arranged at round tables, either inside or out, depending on our changeable Michigan weather. An area for the receiving line to greet guests; a place where there are preparation facilities for meals; where there is enough room for a band and dancing, as well as a table for the wedding cake; rooms for changing into going-away outfits; and coat rooms. Even a place for baby sitting care! The area ought to be landscaped and provide parking for several houndred cars. There ought to be a separate delivery entrance for trucks.

There should be a good sound and lighting system. There should be ramps wide enough for electric wheel chairs. There should be year-round heating and cooling. In addition, there should be plenty of storage facilities for extra tables, chairs, bars and equipment.

A facility such as this can double as a convention site, but the present or proposed convention facilities which in truth should be called conference rooms, can not double for the aforementioned ideal receiption site! What we're proposing is something smaller than Shanty Creek and something larger than Stafford's Bay View Inn.

Our moteis, hotel and restaurants have all the tourist business they can handle on weekends, during the summer season. Still they do try to accommodate us with private space for rehearsal suppers and wedding receptions when possible. But it's difficult for the restaurant to give the time, attention and service to large private parties that they deserve when tourists are standing in line waiting for tables.

Yet, our local restaurants and caterers would be able to cater this "off premise" party facility in addition to their regular business. It would need to be planned in advance if they wish to handle private parties, meetings and convention groups, during the summer or off-season.

I know this is the stuff dreams are made of. But perhaps we can put a bee in someone's bluejeans. The wedding business is a $27 billion industry, and the average wedding nowdays costs $10,000. And that ain't hay.

Judy and Mark Holland

Elzinga-Holland wedding

Judy K. Elzinga and Mark K. Holland exchanged marriage vows Saturday, Oct, 3, in Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Lois Elzinga and James Elzinga of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Holland of Bellaire.

The Rev. Larry Grooters officiated at the double ring ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, Oliver Garver.

The rites were read before an altar decorated with baskets of white chrysanthemums.

Some 200 guests watched as the bride walked down the aisle in a gown of white satin fashioned with puffed melon sleeves, a yoke, attached satin bow in back and chapel-length train. The ride's headpiece was a picture hat trimmed with Venise lace and pearls and with a short illusion pouf and streamer in back.

The bride carried a bouquet of long-stemmed chrysanthemums and green ferns.

Colleen Titsworth assisted the bride as maid of honor, and the bride's sisters, Patti Sitzema and Sue Meier, were bridesmaids. Tricia Sitzema, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. They wore ankle-length gowns of crocheted lace over royal blue taffeta, with shoes and gloves to match. Their bouquets were made of silk chrysanthemums and baby's breath in a color to match the gowns.

Sheena Sitzema, niece of the bride, served as flower girl, wearing a royal blue sheer polyester dress with bustle back and a picture hat like that of the bride. Eric Meier, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

James Elliott served as best man, and Alan Guy and Scott Sowers served as groomsmen. The bride's brother, James Elzinga Jr. and George Mason were ushers.

Organ music for the ceremony was provided by Frances Boss.

The bride's mother and bridegroom's parents hosted the wedding reception at the American Legion Hall. The bridegroom's parents also hosted a rehearsal dinner at Nanny's Old Place.

Following a wedding trip through the western United States and Canada, the newlyweds are at home in Charlevoix, where the bride operated Judy's Restaurant. The bridegroom runs the Northern Michigan Dairy in Bellaire. (Photography by Don Smith)

Sixth graders organize lunch for senior citizens

The sixth grade Quest class at Charlevoix Middle School will host a "We Care" luncheon at Pine River Place, senior citizens residential facility, on Friday, Nov. 6.

The 25 students are members of the Skills for Adolescence" class sponsored by the Quest program. The project gives students first-hand experience at organizing and implementing a community project.

The students have planned the entire project and named committees to carry out the various phases of the event.

Lunch will be served by the students at noon in the recreation room at the facility and will be followed by entertainment by the students, teacher Steve Stargardt said.

Quest, a nation-wide program, has been made possible by the two local Lions Clubs which are underwriting its cost in the middle school.

The class has been divided into four nine-week sessions, Stargardt said. As each group participates, students will chose and implement their own public service project.

Girl Scouts will keep Camp Charlevoix

The board of directors of Crooked Tree Girl Scout Council has decided to retain Camp Charlevoix. The decision followed a recommendation by a task group to sell all council properties except the service center in Traverse City.

The board did choose to sell Camp Pa-ha-sa-pa, a little-used vacant tract southeast of Custer.

Properties to be retained are Camp Charlevoix, Camp Little Deer located south of Manistee and Little House in Ludington. Camp Sakakawea near Traverse City is held in trust by Rotary Camps.

Evangelist couple visits area church

A series of evangelistic services featuring evangelists Bob and Elizabeth Abbott of Springfield, Mo., will be conducted at Charlevoix Assembly of God Church on Sunday, Nov. 8, at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. and Monday through Wednesday, Nov. 9-11, at 7 p.m.

The meetings will feature Bible teaching by Bob Abbott, accompanied by prayer ministry.

Each evening Elizabeth Abbott, known as "The Story Lady," will tell a story to children, and the pair will present black-lighted Scene-O-Felts with narration and vocal music.

The Abbotts served 26 years in pastoral ministry and leadership positions before changing to an evangelistic-type ministry in 1969. Since 1974, he has been national evangelists field representative for the Assemblies of God.

Michael and Diane Ordiway

Dannecker-Ordiway wedding

Diane Marie Dannecker and Michael William Ordiway exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, Aug. 15, at West Side Methodist Church in Ann Arbor.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Dannecker of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Nancy Bennett of Jackson.

Pastor Berkompas officiated at the double-ring ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her father before an altar decorated with bouquets of blue and white carnations. Approximately 100 guests were in attendance.

The bride's gown was fashioned of white satin with a lace-appliqued bodice embroidered with pearls, off-the-shoulder neckline, puffed sleeves, and cathedral train.

She wore a matching hat with blusher veil and carried a bouquet of white roses, blue carnations, ivy and baby's breath.

Cindi Fields of Fort Worth served the bride as maid of honor. She wore a blue lace dress and carried a bouquet of blue carnations, white daisies, and baby's breath.

Charles Strange of Ypsilanti was best man.

Traditional organ wedding music was offered during the ceremony.

Following a reception at the Fairway Trails Clubhouse in Ypsilanti, the newlyweds departed for a wedding trip to Bermuda. They are now at home in Canton.

Both the bride and bridegroom attended Huron High School in Ann Arbor, and the bride also attended Eastern Michigan University.

State funds vital to North Point purchase effort

there is a unique aspect to the North Point campaign.

In this case, Little Traverse is not the primary force behind the preservation effort. Community organizations – WATCH, DUNE (Defenders United for North Point Ecology) and Keep Charlevoix Beautiful – are taking lead roles.

"Township residents came to us two years ago asking what can we do to protect North Point," Bailey recalls. "Little Traverse Conservancy did not start this. We were brought in by Charlevoix area people."

Bailey says, "It's Charlevoix's project all the way."

Project manager Tom Lagerstrom has the same enthusiasm for the project.

"So many people came and asked is there a chance we can do this," Lagerstrom says, "we are sure the community will support the effort. We went into this with a great deal of confidence."

To translate that confidence into cash, a finance committee of community members is being formed. A list of sponsoring organizations is also being compiled to show the breadth of support.

Some of these sponsors may contribute money, Bailey says, while others may suggest their individual members contribute.

There is a good cross-section of the community involved, which Bailey says is "a wonderful problem to have."

By putting together a diverse and large list of sponsors and finance committee members, the conservancy accomplishes two goals.

It can show the Land Trust Fund that there is massive community support for purchasing the property, and it has a wide base from which to launch fund-raising efforts.

Though fund raising will not begin until what Bailey calls the 11th hour, he and Lagerstrom say word of the effort has already reached a lot of people and the reaction has been encouraging.

The option for purchase of the Charlevoix Township site adjacent to the Mount McSauba city recreation area was signed in early October after lengthy negotiations.

The family of the late Richard Turner agreed to sell the 2,800-foot long lakefront parcel to the conservancy if the money could be raised in two years. The site had been proposed for construction of up to 120 condominium units before the airplane crash deaths of Turner and developer Jeff DeGaynor in 1986.

If the purchase is completed, the conservancy would turn the area over to Charlevoix Township to use as a natural recreation site – probably similar to the city's Mount McSauba adjacent to it.

While the first option payment comes due the same week as a decision from the Land Trust board is expected, Bailey and Lagerstrom are looking at the fund-raising effort as a whole rather than as a series of smaller goals.

About $28,000 is needed for that option payment on Jan. 8.

With the finance committee just about in place, Lagerstrom says, the first mailing of solicitation letters is expected in early December.

Contacts with selected individuals have already begun, he says, and the conservancy has other sources of income in mind. But Lagerstrom says it is premature to talk about attempting to secure large sums from other sources.

The bulk of the money is expected to come from the Charlevoix area, Lagerstrom says, because the community has the most to gain from preserving the site.

Contacts with possible sponsors or finance committee members are winding down.

In a number of presentations Bruce MacArthur, president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, has made to community groups, he has used a set of posters to explain the key elements of the fund-raising efforts.

Keying on the recurring number 8, he has noted that the 28-acre site has 2,800 feet of lakefront. The option was signed on the 8th of October and the first payment of $28,000 is due on the 8th of January, the presentation shows.

And, he notes, it would be encouraging to have the money raised by 8-8-89, two months before the option expires in October 1989.

Bailey again points to the wide community support being sought.

"We could have gone for $1 each from 700,000 people or $700,000 from one person," he says. "We chose to go somewhere in between."

Obituaries

Melvin N. Rood

Melvin N. Rood, 71, of Ellsworth, died Wednesday, Oct. 28, at Meadowbrook Medical Care Facility at Bellaire.

Funeral services were held at Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth on Saturday, Oct. 31, the Rev. James Heneveld of Belltower Reformed Church officiated. Interment was in Southern Cemetery at Central Lake.

Mr. Rood was born Dec. 15, 1915, at Oulu, Wis., son of Elmer and Ella (Olsen) Rood, and moved to Ellsworth with his family in 1922. He was employed at Ellsworth Canning Co. as an electrician until the plant closed in the early 1970's.

On June 14, 1957, he married Dora Mae Thayer in Central Lake. They made their home in Banks Township. Mrs. Rood preceded him in death.

Surviving are a daughter, Dolly Ann Mills of Panama City, Fla.; a son, William Thayer of Dexter; 10 grandchildren and two brothers, Lloyd Rood of Pierceton, Ind., and Walter Rood of Ellsworth.

The family suggests memorials to Meadowbrook Medical Care Facility. Envelopes are available at Hastings Funeral Home.

Anna M. Smith

Anna M. Smith, 77, of Hayes Township, died Saturday, Oct. 31, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral services were held at St. Mary's Church on Tuesday, Nov. 3, with the Rev. James K. Gardiner as celebrant and the Rev. E. Francis Denay of St. Mary's Church at Maple City as concelebrant. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery. The rosary was recited at Winchester Funeral Home on Monday evening.

Born in the Bohemian settlement near East Jordan June 25, 1910, daughter of Anton and Anna (Rebec) Kortan, Anna Marie Kortan attended the Bohemian settlement school.

On Sept. 26, 1939, she married Goerge E. Smith in East Jordan. They always made their home in Hayes Township.

She was a member of St. Mary's Church and a life member of St. Mary's Rosary Altar Society, Maple Grove Grange and Charlevoix County Farm Bureau.

Surviving are a niece, Anna Crain of Charlevoix; a brother, Joseph Kortan of East Jordan; and two sisters, Mary G. Hoffman of Petoskey an Nettie J. Scott of East Jordan.

The family suggests memorials to St. Mary's Church or Charlevoix Area Hospital. Envelopes are available at Winchester Funeral Home.

George E. Smith

George E. Smith, 73, died Tuesday Nov. 3 at his Hayes Township home.

Funeral services will be held at St. Mary's Church at 10 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 5, with the Rev. James K. Gardiner as celebrant. Interment will be at St. Mary's Cemetery. The rosary will be recited at the Winchester Funeral Home at 7:30 Wednesday, Nov. 4. A full obituary will follow.

Grandvue administrator resigns over money matters say about his administration.

Cara Birdsall said there had been a positive change in the image of Grandvue since Conkle took over, it was a healthier environment in which to work, and there were better relations between the administration and employees.

Helen Deming, who has been a social worker at Grandvue for 20 years, said members of the patients' families were expressing concern over Conkle's leaving.

"He saw to it that patients and their families were treated with fairness and kindness," she said.

Mary Black presented a petition signed by 40 Grandvue employees supporting Conkle.

Grandvue has had financial problems for several years, caused by a decrease in number of patients as well as costs of operating the residential unit.

The $101,562 deficit last year resulted from a $112,025 deficiency in the residential care operation offset by a $10,463 excess in the medical care facility.

The occupancy rate in the medical care facility last year was only 93.6 percent, and in the first four months of this year it dropped to 93.3 percent.

This is a sizeable decrease from earlier years; in 1974 the occupancy rate was 97.9 percent; in 1975 it was 97.8 percent; and in 1976 it was 98.81 percnet.

The residential unit was 82.2 percent occupied in 1986, 83.3 percent occupied in 1985; and 79.4 percent occupied in 1984.

Speaking of the lower occupancy figures for the residential unit, Richard Tillen, director of the Department of Social Services, told the Courier that unit was not intended to break even.

"It is a service to the county, just like many of the things we do out of our offices here," he said.

Last June, while reviewing the 1986 report on Grandvue, Tillen cited the increasing number of health services rendered senior citizens in their homes by both the District Health Department and the Commission on Aging as one factor in the decreasing admission to Grandvue.

The medical care unit has 73 beds. Most of its revenue comes from Medicaid, some from private sources and a small amount from Medicare.

The residential care unit, with its 27 beds, serves those who need some help and supervision but not regular nursing care. Neither Medicaid nor Medicare contributed to the cost of care in the residential unit.

County commissioner Don Smith, liaison to the Department of Social Services and Grandvue, told the Courier he knew there had been problems between Conkle and the Social Services Board for some time.

Conkle was hired as administrator of Grandvue Medical Care Facility in the summer of 1977 to replace Hilda Watkins, who had been administrator of the facility since it opened in 1949. The Residential Care Unit was completed in 1979.

Conkle came to Charlevoix County from Mount Clemens, where he spent five years as administrator of a 160-bed private medical care facility, and before that he worked as an industrial engineer and salesman.

Cross country boys, girls going to state meet

The boys and girls cross country teams are both on their way to the State Class C finals in Bath on Saturday.

Charlevoix boys teams have twice won the state championship. This is the first time the girls have qualified for the state meet.

Both teams are coached by Pete Spieles, and Ken Plude is assistant coach.

For the Rayder boys – who were state runners-up behind Benzie Central in 1986 – it will be the 11th straight year the team has journeyed to southern Michigan.

The Rayders have fielded a full girls' team for three years.

"We had great races Saturday. If they do that well Saturday we'll see what happens," Spieles said.

The boys continue to be ranked No. 1 in Class C in statewide high school ratings. The girls are ranked No. 4.

The Rayder boys captured the meet with 52 points to unseat defending champion Benzie Central, which came in second with 67 points. Kalkaska, with 104 points, finished in third place.

Pat Rajewski finished in second place in 15:55, 10 seconds behind Benzie's Matt Johnson.

Scott Miller finished in third place in 16:07, Tom Merta 14th in 16:54, Gehry Wiesner 15th in 15:56 and Sean Henne 18th in 17:04.

Paul Wakulat and Dylan Stewart were in 21st place in 17:07 and 23rd in 17:12.

Rajewski, Miller and Wiesner ran super races, Merta ran well after being sick earlier in the week, Henne was off about 10 seconds but did well and Wakulat and Stewart ran excellent reces, Spieles said.

"Our goal is for each runner to run as well as he can and to continue his consistency. If they can just do that, we'll have to see what happens."

The girls, Spieles said, ran a great race and finished in second place with 68 points, one point behind first place Benzie for their best regional finish ever.

Julie Bush finished in fourth place in 21:03, Elka Thomas 12th in 21:46, Betsy Haggard 15th in 22:05, Dora Skuladottir 18th in 22:24 and Heidi Olinger 19th in 22:29.

Sbelly Ferguson was 31st in 22:59 and Kendra Olinger finished in 23:38.

The top time in the meet was run by Cathy Acfley of Hart in 19:21.

Bush has had better races but she ran well, Spieles said of his lead runner. Thomas, he said, ran her best race though she was coming off an injury, Skuladottir ran an excellent race, Haggard ran well as did Heidi Olinger, Spieles continued. "It was a good team race," he commented. He went on to say that the team's goal (at state) is to finish among the top five in the state.

The course at Bath were the finals for both teams will be held is located at Bath High School with the finish at the school's track. Tentative times of the meet are 11 a.m. for the girls meet and 12:20 p.m. for the boys meet.

7th grade comeback wins; 8th grade rally falls short

The middle school girls basketball teams traveled to Central Lake where the seventh graders posted their sixth win, 17-14, and the eighth graders lost 23-21.

The seventh graders came from behind in the closing seconds after trailing by three points with 30 seconds to go.

The team got off to an 8-2 first period lead and increased it to 16-7 at halftime. But Charlevoix failed to score e point in the third period as Central Lake closed the gap to 15-11 going into the final period.

Eliana Gebott took scoring honors with six points.

The seventh grades outscored Central Lake 8-5 from the floor and made one of eight free throws. Central Lake made four of nine charity shots.

The eighth graders came from behind to trim the Central Lake lead to two points, 18-16, at the three-quarter mark and threatened in the closing minutes before losing by two points. They had trailed 8-2 at the quarter and 12-6 at the half.

Central Lake made 11 field goals and one of 12 shots at the line. Charlevoix had seven field goals and seven of 11 free throws.

Becky Martin led Charlevoix's scoring with 10 points.

The junior varsity football team -- despite having just 17 players -- hes finished an undefeeted season. Front row (from left) ere. James Corwln, Mark Rowbothem, Greg Lewls, Chris Seymour, Tony Merwyn, Brian Llvlngston, Pat Elliott, Jeson Corwin. Back row are Ched DeYoung, Jim Merquardt, Chris Dowrowolskl, Trecey Simpson, Mike Stonehem, Tony Werchol, Jeson Parrlsh, Bill Shermen end Joa Stilson. Coaches are Brlan Certa and Berry Anderson.

JVs complete undefeated football season

The Rayder JV football team topped off an undefeated season with a 64-0 shutout of St. Ignace.

"We're all delighted" said coach Brian Certa. "It's the best season the JV's have had since 1981 when we were 7-1. This year we're 8-0 with one tie (against East Jordan early in the season). It's great.

"It was e great team effort on everyone's part. It had to be because there were only 17 players," he added.

Nine of the 17 players, including several linemen, were involved in the scoring for the Rayders.

Brian Livingston opened the scoring with a TD on a run, with James Corwin making it 8-0 with a conversion run.

Jason Corwin scored on a 45-yard pass interception, then scored on a 54-yard run. Greg Lewis passed to James Corwin for the conversion.

Both Corwins added points: in the second period as James scored on a 39-yard run and Jason romped 55 yards for another TD. Lewis passed to Chad DeYoung to make the score 36-0 at halftime.

Livingston opened the scoring in the second half when he went in from the 12.

At that point, Certa began realigning his players as linemen took over the backfield.

Pat Elliott was the first to score as he took the ball in from the two yard line. He then scored the converison.

Early in the final period, Chris Seymour scored from four with James corwin passing to Tony Mervyon for a two-point conversion.

The scoring spree ended when Elliott broke away on a 57-yard run. As he neared the goal line, he fumbled the ball which was scooped up by Bill Sherman who went in to score.

Certa said St. Ignace offered only one serious threat during the game. That was in the third period when they got to the 20-yard line and lost the ball on downs.

"It would have taken a lot to defeat this team when they'd one so well all season," Certa said.

Elliott made 23 tackles to take his total to more than 100 for the season, Livingston had 16 tackles and e fumble recovery, Sherman a fumble recovery and Jason Parrish a pass interception.

The team had 645 total yards on offense.

Certa said James Corwin had more than 1,000 yards for the season.

Varsity wins conference tier crown

Despite being stung on the first play of the game, Charlevoix rallied to beat St. Ignace 25-7 and win a trophy.

The victory gave the Rayders first place in the Class C tier of the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference as the season came to an end.

It took a victory over St. Ignace, which also went into the game 4-0 in the tier, to clinch the title, though.

The Rayders were 5-0 in Class C and 5-3 in overall league play. They finished the season with a 6-3 record in all games.

It looked for a moment like the Rayders were in for a long night, when the Saints scored on a 63-yard run on the first play from scrimmage.

A kicked conversion gave St. Ignace a quick 7-0 lead.

But Charlevoix got back in the game in the second period on a four-yard run by Marv Witthoeft. That touchdown followed an interception by Mike Smith and a 27-yard Dan Drury to Shawn Putman pass.

Putman's kick knotted the score at halftime.

Witthoeft put the Rayders ahead in the third period when he scored from the two following a 16-yard pass to Mark LaBlance and a 35-yard aerial to Scott DeYoung.

After a St. Ignace fumble on their own 31 was recovered by Derek Dutcher, Drury hit Putman with a pass that took the Rayders to the six.

LaBlance then carried it into the end zone.

Turnovers continued to plague the Saints as Chad Thorpe completed the scoring by intercepting a pass at the Rayders' 45 and carrying it 55 yards for the score.

Charlevoix totaled 421 yards, with 233 coming on the ground. Drury connected on 11 of 17 passes for 188 yards to bring his season figures to 74 of 133 for 1,157 yards, good for 14 touchdowns and six conversions.

Leading the Rayders' rushers was Thorpe with 66 yards in 14 carries. LaBlance ran 10 times for 56 yards, Witthoeft 10 for 41 and David Miller six for 41.

Scott DeYoung caught six passes for 103 yards, Putman three for 65 and LaBlance two for 20.

On defense, Miller intercepted two St. Ignace passes, while Smith and Thorp each grabbed off one.

Sacking the quarterback four times was Jamie Montieth, while Scott Denny added a pair. Dutcher and DeYoung recovered fumbles.

Smith made 11 tackles, while Denny and Jason Whitley had nine each. Montieth and LaBlance made eight each and Charles Britton seven.

Youth soccer action concludes

The Chargers won the fourth-sixth division of youth soccer, while the Scorpions won the kindergarten-third grade division.

The season ended with a series of close games.

The Rowdies and Chargers tied 2-2 as Steve Carland and Kevin Schaberg scored for the Chargers and Robby Bunting and Nole Kammerman scored for the Rowdies.

With the season title hinging on the outcome, the Chargers squeaked by the Wildcats 1-0 on a Carland goal. Both teams missed chances to score on penalty kicks.

Final standings in the fourth-sixth division show the Chargers on top, followed by the Wildcats, Cosmos and Rowdies.

In the younger division, the Tornadoes and Turbos played to a scoreless tie and the Scorpions clipped the Turbos 2-1.

Scoring for the Scorpions were Danny Pardee and Josh Miller, while Mat Shindorf scored for the Turbos.

Final standings show the Scorpions in first, followed by the Tornadoes and Turbos.

Cagers lose to Cheboygan

The Rayder girls basketball team dropped its game to Cheboygan 60-35.

The win by Cheboygan and Gaylord's upset by Grayling gave Cheboygan a tie for first place.

The Rayders are 2-8 in the league with e 2-13 overall record.

Cheboygan took an early led and was ahead 16-3 at the quarter, 29-16 at halftime and 47-23 going into the final period.

Ellen Pearl with 13 points and Stacy Gebott with 12 led the scoring for Charlevoix.

The Rayders were outscored 25-15 from the floor and made five of 14 from the line. Cheboygan made 10 of 15 charity shots.

The Charlevoix JV's also fell 71-29. Cheboygan had a 46-9 edvantage et the half.

Melissa Ritt had six points for Charlevoix.

Bell channel dig yields 1 of 7 cables

The technology is state-of-the-art, but the results have been less than a masterpiece.

Michigan Bell's innovative approach to burying cables under Pine River Channel came up short.

Actually, first it came up long, then it came up short.

Using the latest in oil well drilling technology, a crew hired by Bell ended up with one usable conduit out of seven inserted beneath the channel.

When the hole was drilled from the Park Avenue edge of Hoffmann Park to Pine River Lane, the drill bit overshot its mark. Mud pushed through the pipe to show where the hole ended oozed out from between rocks in the Weathervane Terrace terrace wall.

The drill was pulled back, reaimed end punched through the ground to its proper location.

Then a special harness was attached to the seven condults which eventually would house phone-, electric- or cable television-type wires.

Something went wrong about 90 feet below the surface, though. Two cables broke loose under the channel. Another three broke under the park.

Grout being used in the drilling process somehow got inside those three cables and one of the two that made it where it was going – and the grout hardened.

Right now, Bell is trying to devise a plan for a second attempt, which will probably mean starting over a few inches away in the spring.

The city's agreement to let Bell disrupt the park and streets calls for the city to obtain one of the conduits pulled under the channel.

School board considers giving sobriety tests

The Charlevoix school board is considering whether to allow sobriety tests to be conducted in the high school.

High school principal Dave Smith demonstrated possible testing materials during Monday's board meeting.

More research will be done before the board makes a decision on use of the tests.

Also talked about at the meeting was a need for establishing goals and long-range plans.

"We are fortunate to have a strong curriculum council and professional studies group that keep us cognizant of our needs in these areas," Superintendent Gordon VanWieren said.

"However, it is imperative that the board set not only goals for the next couple years but long-range goals as much as 10 years from now."

VanWieren encouraged board members to air their concerns so they can be discussed before being placed on a priority list.

Home tour aids hospital

Foundation set up to aid schools

The Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation has been formed by a group of business and community leaders to receive tax-exempt donations from individuals and firms for use in undertakings designed to enrich the offerings of Charlevoix Public Schools.

"We have created the foundation to give people a chance to help others in some special ways that are not supported by tax revenues," said chairman Mary Lee Campbell.

"Our mission is to raise money through donations to supplement tax revenue for the Charlevoix Schools. The foundation will fund programs, activities, events and facilities designed to benefit people in the Charlevoix School District.

"Foundation funds are in no way meant to replace school taxes."

The foundation will accept gifts of cash, checks, property insurance and will bequests. All donations will be tax-deductible.

Donations can be sent to the Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation, Cherlevolx School [illegible] 208 Clinton St.

"We already have some specific projects in mind for which we will seek contributions, and hope to announce them in the near future," Campbell said. "Meanwhile we will welcome suggestions."

In addition to Campbell, the trustees who serve on the foundation without pay, include: John M. Frey, vice chelrmen; Celeste W. Bickersteth, secretary; Scotty Beatty, treasurer; Thomas L. Dammann; Louis J. Hollow; Alyce L. Lesser; Suzi G. Rets; and Leonard Zehnder.

Non-voting trustees are: Max Novak, president of the school board; Gordon VanWieren, superintendent of schools; and Mary Ann Chew, chairperson of the curriculum council.

"There are any number of excellent programs we have wished for over time which would enrich our students, but which we have never been able to afford," VanWieren said. "The foundation will enable us to fund many of these projects."

VanWieren said several other school districts in the state have set up foundations with success.

Dockmaster would stay put if marina facilities are merged

If marina-related buildings are consolidated into a single building, the dockmaster office will probably not be included.

There is a possibility the dockmaster's facilities could be moved a few feet, though, if the chamber of commerce building is enlarged.

Presently, the dockmaster's office and boaters' showers are on the bottom floor of the chamber building.

The Downtown Development Authority has asked a consulting engineer to look at the possibility of transforming the old waste treatment plant at the channel end of the marina into a multi-function building.

The idea is to rid the dock of such buildings as the Coast Guard quarterdeck shed and the Beaver Island Boat Co. office, while adding restrooms and possibly a cruise ship ticket office.

Members of the DDA thought it might be prudent to include the dockmaster's office in their discussion, but dockmaster Del Terrell said his office is in an ideal place now.

The office is convenient to the portion of the marina his duties are most concerned with, he says, and is close to commercial operations.

After hearing from Terrell, DDA members decided to tell the engineer to consider putting additional boaters' shower facilities in the building, but to leave out the dockmaster office.

While the DDA has been considering what to do at the north end of the marina, the chamber of commerce has been dreaming of the day when it may have more room.

Chamber operations are hampered by such problems as a shortage of space, particularily for storage, and the inability to conduct meetings in the cramped office, executive director Jacquie Merta has said.

A chamber committee has taken a brief look at possibilities for future expansion of the city-owned building.

And the DDA has penciled in expansion as a possible project in a couple years.

Walkway underway; new pier next year?

Walkway construction along the south side of the Pine River Channel has begun, while reconstruction of the south pier is expected next year.

Jim Schulz, project inspector for the present project, says he has been told he will also be the inspector for the pier project in Lake Michigan in 1988.

Schulz, from the Grand Haven Projects Office of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, says he has no details yet on pier work.

But Dave Wong of the Corps' design branch in Detroit earlier this summer told the Courier a new Charlevoix pier would likely resemble the north pier, but zig-zag in the opposite direction.

That mirror-image construction would allow to Corps to surround the pier with sunken boulders, as was done with the north pier.

The boulders, Schulz says, help slow winter wave and ice destruction of the structure. He noted how several pieces of railing were bent by last winter's weather.

Schulz says he has not heard how reconstruction may effect the lighthouse, which is tilting, but says the Corps works hard to preserve local landmarks.

The work presently underway isn't expected to be completed until July 1, Schulz says, but favorable weather may speed that up a little.

About all he expects the contractor, Anlaan Corp. of Grand Haven, to finish this fall, he says, is clearing and digging out the pathway and filling the cavity with stones.

In the spring, concrete will be poured and handrails will be installed, he says.

The crew will be in Charlevoix for about three more weeks, Schulz says.

They are working on a 885-foot section of previously unpaved walkway that stretches from the bridge to the paved apron behind the fish hatchery building.

The Corps looks at the work as erosion control, not construction of a walkway – although it is both.

The revetment is being raised about two feet, Schulz says, to protect the land along the channel.

An eight-foot wide sidewalk will be built along the entire pathway.

A rear curb – which along the north pier is a suitable place to sit – will be built along the west 676 feet because of the steep hillside, he says.

No curb will be constructed along the portion closest to the bridge, although the city requested one be built there.

Also, the Corps has no plans to install lights as it did on the north walkway. The city, however, is having four decorative street lights resembling the ones in Hoffmann Park installed.

Schulz said the Corps would like to extend, at its expense, the stairway next to the bridge to connect with the walkway.

The cost of the project underway now is $214,587, Schulz says.

Work has begun on adding a walkway along the south side of the Pine River Channel. The Corps of Engineers is overseeing the work, which is being done by a Grand Haven company.

Ferry Beach grant request lowered

The city is cutting back its request for a state grant for Ferry Beach improvements.

The Land Trust Fund board of the Department of Natural Resources suggested the cutback after adding the city project to its list for consideration.

Originally Charlevoix asked for $499,710 from the Land Trust Fund to help pay for its $666,000 proposal.

Now the city is asking for a maximum of $342,466 – with that total being further reduced by donations from community groups.

A group interested in the project has been approaching civic organizations for pledges of $1,000 or more to help offset the cost of the project.

Several groups have given their support – with a $2,500 pledge from the Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament committee the largest so far. Several other organizations are still being approached.

To get the request trimmed by about one-third, the city recreation commission and city council have OK'd elimination of some items which may be added later or may possibly be paid for some other way.

The largest of these items are 550 feet of shoreline protection and construction of two additional boat launches.

Central elements of the grant application remain a fish cleaning station, restrooms and concession stand, north breakwall, parking lot renovation, boat pump-out station and additional docks.

Also, the plan calls for relocating the children's play area further from Lake Charlevoix and developing the area north of the beach into a usable passive recreation area.

That 1.4-acre site with 300 feet of lakefront was purchased in 1986 for $215,000 – half of which the Land Trust Fund has reimbursed the city.

Wiesner said the trust fund has about $4.5 million to give out, but has about $9 million in requests from 25 communities.

Charlevoix's was not among the projects on the list of possible recipients released in August, but was added after a city presentation at the trust fund's October meeting.

The state is interested in the project, county youth activities and recreation director Mike Davis said, or the fund board would not have added it to the list.

Middle School begins fund raiser

The Charlevoix Middle School Thursday launches its annual one week fall fund raising project.

Students in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades will be selling a variety of items for use in the home as well as gift giving. The funds support the middle school landscaping project and student activities.

Schools work on career development in all grades

Career development, an on-going process in Charlevoix Public Schools, is being focused on during Career Development Week, Nov. 1-7.

From the first field trips in the early elementary grades through formalized testing in middle school and the high school, students are challenged and encouraged to explore the many options open to them, say school officials.

From kindergarten through fifth grade, elementary students are given numerous opportunities to learn of many careers. Social studies often serves as the vehicle for discussions.

Condit Drury, middle school counselor, says career education takes place almost daily in all grades, but a concentrated effort begins in eighth grade.

During October, Differential Aptitude Test and the Career Planning Questionnaire were given to all eighth graders.

The Differential Aptitude Test includes tests designed for educational and vocational guidance. It helps uncover hidden abilities.

The Career Planning Questionnaire collects information on students' interests in school subjects, activities, careers and educational plans.

The test and questionnaire combine to produce a career planning program, which interprets educational and vocational planning implications of students' test scores.

Barry Pierce, eighth grade social studies teacher, guides the students through the questionnaire and Ann Shindorf, eighth grade science teacher, administers the test. Drury then interprets the results for the students.

"What I like most about the D.A.T. test is that every student gets some positive feedback regarding his or her talents," says Shindorf.

The eight tests stress not just academic talents, but skills in mechanical reasoning, abstract reasoning, space relations and clerical skills.

The scores are tabulated elsewhere and returned for interpretation by the counselor. After interpretation, students may explore areas of interest through the Michigan Occupational Information System of more than 2,000 occupational titles.

At the high school, counselors Toni Felter and Charlie Bentley, teach a unit that helps students learn more about themselves as well as specific careers.

Hospital guild yule sale scheduled

Amy Pfluecke cuddles two items to be featured at the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild's pre-Christmas sale. Looking on are sale committee members Sally Ochs (left) and Sue Gettinger.

Stocking stuffers, Christmas ornaments, toys, candies, books, jewelry and more will be featured at the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild's annual pre-Christmas showing Friday and Saturday, Nov. 6 and 7.

The sale will be held from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday in the hospital lobby.

Also available at the sale will be baked goods made by guild volunteers.

The sale is one of the guild's major projects to raise funds that are eventually applied to nursing scholarships, new medical equipment and other hospital needs.

Coordinating this year's sale under the chairmanship of Mrs. Joseph Morris Jr. are committee members Elaine Tompkins, Sue Gettinger, Sally Ochs, Marge Dinwiddie, Janet Franklin, Edith Close, Marilyn King, Jeanne Miles and Myrtle Fulton.

Teachers get three 7% raises in pact

A three-year teacher contract calling for seven percent pay boosts each year has been ratified by the Charlevoix board of education and the teachers' union.

The contract approval also increases administrators' pay – which is based on teacher salaries.

Barry Anderson, who headed the negotiating team for the Northern Michigan Education Association of Charlevoix, said the contract is a good one for both the teachers and the district.

"The contract had not been updated or rewritten in nine years. We felt it was time to do this. That took time," Anderson said.

The contract terms were not ironed out until mid-September. School began Sept. 8.

Superintendent Gordon W. VanWieren, who negotiated for the board, was also pleased with the contract.

"I feel that it compares with other schools in the area," VanWieren said, "and is a fair and equitable contract. I am happy with it and I hope everyone else will be."

Under the contract, teacher salaries this year will range from $18,266 to $34,975. Under the old agreement, the range was $17,071 to $32,363.

A first-year teacher with a bachelor's degree will be paid $18,266, while a 20-year veteran with a bachelor's will make $30,132.

On the high end of the scale, a teacher with a master's degree plus 30 hours of post-graduate work or Educational Specialist status begins at six years at $26,000 and tops out at $34,975.

There are also pay ranges determined for those with bachelor's degrees and 20 hours, those with master's degrees, and those with master's plus 15 hours.

Administrators' salaries are based on the daily salary of the teacher with a like degree plus a responsibility factor.

Teachers' salaries are based on 181 days. Those of administrators vary with the superintendent, business manager and high school principal working 231 days and the other principals 204 days.

Based on this formula, the superintendent's salary is $55,809, up from $51,915 in the former contract. The business manager's rises to $41,841, the high school principal's to $47,768, the assistant principal's to $38,746 and the middle and elementary school principals' to $40,268.

Fringe benefits, which increased approximately one percent, are not included in these figures.

JEANNE DUBEY

St. Mary teacher gets award from Catholic diocese

Jeanne Dubey, first grade teacher at St. Mary's School, has been awarded an Outstanding Educator of the Year award by the Diocese of Gaylord education office.

The engraved plaque was presented to Dubey and educators from Manistee Catholic Schools and St. Ignatious School in Rogers City.

Dubey was nominated by fellow teachers, administrators and parents. Thougth not a Catholic, she has taught 17 years at St. Mary's.

Staff of all area Catholic schools nominated one teacher from their ranks as a possible recipient.

Votes gathered for gathering law approval

by PEG OHLE

Members of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners got the word, and the're doing something about it.

Three commissioners – chairman Larry Matthew, Tom Breakey and Oral Sutliff – attended the Oct. 26 meeting of the Charlevoix County Townships Association to hear their "little brothers" lambast them for voting down a proposed county mass gathering ordinance which the townships have repeatedly requested over the last three years.

The vote took place Oct. 14, when the ordinance, which had been prepared by Prosecutor Kraag Lieberman at the request of the county board, was brought before the board by Sutliff with a resolution that it be adopted. The ordinance was not on the agenda for that meeting.

Sutliff and Don Smith voted for the resolution, with "no" votes being cast by Breakey, Bud Heeres and Ralph Harmon. Matthew was absent.

Breakey was the only "no" voter at the township association meeting. He tried to support his action by reading a three-year-old opinion by Lieberman that a county-wide mass gathering ordinance was not needed to handle rock music gatherings at The Castle because Marion Township's gathering ordinance was adequate and the county would assist the township when necessary. No mention was made of the needs of other townships.

Breakey was quickly told by township officials that that letter was "ancient history" and "a lot of water has gone over the dam since then."

Lieberman appeared before the townships association twice in the last several months to discuss a gathering ordinance and agreed one was necessary.

After being brought up to date, all three commissioners were told they should spend more time learning of the wishes of the people they represent.

Breakey finally admitted he had made a mistake and said he would vote for the gathering ordinance when it is again brought before the county board, as it will be on Wednesday, Nov. 11.

With Breakey's vote change and the "yes" vote promised by Matthew, the ordinance would be adopted even if Heeres and Harmon again vote against it.

After adoption by the county board, the ordinance will be sent to Gov. James Blanchard for his approval and will become law when that approval is received.

The proposed ordinance, as written, covers outdoor gatherings of 2,000 or more people, but exempts events sponsored by a governmental agency or other tax-exempt organization.

Sponsors of an applicable mass gathering must obtain a license for the event and must abide by licensing requirements, which include: security personnel, medical facilities, food service, water facilities, plumbing, liquid waste disposal, solid waste disposal, vector (rodents, insects, etc.) control, restroom facilities, supervision of facilities, responsibility for clean-up, general responsibility, access and traffic control, parking, illumination, insurance, bonding, fire protection, sound producing equipment, and communications.

Variety show looks back at 3 decades

The high school performing arts team presents "Remember the '60s, Forget the '70s, Hello '80s" on Saturday, Nov. 14.

The fall variety show will be performed by the varsity players who have won the state drama Class C championships for four years.

From "American Bandstand" to "Saturday Night Live," the performers will provide glimpses of Ed Sullivan and Dick Clark and scenes from "Beverly Hillbillies" and "Dobie Gillis."

Songs, dances and skits will revolve around "Barbara Ann," "Going to the Chapel," "Moon River," "The Lion Sleeps Tonight," "Somewhere Out There" and "Stay By Me."

Tickets are $3 for adults and $2 for students and senior citizens. They will be available at the door or in advance at the high school office. Curtain time is 7:30 p.m.

Sheriff checks absentee homes

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department will check on homes for residents expecting to the absent for any period of time.

The home-owner must obtain a security check form from the Sheriff's office. The request must be re-submitted each year.

Sheriff George Lasater said the program is not intended to take the place of private sercurity programs, but is a supplement to them.

THAT CHAMPIONSHIP SEASON

1987 state Class C cross country champions: Sean Henne, Hal Chase, Tom Merta, Gehry Wiesner, Dylan Stewart, Pat Rajewski, Scott Miller, Paul Wakulat

Runners earn 3rd state title

State finals results, photos
Pages 6-7

Whistles blew, horns blasted and sirens screeched Saturday night as Charlevoix welcomed home its high school Class C cross country boys championship team.

In winning the state title, the Rayders defeated the defending Class C champions, Benzie Central, the Rayders' nemesis for the past few years.

Pat Rajewski was the second place runner, as he finished in the top 20 in the state event for the fourth straight year. Scott Miller was the fifth runner, also earning an all-state berth.

This is the third year the Rayders have won the state crown – previous first place finishes came in 1982 and 1983. Benzie took home top honors the past three years.

Charlevoix's girls team competed in the state meet for the first time and finished 12th among 18 teams. This is the girls' team's third year of competition.

"It was a great race," said coach Pete Spieles. "We ran exactly the kind of race we planned to run. Everyone ran the kind of race we've been running in recent weeks. It is tough to run that kind of race but they did it.

"Pat, Scott, Gehry (Weisner) and Tom (Merta) were great and Sean (Henne) ran a tough, consistent race. Paul (Wakulat) and Dylan (Stewart) did their part. Overall, it was an excellent team race.

"As for the girls, this is only the third year we've had a girls' team and the first time we've qualified for state. I was proud of the way they ran.

"We were aiming for the top five as a goal after we qualified. Our second goal was to compete as a team and do our best. For running the first time in a state meet I think they had a super race."

Spieles said Elka Thomas got pushed off the course at the half-mile mark and had to go back, which put her at the end of the pack. Between that point and the end of the race she passed 77 runners.

"Overall, there were spots where we could have done better but it was still a fine performance by a young team," Spieles said of the girls' performance. He pointed out that the boys' team, in their first state competition, came in 15th.

The Rayders placed first with 85 points followed by Benzie with 120, Williamston in third with 137 and Kalkaska in fourth with 156 among the 18 teams competing.

Rajewski's time of 15:45.1 was 6.1 seconds behind the 15:45.1 of Eric Ramsey of Onsted.

Miller placed fifth in 16:02.1, Weisner 22nd in 16:48.2, Merta 23rd in 16:49.2 and Henne 33rd in 17:04.0. The top five places count in tabulating team scores.

Paul Wakulat finished in 52nd place in 17:22.5 and Dylan Stewart was 63rd in 17:35.2.

The girls placed 12th with 245 points. DeWitt took the event with 78 points.

Julie Bush, the Rayders' top runner, placed 24th in 20:51.4. Thomas was 43rd in 21:27.7, Betsy Haggard 51st in 21:47.3, Dora Skuladottir 53rd in 21:49.4 and Heidi Olinger 74th in 22:25.2.

Shelly Ferguson finished 96th in 23:07.2 and Kendra Olinger 109th in 24:05.0.

Rajewski, Merta, Henne and Hal Chase are seniors on the boys' team, and Haggard, Olinger, Skuladottir, Jennie Green and Kaye Stoneham are seniors on the girls team.

The Rayder boys finished the season by extending their streak to 60 straight dual wins and capturing the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference championship and the Class C regional title.

The girls placed second in conference competition and second in regional Class C competition to qualify for state for the first time.

COACH HAILED BY CURRENT, PAST RUNNERS

by FRAN MARTIN

Pete Spieles

"I'd like to know what that guy has that I haven't got," the father of a cross country runner said earlier this year.

"I can ask my kid to mow the lawn and it never gets done. He can ask him to go out and run in the lousiest weather and, if he told him to run into a brick wall at the end of the race, the kid would say, "How did I do, coach? Do you want me to do it again?' "

"That guy" is Pete Spieles who has just guided his Charlevoix High School cross country team to its third state championship.

Like the father, many have wondered how this quiet, unassuming yet confident, soft-spoken very private person can inspire young men, separated by age and interests off the field, to unselfishly work as one to accomplish what his teams have.

Accomplishments like:

- 60 consecutive dual meet victories.
- 10 Michigan-Huron Shores titles in the past 11 seasons.
- Five regional championships.
- Three state Class C championship trophies in the past six years.

His runners, and others who have worked with him, praise Spieles' abilities as a coach.

Pat Rajewski, veteran member of this year's championship team says he is proud to be a member of Spieles' team.

"I think it is his dedication that makes him a great coach," Rajewski says. "He is fair; he gives everyone an equal chance.

"He studies you, knows how you can run your best and helps you to take advantage of your best points to improve. He brings out the best in all of us."

Bill Taylor – an all-stater in '82 and '83 who is now on the Central Michigan team – says Spieles is the kind of coach "you'd want your kids working with.

"He can bring out the talent in his runners and convinces them of their ability," Taylor says. "He's quiet, confident and believes in himself and the kids.

"He knows how to bring out the best in his students and his runners. In other words, he's a great motivator. He is enthusiastic about what he is doing. Even now he continues to do a lot for me."

Walt Drenth – now on the cross country coaching staff at Central Michigan University and a former member of the CMU team – in 1976 was an all-stater. Drenth says it is difficult to sum up what Spieles has meant to him and his family as a coach and friend.

"I ran for him and then returned to work with him as a student teacher. What I learned about coaching from him has been invaluable to me. I apply a good many of the things I learned through my association with him in my coaching today," Drenth says.

"He, Kermit Ambrose (director of the Wolverine Cross Country Camp) and my brother (the late Jeff Drenth, who became a world class runner) all had a great impact on me.

"He is a great mentor. I guess I would say that he's great because he cares ... about the kids, especially, and about everyone else involved. I know he has come to mean a great deal to our family."

Channel hotel plan suffers setback

What's good for the condo isn't necessarily good for the hotel.

That's the message the planning commission sent Northern Michigan Realty Services when it recommended denial of a pair of variances for a proposed Park Avenue hotel.

Though lawyer-developer Don Berlage pleaded his case that the buildings were virtually similar, the planning commissioners don't think they should be.

The complicated controversy has been traveling through city government for half a year and still has stops to make at city council, the zoning board of appeals and back at the planning commission.

And Berlage says he still isn't sure what he wants to do with the property.

An 11-unit condominium-ownership townhouse building won city approval with the stipulation it be cocked away from the Pine River Channel enough to ensure continued viewing from Hoffmann Park.

The zoning board reversed a planning commission rejection of hotel use on the site, and a 21-unit hotel proposal began the approval process.

Planners, though, rejected the notion that a 35-foot tall building with four-foot chimneys and turrets was OK for the hotel if it was OK for the condos.

The zoning ordinance treats such things as building height and stories differently for various categories of buildings. So, while the condos, for instance, were approved in a 3½-story building, the hotel will not be if the zoning board agrees with the planners.

The planning commission refused to consider a site development plan until the zoning board decides on the height and chimney-turret variances requests. The zoning board meets Wednesday, Nov. 18.

Berlage said he was willing to alter the hotel plan to accommodate the city's concern over preserving views along the channel.

"I would be receptive to conditional approval on moving it back but would like not to move it back... quite as far as the 11-unit condominium," he said.

AROUND THE TOWN

That effort to save the dunes area now has an official name – Preserve North Point.... But checks should still be made out to Little Traverse Conservancy, which is guiding a number of community groups through fund-raising....

If $700,000 can be raised – more than half of that is being asked of the state Land Trust Fund – in less than two years, the half-mile stretch along Lake Michigan will be purchased and turned over to Charlevoix Township for use as a natural scenic area.

The East Park bandshell will be the subject of a recreation committee public hearing in early December.... Interest in replacing the crumbling structure has been refueled in recent weeks....

Earlier efforts to rebuild the bandshell have produced drawings of interesting proposals and bank accounts drawing interest.... An attempt several years ago to obtain a grant to finance the project failed.

Doll dress-up, auction raise hospice funds

by PEG OHLE

Hand-dressed dolls now being shown at branches of Northwesterrn State Bank in Atwood, Bellaire, East Jordan, Boyne City and Boyne Falls.

The doll bodies were supplied by the bank and dressed by local women in a cooperative fund-raising project to benefit the Charlevoix County Hospice.

The dolls are sold by silent auction, with a minimum bid of $10. Since the auction started, four years ago, the average bid has been between $20 and $25, depending upon the way the doll is dressed.

A bank spokesman explained that the auction has become a favorite event for doll collectors, especially those who collect ethnic and period-dressed dolls.

This year, there will be several dark-skinned dolls dressed in the costume of such countries as Jamaica and Puerto Rico.

Then, of course, there will be plenty of playmate dolls for little girls to cuddle and care for.

Dolls like these, which were sold at last year's silent auction, will be available to high bidders during the week of Dec. 1 to 9 at Northwestern State Bank buildings in East Jordan and Boyne City. Proceeds will go to the Charlevoix County Hospice.

The dressed dolls have just begun to appear at the bank branches and more will be added daily until Nov. 30.

They will remain on display until that time, when they will be taken to the bank's main offices in East Jordan and Boyne City.

The week of Dec. 1-9 is designated "official bidding week" when hopeful buyers may write out their bids, which will be opened at the end of the week.

For those wanting to dress a doll, there are still some available at the bank branches. All dolls must be dressed and returned by Nov. 30 for judging.

Those dressing winning dolls will receive prizes and all who dress dolls will receive honorary memberships in the Charlevoix County Hospice.

Harry Golski

Attorney HARRY K. GOLSKI has joined the Charlevoix office of the Simpson & Moran law firm as an associate. Golski received his law degree from Wayne State University Law School.

For nine years Golski was an associate attorney in Mount Clemens and for the past three years was an assistant prosecuting attorney in Oakland County.

CHUCK CENTER has joined Davis Chevrolet as sales manager. In that role, he will be responsible for one of two sales teams.

The Charlevoix resident is a 1964 graduate of Concord High School, who later attended Jackson Community College and served three years in the Army.

SUZANNE FLOOD of Ellsworth is a contestant in the Miss Michigan USA pageant. She is a senior at Ellsworth High School and is co-editor of the yearbook, president of the SAAD chapter, vice president of the Student Council, secretary of the senior class, member of the honor roll and National Honor Society, cheerleader and has participated in girls varsity basketball and track.

Waste panel calls timeout

The new Solid Waste Management Plan for Charlevoix County will not be completed this year.

After 10 monthly meetings, the committee appointed to rewrite the present plan has decided not to hold another meeting until January, by which time it is hoped some of the problems hindering its work will have been eased.

The committee is trying to write a plan detailing how garbage and trash generated in the county should be disposed of.

Most of it is now being deposited in the Charlevoix County Landfill in Eveline Township, but there are concerns that facility will fill up in a few years because waste from several counties is being deposited there.

There are also concerns about ground and air pollution from the landfill, which is located near a stream that empties into Lake Charlevoix and flows past several residential wells.

The committee has talked about limiting the area from which waste may be taken to the Charlevoix landfill and putting a surcharge on users of the landfill to raise money for research and possible recycling facilities, but it has been unable to come to a meeting of the minds.

When the committee goes back to work in January, it will be faced with the news that the Crawford-Otsego County Landfill, which Charlevoix County hoped to include in its plan as a backup waste despository, has decided to limit its intake to waste generated in Crawford and Otsego counties.

Missionary talks about Honduras

Missionary Mike Robinson will address the Northern Michigan District zone rally of the Church of the Nazarene.

The reverend, who has been a missionary to Honduras, will speak and show slides at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 12, at the Church of the Nazarene in Charlevoix.

Teacher training cancels classes

There will be no school Wednesday Nov. 25, as public school teachers attend an in-service meeting from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Dr. Thomas L. McGreal, from the University of Illinois' department of administration, higher and continuing education, will talk about the practical application of current research in teaching.

He will also discuss changes in education and how these changes affect today's students.

The following committee members were responsible for making the arrangements for this year's in-service: Mary Ann Chew, Kay Fiedorek, Charles Bentley, Gayle Gennett, Jeanne Seymour and Superintendent Gordon VanWieren.

Ready for variety show

Members of the Dramatic Arts team at Charlevoix High rehearse for this weekend's variety show. The musical look at the 1960s, '70s and '80s will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 14, in the high school. Tickets are available at the school office and at the door.

Hospital testing cholesterol levels

Charlevoix Area Hospital will offer cholesterol-HDL tests to the general public on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Nov. 18-20.

Testing will be held from 7 to 9 a.m. in the hospital laboratory.

The tests, a repeat of a cholesterol screening clinic one year ago, will be conducted for persons 20 years old and over. The cost is $5.

Those interested in having the test done should fast for 8 hours prior to the testing. Anyone unable to fast for that amount of time due to illness or physician instructions should follow their doctor's advice.

According to Chief Lab Technician Ralph Corwin, the test will show both the cholesterol level in the blood and the HDL, or, high denisty lipoprotein. High levels of cholesterol in the bloodstream can lead to narrowing and eventual blockage of blood vessels. The result can be severe chest pain and eventually heart attack.

HDL is sometimes referred to as "good cholesterol" because it is thought to carry cholesterol away from the tissues. Thus by testing for both cholesterol and HDL, the physician can get a more accurate assessment of a person's risk of heart disease.

After they are processed, test results will be mailed to each participant along with a brief explanation of what they mean.

Mesquite return home is short

The Coast Guard cutter Mesquite has returned from training but has departed already on its fall buoy run.

The ship returned late Saturday from three weeks intense training in Cleveland.

The ship then started its buoy season with the Lake Michigan NOAA (National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration) buoy 48 nautical miles west of Charlevoix.

That buoy takes in weather data all summer and is one of the key sources for weather information on Lake Michigan for the National Weather Service. The buoy, however, is not equipped to withstand ice, snow and high seas of winter so must be removed until spring.

The crew will be working seven days a week until Christmas on buoys in northern Lake Huron, Lake Michigan and the Straits of Mackinac.

Ski Swap sale set

The annual Ski Swap, sponsored by the Charlevoix High School ski team, will be held in the high school cafeteria on Sunday, Nov. 22.

Winter sports equipment will be sold on consignment.

Equipment and apparel will be accepted for re-sale from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 21. The sale will be 1-5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 22.

Opinion

More than champions

A winning tradition.

That's what Pete Spieles has built with the Charlevoix boys cross country team. And what he is building with the girls team.

It was more than a talented bunch of kids he took to Bath to claim the championship trophy. It was a physically and mentally prepared team.

Anyone who sees high school cross country as a sport of individuals – such as the marathon or Olympic-style running – is looking past what's really going on.

Sure, a championship caliber team starts with talented runners – the Drenths, the Taylors, the Bergmanns, the Rajewskis, the Millers – but that's just the start.

What brought the state Class C trophy back to Charlevoix for the third time in six years was more than great individual efforts. It was great team effort.

It was a year-round dedication to betterment, not just by those aiming to win all-state honors, but also by those who are destined to finish back in the pack.

That's where someone like Pete Spieles comes in. Spieles' accomplishments are spelled out in Fran Martin's front page story, but a more-telling appraisal comes in the article's comments – comments from past and present members of his team.

"He brings out the best in all of us."

"He's great because he cares.... I know he has come to mean a great deal to our family."

"Even now he continues to do a lot for me."

Through his dedication and motivation, Spieles has molded a team of young people who care deeply about doing a job well. And who are willing to put in the time, the effort and the hardship to do it well.

Several parents of runners have mentioned how their teens carefully recruit others they think could help the team – or be helped by it. And how close the group – boys and girls, seniors and freshmen – has become.

It's their team, and they want it to do the best. And to be the best.

Students learn many things from their teachers. And Pete Spieles' lesson plan is hard to beat.

Chamber backs purchase

Editor,

This letter was sent to the Little Traverse Conservancy:

At our board meeting on Oct. 22, 1987, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce directors voted unanimously to endorse the Little Traverse Conservancy's acquisition of North Point.

In our day-to-day lives many times we come across a cause that deserves our attention and think "something should be done." All too often people have great ideas but when it comes to action it's someone else's job.

In regards to North Point, it is impressive that your organization has taken action initiating steps to purchase this magnificent 28-acre site for the purpose of preservation and public accessibility.

We wish you success in obtaining $400,000 from the Michigan Land Trust Fund and $300,000 in private donations. Realizing that time is of the essence, if we can be of any assistance please don't hesitate to call the chamber office.

Suzi Reis, President
Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce

Gone in puff of smoke

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

It is incredible that President Reagan is having such a hard time finding a suitable candidate for the U.S. Supreme Court.

First, the Senate nixed his initial choice, Robert Bork, by a vote of 58-42 because Bork was too far from the mainstream of traditional judicial thinking.

Then on Saturday, Douglas Ginsburg, Reagan's second choice, withdrew his nomination after disclosing that he had been an occasional marijuana smoker during his university days and later as a law professor.

The admission boosted Ginsburg several notches in the estimation of the radical left, but it left the conservative right in the untenable position of having to back a candidate for the nation's highest court who was not above flaunting the law.

No telling whom Reagan will nominate next, but I am sure that there are literally thousands of judges in this vast country who would do an admirable job on the Supreme Court.

We have two excellent choices right here in Charlevoix County: District Judge Harvey Varnum and Circuit Judge Richard Pajtas. Certainly they don't have the impressive judicial credentials of Robert Bork and Douglas Ginsburg. But both are decent, honorable men with a pretty clear idea of what's right and what's wrong.

"But they'll have to intrepret the Constitution," my devil's advocates cry.

Big deal. The Constitution is written in plain English, and so far as I know neither of my candidates has any trouble understanding the language.

Reagan's difficulty in finding a suitable candidate certainly doesn't speak well for the president or his underlings. They obviously are not looking for a good candidate but rather a mouthpiece for the narrow, cold, almost bloodless social and political philosophy that has been the trademark of the Reagan administration.

GINBURG'S admission that he used marijuana illegally raises an important question that we all will have to deal with sooner or later:

Should all judges, lawmakers, and other public officials be held to higher standards of conduct and morality than ordinary citizens?

If so, then I am afraid we will have a paucity of candidates for public office for the foreseeable future.

Furthermore, I for one would not like to have the reins of government in the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Goodie Two-Shoes.

Already in this election campaign we have lost two good Democratic presidential candidates: Gary Hart because of his philandering and Joseph Biden because of his plagiarism. Of the two, plagiarism is a far more heinous crime as far as I'm concerned because it reflects a rather cavalier attitude toward the truth. As for philandering, no one aside from Hart and his wife is in a position to pass judgment, since we simply to not know that much about their private lives. Nor have we a right to.

Of course, there is no pat answer to the question, but it is something we are going to have to wrestle with privately as the media becomes more aggressive in ferreting out the details of the private lives of men and women called to government service.

The nation in the past certainly would have been deprived of the services of some highly talented people if they all had to prove they were squeaky-clean before assuming office.

THE NEXT TIME you hear someone complaining about the postal service, consider this:

Last Sunday afternoon I mailed a letter to my daughter Allison in Grand Rapids. The letter was not picked up in Charlevoix until sometime rather late in the day. Yet it was delivered early Monday in Grand Rapids.

You couldn't do much better than that if you hired a private courier.

Such fast service for only 22 cents! It's unbelleveable!

Thanks, fellows and gals of the U.S. Postal Service. Grand Rapids is a lot closer than it used to be.

Oyster Bay too fragile for large marina

Letters to the editor:

Editor,

This letter was sent to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. It concerns the proposed marina development at Oyster Bay in the development of the Fox property.

The question of a marina on Oyster Bay is a vital issue to the health of Lake Charlevoix, not just in the environmentally sensitive area of Oyster Bay, but as a precedent for all the undeveloped shoreline of the lake.

Lake Charlevoix is unique. It is nationally known as a beautiful and clean lake to which people flock for fishing, boating, recreation and simply enjoying the beauty of northern Michigan.

Lake Charlevoix is unique because the majority of its shoreline retains that natural beauty which attracts people here both as visitors and as new residents.

The economic impact of the high quality of Lake Charlevoix's environment is evident in the flourishing resort and tourist economies. The high quality of Lake Charlevoix's environment also plays a major role in attracting new industry. People come here because the lake is beautiful and clean, because this is a healthy place to live.

If marinas are permitted to multiply along the shoreline the water quality and aesthetic quality of the lake will be denegrated and the negative economic impact will far outweigh the immediate short term benefits.

The dollars spent in the Lake Charlevoix environs over generations have benefited all residents. Unfettered construction of marinas and subsequent alterations of the shoreline will destroy that source of income which directly or indirectly impacts all businesses and residents.

No matter what the plans call for, valuable wetlands will be disturbed during the construction of this marina. Dredging will be necessary to permit access to the marina.

A permanent marina permits the docking of large vessels.

The combined impact of the construction, the destruction of wetlands and the presence of unusually large vessels can only be negative.

Everyone knows Oyster Bay is a popular boating destination. Boaters who are on the Great Lakes turn to Lake Charlevoix for pleasant sailing when weather conditions make the big lakes unsafe. Oyster Bay is nationally known because of its clean and protected waters.

Fishers know the area from Oyster Bay east along the shore of the former Camp Charlevoix and onward past Birdland toward Horton Bay for its excellent bass and trout fishery.

Studies have repeatedly shown the fragile nature of the shorelands of this area. Cladaphora studies have pinpointed areas of high growth just east of Oyster Bay. Cladaphora is an early warning of the beginning of lake degredation by nutrients.

Water clarity studies of Lake Charlevoix have shown a gradual decrease in clarity over the past decade.

The changes taking place are slow and subtle, but they are the result of increased shoreline activity and lake use.

The construction of new marinas, the clear cutting of shorelines, the destruction of filtering wetlands contribute to these changes which will eventually lead to basic changes in the aquatic habitat if not outright pollution of the lake.

For generations, lakefront home owners have moored their vessels off shore or used seasonal docks for smaller boats.

Seasonal docks, by their nature, are low impact facilities. The lake and weather conditions prevent those of us with seasonal docks from permanently berthing large vessels. But do not feel sorry for people with seasonal docks. There is no hardship in living on Lake Charlevoix and having a low impact on its fragile environment.

Adequate marinas exist in the municipalites of Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan, for those of us with boats too large for seasonal docks. I submit this is a healthy situation. The pollution potential from these large vessels is contained in specific areas, rather than being spread all along this fragile lake's shore.

All boats ooze fuel. Owners wash their boats with detergents, bleaches and solvents. Owners paint their boats with highly toxic anti-fouling paints and similar substances.

The coming and going of large boats creates washes, churns up lake bottom sediments.

Marinas become a source of increased and potentially dangerous nutrients.

A comparison of the water quality at a marina with the quality of water off a small seasonal dock might be pertinent.

Where would you rather swim? If you had to take a drink of lake water, where would you prefer to dip your cup? Off a dock in a marina housing large vessels or off a seasonal dock? Where do you find more algae?

Living on any body of water is a privilege with certain responsibilities. We do not have an inherent right to destroy wetlands, dredge the lake bottom or cause potential future problems by building marinas for large vessels. We have a responsibility to everyone else who uses the lake and to future generations of lake users.

The lake does not belong to the lakefront property owners. The lake belongs to the public. It is our trust, as property owners, taxpayers, government officials to preserve the lake in its best state for all who would use it – boaters, fishers, swimmers, viewers.

Lake Charlevoix continues to attract new residents and visitors. We must not destroy Lake Charlevoix in our rush to profit from its attractiveness or enjoy its assets.

We rely on the Department of Natural Resources and Army Corps of Engineers to help protect our valuable natural resources from damage. This marina request is not a reasonable use of the lake. I urge you to deny the request for a marina and encourage the use of low-impact seasonal docks.

Beacons of Blessing

by Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

One of my senior preacher friends tells a story about a 1930 Model A Ford that he had bought. It was a one owner car but that one owner had used it for just about everything except a chicken coop.

One afternoon as my friend was working on it, a fellow passed by and asked, "what's the matter with the car?"

It doesn't run.

At this, the stranger got kind of aggravated. "Henry Ford never made a Model A that wouldn't run." With that, he systematically began checking the car: gas in the tank, gas to the carburetor, spark to the cylinder.

Step by step, he went through the whole mechanical process until the car finally came to life.

If your faith doesn't seem as strong as it ought to be or mean as much as you thought it would, maybe you need to go back over things and check for where the breakdown might be.

You may be missing the very blessing from God you need in your life because of something small that you can change.

The way we look at our faith can spell the difference between victory and defeat in our walk with God. Go about convinced that life is a hopeless cause and I can predict a sure increase in your feelings of frustration.

Carry on with a joy in your heart and a spring in your step and you'll be surprised at just how much of God's love that you have with you.

The same thing our friend discovered about his Model A can be said of our faith. God doesn't give us a faith that won't run. It's all in how we use it. Jesus said faith the size of a grain of mustard seed could move mountains. Imagine what you could do with your faith if you really used it.

Long-distance surprise

Family trick brings ex-area woman back from Florida

Rosemarie Lusk doesn't live around here anymore, but that doesn't mean people have forgotten her. But we'll let her tell the story.

I'm writing to share with you a human interest story of a loving and giving family and how much they mean to me.

Let me first introduce myself. My name is Rosemarie Lusk and for the last 6½ years have lived in Florida and before that lived in Ellsworth.

This October I celebrated my 50th birthday. You're probably thinking whats so special about that? And I would tend to agree, but my family thought otherwise.

I was up to visit this past August with my husband, and we rented a cabin on Lake Charlevoix and one would think most people would take that time to honor one's birthday when they live so far away, even if the birthday was on Oct. 5 - but not by family. They worked and planned for months involving friends and family from all parts of the state of Michigan and using an "elaborate while lie" of my husband winning $2,688 in the Michigan Lotto.

My husband stated we needed to fly to Michigan to collect the money and I wanted him to fly alone. But he wouldn't hear of it and so he stated he would make the reservations (wouldn't let me) and we flew from Florida to Grand Rapids on Oct. 16.

Arriving in Grand Rapids, we were greeted by our daughter, son-in-law, grandson (Carla, Stan and Jason Gzym) who live in Grand Rapids now, and are formerly of Ellsworth.

They greeted my husband with a balloon with congradulations on it and a lotto ticket taped to it and my mother was there too. My mother is Mary Ann Farkas of Charlevoix.

She too was telling Jerry how happy she was about his "lotto" winnnings and that she had come down from Charlevoix with a friend and that Carla and Stan were going to take her home on Oct. 17 and take us on a color tour at the same time.

All the while I never suspected anything. I had no reason to as I had already received cards and gifts on my birthday, Oct. 5.

We drove to Charlevoix on Saturday the 17th and what usually takes about three hours, took more than seven hours, stopping along the way. I really thought they were taking too long, but thought "oh well" having no idea that they were stalling in order to arrive at the hall at 7:30 p.m. sharp.

We were to drop Jason off at the community hall in Ellsworth to stay the night with a friend and was told the friend was at the hall working with his parents decorating for Halloween. So I walked in with all the rest to see how the project was coming along.

When we walked into the hall there were all those people at tables having a party and singing "Happy Birthday to you!"

Rosemarie and Jerry Lusk

It took a few looks from my daughter, husband and mother before I could comprehend that this party was for me. I was in shock and disbelief and even more so when my husband said "and there ain't no lotto!"

This was no ordinary party. The theme was the '50s with music and dress from that era. Even Mother disappeared and returend wearing a poodle skirt.

I was presented with a "This is Your Life" with the players being members of my family participating in skits such as my first communion, (by my niece, Trisha Farkas) and a cheerleading duo (by nieces Jennie VanderArk and Carrie Farkas). Other members of my family had their parts also.

This was followed by the "Wheel of Fortune" featuring my sister, Beatrice Parton (sho works in your city hall) as "Banana White." The category selected was "people" and I had to select the right letters to spell three different names – each time a wrong letter was selected, a horn would sound (played by another niece, Becky VanderArk) and if I selected a vowel I had to get on my knees and beg. The "people" turned out to be two long-time friends and one cousin whom I hadn't seen for over 10 years. The birthday cake was designed as a "lotto ticket" carrying their hoax even further.

All of this memorable party was being video-taped and if that wasn't enough, they arranged for the taping to continue the next day by following my husband Jerry and I through the town of Charlevoix and to our favorite areas in Charlevoix.

With all the negative stories one hears about families of today, I wanted to let the town of Charlevoix (also Grand Rapids, Traverse City Breckenrich, Ellsworth, Grand Haven and others) that I am very proud of my family and will never forget their months of working and planning in giving me the best memory of my 50th birthday ever.

How so many people could plan such an event and pull it off without me knowing it, I'll never know. Many, many thnaks to my family - mother Mary Ann Farkas, sisters Judy VanderArk, Shirley Jensky, Beatrice Parton, brothers Eugene Farkas, Bill Farkas and to my very special husband Jerry and my special daughter Carla and her family, and all the brothers-, sisters-in-law, nieces and nephews. Also special thanks to my niece Dionne Farkas for being the commentator and also thanks to the terrific video job done by Dave Christiansen.

It makes one feel that they truly are loved and the richest "lotto" in the world could not buy the feelings I've felt. I deeply appreciate my family's love and will never forget this birthday or how much they mean to me. Thanks again to all my family and friends.

HAYES TOWNSHIP

The Hayes Township Planning Commission will hold a Public Hearing immediately following the P.U.D. hearing on the Charlevoix Country Club, Nov. 17, 1987 at the Township Hall, Old US-31 and Burgess Roads to consider the addition of the following definitions, and word changes to Sec. 5.13 "G" of the Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance:

Definitions Sec. 4.13
Windmills

Any device used to harness the wind for generation of electricity or pumping water. The use of windmills shall be allowed in all districts providing that such devices meet the following criteria:

1. The setbacks shall be a minimum of fifty (50) feet from adjoining property lines.

2. If the height of the structure is to exceed fifty (50) feet, the tower must be set back at least one (1) horizontal foot for every vertical foot of height from adjoining property lines.

Home Satellite Receivers.

A Home Satellite receiver is any antenna for use in receiving Satellite TV transmission.

Home Satellite receivers shall have the same setback as structures in each district. The setback shall be equal to or greater then the height of the receiver at its tallest point.

Article V
Section 5.13, "G"
Shoreland Protection Strip Replanting and Restoring Requirements.

If the vegetation and/or soil is altered or disturbed within the Shoreland Protection Strip the following conditions shall be met:

1. Any and all fill material placed within the Shoreland Protection Strip shall be removed. Organic soil may be added as needed to provide for growth of new vegetation.

2. A strip of land thirty-five (35) feet wide, from normal high water mark, bordering the body of water, shall be replanted. The replanted strip shall consist of a mix of deep rooted trees (either deciduous or evergreen trees).

Spacing requirements: (no change)

Written comments may be sent to Ethel Knepp, Zoning, Administrator, 10772 Burnett Rd., Charlevoix or William Henne, 08347 Boyne City Rd., Charlevoix.

Obituaries

Josephine M. Dhaseleer

Josephine M. Dhaseleer, 100, died Saturday, Nov. 7, at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Charles and Darleen Dhaseleer, with whom she lived in recent years.

Funeral services were held Monday at St. Mary's Church. The Rev. James K. Gardiner was the celebrant. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery. The rosary was recited at Winchester Funeral Home on Sunday evening.

She was born April 2, 1887, in the Dakota Territory near what is now Demock, S.D., daughter of Henry and Elizabeth (Schmidt) Ricksgers. She journeyed to Texas by covered wagon and then to Illinois and, still as a young girl, to Beaver Island with her parents. On May 12, 1914, she married John A. Dhaseleer in St. James.

They lived on Beaver Island until coming to Barnard area near Charlevoix in 1925. Mr. Dhaseleer preceded her in death on Dec. 2, 1971.

She was a member of St. Mary's Church and its Rosary Altar Society and the Barnard Grange.

Surviving are her son and daughter-in-law; a daughter Elizabeth Mosher of East Jordan and Zephyrhills, Fla; 15 grandchildren and 21 great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to Charlevoix County Hospice or St. Mary's Rosary Altar Society. Envelopes are available at Winchester Funeral Home.

Sandra A. Borja

Charlevoix native Sandra Ann (Ulrich) Borja, 46, of Warren, died Oct. 10, 1987, in Warren.

Memorial services were held Oct. 13 at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Sterling Heights.

Mrs. Borja was born March 30, 1941, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Alden and Marge Ulrich. She graduated from Charlevoix High School and the University of Michigan.

She married Aldo Borja on July 18, 1964, in Charlevoix.

She taught elementary school in several Michigan communities including Warren.

She was a member of St. Paul Lutheran Church in Sterling Heights. She and her family spent their summers and holidays in Charlevoix.

Survivors include: her husband, Aldo; four children, Mara Skinner of Mount Clemens, twins Valerie and Jeff and Marcel at home; two grandchildren; her parents, Alden and Marge Ulrich of Charlevoix; a sister, Kay Merrifield of Kodiak, Alaska; a brother, Peter Johnson of Mount Clemens; her grandmother, Anna King of Toledo, Ohio; several uncles and aunts, nieces and nephews.

George E. Smith

George E. Smith, 73, died Tuesday, Nov. 3, at his Hayes Township home.

Funeral services were held at St. Mary's Church on Thursday, Nov. 5, with the Rev. James K. Gardiner as celebrant. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery. The rosary was recited Wednesday, Nov. 4, at Winchester Funeral Home which was in charge of arrangements.

Born in Rapid City on July 22, 1914, the son of Henry A. and Rose (LaFontsee) Smith was raised in Rapid City and Alden before coming to Charlevoix in 1929. He attended school in Alden and Charlevoix.

On September 26, 1939, he married Anna Marie Kortan in East Jordan. They always made their home in Charlevoix, where he was employed in the Charlevoix utility department for 37 years before retiring in 1976. Mrs. Smith preceded him in death Oct. 31, 1987.

He was a member of St. Mary's Church, a charter member of the Father Pierre Charlevoix, Knights of Columbus and a member of Maple Grove Grange and Charlevoix County Farm Bureau. He served on the Hayes Township board of review.

Surviving are a niece, Anna Crain; a brother, Albert H. Smith; a sister Elizabeth C. Peters, all of Charlevoix; and several nieces and nephews.

Basketball Rayders lose 2 close games

The Rayder girls basketball team lost 39-37 to St. Ignace in the final 10 seconds on a three-point basket.

"They really hustled. They were trailing at the quarter and came back to take the lead with 10 seconds left. But the three points were too much to overcome," Coach Stan Martin said.

The Rayders trailed 11-3 at the quarter and were still behind 17-13 at halftime and 26-18 at the three-quarter mark.

In the final period they forged ahead 37-36 but lost the ball to Nan Rountree who scored the decisive basket.

St. Ignace made 18 field goals and one of five free throws. Charlevoix made nine shots from the floor and 19 of 31 from the line.

Melissa Boss had 15 points and Ellen Pearl 10 points for Charlevoix.

In the JV game, St. Ignace won 71-22 after leading 45-16 at halftime.

Cynthia Bodyston had nine points and Melissa Ritt eight for Charlevoix.

Earlier, the Rayders dropped a close game to Rogers City, 45-38.

The Hurons led 19-6, 32-16 and 36-25 at the quarter marks before the Rayders outscored them 13-9 in the final period to trim the loss to seven points.

Rogers outshot the Rayders 29-16 from the floor and made six of 14 free throws. The Rayders shot six of 11 from the line.

Pearl had 10 points for Charlevoix.

The Charlevoix JV posted their first win of the season 54-43.

Angela Walker and Boydston had 10 points each and Ritt and Tricia Sutton eight each for the victors.

Middle school season ends

The middle school girls basketball teams closed out their season with the seventh graders losing 11-10 and the eighth graders winning their second game of the season 12-11 over Harbor Springs.

The seventh graders had held 4-2, 6-5 and 10-5 quarter leads before being outscored in the final period 6-0.

Harbor Springs scored on one of two free throws to win after both teams had scored five field goals.

Sheila Siegwart had four points for Charlevoix.

The eighth graders had to come from behind to win after leading 6-5 at the quarter and trailing 7-6 at the half. They came back in the third period to outscore Harbor 2-0.

The Rayders made six field goals while Harbor made five shots from the floor and made one of two from the line.

"Gene Webster had six points for the victors.

The seventh graders finished with a 6-2 record and the eighth graders with a 2-6 record.

Independent loop begins action

The Charlevoix Independent Basketball League, featuring A and B division has launched its 1987-88 season at Charlevoix Middle School.

The league is sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation Department.

The A league has six teams – Kit Carson Lumber, Nanny's, Pat McKeown Ford, Dyco Tool, Medusa and the Depot of Boyne City.

The B league has eight teams – Weathervane, Wojan Aluminum, Marsh Construction, Villager Pub, Paul Bunyan Lanes, Pinney-Loggin, First State Bank and the Mesquite.

In the first games played by A league teams, Kit Carson edged Nanny's 78-75 in overtime and McKeown Ford defeated Dyco Tool 89-74.

In the B league, First State Bank beat Wojan Aluminum 77-46, Marsh Construction defeated Paul Bunyan Lanes 51-41 and Village Pub edged Pinney-Loggin 60-57.

Districts set

The Charlevoix girls basketball team will enter the Class C district basketball tournament at East Jordan on Monday, Nov. 23.

Charlevoix drew a first round bye and will meet the winner of the Harbor Springs-East Jordan game at 7 p.m. at East Jordan in the fourth game of the tournament.

The tournament will open on Thursday, Nov. 19, when Onaway and Rogers City meet at 7 p.m. The following day, Harbor Springs and East Jordan will meet at 7 p.m. and on Saturday, Nov. 21 Boyne City will take on the winner of the Onaway-Rogers City game at 7 p.m.

7 named to regional Honors Band

Seven members of the Charlevoix High School band qualified for the 1987 Honors Band which will appear in concert at the Opera House in Cheboygan at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 6.

The students were among those from 22 schools of District II of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association who auditioned in Charlevoix for the band. Judging the students were band directors from the participating schools, said Charlevoix director Terry Isenbarger.

Qualifying are sophomores Bill Crook and Tim Henne, trombone; senior Michelle Seibert, clarinet; and juniors Marci Wynkoop, trumpet, Mike Stargardt, saxophone and Heather Dietrich and Kirsten Joy, flute.

In preparation for the concert, the students will meet in Traverse City on Nov. 22 for rehearsal and in Cheboygan Dec. 5-6 to rehearse under the direction of guest conductor Gary Owens, director of bands at the University of Michigan-Flint.

Focus group holds talk on land use

A community forum, sponsored by FOCUS will be held in the Charlevoix High School study hall at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 18, to discuss "The Land Itself ... What individuals can do to save it from destruction."

Speakers will be dairy farmer Tom Wieland, chairman of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission and a member of the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee, and Roy Meyer of Bliss, an organic farmer.

A Smithsonian Institution film entitled "Promise of the Land" will also be shown.

Attorney David Fershee will serve as facilitator for the question and discussion period to follow.

Paddlewheel may still be area's Star

If the Star of Charlevoix returns next summer, it likely will be the paddlewheeler originally scheduled for Charlevoix this year.

A cruise ship has operated in Charlevoix every year since 1981 — until this year. Delays in construction of a new ship forced cancellation of the season at the last minute. Then plans to return at all were scrubbed.

The ship, which is still not finished, was targeted for operation in Houston, but negotiations faltered. That development may aid a local group trying to convince Star Lines to return.

The local group is optimistic an agreement can be worked out, but still has much to do in a short time.

An earlier Nov. 1 deadline was avoided, but everything needs to be in place by Jan. 1, says Dick Georgi, one of the potential investors.

There are three things which must be accomplished before the end of the year, Georgi says.

First, a ship must be secured. Second, dock alterations must be approved. Third, investors must be in place.

Attempts to obtain a ship have been time-consuming. But the probable availability of the paddleboat has buoyed area people involved in the effort.

The paddlewheeler is ideal, says Doug Shaw of the Visitors and Convention Bureau, noting that the boat was designed for northern Michigan waters and weather.

When the group formed in September, it appeared they had only until Nov. 1 to put together a several-hundred-thousand dollar package to order construction of a boat.

Then the possibility of getting a used boat arose. That larger boat was more costly and would have needed alterations, such as a heating system, for use in this area, said Jacquie Merta, executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Re-entry of the paddlewheeler into the picture could be costly for the group, though. Because of its design, extensive renovations of dock space are necessary.

For safety, visibility and other reasons, ship backers say, it is vital to have the ship parked parallel to the shoreline. Original plans were for the ship to dock with its bow toward shore.

The Visitors and Convention Bureau hired an engineer to study the problem, and harbormaster Del Terrell indicated which other docks could be lengthened.

The group will be appearing before city council at its Monday, Nov. 23, work session to present a proposal for dock renovation.

Their plan is to remove the equivalent of four docks between the foot of Clinton and the Mesquite and to replace them with extensions on other docks.

The extensions – to 60 or 70 feet from the current 45 – would be on docks closer to the south end of the marina. Those docks, Terrell and group members agree, are more

AROUND THE TOWN

Here comes Santa Claus and the rest of the community's traditional Christmas treats.... There will be two Saturdays of activities downtown leading up to the holiday....

The Charlevoix Community Christmas Celebration, sponsored by merchants and the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, will take place Saturday, Dec. 12.... It starts off at 10 a.m. when Santa has brunch with children at the elementary school until noon.... That event is sponsored by the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority....

Also at 10, an open house begins at all stores – and continues until 9 p.m. Then, 'til Christmas, stores will remain open until 9 p.m. every night except Sundays... From 1 until 2:30 a 50-cent movie for kids will be shown at Cinema III, sponsored by the merchants....

And at 3 p.m. community Christmas tree decorating will begin in East Park, with the help of the city electric department, and the Lost Chords kids choir will perform in the park.... Visits with Santa will take place in the Market Mall from 3 to 5 p.m..... From 7 to 8, the evening celebration will take place, with a choir procession, tree lighting by Mayor Ralph McRae, community caroling, business window decoration contest winner announcement and refreshments compliments of Wildwood and JR's....

On the next Saturday, Dec. 19, Santa will arrive in traditional style – by fire truck – at 1 p.m. in East Park.... Then, at 1:30, there will be a movie matinee at Cinema III sponsored by the theater and Charlevoix County State Bank.

Some headlines ahead.... The shoreline zoning special committee has wrapped up its work and should be presenting its recommendations to city council next week.... Look for a major development in the effort to purchase North Point and keep it as a natural area.

The city's ice rink will be at the middle school this year.... The site is considered by city officials to be better than East Park.... Because of the high water table in the proximity of Round Lake, it is hard to make good ice in the park....

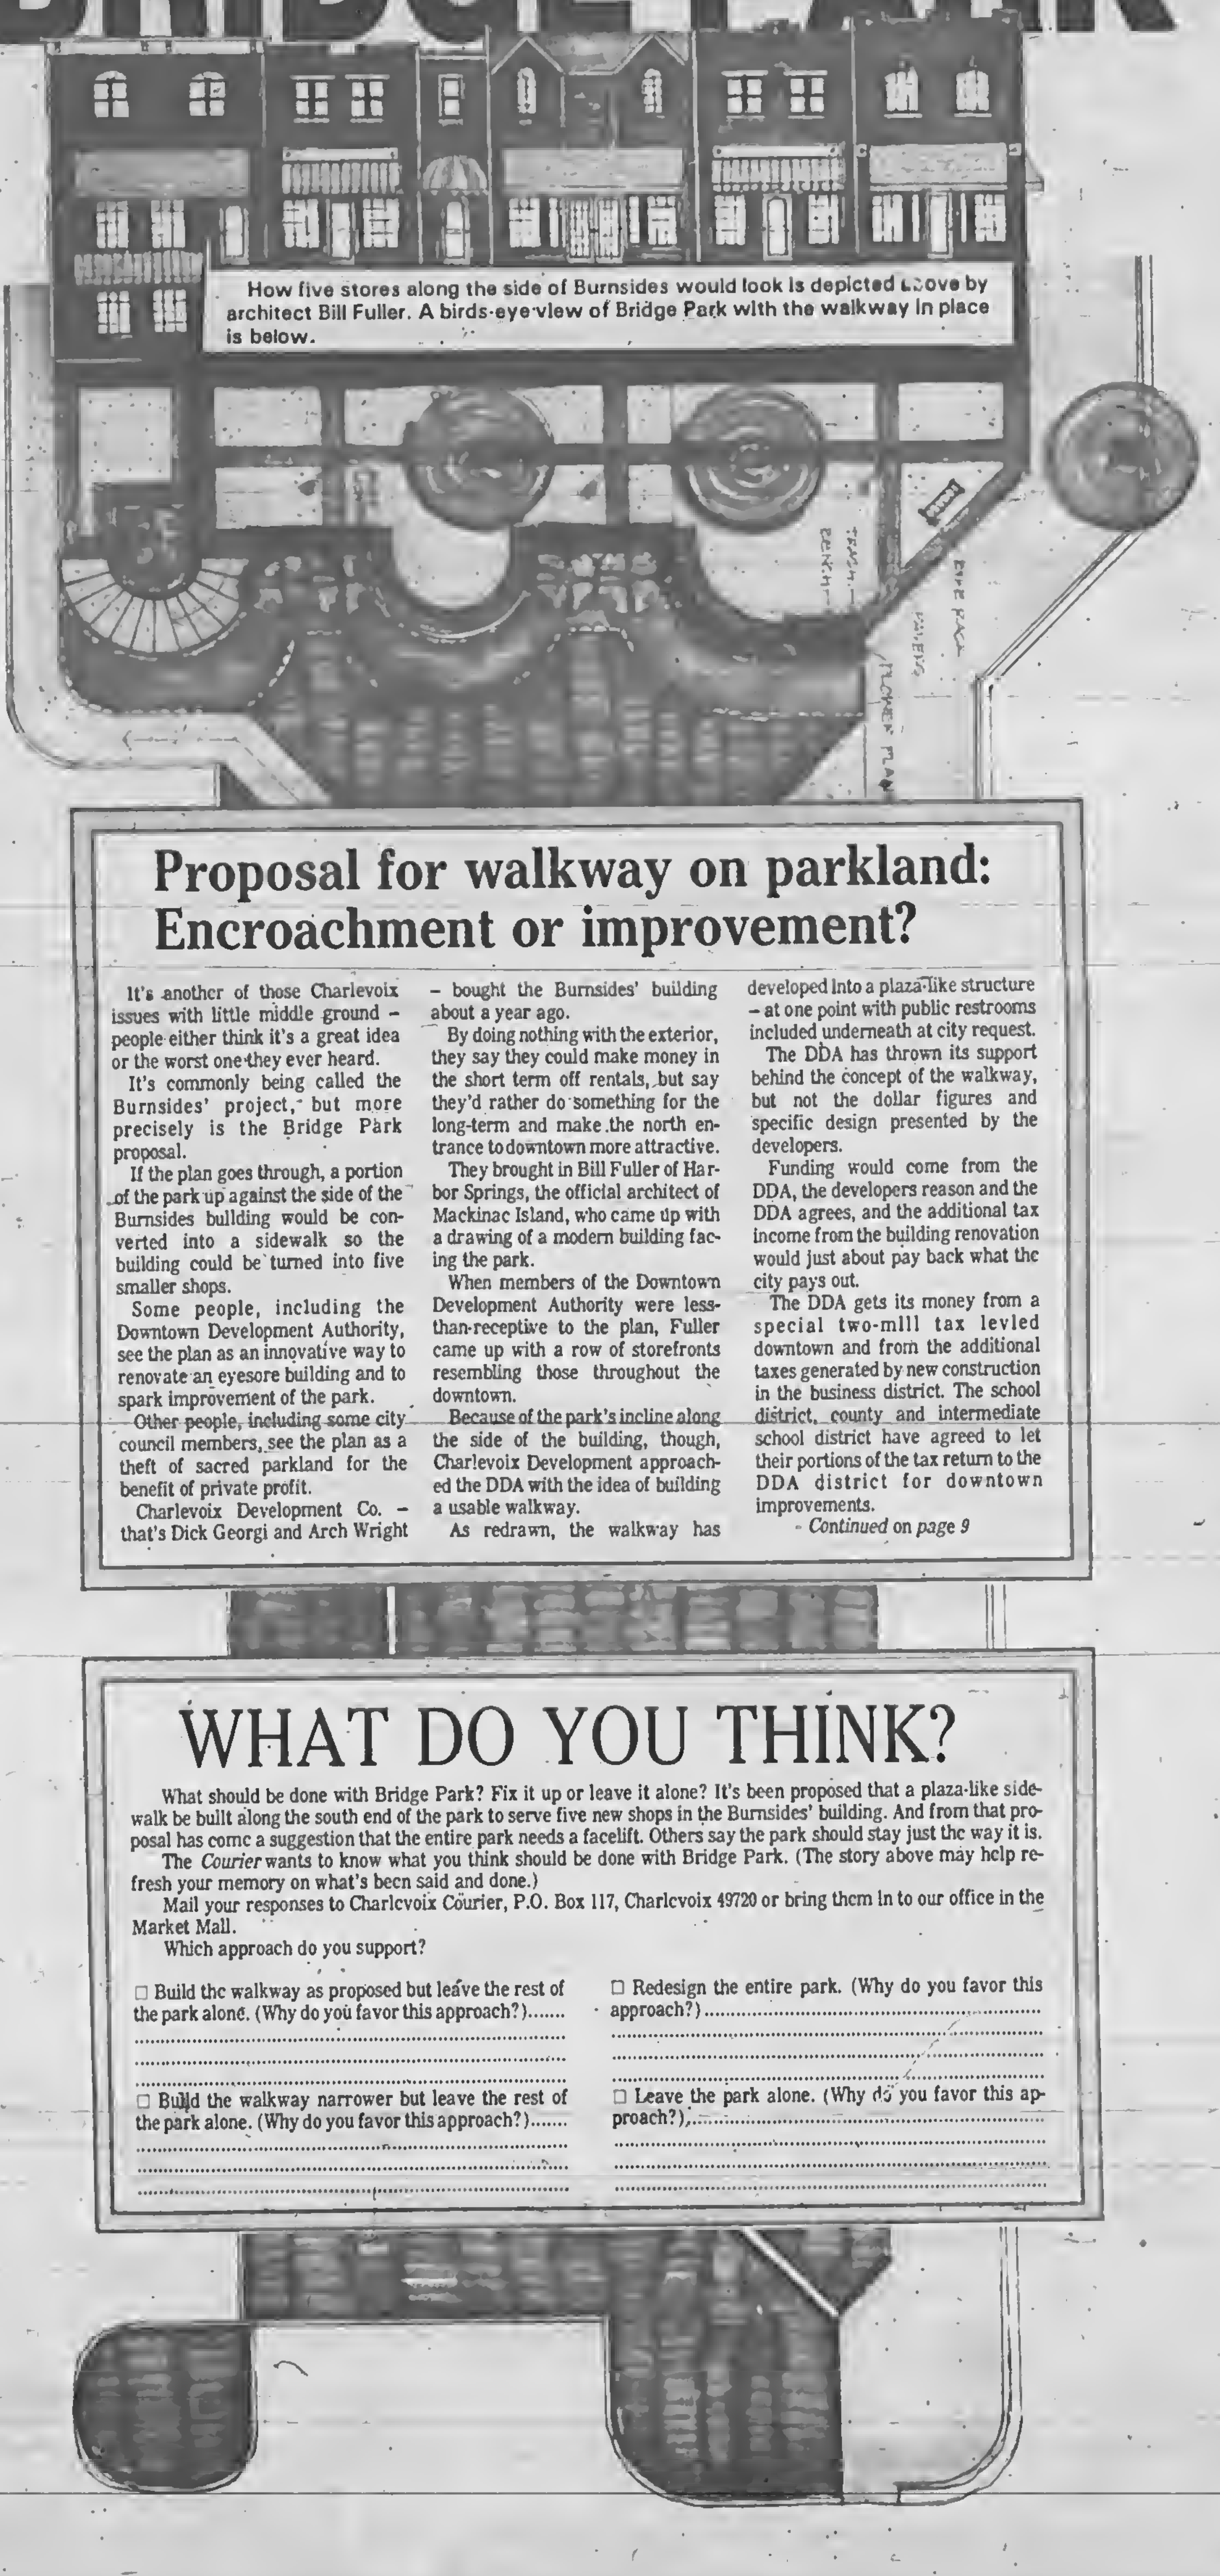
The middle school rink will be a 100-foot oval and will be open from 3 to 9 p.m., avoiding conflict with use of the school and allowing time at night to make new ice.... A warming shed and portable restrooms would be placed on the site, as school restrooms would not be available.

The police department could be kicked upstairs.... Chief Dennis Halverson has drawn up a rough sketch of what the department offices and assessing department would look like in the old fire hall....

Right now, both offices are in the basement of City Hall.... They share a secretary, so moving one department probably means moving the other....

Before going any further with Halverson's suggestion, though, city council wants to find out if the fire department is going to need the space for parking ambulances.... That was the original intended use for the old fire hall space when the new facility was built.... But the only thing stored there now is the city parade float.

BRIDGE PARK



How five stores along the side of Burnsides would look is depicted above by architect Bill Fuller. A birds-eye view of Bridge Park with the walkway in place is below.

Proposal for walkway on parkland: Encroachment or improvement?

It's another of those Charlevoix issues with little middle ground – people either think it's a great idea or the worst one they ever heard.

It's commonly being called the Burnsides' project, but more precisely is the Bridge Park proposal.

If the plan goes through, a portion of the park up against the side of the Burnsides building would be converted into a sidewalk so the building could be turned into five smaller shops.

Some people, including the Downtown Development Authority, see the plan as an innovative way to renovate an eyesore building and to spark improvement of the park.

Other people, including some city council members, see the plan as a theft of sacred parkland for the benefit of private profit.

Charlevoix Development Co. – that's Dick Georgi and Arch Wright – bought the Burnsides' building about a year ago.

By doing nothing with the exterior, they say they could make money in the short term off rentals, but say they'd rather do something for the long-term and make the north entrance to downtown more attractive.

They brought in Bill Fuller of Harbor Springs, the official architect of Mackinac Island, who came up with a drawing of a modern building facing the park.

When members of the Downtown Development Authority were less-than-receptive to the plan, Fuller came up with a row of storefronts resembling those throughout the downtown.

Because of the park's incline along the side of the building, though, Charlevoix Development approached the DDA with the idea of building a usable walkway.

As redrawn, the walkway has developed into a plaza-like structure – at one point with public restrooms included underneath at city request.

The DDA has thrown its support behind the concept of the walkway, but not the dollar figures and specific design presented by the developers.

Funding would come from the DDA, the developers reason and the DDA agrees, and the additional tax income from the building renovation would just about pay back what the city pays out.

The DDA gets its money from a special two-mill tax levied downtown and from the additional taxes generated by new construction in the business district. The school district, county and intermediate school district have agreed to let their portions of the tax return to the DDA district for downtown improvements.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

What should be done with Bridge Park? Fix it up or leave it alone? It's been proposed that a plaza-like sidewalk be built along the south end of the park to serve five new shops in the Burnsides' building. And from that proposal has come a suggestion that the entire park needs a facelift. Others say the park should stay just the way it is.

The Courier wants to know what you think should be done with Bridge Park. (The story above may help refresh your memory on what's been said and done.)

Mail your responses to Charlevoix Courier, P.O. Box 117, Charlevoix 49720 or bring them in to our office in the Market Mall.

Which approach do you support?

☐ Build the walkway as proposed but leave the rest of the park alone. (Why do you favor this approach?).......

☐ Build the walkway narrower but leave the rest of the park alone. (Why do you favor this approach?).......

☐ Redesign the entire park. (Why do you favor this approach?)........

☐ Leave the park alone. (Why do you favor this approach?)........

Area residents take peace message to Russia

by PEG OHLE

The way to promote peace between the United States and Russia is to have more people-to-people contacts, say five area residents who just returned from the Soviet Union.

The five were on a two-week tour of Russia's major cities sponsored by the Peace with Justice Committee of the Michigan United Church of Christ.

The local travelers were the Rev. Raymond Giffin, his wife Jean, Lucy Martin, Ellen Addington and Marian Kohn.

The group wore white sweatshirts imprinted with messages of peace and passed out buttons and cards with the words, "Peace and Friendship" in both English and Russian.

They talked with hundreds of ordinary Russian people on the streets, in parks, in stores, in hotels, in places of entertainment and in churches to assure them of the American people's desire for peace, and to hear, in return, the same desire expressed by the Russians.

And they were glad to find they could come and go as they pleased.

Peace is not only wished for but actually sought by the Russian people, the travelers found.

"There is a peace committee in every town. They have a peace hour in schools where veterans and other military people talk to students to create an anti-war atmosphere," said Martin.

"There are no war toys or games. After a wedding ceremony, the bride and bridegroom often go to the grave of a fallen soldier to leave the bridal bouquet."

"Peace has to be a real desire of the Russian people," Addington added. "There are many who remember the long siege of Leningrad during World War II, when three million people died, 10,000 a day.

"They know what war is like, and if things were left to the Russian people, their country would be spending money not for arms but for food and other necessities. In this respect, they feel just like the American people do."

Addington continued, "The real difference in feelings between the Russian and American people is that we have never been invaded or bombed. We don't know what it's like."

Mrs. Giffin noted that Russia is only 75 years away from serfdom and the Russian Revolution.

"People are glad to have a roof over their head and enough to eat. To the Russians, human rights are jobs, food and houses. Their intention is to make their system work better."

The group spent considerable time checking out churches and the general state of religion in Russia.

They found there are few Christian churches, but those there are, are packed. One Baptist church in Moscow has five services daily, and there are also Methodist, Lutheran, Seventh Day Adventist, Roman Catholic and other denominations represented.

The government owns church land, but it pays for any repairs the churches need. Churches can be established with only 25 people, so there are many smaller ones.

The old Orthodox Church of the czars seems to be on the rise, probably because it has become part of the system and "never rocks the boat," Rev. Giffin explained.

The Russian constitution gives freedom of worship, but churchgoers are watched and some professional people may have trouble in their careers if it becomes known they are Christians.

The church must do its work within the church confines. It cannot reach out in a missionary-type manner, so new Christians get their faith from friends or family members.

There is no Christian education in the churches, and religious teachings are largely left to the "babushkas," the grandmothers, who do their teaching at home.

All Russian children attend school to a certain grade level, when they are given tests to determine if they should continue in school or be trained for some kind of skilled job.

Russian universities, although not as great in number as in the United States, are nevertheless a potent force in Russian life.

Moscow University alone accommodates 30,000 full-time and 8,000 part-time students. The job of teaching is respected, with teachers receiving higher salaries than doctors.

English is the third most-spoken language in Russia, and more people understand it than speak it, according to Kohn.

Guides know the vocabulary of the Christian churches because they spend a lot of time explaining Russian works of art, many of which have early Christian themes.

"We need more people-to-people tours to get over our fears of Russia. We need more knowledge of Russian history and the Russian people," Kohn said.

"Instead of comparing the country with our own, we should put things in perspective."

Russians post their newspapers in places where people gather. Few are taken home for thorough reading. Russian people listen to the radio and watch television, which is, of course, government controlled.

Television sets were part of the furnishings of all hotel rooms in which the group stayed.

There was plenty of time for the travelers to be entertained in Russia.

They attended a performance of "Madame Butterfly," saw a circus, heard several musical productions and went to several museums.

"Everything is so clean," the five travelers said almost in unison. The city streets are clean and kept that way by women whose job it is to wash them down regularly.

The subway stations look like art galleries and are well used not only by the Russian people, but by the tourists who go there.

"The country was full of tourists," Martin said, "East Indians, Japanese, Polish, lots of Americans, and many others."

The group experienced two coincidences relating to former exchange students at Charlevoix High School.

In Leningrad, they "ran into" a young man from Sweden, Ulf Evaldsson, who had been an exchange student here and lived with the Plagge family. Ulf receives the Charlevoix Courier regularly as a gift from the Plagges.

In Helsinki, they met a former exchange student, Tuire, who was called "Tippi," now working as a waitress. She had lived with the Wilks and Kleiber families in the early 1970's.

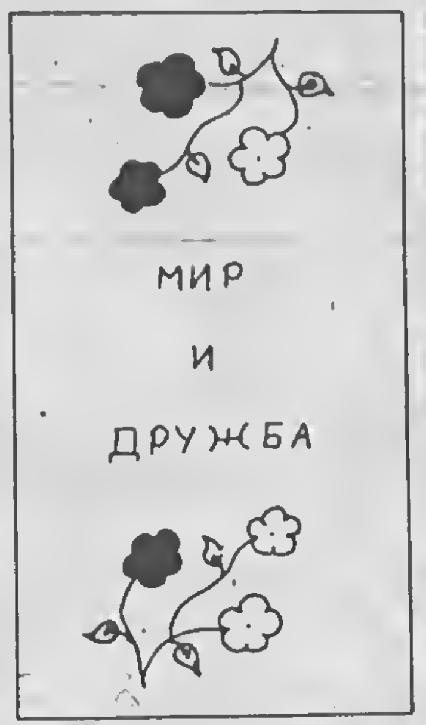
The travelers expressed only three bits of minor criticism, two of the Russians and one of Americans:

"The Russian people are great on facades. They get buildings up fast but they don't last long."

"Russian kids look like American kids but get heavier as they grow older, mostly because of their heavy starch diets."

"A Russian professor who had written a thesis on Mark Twain as a requisite for an advanced degree was not permitted to visit Hannibal, Mo., Twain's birthplace, when she was in this country because of 'lack of security' there."

The Rev. Giffin ended his discussion of Russia with the remark, "Russia, as a political and military power, does not want to conquer the world, but they do want to promote the Communistic form of government."



The message on this card is "Peace and Friendship" in the Russian language. The reverse of the card carries the same message in English.

Grange to host 300 at state convention

Barnard Grange, the largest in Michigan, will host the state convention next year.

There will be about 300 delegates from across the state at the 115th annual session Oct. 19-22, 1988.

Barnard Grange now has 147 members, slightly more than the membership of the Fredonia Grange in Calhoun County, formerly the largest grange in the state.

Barnard Master Norm Empey says the Barnard figure includes about 20 associate members, including businesses, which support grange activities but do not participate in grange rituals.

Despite a statewide downtrend in membership, including the closing of many granges, Barnard Grange has experienced phenomenal growth in recent years, thanks largely its wide range of social and community activities and its emphasis on the recruitment of young people, Empey said.

In addition to such humanitarian activities as assisting the deaf, the grange sponsors a variety of social activities, including square and round dances, potluck dinners, holiday celebrations, card games and a sleigh ride every winter.

Nationally, the grange was founded in the late 1800s to give farmers a unified voice in national affairs and was instrumental in promoting the extension of rail service to rural communities.

Although the grange today has expanded its interests beyond farm problems it still draws the bulk of its membership from rural areas and small towns.

Empey said that headquarters for next year's convention will be the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church.

In addition to routine grange business, delegates will formulate programs and projects for the following year.

State Master Rolland Winter presented several members of Barnard Grange awards they won at the state Grange session at Sault Ste. Marie.

Fiddler Dan Stolt received first place in the talent division – and a chance to compete at the National Grange Convention in Syracuse, N.Y., Nov. 9-15.

Other first-place awards went to Frances Jolliffe, band-quilting; Darlene Dhaseleer, knitting; and Jack Stebe, photography.

Opinion

Private school bill held up in committee

Editor:

As a citizen, I am gravely concerned regarding the attitude of the educational establishment (MEA) regarding Senate Bill 116. For those unfamiliar with the issue; S.B. 116 is legislation which has passed the Senate to allow private schools to operate while assuring that the students receive a quality education through regular testing.

The statistics from the voluntary testing programs in most Christian and private schools show that these schools consistently produce better educated children than the public schools. Further the private schools do not increase the tax burden of the citizen, but decrease it. Why then do we find a concerted effort by the Michigan Education Association and those in league with it to prevent the passage of this legislation?

The Hon. William Keith, (D), the chairman of the House Education Committee, has determined that this bill will not be voted on by his committee. This abuse of power does not allow for proper debate and a determination by your elected representatives on the merits of this bill. It is the position of the committee chairman that politics, not the merits of the bill, govern his decision not to allow the bill to be voted on and reported out of his committee.

Each citizen concerned about education within this state, whether you are for or against the bill, should speak to the chairman of the House Education Committee. Please indicate that he should allow our democratic process to operate. We should not be governed by an educational politbureau, the MEA which is today preventing the democratic process from operating.

Please call: Rep. William Keith and let your views be known that the Michigan House of Representatives should be allowed to vote on this bill. His office may be reached at one of the following (517) 373- numbers: 0849, 0398, 8833, 2093, 5416.

When our governor advises us that we have an educational crisis threatening the loss of industry, due to a significant percentage of our workforce which is unemployable because they are illiterate, it becomes a serious concern for every citizen.

Based on the Michigan Education Associaton opposition to S.B. 116 we can only surmise at their motives behind wanting to either control or shut down schools that turn out educated students at a fraction of the cost of public education. The long range plans of the MEA following the direction of the NEA reveal that certification is only the first step in the process. The eventual result of the loss of independent schools will be:

1. The elimination of voices to cry out against such abuses.

2. No clear standard against which to measure the inadequacies of our public institutions.

The time has come for each citizen to call to account what was to be your educational establishment and demand that it cease inefficient spending of our tax dollars to support a burgeoning bureaucracy that produces graduates who cannot read their diplomas.

The education experts (MEA and NEA) view the home and its traditional values a threat to the future citizen they wish to mold and are now recommending year-around school which will significantly decrease such adverse influences. It has become apparent that paying the teachers more money is not the answer as our tax bills and the governor's report reflect.

You may wonder how underpaid Christian School teachers are able to produce a superior product. Could it be because they care more for the children than their own economic welfare? The perpetual strikes by the certified MEA-controlled teachers to gain greater benefits reveal their priorities. These continual raises are coerced from a populace who on an average don't make as much in 12 months as the teachers in their nine-month task to turn the children against the values of their parents. Make no mistake 12 months of school will cost more both in dollars and the complete loss of your children.

I do not say that there are not excellent teachers in the system who earn every dollar they are paid. What I am saying is that the tail is wagging the dog, and the people are no longer being saved but have been turned into slaves to pay for a system that both does not produce quality education and in fact works to undermine the authority of parents in their own home.

Keep veterans' benefits

Editor,

At the Methodist Church in Petoskey on Nov. 8, we were privileged to hear the beautifully rendered cantata "American Requiem," composed and directed by Jerry Westerman and performed by local instrumentalists and vocalists.

It was written in memory of the Vietnam War casualties – "those who served and those who sacrificed, those who wept and those who waited." It was dedicated to Benjamin Britten and Wilfred Owen who "tried to warn" the world of the futility and immorality of violence as a way of resolving international differences.

It is too late now to warn against the Vietnam War in which tens of thousands of our boys, including some from our own area, were killed and in which hundreds of thousands of soldiers and civilians in Southeast Asia perished. But it is not too late to lament their untimely deaths and the continuing sorrow which haunts the homes of those who lost loved ones in that tragic chapter in history.

As young men went off to battle during World War I to serve their country with courage, the poet Wilfred Owen asked,

"Shall they return to beatings of great bells?"

And his answer was,

"A few, a few, too few for drums and yells."

And so it was with Vietnam War veterans – their return was not met with bells and drums. It is only now, more than a decade later, that they are being honored in verse and music.

Inspired by this verse and music, we must demand of our government that there be no more Vietnams and that instead of devising new and more deadly weapons of destruction, the time and talent of our people be used to devise new and better ways of resolving conflicts through the World Court and a strengthened United Nations.

And we must also demand that there be no slashing of veterans' benefits for reasons of economy. Rather, let there be an end to the tremendously costly stockpiling of exotic weapons which is driving our nation into bankruptcy while bankrolling the "defense" contractors.

Those of us who mourn the Vietnam dead and who are saddened by the plight of those who were physically or emotionally scarred in battle must insist that our government hear and heed us as we say with Pope John XXIII and other religious and humanist leaders, "War, never again."

Beacons of Blessing

by Pastor Duane Nelson
Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene

Has anyone ever given you the excuse for not going to church that there are too many hypocrites in church?

I've heard it several times, and I tend to agree with them.

First of all, the only place one is going to find a hypocrite is in the church. Secondly, the best place for a hypocrite is the church.

A hypocrite is a strange being. The word itself comes from one who play acts, one who makes believe. Maybe we can say one who wears a mask. They are someone who hides who they really are to those around them and are constantly doing something to hide it.

Jesus was always on the backs of the Pharisees who played in this game of self-deception. He condemned the act and those who participated in it. (Matt. 23:1-39) There is no room in the Kingdom of Heaven for a hypocrite. The only room available is in the pit of hell.

Actually hypocrites can be found in places other than the church. Hypocrisy is more than just masking our actions; it is masking our hearts. So the world also is a place where hypocrites dwell.

Those in the world with no connection with the church try to cover or mask who they really are with God. They need to drop the mask and seek God honestly and repent.

All of us at one time or another have tried to hide our sin from God, but He sees and wants us to turn to Him.

Hypocrisy is the art of masking and covering whether in the world or church. Christianity is the art of honesty and confession. The former will lead us to hell and the latter to heaven. And believe it or not the choice is up to you.

Everyone in pool

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

Ever since the swimming season ended, I have covered more miles in the water than I did all last summer — which, incidentally, was one of the best summers for swimming in the history of Charlevoix.

The reason, of course, is that I have discovered the two newest indoor swimming pools in Northern Michigan — located in East Jordan and Harbor Springs.

Both, fortunately, welcome outsiders. You can visit the East Jordan at any time there is family, lap or adult swimming. Harbor Springs admits outsiders only on Wednesday and Friday evenings, starting at 6 p.m.

East Jordan's 25-yard pool was donated to the school district by the Malpass Foundation and opened last spring. Located on Elm Street adjacent to the high school, the East Jordan pool is strictly a class act. Everything is brand new, from the full-length lockers and the tiled shower rooms to the pool itself.

The Harbor Springs pool is a trifle more flashy, with arched windows overlooking Little Traverse Bay, an adjoining hot tub and a shallow area off the main pool for kiddies.

But the lockers are old and the six-second maypole showers are aggravating.

East Jordan's lockers have built-in locks. The lockers at Harbor have no locks and you are advised to bring your own padlock if want your belongings secured while you are in the pool.

Harbor Springs has diving boards, East Jordan doesn't.

But these are minor differences. Both are excellent pools and a credit to their respective communities.

Probably what's most important is that youngsters at both East Jordan and Harbor Springs are learning to swim, something that's extremely important when you live near water.

Swimming pools also offer healthful, year-round exercise to people of all ages.

The big question remains: How much longer must Charlevoix wait before getting a swimming pool of its own?

Ever since the Clocks moved to Charlevoix in 1965, there has been talk of building a swimming pool, sparked largely by Ralph Hamilton and the Kiwanis Club. Committees have been formed. Meetings have been held. Studies have been made. Money has been set aside by various groups.

All to no avail.

Charlevoix is no closer to having a pool today than it was 22 years ago.

Of course, swimming pools cost money to construct and operate. East Jordan was fortunate to have the Malpass Foundation underwrite construction costs. Harbor Springs passed a bond issue to build its pool.

In any event, we are fortunate to have pools as close as East Jordan and Harbor Springs at our disposal. East Jordan is a scant 14 miles from Charlevoix; Harbor Springs is about 25.

The fees are minimal: $1.50 at East Jordan and $1 at Harbor.

Tuesdays from 6:30 to 8 p.m. adults are welcome to use the East Jordan pool. On Wednesdays during the same hours the pool is reserved for teenagers with family swimming during the same hours on Mondays and Thursdays.

The pool is also open weekday mornings from 6 to 7:30 a.m. for lap swimming and for recreational swimming on Saturdays from 11:30 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Of course, the pool is open throughout the day for student swimming classes — and adults are even welcome to stop to do a few laps during the school lunch hour.

The East Jordan pool has never been really crowded the times I've been there — but during the course of a week it certainly must accomodate several hundred swimmers.

Both pools are beautiful community assets. Wouldn't it be nice if Charlevoix had one, too?

'Round Town

From castles in sand to restoring old glories

EDITH GILBERT

The Charlevoix Connection:

The November issue of Detroit Monthly magazine has six pages of gorgeous photos of the Wayne County Building in Detroit. After decades of neglect, the once-grand palatial structure has been painstakingly restored to its former glory. It took three years and over $25 million. Original Tiffany windows were uncovered, as well as hand-painted stucco ceilings with original chandeliers. The latter had been hidden under false ceilings. Office space will be rented to Wayne County – they still own the land – and eventually ownership will return to them. Incredibly, the project hasn't cost the taxpayer a cent.

Kudos for this imaginative venture go to two Charlevoix long-time summer residents, Burton D. Farbman and Henry Wineman II. The two general partners have played together on our beaches since they were tots. Look what building castles in the sand can lead to.

...

T-shirt promotions with a creative twist:

My alma mater, Beverly Hills High School, has signed a contract with 20th Century Fox to market T-shirts with the BHHS trademark. The thinking is that since the movie, "Beverly Hills Cop," boosted the town's T-shirt craze nationally, perhaps Beverly Hills High will benefit from the 60 percent royalties from each T-shirt sold with the school logo.

Would the newly formed Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation could come up with something equally creative.

...

Wendy Knight writes from England that she is having an incredible time. She's living in a beautiful flat in Kensington with five other girls, after having visited Yugoslavia and the Netherlands. And for this they give college credits. Lucky Wendy.

...

Wendy's classmate at Cranbrook – and longtime Charlevoix summer resident – Peter Kleinpell, sends clippings of a favorable review of his fashion designs from Minneapolis, where he now lives. "My name is Peter D. Kleinpell, and I like to think the D stands for 'detail'," he's quoted as saying. Having seen the beautiful collection, I can say "amen" to that statement. His choice and combination of fabrics are inspired. He now designs for customers from Michigan as well as New York and Florida.

...

Parents and grandparents! There's a delightful free exhibit for you to guide your children to during Thanksgiving vacation – just drop in at the McCune Community Arts Center when you're in Petoskey and enjoy.

You can even promise your little darlings a little TV special to boot. There are no cowboys, only Indians dancing in full regalia on the lively videotape of a Day of the Eagle Powwow held in East Jordan last June.

Of special interest to Charlevoixans is a wonderful photo of Jay Oliver taken by Terry Salmonson. The photo was included in a book, "A Day in the Life of Michigan," a Sesquicentennial project.

The month-long, colorful exhibit of the culture and art of our Native Americans includes brass beads and bone jewelry, feather headdresses, cradle boards made of leather and fur, baskets as light as a dry leaf, shields and a leather drum. All are beautifully hand-crafted and well-displayed.

Adjacent to the exhibition gallery is the sales gallery. Here are some bouncy, colorful oil paintings of Indians dancing and fringe flying, done by Michael (a former art teacher in the Detroit Public Schools) from photographs taken at the Indian powwow. Take a look at these while you're there. I'm sure you'll say "wow" to his work.

Family

Laura Smith and Ralph Rosenthal

Smith-Rosenthal engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith of Petoskey announce the engagement of their daughter, Laurie Diane, to Ralph David Rosenthal of Charlevoix. He is the son of David Rosenthal and the late Rosa Rosenthal.

The bride-to-be graduated from Petoskey High school in 1985 and her fiance graduated from Charlevoix High School. She is employed as a waitress at Schelde's Restaurant in Petoskey and he owns Charlevoix Motors in Charlevoix.

The wedding will take place Dec. 5 at Alanson Church of the Nazarene.

Thanksgiving service set

The Charlevoix Ministerial Association will conduct its annual Union Thanksgiving Service at the United Methodist Church at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 25.

Worshippers of all denominations are invited.

The Rev. Bruce Hamilton of Community Church of God will deliver the message. The Rev. Thomas Black of First Baptist Church will deliver a message for children.

Music of thanksgiving will be by the bell choir of First Congregational Church, vocal selections by the choir of Greensky United Methodist Church and instrumental numbers by an ensemble from Charlevoix High School.

An offering will be collected for use by the ministerial association to aid individuals with housing, food and transportation.

Others participating in the service are the Rev. David Yingling of United Methodist, the Rev. Duane Nelson of Church of the Nazarene, the Rev. Richmond Thweat of Christ Episcopal, the Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum of First Congregational and the Rev. Lowell Anderson and Jeb Brusherd of Assembly of God.

Churches conducting Thanksgiving services at their own church are St. Mary's Catholic, Community Reformed and Bethany Lutheran.

Bergmanns celebrating golden anniversary

The children of Ted and Rose Bergmann of Charlevoix will host an open house in honor of their 50th wedding anniversary on Friday, Nov. 27, from 3 to 6 p.m. at the Charlevoix Rod & Gun Club.

The Bergmann sons and daughters and their spouses are Bruce and Sue Bergmann, Paul and Lois (Bergmann) Michelin, Doug and Louise Bergmann, Charles and Sheryl Bergmann, Jim and Diana Bergmann, Jack and Sherrel Bergmann, and Ken and Claire Bergmann.

Frederick "Ted" Bergmann and the former Agnes "Rose" Tegerdine were married Feb. 1, 1938 in Charlevoix. Except for the years 1942 to 1948, when they made their home in Cheboygan, they have lived in Charlevoix all their married lives.

In addition to their children, the Bergmanns have 18 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Friends and neighbors are welcome to attend the open house.

Developmental clinic set for 3-year-olds

Developmental Screening Clinics for children entering kindergarten in the fall of 1989 will be held Wednesday, Dec. 9, and Wednesday, Jan. 13, at the Char-Em Intermediate School District office.

The clinic is sponsored by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. The clinic will provide information regarding normal child development, and opportunity to interact with parents of other three-year-old children, and to have children informally screened to identify potential learning difficulties.

The service is free with appointments made on a first come, first served basis.

Rayders drop pair on court

The Rayder girls basketball team dropped games to Gaylord and Central Lake, the first 65-38 and the latter 38-33.

"In the Gaylord game, the team played an excellent first period, played good defense, rebounded well and Stacy Gebott had a good passing game," Coach Stan Martin said. "They've come a long way this season.

"At one point, we cut Gaylord's margin to four points."

Gaylord led 14-6, 26-15 and 44-21 by quarters. Melissa Boss had 17 and Ellen Pearl nine points for Charlevoix.

The JV's lost 62-16 with Gaylord leading 29-5 at halftime. Cynthia Boydston had nine points for the Rayders.

On Parents' Night the Rayders played an excellent game against Central Lake, the 8th ranked Class D team in the state.

The Rayders trailed 12-11 at the end of the first quarter, went ahead 23-20 at halftime and remained tied 31-31 going into the final period when the Rayders as Martin said, "ran out of gas."

Both teams made 13 field goals. Central Lake scored on 12 of 21 free throw attempts. Charlevoix made seven of nine free throw attempts.

Gebott had 16 points and Melissa Boss eight for Charlevoix.

The JV's lost their game 29-18 after trailing 19-8 at halftime. Tricia Sutton had five points for Charlevoix.

The varsity has a 2-16 record and the JV's a 1-17 record.

The varsity will go into the district tournament at East Jordan at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 23, when they take on one of the other five teams in the tournament who will be playing Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

A League teams on scoring spree

Teams of the A league of Charlevoix Independent Basketball went on a scoring spree.

Depot beat Nanny's 100-87, Medusa topped Dyco Tool 93-88 and Pat McKeown Ford defeated Kit Carson Lumber 85-71.

Four players scored in double figures for Depot as the team overcame a 24-21 first quarter deficit.

Dean Hicks had 29 points, Burt Moeke 27, Rob Spencer 14 and Tony Williams 12 points for Depot. Mike Bodzick had 31 points, Tom Burley 18 and Brian VanLoo 12 for Nanny's.

Medusa led Dyco 27-22, 46-39 and 71-63 by quarters. Dick Swenor's 29 paced Medusa scorers followed by Dan McKenzie with 24 and Dave Storm with 19. Bob Suher had 26, Randy Holecheck 21 and Tex Drenth 19 for Dyco.

Cliff Haas with 26 points, Gary Drury with 25 and Mark Long with 18 points led McKeown which held 14-12, 34-33 and 60-46 quarter leads. Tim Carey had 18 points, Roger Crain 15, Bo Boss 14 and Vince Left 10 for Carson.

B Leaguers continue action

Penney Logging defeated Wojan Aluminum 60-55, Weathervane dumped Paul Bunyan Lanes 88-27 and Marsh Construction beat Villager Pub 60-52 in B League action in the Independent Basketball League.

The Penney-Wojan game was a seesaw battle with Penney jumping to a 14-12 lead in the first period, losing it 30-28 at halftime and regaining it 40-38 going into the final period. Brad VanderArk with 23 points and Scott Simpson with 13 paced the victory.

Jeff Brodin had 12 and Gary Vergon 10 points for Wojan's.

Weathervane romped 18-12, 44-18 and 63-21 by quarters over Bunyan.

Joe Miller with 33 points, Steve Leazier with 16, Kevin Morrison 14 and Tom Lalley with 11 topped the scorers for the victors. Jay Mosaryk had 13 for Bunyan.

The Marsh-Villager game was close with the lead changing numerous times.

Clay Jones with 15 points and Ray LaVoie with 12 set the pace for the victors. Dave Cole had 18 points and Rob Henderson 12 for Villager.

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

JOHN C. LACHMAN of Charlevoix has been promoted to executive vice president of Hoskins Manufacturing Co. He joined Hoskins in 1960 and served as general manager of manufacturing from 1977 to 1981. Since 1981 he has been vice president of manufacturing.

PETER O. PLAGGE of Charlevoix is studying this year at the University of Aberdeen in Scotland. Plagge is a junior at Albion College in Albion, Mich.

He is one of 46 students doing academic work under the auspices of the Great Lakes Colleges Association program at Aberdeen. Plagge, a 1985 graduate of Charlevoix High School, is majoring in religious studies.

Four area residents are among the August graduates at Central Michigan University. ANTOINETTE FELTER, high school counselor, and JANET RAECKE, elementary school teacher, received their master's degrees.

LISA STALEY and MARTHA THEMM received bachelor's degrees. Staley's degree is in commercial art and Themm's is in psychology. Themm graduated cum laude.

Also receiving a degree was JAMES HIBBLER of St. James, Beaver Island. His degree is a master's.

Large parcel sale prices variable

by PEG OHLE

Persons buying large land parcels in Charlevoix County could pay as much as $1,200 an acre or as little as $200.

The difference in price depends on the size of the parcel and many other factors, including access to the property (type of road), whether electricity is available, land cover (grass, shrubs, timber, etc.), and portion of acreage with road frontage.

County Equalization Director Joan Blanchard based her findings on land sales in the county.

She divided acreage into five different sizes: 10, 20, 40, 80, and 120-plus. The average per-acre cost of a 10-acre parcel was $750, with a range of $500 to $1,200.

The average per-acre cost of a 20-acre parcel was $600, with a range of $400 to $800; 40 acres was $440, with a range of $300 to $600; 80 acres was $400, with a range of $200 to $450; and 120-plus was $365, with a range of $200 to $450.

Up and down adjustments to per-acre cost could be made by formula, as follows:

Poor access, 5 to 15 percent lower; no electricity, 10 to 15 percent lower; more or less than normal road frontage, 10 percent higher or lower; scenic or lake view, 20 to 40 percent higher; close to major attraction (such as ski area, lake, city, etc.), 25 percent higher; landlocked, 50 percent lower; part low or swampy, 10 to 50 percent lower; excellent cover (timber), 10 percent higher; remote area, 10 percent lower; creek influence, by footage, 30 percent higher on 10 acres.

Another factor considered in determining the value of acreage is the type of soil which makes up the land. Most of the soil in Charlevoix County has a productivity rating of 80 percent to 45 percent, in the lower range of soil quality.

Blanchard prepared a chart showing the price of acreage from 1980 through 1987. The chart indicates little change during this period, although there was a slight fluctuation.

The average per-acre cost for a 10-acre parcel in 1980 was $800; for a 20-acre parcel it was $550; for a 40-acre parcel it was $425; for an 80-acre parcel it was $400; and for a 120-plus acre parcel it was $380.

Saluting the Coast Guard

The Rev. Bruce Hamilton presents plaques of appreciation to Coast Guard officials during a Community Church of God dinner honoring the service's presence in Charlevoix. To Hamilton's left is Lt. Cmdr. Tom Conlan, commander of the Mesquita, and to his right is Boatswain Mate Second Class Jim Couture of Coast Guard Station Charlevoix. More than 70 Guard personnel and spouses were joined by 80 church members at the dinner.

Civic group plans gift for dunes

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, one of the keystone organizations in Preserve North Point, is poised to make a donation toward the purchase.

The civic group's executive committee has recommended to the full board donating $1,000 to the Little Traverse Conservancy.

The KCB board holds its annual meeting Saturday, Dec. 5.

Preserve North Point is an attempt, spearheaded by the conservancy, to purchase a 2,800-acre tract of dunes and woods along Lake Michigan.

The conservancy and sponsoring groups such as KCB, WATCH (Water and Air Team Charlevoix) and DUNE (Defenders United for North Point Ecology) are trying to put together a $700,000 package in two years to complete the deal.

Obituaries

Barbara A. Allard

Barbara A. Allard, 94, died Wednesday, Nov. 11, at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Lewis and Barbara Skeel, in Marion Township.

Funeral mass was held at St. Mary's Church on Saturday, Nov. 14. The Rev. James K. Gardiner was the celebrant. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery. The rosary was recited at Winchester Funeral Home Friday, Nov. 13.

The former Barbara Agnes Rapp was born April 8, 1893, in Muskegon to Peter and Margaret (Kuis) Rapp. She grew up in the Muskegon area and moved to Grand Rapids as a young woman.

On July 3, 1923, she married Adolphus M. Allard in Grand Rapids where they lived until coming to Charlevoix in 1940. Mr. Allard preceded her in death Dec. 14, 1967.

She was a member of St. Mary's Church, a life member of St. Mary's Rosary Altar Society and a charter member of the Women's Auxiliary of Charlevoix Post No. 1153, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Surviving are her daughter, Barbara Skeel with whom she made her home in recent years; two sons, Fritz of Charlevoix and Leo of Millington; 18 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to St. Mary's Educational Fund. Envelopes are available at Winchester Funeral Home.

Norman W. Loucks

Norman W. Loucks, 60, died Saturday, Nov. 14, at Little Traverse Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey.

Funeral services were held at St. Mary's Church Tuesday, Nov. 17. The Rev. James K. Gardiner was the celebrant. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

The rosary was recited at Winchester Funeral Home on Monday, Nov. 16.

Mr. Loucks was born Jan. 7, 1927, at Germfask, Mich., the son of David and Hope (Ackley) Loucks. He grew up in the Germfask area and, during World War II, served in the U.S. Army.

He moved to Charlevoix in 1946. On March 29, 1948, he married Phyllis L. Mousseau. He later was employed in Detroit for 10 years and in Toledo for five years before returning to Charlevoix.

He was a self-employed truck driver for 20 years and, in recent years, was employed as a security guard at LexaLite Corp. and did maintenance through a DNR program.

He was a member of the Disabled American Veterans post in Petoskey.

Surviving are his wife; a son, Paul W. Loucks; a daughter, Sharon Coleman and four grandchildren, all of Charlevoix; a brother, Jean D. Loucks of Oxford, and two sisters, Harriet Lynch of Fife Lake and Hilda Green of Chase.

Jane Weir

Mrs. Jane (Fiedler) Weir, 86, died Friday, Nov. 13, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Funeral services were held Monday, Nov. 16, at Church of the Nazarene. Pastor Duane Nelson officiated. Interment was in the Norwood Cemetery.

Born in Bengal, Mich. on May 20, 1901, the daughter of Frank E. and Emma (Huber) Swagart was raised in Clinton County. On July 7, 1920, she married Carroll J. Fiedler in Lansing. They made their home in Holt until coming to Norwood Township in 1943.

Mr. Fiedler preceded her in death, Dec. 10, 1966. On June 23, 1979, she married Everett O. Weir in Charlevoix.

She was a charter member of Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene, was active in local missionary work and was a correspondent for the Charlevoix Courier in the Inwood district until recent years.

Surviving are her husband; five sons, Chester Paul of Colorado Springs, Colo., Mark R. of Mancelona, Robert C. of Davison, Dean A. of Traverse City and James G. of Charlevoix; a daughter, Mrs. Joyce Hamlin of Eustis, Fla.; 19 grandchildren; 17 great-grandchildren; three brothers, George Swagart of Cooks, Elmer Swagart and Frank Swagart, both of St. Johns; four sisters, Katie Woodruff, Marguerite C. Swagart and Donnah A. Stewart, all of St. Johns, and Marie Reason of Bath; two step-sons, Dean Weir of Flint and Ronald Weir of Cincinnati and a step-daughter, Arless Mosby of Flint.

The family suggests memorials to Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene. Envelopes are available at Winchester Funeral Home.

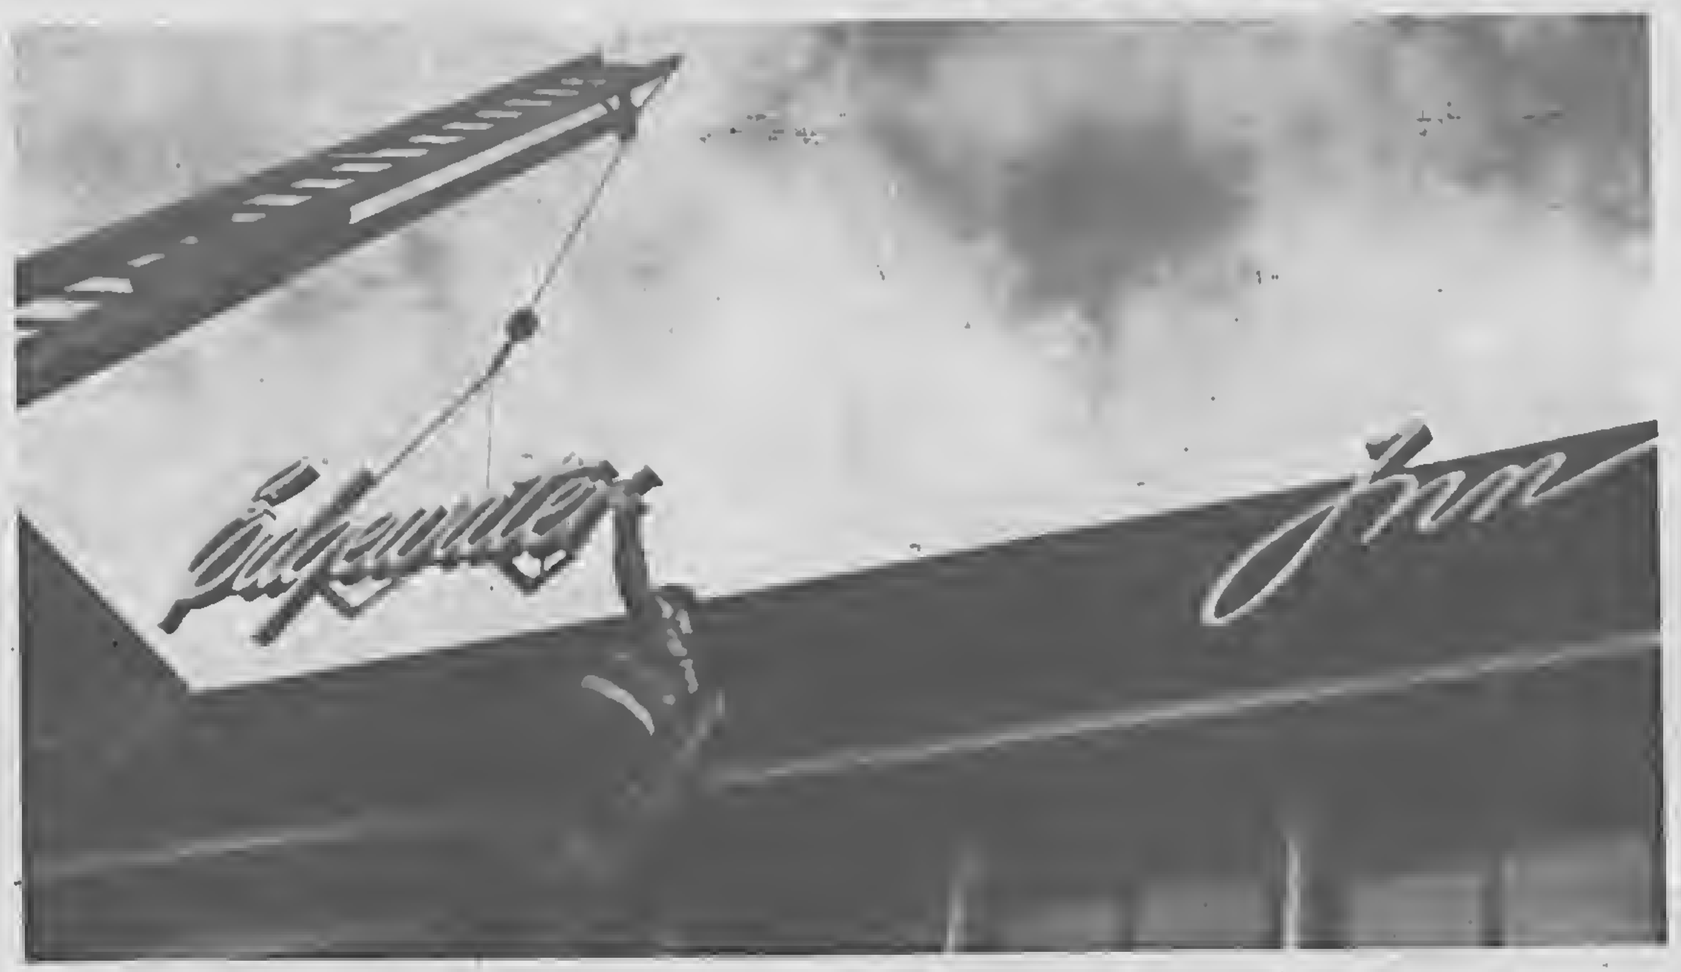
Daisy R. Pinney

Graveside services for a former Charlevoix resident, Daisy (Chew) Pinney, 102, were held at Brookside Cemetery on Monday, Nov. 16. Funeral services were held in Midland earlier.

Mrs. Pinney died Thursday, Nov. 12, at the home of her son-in-law and daughter John and Ruth Hodge of Midland, with whom she had lived in recent years.

Born in Charlevoix Aug. 1, 1885, the daughter of Abel and Salome (Halderman) Chew later lived in East Jordan, Flint, Florida and Midland.

Besides Mrs. Hodge, she is survived by two other daughters, two sons, and more than 100 survivors.



Going for the gold

A 23-karat gold leaf-covered sign is lifted into place at the entrance to the Edgewater Inn, which is nearing completion. The fabricated aluminum sign took between three and four weeks of work to complete at Eagle Displays in Suttons Bay.

Is park plan remedy or encroachment?

Prime income-producers for the DDA are the Edgewater Inn, Weathervane Terrace addition and under-construction Rysberg Inn. But a project such as the $280,000 Burnsides' proposal would also put money in the DDA coffers.

Georgi and Wright figure the added taxes would just about repay the city for the cost of the walkway. And, they say, people would get a vastly improved entrance view of downtown as they cross the bridge from the north.

After a friendly reception from the DDA, the developers have found the welcome mat being tugged beneath them at city council.

The $70,000 or more estimated for the project is too much, say council members Bill Bellows, Bill Haggard and Bob Timms.

And using city parkland is out of the question, says councilman Norm Probert. Maybe she could accept a smaller walkway, says council woman Shirley Roloff.

The proposal would have the plaza extend about 29 feet into the park, which is approximately 250 feet long. A narrower walk might be possible, says Wright, but would not catch the sun and provide a place for people to congregate.

The effectiveness of the park as a park has become a source of disagreement. Haggard, who lives across the street, says the park is adequately used; Jeannine Wallace, who owns a store across the street, says it is hardly used.

Landscape designers Pat Jackson and John Campbell have volunteered to draw up conceptual plans for the whole park, a move endorsed by council members.

No action has been taken on Wright and Georgi's proposal.

Gathering law approved on 2nd vote

by PEG OHLE

In a second try, a county mass gathering ordinance has been adopted by the county board of commissioners.

The law will now be sent to Gov. James Blanchard for his approval, and, 90 days after approval is received, will become law.

The ordinance was prepared by Prosecutor Kraag Lieberman at the request of the county board after the board received numerous requests over a period of time from township governments.

The most visible need for a ordinance arose from concerts at Castle Farms, which have caused law enforcement problems for several years.

The ordinance was first brought to a vote by the county board on Oct. 14. It was defeated 3-2, with "yea" votes cast by Don Smith and Oral Sutliff and "nay" votes cast by Tom Breakey, Bud Heeres and Ralph Harmon. Larry Matthew was absent.

On the second vote, Breakey and Heeres changed their minds and voted for the ordinance.

Harmon again voted against the ordinance. His district includes Boyne Valley Township, where Boyne Mountain is located, and he thinks the language of the ordinance could put that ski resort under the restrictions of the ordinance.

As written, the ordinance covers outdoor gatherings of 2,000 or more people who pay to enter "a permanently enclosed or covered structure" for an event not sponsored by a governmental or tax-exempt agency.

Harmon believes a fence permanently enclosing Boyne Mountain puts the resort in this category.

The ordinance includes licensing procedures and spells out reqirements for such things as food, medical and restroom facilities; traffic and parking; insurance and bonding; lighting and sound equipment; and personnel.

Store owner's aim: Hemingway shrine

John and Karen Cooper

by TOM DAMMANN

John Cooper has determined to make the 111-year-old Horton Bay General Store into a living, liveable shrine to Ernest Hemingway, who frequented it in his youth and wrote about it in his early short stories.

Englishman Cooper and his American wife, Karen, saw the store for the first time in June and purchased it earlier this month.

The pair have an interest in old buildings and became quickly interested in the store.

"The Horton Bay General Store is something old that needs to be nurtured and cared for, it holds a little magic," Cooper said.

"And when I learned of Ernest Hemingway's connection with it, we knew we had to buy it."

Hemingway spent his boyhood summers around Horton Bay. A family-owned summer cottage is still used by his sister, Sunny Miller, on Walloon Lake.

Many of Hemingway's early short stories are set in the environs.

"Horton Bay, the town, was only five houses on the main road between Boyne City and Charlevoix," Hemingway wrote In Up in Michigan. "There was the general store and post office with a false front and maybe a wagon hitched out in front."

The two-story framed building with its peaked roof and original but somewhat rickety front porch still stands. Begging for a fresh painting, Hemingway's "high false front" rises behind the porch.

Born in Sheerness, Kent, Cooper remains a British citizen. He is a portrait artist, designer and carpenter who has participated in the restoration of several old buildings in London.

His wife is a registered nurse who will work part-time at Northern Michigan Hospitals in Petoskey.

High ceilinged, with four rows of crowded shelves, the store is the "only convenient convenience store within 15 miles," says Bill Ohle, whose grandfather built the store for the community's founder, Samuel Horton, in 1876.

"The original glass is still in all the windows up front, just as the original timbers still support the building," Ohle said.

Hemingway, framed in a fluorescent, somewhat aged cigarette advertisement, looks down over the meat counter at the back of the store and along the six-stool coffee counter. On the wall are posted recent news clippings about the store and Hemingway. On the opposite wall, hangs a panel of Hemingway photographs and mementos.

The Coopers plan to concentrate the Hemingway memorabilia "in a corner with a few tables and chairs and perhaps some of his works on shelves," Cooper said.

The store has had 25 or 26 owners, Ohle said. But none of the previous ones have received a welcome akin to that afforded the Coopers.

Scores of the store's faithful customers organized a surprise welcoming party for the new owners on the second Sunday of their proprietorship.

Karen Neumeyer

Prosecutor gets assistant

by PEG OHLE

The first full-time assistant prosecutor in Charlevoix County and the first woman to hold that job part-time or full-time.

Karen Neumeyer, who went to work in the county building earlier this month, has these distinctions.

As assistant to Prosecutor Kraag Lieberman, Neumeyer will be doing all types of work that he assigns to her, including pre-trial conferences, court cases, matters for the county board of commissioners, and whatever else that comes along.

The assistant prosecutor graduated from law school at Loyola of Los Angeles in 1978, then worked as an attorney for a motion picture industry labor union for five years.

"It was a highly political job and I just got burned out. Also, I wanted to get out of Los Angeles," Neumeyer said.

So she picked up and moved to Gaylord, an area where she had friends and had spent many summer vacations.

While waiting for her Michigan license to practice, Neumeyer worked as a law clerk in Gaylord, then, in 1985, moved to East Jordan and set up practice in Charlevoix.

Neumeyer grew up in Waterville, Ohio, near Maumee and Toledo, and went west to study at the University of California at Santa Cruz.

Her appointment as assistant prosecutor did not come as a surprise because she had been "looking around for another job that would give me more court experience."

Cruise ship

desirable to boaters.

The Star group would pay for the work – estimated at up to $90,000 – and for other pilings and renovations.

In exchange, the city would let the Star use the Clinton landing rent-free for five years.

The group's initial agreement with the city calls for one percent of the ship's revenue (with a minimum of $5,000) to be paid in rent. That pact, based on the previous agreement with the Star Line, was reached before the group found out the extent of renovations needed.

Three council members who have seen the proposal say it appears to be a good one for the city.

And City Manager Mike Wiesner says he may ask council to consider extending more docks at the same time, since the contractor would already be working there.

Financing of the project remains in flux. Until it was known which boat would be available and how much it would cost, the group was unable to put together a prospectus for potential investors.

Georgi and Jon Hisey have been poised to seek investors for the Charlevoix half of the purchase and operating costs and a local bank has been approached about loan possibilities.

The Charlevoix group would own half or more of the local Star operation and a similar group associated with Star Lines owner John McGoff would own the remainder.

McGoff originally told the local group he was not interested in returning to Charlevoix, Merta said, but relented when he saw the amount of local interest.

Georgi, who indicated he is ready to invest in the venture, said the Star is not expected to be a big moneymaker for the group, but would be an investment in the community.

In past years, the Star has brought upwards of 30,000 passengers to Charlevoix – with an estimated 20,000 unlikely to visit if the ship is not operating.

Shoreline restrictions previewed

Recommendations of a lakeshore zoning committee have "just confused the whole issue," says Mayor Ralph McRae.

The panel was named two months ago to try to put in concrete terms concerns about construction of common-wall dwellings.

Those concerns were manifested in a McRae-led effort to ban further construction of what are commonly called condos near lakefronts.

At one point during the sometimes-heated debate, petitions signed by more than 800 people were presented to council. Those petitions asked for limits on condo development.

Various versions of bans and zoning moratoriums were bantered about and rejected by the planning commission.

When the controversy reached city council, planner Gerry Harsch's offer to work with a committee on recommendations was accepted.

Harsch presented the unanimous recommendations of the group to council Monday. Others on the panel were council members Bill Haggard and Norm Probert, planning commissioners Walt Hufford and Dave Novotny and residents Pat Russell and D'Ann Rothenberger.

The committee identified the areas of concern and came up with 12 recommended changes to the zoning ordinance.

McRae later told the Courier he was disappointed that the proposals did not directly address all the areas of concern brought out in earlier discussions.

Those areas, he said, were waterfront construction, view corridors, height and density.

"I didn't understand what they tried to do in that report," McRae said.

The recommendations deal with the following areas:

– Boat houses, boat docks and related parking;

– Building heights in lakeshore areas;

Proposed new definitions

-- Set the "water mark" at elevation 581 (the edge of the channel);

-- Set the rear lot line on Pine River Channel, Round Lake, Lake Michigan or Lake Charlevoix at the water mark;

-- Establish a method for determining how many boats can be moored at a dock;

-- And eliminate residential uses for boathouses.

In R-1 residential

-- Require one on-site parking spot for each 1½ boat docking sites beyond two;

-- Limit boathouses and other structures near the water to 18 feet in height.

In C-1 commercial

-- Push the channel-side building edge back to 35 feet (the Weathervane is about 30 feet from the water).

In marine-commercial

-- Require a special use permit for ordinance-allowed permitted uses instead of the present site plan process. This gives the council additional powers to decide if a project is in keeping with community desires;

-- Require a viewing corridor of 20 percent of the property width or at least 10 feet, preferably side-to-side with adjoining viewing corridors.

In commercial scenic

-- Set up special use permit procedures identical to those in marine-commercial;

-- Require buildings to be set at least 65 feet from the channel, instead of the present 35 feet.

Along lakefront

-- Prevent boathouses from extending more than 40 feet into the waterway.

Star docking plan sails through council

The prognosis for bringing the Star of Charlevoix back to life continues to improve.

City council has given its informal approval to a plan to take out and replace Round Lake dock space.

The plan must still be approved by the waterways commission of the state Department of Natural Resources.

But council approval was considered a major possible stumbling block for a group seeking local investors for the ship's return.

The Star did not operate this year after six years in Round Lake and prospects for its return were dim until the local group stepped in.

"We think we've got all the arrangements worked out to get the Star of Charlevoix here next year," Dick Georgi told council.

If the Star does return, it is now expected that the 150-foot paddlewheel being built to operate on Lake Charlevoix last season will be the boat operating there next season.

The season was cancelled when the boat was not completed on time. Completion is still not final, but negotiations to operate the boat in Houston have apparently fallen through.

Under the local group's proposal, the Star would remove 3½ or 4 docks between Clinton Street and the Coast Guard cutter Mesquite, while extending several near the dockmaster's office to 75 feet. Some are now 45 feet and others 60 feet.

City Manager Mike Wiesner said the waterways commission was not excited about previous proposals to take away space for pleasure boats to accommodate the Star but might favor a plan that adds docks at a more-desirable end of the harbor.

He said that the city could probably extend docks not affected by the Star's plans for another $20,000 to $25,000 and expect to reap $6,000 a year in additional rental fees. The city collected about $90,000 off dock fees this summer.

AROUND THE TOWN

Keep Michigan Beautiful has selected Charlevoix as the site of its 1988 state convention.... The event will be held Thursday and Friday, Oct. 6-7, apparently at several sites throughout the city....

Local coordinator will be Harold Krutsch, president of the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau and general manager of the Weathervane Terrace.... Instrumental in convincing Keep Michigan Beautiful to come to Charlevoix were the convention bureau, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, the Charlevoix Historical Society and Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.... Lou Orlowski, president of the historical society, made a presentation to the group at its annual meeting this year....

The KMB group will be the second large gathering in Charlevoix in October.... The state Grange, with 300 delegates, will be meeting in the area later in the month.

Tune in early if you want a chance to see Charlevoix's entry in the annual Detroit Thanksgiving parade... Charlevoix will be entry No. 5 – practically at the head of the parade....

The Chamber of Commerce float and Keep Charlevoix Beautiful petunia-watering truck will have a "Charlevoix the Beautiful, four-seasons vacationland" theme.... Skiing down the hillside will be Venetian Festival queen Wendy Voison, wearing ski attire donated by The Bahnhof.... Riding in the truck will be Dale and Marilyn Boss, who precide over the summer-long watering chores....

Parade television coverage begins at 9:30 a.m. Thursday on Channels 2&8.... This year the parade has altered its traditional route, beginning just north of Grand Circus Park on Woodward, instead of at the Art Institute, and continuing east on Jefferson past the Rennaisance Center.

Dedication of the Erber parking lot will take place at noon Friday, Nov. 27.... The lot was purchased and constructed with Downtown Development Authority funds....

Now that decorative street lights are in place, the landscaping is finished.... City crews have included the lot in their tree-lighting efforts and the Erber lot will be lit for the holidays during the dedication ceremony.

'Twas the night before Christmas and all through the house.... Those familiar words are the basis for this year's merchant window decorating contest.... Stores will be asked to use the famous Clement C. Moore poem in their decorating motif....

Scrolls bearing the part of the poem the window display represents will be given to participating offices and stores by the Merchants Division of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.... A call to the chamber of commerce office will reserve a scroll and a visit by judges.... Winners will be announced during the Saturday, Dec. 12, community tree lighting ceremony.

Readers' opinions divided on Bridge Park walkway proposal

If anything is apparent from responses to a survey on the Bridge Park plan, it's that there's no clear-cut majority opinion.

Readers were asked last week to send in their opinions on the proposal to construct a plaza-like walkway along the side of the Burnsides building so five stores could be built there.

The walkway, as proposed, would cut into Bridge Park by about 29 feet. The park is about 250 feet long.

Given four choices, readers were pretty evenly split on three. And many found the Courier's choices too constraining.

The three possibilities receiving virtually even votes are:

– Build the walkway as proposed but leave the ret of the park alone.

– Redesign the entire park.

– Leave the park alone.

The fourth option – build the walkway narrower but leave the rest of the park alone – received by far the smallest amount of support.

Here are excerpts from some of the responses (listed in the order the possible solutions were listed on the ballot):

Build the walkway as proposed but leave the rest of the park alone.

"Park as is gets no use – no benches, etc. Put walkway in with benches, etc. Shops will create a usefulness for park."

"Very positive approach to a very unused area. Will enhance the beauty of Charlevoix – all will benefit from it."

"To improve image on approach from north. I like the economics also."

"It would be nice to have a place to sit and relax. Bathrooms on that end of town would be wonderful."

"The proposed renovaton of the Burnsides building would be a vast improvement to the appearance of our town."

"Park may be better utilized by the public."

"The plan looks very good and is a great improvement to area. Options for rest of park can be handled at later date."

"The parks in the downtown area are very attractive as is, but they have an atmosphere of 'look but don't touch.' Only the very young, the birds, ducks and dogs seem to be able to maneuver the hilly terrain as it is now.... What a shame it would be not to develop such a park with a

Occupational health workshop set at hospital

An Occupational Health and Wellness Workshop will be held Thursday, Dec. 3, from 1 to 4 p.m. in the classroom of Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The workshop is open to all employers from Emmet, Antrim and Charlevoix Counties and is being co-sponsored by the hospital and Chip Counseling Center. It should be of particular interest to managers and personnel directors.

The theme of this free session will be reducing health care costs, improving employee productivity and generally improving the workplace environment by taking advantage of various occupational health and wellness programs available locally.

Four brief presentations will include:

"Hospital Based Occupational Medicine Services" - Merle Plagge, M.D. will discuss how the hospital can help employers cut health care costs and improve productivity through injury and illness care, diagnostic and therapeutic services, referrals and consultation, health screenings, physical exams and health and wellness promotion programs.

"Stress in the Workplace" - Joanne Lutze, Chip Counseling Center educator, will examine the physiology of stress including typical causes of stress in the work setting and its physical manifestations. She will go on to suggest ways for people to deal with stress when it affects their own work and that of others.

"Employee Assistance Programs" - Kari Walker, Executive Director of Chip Counseling Center, will explain the concept of the Employee Assistance Program (EAP) as a means to help employees deal with personal problems such as substance abuse, anxiety and emotional, legal, health or family problems. He will discuss how an EAP is designed and a company policy developed, the supervisor's role in mandatory versus voluntary referrals, assessment and follow-up.

"Rehabilitation Programs" - Julie Collie of Northern Michigan Substance Abuse Services will describe the components of both inpatient and outpatient rehabilitation programs. She will go on to discuss the employer's role in the treatment network and the costs involved. She will also provide information on rehabilitation programs available in Northern Michigan.

There is no cost to participants for this program. However, space is limited so advance registration is requested. Participants may register by calling the hospital at 547-4024.

Genealogical group plans potluck

A potluck dinner is planned for the 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 3, meeting of the ACE Genealogy Society at the Boyne City Library.

A Christmas gift exchange is planned and members are asked to take a $2 gift and a baby picture in addition to a dish to pass and their own table service.

Oyster Bay home site reduction hailed, but not marina plan

by PEG OHLE

A scaled-down version of the controversial development of former Camp Charlevoix on Oyster Bay in Hayes Township Monday night received general public acceptance from persons attending a Department of Natural Resources (DNR) hearing on the project.

That is, construction of 28 single family homes on 56 acres of the property was generally accepted.

However, the 28-boat marina proposed as part of the project was not as well received. Several persons objected to the size of the marina, which would be large enough to accomodate 60-foot boats.

Problems the marina could cause, according to its detractors, include disturbing fish habitat, pollution from oil and detergents, maintenance of the channel from marina to lake, intrusion on other land owners' riparian rights, need for channel markers in Lake Charlevoix, and general disruption of the area.

Trevor Wood of Site Planning Development presented a conceptual plan for the Planned Unit Development proposed by Fox & Associates, owners of the property. He explained the 28 houses would be maintained on a club concept, much like the Chicago and Belvedere Clubs in Charlevoix. There would be a club house, swimming pool, and tennis courts for recreation in addition to the marina.

Wood noted the plan had not yet been submitted to Hayes Township for zoning consideration. The DNR hearing considered only matterrs covered by the Goemaere-Anderson Wetlands Proection Act and the Inland Lakes and Streams Act.

Fox owns 338 acres in Hayes Township and for several years has been trying to get the township's approval for some kind of development. He submitted plans for a 128-unit condominium development and proportionately sized marina, which was turned down because of the township's zoning restrictions. Fox finally sued the township claiming the zoning orrdinance was unconstitutional and the township had violated his civil rights. That case has still not been settled.

There was no mention made Monday night of Fox's plans for the remaining portion of his 338 acres, a large part of which is wetland. However, Fox has proposed extending the City of Charlevoix sewer line to his Hayes Township property, which would make the property more suitable for development. Hayes Township has agreed to take the sewer extension under consideration.

Development of the former Camp Charlevoix property has become of statewide interest to local units of government, developers and realtors, and environmentalists because the whole concept of zoning for "the public good" is believed to be at issue.

Supervisor Paul Hoadley of Hayes Township, Steven Brown of the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, Jerry Puhl of WATCH, Oliver Larkby of the Three Lakes Association in Antrim County, and several property owners near the proposed development spoke against Fox's present plans.

On the other hand, a number of local real estate people and other businessmen supported the project.

Resource center begins shelter families campaign

The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan is making its annual appeal for food and supplies to help assist victims of domestic violence sheltered in the center's Safe Home.

Each year, the shelter houses upward of 150 families, providing crisis response, counseling, food and shelter, legal, medical and financial advocacy, child care and transportation.

Last year, 3,745 nights of lodging were provided for an average of 10 persons a night. This figure includes services to 179 women and 161 children.

The center uses over $10,000 worth of food and supplies each year, most of which is donated by churches, organizations and private individuals from the five counties served by the shelter (Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego and Cheboygan).

Among the items furnished are food stuffs, household supplies, toiletries and first aid items.

Donations will be picked up by making arrangements with the Resource Center, phone 347-0067, or they may be dropped off at the Resource Center office, Room 52, North Central Michigan College, or at the Gold Mine Resale Shop on the corner of Emmet and Washington Streets in Petoskey.

A complete needs list for this year's drive is available from the Resource Center.

Similarities end quickly for Islander

by PEG OHLE

In this week's geography lesson we learn that the Grand Canary Island and Charlevoix County have an important similarity: They are both major resort areas.

We learned this while talking with Marta SanJuan, an exchange student from the island who is attending Charlevoix High School this year.

Marta showed us a tourist-oriented brochure with wide sandy beaches, hang gliders against blue skies, sailboats, fishing tugs and flower-lined streets, all attractions to the island's thousands of annual visitors.

But that is where the similarity ends. The trees are palm and drago, the backgrounds are mountainous, many of the buildings are hundreds of years old, the main crops are bananas and tomatoes, and the average air temperature this time of year is 65 degrees. Also, the average water temperature is sometimes a little higher, due to the warming Canaries Current.

Marta came to the United States with about 200 students from Europe and South American under the sponsorship of Spanish Heritage.

She purposely chose a northern state because, as her mother explained, "They speak purer English there." She didn't want to be in the southern or western states where there is so much Mexican-Spanish influence on the language.

She also wanted to be near "the sea," but not in California, which is too much like the Canary Islands to provide a different environment for her.

Although Maine was the area her family was thinking of, Marta is glad she came to Charlevoix. She likes the lakes, the people and the area. The day the Courier talked with her the first snow of the season was falling, something which never happens on the Canary Islands.

Marta SanJuan

Marta is a well-traveled young lady. The last several summers she has traveled to different European countries to spend time living with native families and learning their language and customs. She has lived in Germany, France, Switzerland, England, Portugal, Holland, Belgium, Luxemburg and Austria.

This is her first trip to the United States.

At home, Marta attends a German-language school about the size of Charlevoix High School. She goes to that school because it offers several foreign languages, including English, which Marta has studied for five years.

Last year, Marta studied 14 subjects in school, including history, geography, chemistry, physics, math, art, music, sports, German, English, Spanish, French, biology and psychology.

Spanish is the native language of the Canary Islands.

A big difference between school in Charlevoix and her home city of Las Palmas, Gran Carnaria, is that students there remain in the same room during the school day, except for classes in which special equipment is needed. Instead of students moving every class period, the teachers move.

Another difference is that in Las Palmas there are no lockers in the schools. Students carry their books and other equipment back and forth every day. When Marta was given a combination lock for her locker, she didn't know how to use it, so she took it home one weekend to practice turning and opening and closing.

As a junior at Charlevoix High School, Marta is studying civics, United States history, algebra, art, French and publications.

She is taking pictures for the yearbook and working on the newspaper. She is also a member of the French and Spanish clubs.

Outside school, Marta participates in the activities of a youth group at St. Mary's Catholic Church.

Marta has already decided on a career. She wants to be an architect, and after she finishes high school she will go to college on her home island for two years, then to a university in Spain to study for another four years.

Waiting for Marta at home are her father, who is a structural engineer for roads, bridges and similar projects; her mother, who is a psychologist; and her 12-year-old brother.

In Charlevoix, Marta is living with the William Dietrich family and enjoying the companionship of 16-year-old Heather and 13-year-old Heidi.

In a group of students at school, Marta would probably not be picked as one whose home is on an island in the north Atlantic just 30 miles from the coast of northern Africa.

Her clothes are all American, bought after she arrived here, not only because she did not own warm clothes, but because "they are cheaper here."

Only when she speaks does this dark-eyed miss reveal a foreign heritage.

City zoning administrator begins work

The city has hired a zoning administrator.

Sue Erber, former council and zoning board of appeals member, began working a week ago.

The administrator's job is to help property owners meet the requirements of the zoning ordinance when building in the city and to halt those who are violating the law.

Zoning administration has been a sore subject with many members of the city council and the general public who have noticed unattended violations.

In several recent instances, projects have been started, and sometimes finished, without prior determination that they comply with the ordinance.

Zoning administration had been handled by city planner Gerry Harsch, who is contracted to work for the city about nine hours a week.

In those hours, Harsch also functions as a staff person for the planning commission, zoning board of appeals and Downtown Development Authority. He also heads up projects such as the present shoreline zoning provision review.

Erber will be working 12-15 hours a week at zoning administration. She was hired by City Manager Mike Wiesner from among four candidates.

North Point grant application backed

Editor,

The following letter was sent to Rodney Stokes, executive secretary of the Michigan Land Trust Fund board.

I am writing to urge the board's strong support of Proposal No. 87-137; the North Point parcel on Lake Michigan near Charlevoix.

As you know, Lake Michigan shoreline property is coming under increasing development pressure, especially in areas as beautiful as North Point. Comprising 28 acres and stretching across 2,800 feet of Lake Michigan waterfront, this parcel is truly irreplaceable, and one we should preserve for future generations to enjoy.

Northern Michigan residents have united behind efforts to place this property under public stewardship. The Little Traverse Conservancy, an organization with a successful track record in spearheading such preservation projects, has thrown its support and fundraising resources behind the proposal. And Charlevoix township officials have agreed to hold and manage the property once the effort is successful.

A commitment to fund 44 percent of the purchase price has been made by the conservancy and interested people in the Charlevoix area. This is an impressive local commitment, and one that is evidence of the seriousness of the effort.

I sincerely hope that you share our desire to preserve this pristine area of sand dunes, maple-beech forest and rare plants. Your financial support of the proposal would be greatly appreciated by all of the citizens of the north, as well as untold numbers of future visitors to the area.

Mitch Irwin
State Senator

Letters to the editor:

Incorrect impression left

Editor:

I wish to correct an impression that some people may have received from the statement attributed to me at the end of the interview story about our recent trip to the Soviet Union (Nov. 18).

I am not naive enough to think that the Soviets will not try to spread communism by political intrigue. My meaning was that the Soviet Union is not likely, at the present time, to pursue military means to achieve their end of the spread of the communist doctrine.

Ray Giffin

City council using two sets of standards

Editor,

It seems very strange to me, after reading recent articles, that the City of Charlevoix can or should object to Mr. Camp's or the Harbor Club's proposed dock revisions on Round Lake.

Is this the same City that wants to revise public docks to allow a 100' plus dinner cruise boat to protrude into the same Round Lake? I guess what's good for the Goose isn't good for the Gander!

Dennis P. Heck

The Wright way

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

With the field of Democratic hopefuls growing smaller with each new scandal, I am going to go out on a limb and predict that Rep. Jim Wright of Texas, speaker of the House of Representatives, will be the Democratic presidential candidate in next year's election.

At this point, Wright is a long shot at best. I haven't even heard his name bandied about as presidential material, making him just about the only high-ranking Democrat to avoid such consideration.

Furthermore, to my knowledge Wright hasn't expressed any particular interest in the presidency, despite the fact that he is continually making big waves in international politics.

However, if Democrats want a man who stands for just about all of the things President Reagan and his clone George Bush are against, then Jim Wright is their man.

Wright's latest confrontation with the president came over the visit of Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega to Washington to address the Organization of American States.

Ortega, you'll rememeber, is the duly elected president of Nicaragua whom Reagan and others would like to unseat so that a right-wing descendant of the old Somoza regime, otherwise known as the Contras, could resume command of that beleaguered country.

Reagan thinks Ortega leans too far to the left and Ortega certainly is no John Bircher. But, tell me, what other direction could he lean considering the animosity he has encountered during the Reagan administration from official Washington?

During his visit, Ortega said he would very much like to meet with the president. But Reagan is an old fuss-budget. He said he would meet with Ortega but only in the company of other Central American leaders.

So Jim Wright, to his everlasting credit, arranged a private meeting with Ortega and Cardinal Obando y Bravo, Ortega's hand-picked negotiator in drawing up a cease-fire with the Contras.

Reagan, of course, was livid when he learned that Wright had gone over his head. But in my book Wright did what he had to.

After the meeting, Wright explained that someone has to talk to foreign heads of state when they come to the United States on important business.

Then he added wryly that someone in the State Department apparently is terrified that peace will break out in Central America.

And he is probably very close to the truth.

Another iron-fisted dictatorship in Nicaragua certainly would make life easier for official Washington — and more profitable for American firms doing business with Nicaragua —regardless of the indignities and hardships that would be foisted upon the long-suffering native population.

The meeting with Ortega isn't the first time Wright has incurred the president's wrath. Earlier, he was outspoken in his opposition to Contra aid and probably was instrumental in having further debate on the question postponed until next year.

Wright also has tangled with Reagan over arms limitation. Before Reagan met with Soviet Chairman Mike Gorbachev in Iceland last November, Wright, with the consensus of Congress, begged Reagan not to breach provisions of an arms limitation treaty signed with Moscow in the 1970s.

But Reagan refused to heed the warning and deployed a new bomber in excess of the limits.

Reagan even called Wright to give him the good news last Thanksgiving Day, pointing out that the bomber would land at Carswell Air Force Base, which is in Wright's district.

"Apparently," Wright told the New York Times, "he thought I would be pleased that it was landing in my district, when he was doing the very thing that I had pleaded with him three times in the name of Congress not to do."

So what do you think about Jim Wright for president? I believe he would be a very acceptable Democratic candidate. At least there would be no fuzziness between party lines to confuse the electorate.

Charleviews

Readers split three ways on walkway proposal

wide walk area and places for sitting and viewing beautiful Round Lake. If Charlevoix were not situated on a major highway, think how terrific it would be to continue this idea down the middle of Bridge Street."

"Do this if this is what we can afford or do option No. 2. Both will enhance the business and beauty of the downtown area. Or do a design that meets the needs of the city and the needs of the developer of the store."

"Accept project as CDC has proposed. I agree with J. Wallace: that park is idle. CDC's proposal is a charming and excellent improvement over current use."

"With seating and a more park like setting, the area becomes much more attractive and usable."

Build the walkway narrower but leave the rest of the park alone.

"Let Georgi build a sidewalk (6 feet) but the city put in the patio area and any other project Georgi should offer should revert to the city thereby no surrender of public property."

"People don't need to stop or congregate in front of shops. Can do that on grass park area. Like the idea of shops – especially clothing, etc. – no more T-shirt or Ice cream stores or Charlevoix soon will be another brassy area like Mackinac Island."

"I don't know if I am in favor of or opposed to the park because I can't make head or tail out of the drawing. What are the circles?"

Redesign the entire park.

"Presently unattractive and hardly a 'park.' New plaza design is more condusive to Charlevoix character and will have public appeal."

"The park is not very appealing the way it is."

"I favor the proposed walkway along Burnsides which could be the beginning of a 'facelift' for the entire park."

"The park will have more unity and will be used by more people."

"Take advantage of Jackson and Campbell's offer."

"Much more usable."

"I am sick and tired of local citizens and city council members giving developers such a rough time when they are willing to take the financial risk which will do nothing but result in improving our downtown resulting in a much needed facelift and an economical lift down the road."

"Better use for public."

"Go for it! I don't care about more summer shops, but improving the park looks great. It is unused lawn now."

"Since the park has not really been useful in its present state, it should be redesigned to go with the entire development. Could be fantastic."

"I think the park as it is not very usable. We definitely need more restrooms. It would be an improvement over what is there."

"It would greatly improve this area and increase its use and attraction."

"Need to utilize lower level of building and park, lower parking lot and public restrooms, Bridge Street level shops, park, etc."

Leave the park alone.

"This property, part of Bridge Park, was purchased by the city of Charlevoix in the 1930s at a rock bottom price of $6,000. It consisted of at least 120 feet frontage on Bridge and running down to Round Lake. I know because it belonged to my parents.... I do believe the park could be made more attractive with a walk through the center of the park with benches scattered throughout."

"The park belongs to all the people, not just for profit for a few. The beauty will be gone if changed."

"If Dick Georgi wants to have his building to have a better entrance to enhance his possibilities of renting out his shops, then he should do it, not the city. I do not feel we need any more empty shops in Charlevoix at this time. However, I realize that is not the issue - but why should we make it easier for more shops to be empty?"

"The park should not be touched. You give one developer some and the next one wants some. Parks should be left as wide open as possible, not cluttered with that and that.... The developers press the fact that it will be nice setting to see as you come into town from the North. What's so nice about 'Closed for the winter, see you in the spring'?"

"Lets not spoil the little park. Have one more small space to see the lake. Condos have most of the lake shut off now."

"It will lead to encroachment of other greenspace."

"I don't think we should give up parkland for the benefit of private profit."

"The Charlevoix Development Company purchased the Burnside property knowing full well that its potential was limited and restricted by the park boundary. Now they want the council to bail them out. While they may be adding more taxes to the rolls, I find it difficult to see where what they want will help the average citizen...."

"The development for the benefit of the already wealthy is outrageous. Leave park alone."

"Why tear up park for private business? Didn't get park overnight. What benefit was shack built on dock?"

"It's what really makes our downtown appealing to travelers. Being able to stop and enjoy our parks and beautiful view. When will this city stop giving property away?... Let them paint a mural on the side."

"Let's leave Charlevoix some natural beauty. Paint a welcome sign on the old building. We need public restrooms more than we do a fancy sidewalk."

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared
by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Thomas Black
First Baptist Church

Once there was a man who was in love with a lady. At least, that's what he told her; but he never mentioned her to any of his friends.

On his day off, he called on her - if he didn't have a headache, or company, or feel too tired, or have someplace to go. About an hour in her presence was about all he could stand.

He was terribly restless. She loved good music and literature. He had no interest in either. When she wanted to sing or read together he refused, unless he was really on the spot.

The trouble was that he was still carrying a torch for an old sweetheart. They had agreed to make a break, but he still saw her several hours a week, because they seemed to have much in common.

Yet he refused to admit a rift between himself and the woman he told he loved. This is a parable of the lukewarm Christian. Figure it out! Are you a reluctant lover?

Michael Lownsberry and Valerie Wellman

Wellman-Lownsberry engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wellman of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter Valerie Kay Wellman to Michael Rae Lownsberry. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gail Lownsberry of Lehigh Acres, Fla.

The bride-elect is a 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School. She is currently employed as a teller at Old Kent Bank in Petoskey.

Her fiance is a 1975 graduate of Inland Lakes High School and is currently a sales representative for William Dunstan Supply in Petoskey.

A May 28 wedding is being planned at Zion Lutheran Church in Petoskey.

Advent workshop at Bethany

An Advent workshop is planned for Sunday, Nov. 29, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at Bethany Lutheran Church.

A good deed tree and a gingerbread corner where children can decorate cookies will be included. There will also be an opportunity to make Christmas ornaments and Advent wreaths.

On display will be a sample Advent calendar, mementos of Christmases past and a book and gift table. The public is invited.

VFW auxiliary give donations to state, national organizations

The ladies auxiliary of Charlevoix Post No. 1153, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will host district president Corrinne Rogers of Central Lake at its Thursday, Dec. 3, meeting.

Rogers will inspect the auxiliary at that time.

The membership has voted to pay the district and national associations and to donate $100 to the National VFW Children's Home at Eaton Rapids.

Five hundred patriotic children's coloring books were purchased for distribution to the kindergarten to third grade students at Charlevoix Elementary and St. Mary's schools and at pre-schools.

Thanksgiving service at Christian Science

A holiday service of Thanksgiving will be held at the Christian Science church at 11 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 26.

Visitors are welcome to join the congregation in the service, which will include readings from the Bible and from the textbook of Christian Science, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," along with a spontaneous sharing of accounts of healing and gratitude to God.

Obituaries

Harold H. Kietzer Jr.

Harold H. Kietzer Jr., father of Charlevoix resident Meg Andreae, died Nov. 13, 1987, at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac.

Funeral services were held Nov. 17, at First Presbyterian Church in Birmingham with the Rev. Charles A. Sommers officiating.

Mr. Kietzer was born July 13, 1921, in Chicago. He attended Lane Technical High School there, the University of Michigan, the Aeronautical University and Yale. He as an officer in the U.S. Air Force and an engineering officer at Atsuigi Air Force Base in Japan.

He left Federal Mogul Corp. as senior vice president after 38 years and became president of NTN Bower Corp. A member of the Society of Automotive Engineers and past president of the Anti-Friction Bearing Manufacturers Association, he was past president and life member of the Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute. He was also a member of First Presbyterian Church of Birmingham, the Great Lakes Cruising Club and Oakland Hills Country Club.

Surviving are his wife Marjorie of Birmingham; four daughters, Meg Andreae of Charlevoix, Kathleen Kamp of Birmingham, Claudia James of Birmingham and Elise Zimmerman of Birmingham; and nine grandchildren.

The family suggests tributes to Ronald McDonald House, 3911 Beaubein, Detroit 48201 or Charlevoix Area Hospital. Arrangements were handled by William R. Hamilton Co. of Birmingham.

Vernon L. Mathews Sr.

Vernon L. Mathews Sr., 78, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 21, 1987, in Coffeeville, Ala., while traveling enroute to Florida.

A memorial service will be 2 p.m. Friday, Nov. 27, at the Community Church of God, 202 W. Hurlbut St., Charlevoix. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton will officiate.

Mr. Mathews was born April 20, 1909, in White Lake Township, near Milford. He attended schools in White Lake Township and on July 29, 1930, he married the former Ida W. VanBuren. They lived in the Howell area until 1944 when they moved to Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. Mathews owned a farm in Charlevoix Township until 1952. At that time, Mr. Mathews went into private contracting work, retiring in 1971.

Mr. Mathews had served several years on the Charlevoix School Board and was a former member of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club.

Survivors include: his wife; two daughters, Joan Blanchard of Charlevoix and Thelma Augustine of Sallisaw, Okla.; two sons, Robert G. Mathews of Sebring, Fla. and Vernon L. Mathews Jr. of Charlevoix; one sister, Jessie Walls of Highland; 13 grandchildren; three great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Agnes M. Fairbanks

Mrs. Agnes M. Fairbanks, 94, died Monday Nov. 23, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

Funeral services were scheduled at Winchester Funeral Home on Wednesday, with the Rev. Thomas Black of the First Baptist Church officiating. Interment is in Brookside Cemetery.

The former Agnes M. Reid, daughter of William T. and Agnes (Meyers) Reid, was born at South Boardman and grew up in the Acme area. She opened a bakery in Traverse City in 1925 and, in 1934, moved to Charlevoix where she operated Fairbanks Bakery with her sons, Ronald and Leo.

Later she was associated with the family bakery in Grand Rapids, 1949-71. Following her retirement in 1971, she returned to Charlevoix to live. She attended First Baptist Church.

Surviving are a daughter, June E. Riley of Charlevoix; two sons, Leo E. of Charlevoix and Ronald J. of Charlevoix and Fort Pierce, Fla; nine grandchilden; 21 great-grandchildren; three great great-grandchildren and one sister Susie Barrett of New Buffalo, Mich.

The family suggests memorials to First Baptist Church. Envelopes are available at Winchester Funeral Home.

Helping hands

Lucy Witthoeft (left) and Gertrude Holt of the Charlevoix Women's Club prepare pieces for classroom work in the Michigan Model for Comprehensive Health Education. Teachers from throughout the area were trained in using the kindergarten-eighth grade program at the Char-Em Intermediate School District offices while volunteers colored and cut.

Stained glass shop opens

The Charlevoix Stained Glass Company will open for business at 830 Petoskey Ave. this Friday.

The new company will be operated by Connie and Frank Thiel, who are turning a hobby into a business.

Connie is continuing her profession as a therapist, but Frank will leave his job with Charlevoix Waste Services to devote full time to the new business.

Among the qualities people look for in stained glass, according to Connie, are how well the seams are put together, the purity of the glass, and the type of design.

Among the items the Charlevoix Stained Glass Company will have for sale are lamps and lamp shades, window hangings, sun catchers, mirrors, jewelry boxes, clocks, chess-checker boards, candle holders and picture frames. It will also custom-make special orders.

Girls end basketball season with loss in district action

The Charlevoix girls basketball team bowed out of the Class C District tournament losing to East Jordan 68-42.

East Jordan will go into the finals against Rogers City tonight.

East Jodan jumped to a 15-10 first period advantage, increased it to 40-20 at halftime and 56-30 at the three-quarrter mark before taking the game by 26 points.

Melissa Boss and Ellen Pearl paced the Rayder scoring with 14 points each. Stacy Gebott added 12. Kristy Miler had 20 points, Jill Burt and Sara Chase 11 for East Jordan.

The Red Devils outscored the Rayders 32-20 from the floor. East Jordan made three of six from the charity line. Charlevoix made both of its foul shots.

Coach Stan Martin said after the game, "Though they trailed throughout the game, our girls hustled througout the game. They never gave up and kept going."

The team finished with a 2-20 season. Ellen Pearl and Jill Austin are the only seniors on the team.

Depot, McKeown rack up victories

Depot Restaurant and Pat McKeown Ford racked up wins in the A League of the Charlevoix Independent League.

The Depot beat Kit Carson Lumber 106-88 and McKeown downed Medusa 100-90. Nanny's won by forfeit over Dyco Tool.

Dean Hicks poured in 38 points for Depot as the Boyne City team jumped to a 34-15 first period lead, increased their total to 54-31 at halftime and held the advantage 77-60 going into the final period.

Burt Moeke contributed 30 points, Tim Hartwick 18 and Rob Spence 12 to Depot's winning cause. Vincent left had 24 points, Tim Carey 20 and Paul Hoffman 12 for Carson.

McKeown romped to a 27-17 first period lead over Medusa and remained ahead 54-40 at halftime before Medusa outscored McKeown 27-23 to cut the margin to eight points. Medusa was unable to retain the pace, however, as McKeown rolled to victory.

Cliff Hass led the McKeown attack with 32 points, assisted by Mark Long with 23, Kim Thomson with 22 and Brian Shorter with 10.

Mike Loper had 22, Dave Storm and John Murphy 20 each and Dan McKenzie 14 for Medusa.

Bank, Loggers, Marsh win in B League

First State Bank defeated Pinney Logging 84-64, Weathervane beat Villager Pub 77-60 and Marsh Construction downed Wojan Aluminum 53-42 in B League action in the Charlevoix Independent Basketball League.

Six players were in double figures as First State rolled past Pinney 25-17, 46-31 and 58-53 by quarters.

Jeff Leaman had 20, Bob Sandahl 19, Ike Boss and Ty Wagner 11 each for First State and Dennis Dominic had Rod Stevens 10 each for Pinney.

Joe Miller with 23 points led Weathervane. Weathervane held 18-16, 23-14 and 58-43 leads by quarters.

Steve Leazier, Tom Lalley and Mike Shepperly had 12 points each for Weathervane. Dave Cole had 28 and Larry Skippergosh 10 for Villager.

After getting off to a 13-3 first period lead, Marsh went ahead 29-17 at halftime and 38-26 going into the final period.

Jim Marsh had 11 points for his team. Tom Morris with 18 points and Mike Herriman with 10 were top scorers for Wojan's.

Cagers close out schedule with defeat

The Rayder girls basketball team played its final game of the scheduled season at Grayling losing 70-39.

The team concluded the season with a 2-18 record.

Grayling jumped to a 15-6 first period lead, before the Rayders trimmed the lead to five points to trail 25-20 at halftime. Grayling increased the advantage 45-24 going into the final period.

Grayling poured in 30 field goals and made 10 of 16 from the line. The Rayders made 15 shots from the floor and nine of 13 charity shots.

Ellen Pearl was top scorer for the Rayders with 14 points.

The JV team dropped their game 65-35 after trailing 37-16 at halftime.

Angela Walker had eight points for Charlevoix. The JV's had a 1-19 record for the season.

New tool for wrestlers

With the 1987-88 wrestling season about to open, the Rayder matmen are taking advantage of their newest piece of equipment, the Adam Takedown. Jim Tilton demonstrates the machine during a daily practice. The machine, which costs $1,200, was purchased with the assistance of the Sports Boosters.

3 Rayders gain football league honors

Three members of the 1987 Rayder football squad received Most Valuable Player recognition and four others were given honorable mention on the annual Michigan-Huron Shores Conference Most Valuable Player team.

Charlevoix players selected were Dan Drury, Scott DeYoung and Mike Smith.

Receiving honorable mention were Marvin Witthoeft, Chad Thorp, Mark LaBlance and Jim Tilton. All are seniors.

The Rayders had a 5-3 record in league play and a 6-3 overall record.

Girls basketball MVP designated

Ellen Pearl has been selected as the girls' basketball team's Most Valuable Player on the annual Michigan-Huron Shores Conference team.

The senior received honorable mention a year ago. This year, Stacy Gebott, a junior, received honorable mention.

The number of players selected for the team by their own school is based on the team's record in league play. The Rayders were 2-12 in the league.

Hotel nears final OK with same plan as condo

It could be a condo. Or it could be a hotel.

Don Berlage says he isn't sure yet. But he is getting closer to being able to build whichever he chooses on Park Avenue overlooking the Pine River Channel.

Either way, Berlage says, the building would look the same from the outside. And the city zoning board of appeals and planning commission agree.

A couple members of city council, however, are upset with developments in the months-long process. Council member Shirley Roloff, in particular, says she doesn't understand why Berlage has been given city approval to begin construction.

Council has given final approval to a site plan for an 11-unit residential condominium on the site, which City Manager Mike Wiesner says prevents the city from doing anything other than granting a zoning permit to start construction.

And council will soon be presented with a site plan for a 21-unit hotel. That plan has been approved by the planning commission with the stipulation that a landscape plan be OK'd by the city planner before going to council.

The zoning board approved variances to zoning regulations that would allow Berlage to build a hotel with the same exterior dimensions and placement as the already-approved condo complex.

Approval of the 11-unit plan was approved with the provision that the building be placed to preserve viewing sight lines from Hoffmann Park to Lake Michigan.

To do that, the city – following a recommendation by planner Gerry Harsch – stipulated that the channel side of the building could not begin any closer than the 599-foot elevation level above the channel. This puts the building about 60 feet from the channel and near the top of the bluff.

The zoning board's recommendation of the same placement for the hotel came during consideration of other matters – extension of turrets and chimneys above the normal 35-foot height limitation and whether the building could have 3½ stories instead of 2½.

The board determined a variance for the chimneys was not needed because sections of the law dealing with commercial scenic-zoned parcels do not include chimneys in height restrictions. Some parts of the ordinance do, while others do not.

The board also thought a four-foot variance for four turrets was reasonable since Berlage was agreeing to limit the building to the same space and dimensions as the condo building.

He could build a hotel to cover up to 70 percent of the lots, officials agreed, but is only asking for an 18 percent coverage.

The board also had little trouble granting the story requirement variance because both it and the planning commission have previously decided that the ordinance is inconsistent in its story requirements and that construction codes and practices dictate stories within the 35-foot limit, anyway.

The zoning board earlier determined a hotel is an allowable use in a commercial scenic zone. The only commercial scenic lots in the city are the two Berlage plans to build on at 105 and 107 Park and the one immediately next door at 109.

The planning commission voted to recommend approval to council of the site plan for the hotel, with a few minor changes.

Berlage says he wants to have the option of making the building a 21-unity hotel or an 11-unit condo next year. Because of fluctuating economic conditions, he says, he wants to wait as long as possible to decide what to do.

Berlage's request to build on the property has been complex and time-consuming. He submitted four plans for the site – the 11-unit condo, a nine-unit one, the hotel and a 21-unit residential club – as an anti-condo movement was gaining strength last spring.

As various questions concerning the plans were defeated, the options eventually were narrowed to the 11-unit condo and the hotel.

During site plan review, the council will be determining whether the project meets all the requirements of the zoning ordinance. Variances have been described as a license to break the zoning ordinance in a specific case.

Medusa donates $50,000 for North Point purchase

by PEG OHLE

"With this pledge, I offer the best wishes of the company for the success of this project."

The speaker was Daniel E. Somes, president of Medusa Cement Co., which last week pledged $50,000 toward the purchase by the Little Traverse Conservancy of a portion of North Point in Charlevoix Township for a nature preserve and public park.

Medusa's contribution is the first large pledge in a beginning campaign to raise $300,000 from business, organization and individual sources toward the purchase price of $700,000 for the property. Application has been made to the state Land Trust Fund for the remaining $400,000.

Medusa's pledge makes it possible for the conservancy to keep an option on the property for a year. The option was signed with the family of the late Richard Turner, owners of the property. The conservancy will have two years in which to raise the necessary $700,000. With the fund drive beginning now before the end of the 1987 calendar year, there will be time for three yearly donations.

The North Point property consists of 27 acres of sand dunes and wooded area with 2,800 feet of Lake Michigan shoreline. Its value as a nature preserve and park was first brought to public attention in 1985, when plans for a 120-unit condominium development of the area was announced.

The property adjoins Mount McSauba, the recreation area operated by the city of Charlevoix. Conservancy Director Tom Bailey says this proximity to an existing park is especially good because "it allows us to create more recreational land in an area already established as a recreational area."

Bailey also explained that the conservancy's role is simply that funds to purchase the property. When that is accomplished, the property will be turned over to Charlevoix Township to manage. It will be used largely for a bathing beach and nature study trails. It will be kept in a semi-wild state.

Come gave credit to Medusa's local attorney Tom Pointner, immediate past chairman of the conservancy, for bringing the North Point project to his company's attention.

"I knew the project had to be a winner," he said "I did not hesitate to offer the financial support of the Medusa Cement Co. because the project is one that quite clearly will benefit the entire community, including all the people who work for us at Medusa."

Dr. John Hall, presiding chairman of the Little Traverse Conservancy, acknowledged Medusa's contribution with the statement, "The human environment and the business environment are all linked together. The preservation of North Point will enhance the quality of life in this area in many ways."

Oscar Stroud, supervisor of Charlevoix Township, said, "Medusa has always supported the community one hundred percent plus. I was not surprised when I heard of their contribution of $50,000."

The conservancy staff will present recommendations to the Land Trust Fund (a division of the state Department of Natural Resources) at the fund's regular meeting next month, and its decision on funding will be announced in January. The funding could be in the full amount of $400,000, part of that amount, or nothing at all, according to Bailey.

However, the Land Trust Fund pays considerable attention to local support of projects that come to its attention. The North Point project is being enthusiastically supported by word and letter by many local organizations, including the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, the Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and several fraternal and educational groups.

Jaycees help brighten Thanksgiving

The Charlevoix Area Jaycees are again donating Thanksgiving dinners to needy families in the county.

About 65 families – fairly evenly split among Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan – are receiving food donations this year.

The food baskets – which consists of turkey, canned goods and potatoes – are being purchased from Oleson Food Store, Jaycees president Dan Barron said.

Funds to buy the food were raised through a summer raffle and a concession stand at the Michigan Amateur golf tournament and at Venetian Festival, Barron said.

His wife, Cheryl, is chairperson of the holiday project. There are about 16 people involved in the Jaycees' project.

Names of needy families are obtained from the Department of Social Services and from the Women's Resource Center.

Panel submits shoreline amendments

– Yard setbacks aimed at keeping buildings away from the water;

– Discretionary powers for council to further regulate lakefront property uses; and,

– View corridors along the waterfront.

Probert and Haggard both praised the work done by Harsch and other members of the committee, and said the recommendations were meant to be a starting point for discussion.

Harsch said the recommendations would be sent to the planning commission for discussion. The planners will hold a public hearing, then make a recommendation to council.

Council, he said, would also hold a public hearing and then decide on what final amendments it would approve.

Council member Shirley Roloff said the proposals were not easily understood and she thought they – and the entire zoning ordinance – should be in language anyone could understand.

Also expressing dissatisfaction with the proposals was William Bellinger, owner of Bellinger Marine Service on Round Lake.

Bellinger said it appears restrictions written for marine-commercial parcels were directed primarily at his property.

Calling the proposals highly restrictive, he said: "A business has to grow or it will fail. Expansion is necessary. Most of these provisions will hamper growth."

A provision for keeping 20 percent of the property open for a view corridor to the lake, he said, would prevent him from expanding his shed capacity and would result in a hefty tax bill for a 40-foot wide piece of property he could not use.

Saying the city is attempting to close the barn door, he said, the proposals attempt to "penalize someone who didn't join the horses...."

The first four proposed amendments alter or establish zoning ordinance definitions which are used in other amendments.

They would:

– Set the "water mark" at elevation 581 (the edge of the channel);

– Set the rear lot line on Pine River Channel, Round Lake, Lake Michigan or Lake Charlevoix at the water mark;

– Establish a method for determining how many boats can be moored at a dock;

– And eliminate residential uses for boathouses.

Two changes would affect R-1 residential zones, primarily along the north shore of Round Lake. They would:

– Require one on-site parking spot for each 1½ boat docking sites beyond two;

– Limit boathouses and other structures near the water to 18 feet in height.

A proposal for C-1 commercial districts would affect primarily property along the north shore of Pine River Channel west of the Weathervane restaurant. It would:

– Push the channel-side building edge back to 35 feet (the Weathervane is about 30 feet from the water).

Two proposals would affect marine-commercial properties all along the south shore of Round Lake. They would:

– Require a special use permit for ordinance-allowed permitted uses instead of the present site plan process. This gives the council additional powers to decide if a project is in keeping with community desires;

– Require a viewing corridor of 20 percent of the property width or at least 10 feet, preferably side-to-side with adjoining viewing corridors.

Two proposals apply to commercial scenic zoned property, which, following site plan approval of a proposal for two lots on Park Avenue, is only a lot at 109 Park. These:

– Set up special use permit procedures identical to those in marine-commercial;

– Require buildings to be set at least 65 feet from the channel, instead of the present 35 feet.

The final proposal would apply mainly to residential properties. It would:

– Prevent boathouses from extending more than 40 feet into the waterway.

The planning commission separately is working on other amendments which would affect lakefront zoning.

One of these extends the city's control of development to the center of the waterway instead of to the edge. Another changes the way building heights are determined in all parts of the city.

Public hearings on those and a six-foot fence proposal will be held by the planning commission on Monday, Jan. 11.

Potluck dinner set

The Charlevoix Historical Society will observe Christmas when the organization meets at Harsha House at 103 State St. on Tuesday, Dec. 1.

A potluck dinner at 6:30 p.m. will be followed by an informal program that will include the singing of Christmas carols and a visit from Santa.

Members are asked to take a dish to pass and their own table service.

Mail carriers begin senior 'alert'

Next week, patrons of the Charlevoix post office will receive a flyer from the post office announcing the establishment of the "Carrier Alert Program."

The program, a cooperative effort between the Postal Service and the National Association of Letter Carriers, is designed to "look after" elderly and handicapped persons by postal carriers, who are often the only outsiders having contact with these people on a daily basis

Elderly and handicapped persons will be asked to let the post office know if they wish to be enrolled in the program

Those who do will be given a decal to place on the inside of their mailbox and the carrier will watch for an accumulation of mail.

If the carrier feels someone may need assistance, he will notify the Charlevoix Emergency Services Department, which is administering the program locally.

The "Carrier Alert" decals are being printed and supplied free of charge by Kwikie Duplicating Center of Charlevoix, according to Postmaster Sheila Murphy.

City endorses Star dock

It could cost the Star group $50,000 or so to do the dock work, Georgi said. The city would then give the Star dock space rent-free for five years.

Under the original plan, which was patterned after an earlier contract, the Star would have paid one percent of its revenues in rent – estimated at $5,000 to $7,500 annually for the city.

It was thought then, though, that the boat could be docked nose in and dock renovations would be minimal.

The paddlewheel produces safety, loading and visibility problems, Georgi said, that make docking parallel to the dock imperative.

No one in a large council audience spoke against the proposal, and Norm Probert was the only council member to say he was against the plan.

Probert said he preferred the nose-first plan, "but have to go for what some of my constituents say."

A contract is being drawn up for council and Star approval.

Council endorsement of docking plans is only one of three areas of support the group needs, Georgi said.

A group of Star Line-associated investors has given its preliminary approval to taking on up to 50 percent of the cost and 50 percent of the debt of operating the ship in Charlevoix.

Local investors for the other half of the initial cost must also be rounded up. Georgi estimates the local investors will need to commit $150,000 in cash and $200,000 in debt.

The group has until Jan. 1 to put all the pieces together.

Neighbors file suit to stop work on channel condo

The neighbors of a planned condominium or hotel building on Park Avenue are attempting to halt construction on two fronts.

David Miles, on behalf of himself and his mother Esther, has filed a lawsuit against the city and against the developer to halt construction of the condos.

And, Miles told the Courier, he plans to present his case directly to city council in an attempt to block a decision on the hotel.

The property in question is two lots – 105 and 107 Park – overlooking the Pine River Channel. Miles' property is at 109 Park.

Consideration of the hotel site plan is scheduled at the Monday, Dec. 7, council meeting.

The condominiums and the hotel were two of four plans for the site submitted by attorney Don Berlage, president of Northern Michigan Realty Services Inc.

A third proposal has been dropped and the fourth has been at least temporarily shelved.

Named in the lawsuit are the city and Northern Michigan Realty Services. No individuals or boards are named.

"The city granted variances and shouldn't have," Miles' attorney Ward Kuhn told the Courier. "There are aspects of the site plan that require variances and no application was made.

"They missed some stuff when they OK'd the site plan."

The condo plan was approved by council in November. And the hotel plan has been endorsed by the planning commission.

The zoning board of appeals ruled a hotel was an allowable use in a commercial-scenic district after the planning commission voted it was not.

Kuhn said he sees condo approval and hotel consideration as separate issues but asks in the suit that the court determine a hotel-motel is not permitted in a commercial-scenic zone. The only lots zoned commercial-scenic are Miles' and Berlage's.

Wendy Voisin smiles from her perch on the Charlevoix community float as a television camera catches her expression during the Michigan Thanksgiving Parade.

4-SEASON TRANSFORMATION

"I had my perma-grin on," says Wendy Voison after waving to 700,000 people.

The Venetian Festival queen didn't get to watch the annual Michigan Thanksgiving Parade in Detroit. She was too busy being in it.

Riding on the Charlevoix community float, Wendy helped portray the area as a magical Four Seasons Vacationland.

The float itself was a little piece of magic. Normally recognizable as the Venetian queen and court float, it had to be transformed into a theme float because the Thanksgiving Parade committee does not allow queen floats in its event.

So Marilyn and Dale Boss went to work. Marilyn fashioned a Charlevoix the Beautiful Four Seasons Vacationland banner for the top of the Operation Petunia watering truck.

And Dale dreamed up ways to make the summerish float – complete with gondola and seagulls – take on an all-season look.

When the Bosses stopped in Frankenmuth on the way to the parade, they picked out a frosted Christmas tree and a thick, fluffy blanket of "snow."

With the help of Don Voison and John Wineman at the parade staging area in downtown Detroit, a snow-capped mountain took shape on the float the morning of the parade.

With Wendy, in ski attire from The Bahnhof, sitting on the snow-covered mountain, the transformation was complete.

Charlevoix's entry was actually two attention-getters – Wendy's float and the Bosses' petunia-watering truck.

The brightly decorated truck – complete with Dutch street organ music Mayor Ralph McRae picked up on a world tour – drew praise whenever they stopped, Dale says.

It was fun to watch people along the parade route dancing to the music as the truck passed by, he says.

The parade entry – which earned a first place prize earlier this year at the Cherry Festival in Traverse City – came through the 550-mile trip with no problems, Dale says, except for back lights knocked out in heavy snow around Mancelona on the way to the parade.

Even though the truck gets only five miles to a gallon of gas with the float attached, Dale says he's looking forward to next spring – when he can show off the Four Seasons Vacationland at the Tulip Festival in Holland.

And now a few nice words about Charlevoix... page 3.

Council signs boat pact

A five-year contract with the Star of Charlevoix was signed by Charlevoix City Council this week that could bring the dining/cruise ship back to the city.

To guarantee the return of the ship, local investors must come up with $150,000 in cash and $200,000 in additional commitments.

The ship, a paddlewheel vessel accommodating up to 150 passengers, would be operated by Star Line Corp., which would put up an equal amount of money.

Global Communications, owned by publishing magnate John McGoff, has agreed verbally to put up its share if local investors can be found. Global is the parent company of Star Line.

A group of local businessmen and chamber of commerce officials was scheduled to meet Tuesday morning to finalize plans to line up local investors, according to Jacquie Merta, executive director of the chamber of commerce.

The contract approved by council Monday calls for removal of several city docks along the west side of Round Lake harbor, and the extension of several others to make up for the lost space.

The removal is necessary so the ship can dock parallel with the shoreline. Cost of the dock removal and extension of others will be paid for by the Star at a cost of about $50,000. In exchange, the Star could dock free of charge.

In addition, council decided to extend some of the docks even further at city expense to create more docking space. Those extensions will cost the city $18,000-$27,000.

Chamber's community role has changed

Public perceptions change slowly, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce finds as it readies to begin its 30th year.

To many people the chamber is the place to get tourist brochures and the group that puts on the Venetian Festival. And it is those things. But the 296-member organization formed in 1958 is also a lot more.

Particularly in the past decade or so, the Charlevoix chamber has expanded heavily into economic development, industry retention, business promotion, education and community development.

While attracting the helping visitors remains an important part of the chamber's work, it is only a portion of the overall program, says Jacquie Merta, executive director.

But that's how many see the chamber, as an organization primarily interested in bringing in tourists. "It's an image that needs to be changed," Merta says.

When she became director in 1975, Merta recalls, the office's work was mainly on events – Venetian Festival, Waterfront Art Fair, two crafts shows, two flea markets, raft races, bike tours, winter festival, color cruises, two chamber dances, Christmas displays.

"It was very event oriented," Merta says. "It was the opinion of the board of directors that that in itself was going to bring people here."

While the events did bring in people on a short-term basis, something more was needed to bring them here for the long-term, Merta says.

"I learned you can't event everything to get people."

One of the things that altered the course of the chamber, she says, is a gradual changing of attitudes among members. Another was a six-year program she completed thorough the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Management Institute.

The program, which she began in 1978, involved year-round study and a one-week classroom session every year.

It was at the first of those sessions that Merta realized something was different about Charlevoix's chamber.

"I realized we weren't operating as a true chamber," she says. "We had the structure, but we weren't involved in a lot of the segments a chamber should be involved in."

It was then that she and the chamber began to work harder on

AROUND THE TOWN

Conversation and conservation will be served at the annual meeting of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.... Guest speaker Darrell Linder will talk about "what to invest in the small business," and officials of the Little Traverse Conservancy will be present to answer questions about the effort to purchase the North Point dunes area for use as a passive recreation area.

Chairman Pat McKeown also points out that there will be plenty of time for informal conversation with fellow business people.... The meeting will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 11, at Grey Gables and is open to chamber members, guests and business staff. There will be complimentary hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar.

Statewide recognition has come to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful.... The civic organization, which is the primary force behind the annual Operation Petunia planting of 50,000 flowers, has been selected as a state winner in the Take Pride in America Campaign....

An awards committee, after reviewing applications from around the state, said, "the work that your group performed to build pride in our public land has been found to be of the highest order."... As a state winner, KCB is now entered in the national competition and will receive state honors from Gov. Blanchard.

Going down, down, down is the level of Lakes Charlevoix and Michigan.... While the water level is still above the long-term average, it's a long way below the troublesome highs of the past couple years....

The lakes' elevation at the end of October was 29 inches below a year ago and six inches below September's measurement, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has computed.... That puts October's elevation of 579.16 feet still 11 inches above the long-term average, though.... The all-time October high was set in 1986.

A home holiday decoration contest is being sponsored by Keep Charlevoix Beautiful.

The contest is open to people within an approximately four-mile radius of the city.

Judging will take place Friday, Dec. 18, beginning at 5:30 p.m. To be judged call Jackie Krutsch at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce office, 547-2101, by Thursday, Dec. 17.

Recognition will be given to two homes in each of four areas: north of the bridge, south of the bridge and east of U.S. 31, south of the bridge and west of U.S. 31 and out of town.

In praise of Charlevoix

When Dale Boss spoke for 4½ minutes about Charlevoix on WJR radio's Thanksgiving Parade broadcast, he figures he got about $50,000 in free advertising for the city.

And when the Charlevoix the Beautiful float and petunia truck passed in front of statewide television screens, the city got a big boost from a non-resident.

Disc jockey Jerry St. James, who is a frequent visitor, was lavish in his praise of the area during the 48 seconds Charlevoix was featured.

Charlevoix's entry was No. 5 in the parade line-up and got excellent photographic and verbal coverage. But a technical glitch almost kept the float off the air.

The TV people recovered just in time and Charlevoix's was the second entry to be seen by Channel 2&8 viewers.

Hours earlier, Boss was helping assemble the Four Seasons Vacationland atop the float when he was asked to be on WJR's radio broadcast. WJR has the largest audience of any radio station in Michigan

Boss and his wife Marilyn were in the truck cab, while Venetian Festival queen Wendy Voison rode atop the float and nine-year-old Benjamin Wineman sat at the front of the float.

As the entry passed in front of TV cameras, St. James began his lavish praise of the city.

"Now I'm really excited about this float," he said. "Coming to us for the first time this year... from one of the most beautiful and charming cities in the world is the Charlevoix community float.

"Each spring the entire community pitches in and on one Saturday morning they plant five miles of beautiful petunias along the main street of Charlevoix." (Actually, it's Thursday evening, but who's quibbling?)

"It's become a Charlevoix tradition, a trademark and the truck that's pulling the float is a brand new, custom-made watering truck that's used daily to water the flowers.

"They call that city Charlevoix the Beautiful. It's no wonder. On the west you've got Lake Michigan and it's Million Dollar Sunsets. On the east side, you've got Lake Charlevoix and there's sailing and swimming. And in the winter, you got skiing and the people are wonderful.

"You can tell I have a special place in my heart for Charlevoix. Bonnie and I have had a place up there for about the last five years. Matter of fact, we're going up there tomorrow for a couple weeks of R&R. Jeff, I'll bring you back some legendary Tom's Mom's Chocolate Chunk Cookies."

Opinion

'Round Town

Wrong signals

EDITH GILBERT

As we approach the holiday season, families are reunited from far and wide. Is this year's gathering going to be a dream fulfilled, or fraught with unfulfilled expectation?

One of the major stumbling blocks to a successful reunion seems to be the difficulty in verbalizing our feelings, and sharing our hopes. Here's a true story explaining what I mean.

While shopping at the supermarket, I met a neighbor filled with joy at the prospect of her son arriving for the holidays with five fraternity brothers. Her shopping cart was filled with groceries right up to the top of her nose. She planned a fine dinner – all his favorite dishes.

Two days later our phone rang and my neighbor said, "Bobby just called to say he and his friends won't be home for dinner. They ran into some ski friends at Boyne Mountain..." Her voice trailed off. "Anyway, we've planned such a lovely dinner, we hope you are free to come this evening and share it with us."

Son Bobby looked forward to a foot-loose and care-free visit home with his buddies, while mother planned to cook up a storm for her son with loving, nostalgic, tenderness. Unfortunately neither mother nor son had clearly expressed their expectations.

Surely, if mother had relied less on osmosis and more on experience, she would have said, "We're planning to have you boys home one evening for dinner with all your favorite dishes. Which evening suits you best?" Bobby undoubtedly would not have cancelled out so thoughtlessly at the last minute.

Or if Bobby had said, "Mother, please don't plan anything for us this weekend. It's such a relief not to be on schedule. All we want is a place to sleep," then Mother would not have killed the fatted calf, but would have graciously bowed to this fast-food life style.

Fathers also need to express their feelings, or they may get lost in the shuffle of reunions. A one-to-one visit – a walk in the woods for an hour for father and son, or father and daughter – may be all that's needed to spark the glow of filial companionship.

Some young mothers find it difficult to acknowledge the fact that everyone in the family is unable to "oh" and "ah" over their little darlings for the entire visit. The average tolerance of the most devoted relative may be an hour or so now and then.

Brothers, sisters, parents and relative are looking forward to enjoying each others' adult companionship over lunch or a shopping trip, even if it means engaging a babysitter for a few hours.

Webster's dictionary defines the word visit, "to go and see someone oot of friendship." This would mean that each son-in-law, daughter-in-law and kissing cousin needs to feel welcome and included. Teenagers especially yearn to be accepted by adults, even as they rough-house on the floor with the little ones.

During the next few weeks there will be more family get-togethers than at almost any other time of the year. Parents will visit their children, grandchildren will be visiting grandparents, married daughters and sons home from school will be visiting parents and each and everyone will have a fixed image in his or her mind and a hope in his or her heart of what this particular vacation will be like.

Voicing this hope out loud in advance will help make each wish come true. Happy holidays!

Charter isn't working

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

I haven't "covered" Charlevoix City Council meetings on a regular basis for quite some time, but I did have an opportunity to attend the council's committee-of-the-whole meeting Nov. 23 and I was more than a little disappointed.

For one thing, the city's home-rule charter adopted a decade ago doesn't appear to be working the way it should.

The charter was intended to put city government on a business-like basis, with council establishing broad general policy and a professional city manager handling the day-to-day business of running the city under guidelines laid down by the council.

Before the charter was adopted, council members individually and collectively had their fingers in every pie — often meeting far into the night to discuss where Joe Doakes should build his garage relative to property lines and established setbacks.

Before the meetings started, most council members already had put in a full eight-hour day on their regular jobs. By the time the meeting ended, they were so fatigued that I sometimes wondered if they knew where they were or what they were doing.

This was one of the shortcomings in city government that the new charter was supposed to correct.

But it hasn't.

The meeting Nov. 23 started at 7 p.m. and I hear it did not end until shortly before 11 p.m. I left at 10 p.m. because I had to get my story written but I understand the meeting lasted another 45 minutes. I also was getting "chair sores."

A good hour of the meeting was devoted to a presentation by an ad hoc committee of the Chamber of Commerce which would like to bring a dinner boat back to the city next summer. Unfortunately no time limit was set on the presentation, and by the time the council got into the act, the proceedings had degenerated into a discussion of whether the new Star ship would be allowed to sell drinks to passengers before the vessel actually casts off its mooring lines.

Some members of the council don't think this is such a hot idea because theoretically it would cut into the revenue of watering holes on terra firma.

I'm no legal expert, but I imagine the terms of the ship's license to serve alcoholic beverages will be dictated by the state Liquor Control Commission — not the city council. But believe it or not, this became Quite An Issue before members of the committee resumed their seats.

Another thing: Persons asked to make presentations to the council apparently are not assigned any particular time slot and some must wait hour after hour until their turn rolls around.

At the Nov. 23 meeting, two young fellows from Hill Woodcock & Schroderus appeared at the meeting at 7 p.m. to discuss the city's audit. They were forced to cool their heels for almost three hours before finally being invited to take the floor.

Now I know about as much about municipal finance as I do about law, but I do know that someone will have to pick up the tab for the cumulative total of six hours that these two professionals were forced to waste listening to city council deliberations that had nothing to do with their purpose for being there.

And that someone is the city, which pays its bills with your tax dollars and mine.

How much easier — and more humane — it would be to give them a specified time to speak and stick to it.

It seems that common courtesy alone would dictate that it's not good manners to keep people waiting.

Unfortunately, the new charter has not resulted in more professional city government — even though the mechanism is in place to run the city the way it should be run.

Perhaps City Manager Mike Wiesner should be more aggressive in summarizing problems facing the city and, hang onto your hats, suggesting solutions based on his own research and professional experience. Wiesner, for example, could easily have summed up the dinner ship proposal in two or three minutes. Maybe less.

But he won't be able to do his job the way it should be done unless council relinquishes some of its self-assumed authority and gives him a longer leash.

Chamber's role has changed

the area of development.

They began working on bringing in more business, on keeping the ones that were already here, on improving other area industries – such as sportfishing and agriculture.

One important early effort, she says, was an industry retention survey, which sought to identify what needed to be done to create a better climate for business.

"We started looking at problems differently," she recalls. "We started marketing as a community more than for this one special item."

About that time, the developers of Captains Corner began looking for in-depth information on the community's resources. And the chamber realized the data it could supply prospective employers was insufficient.

Efforts to put together useful information led to such tools as the Corporate Planner, a data-filled publication of the Economic Development Corporation of the County of Charlevoix.

And it spurred creation of a new business committee and a Charlevoix County Business and Industry Task Force, which in turn grew into the Antrim-Charlevoix Growth Alliance.

The basis for formation of organizations such as these, Merta says, is the need to play for the area's future.

"It's more important to focus on not only today but on five or 10 years from now. You have to look beyond today or you can not take care of the community in the future."

Looking beyond today is a large part of the chamber's job, Merta says.

"The community has to constantly change to keep abreast of certain standards. We have a high quality of life because we've kept up."

The chamber is building a network of committees to prepare for the future – as the area comes into an era of rapid change, Merta says.

The organization is becoming more structured, she says, more organized, more sophisticated, more professional.

When a prospective employer comes to town looking for assistance and information, he expects the same level of professionalism as in bigger cities, Merta says, so the chamber must be prepared to deal at a big-city level.

The chamber has been organized into division of responsibility with committees working on specific goals.

The economic development division strives to create jobs, attract new business, retain existing business and promote the overall economic health of the community.

Work to accomplish these goals takes many forms. The industrial development committee, which is part of this division, has taken on the task of marketing the city industrial park, working hand-in-hand with the city and township governments.

In the past few months, it has hired a Detroit real estate firm specializing in industrial sales to promote the industrial park in the metropolitan area and has developed a 10-minute videotape touting the advantages of living and working in Charlevoix.

The governmental affairs division's objective is to develop a closer relationship between governmental agencies, the political process and the business community.

It is the job of the community development division to increase and maintain the quality of life within the community and to assist in the development or retention of resources making that quality possible.

The chamber development division maintains, develops and evaluates internal objectives to better enable the chamber to serve its members.

And the visitor development division is working to increase the tourist and convention business within the area.

Establishment of the Convention and Visitors Bureau as a separate, state-chartered organization was a big step, Merta says. The bureau, formed in 1986, collects a two percent fee from room rentals among member hotels and motels.

That money is used to promote the community through such things as preparing and distributing brouchures, as attending tourism and travel trade shows to encourage groups to visit, and as aiding efforts to encourage establishment of future attractions – such as the return of the Star of Charlevoix and the possibility of building a community conference center.

The changes in the chamber have been a gradual growth process, Merta says, and do not mean the chamber was misdirected.

While emphasis on staging events was important years ago and remains important today, she says, the increasing sophistication in the battleground to lure and retain industry demands that the chamber focus ahead.

Lawsuit

Berlage said he received the suit, which was filed Monday afternoon, on Tuesday morning and was preparing an answer and other pleadings.

The suit asks circuit court to halt construction of the condos and reverse zoning board decisions on variances for side lot setbacks, lot coverage and chimney-turret heights.

It also seeks reversal of the zoning board's decision that a hotel is allowable and of a height variance for the hotel. A parking regulation variance is required but was not asked for or granted, the suit says.

Mayor Ralph McRae told the Courier on Tuesday that city attorney Jeff Van Treese told council in executive session Monday that he thought the court might remand one count of the complaint back to the zoning board for reconsideration.

Van Treese told the Courier the court has three options on Miles' request to overturn variances on the hotel. Those choices, he said, are deny the request, reverse the zoning board's decision or send the issue back to the zoning board for additional fact-finding.

He said the two other main elements of the suit require the plaintiff to convince the judge that an appeal should be granted after a legal 21-day limit.

Backing Miles in his effort is WATCH (Water and Air Team Charlevoix), which has agreed to pay his legal bills. Kuhn is WATCH's attorney.

Jerry Puhl, president of WATCH, said Miles approached the organization, which Puhl says thinks the appeals board has gone overboard in granting variances.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared

by Rev. Richmond F. Thweatt III
Christ Episcopal Church

And now, my brothers, good-bye! Strive for perfection; listen to my appeals; agree with one another, and peace will be with you. Greet one another with a brotherly kiss. All of God's people send you their greetings. The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with you all. (2 Corinthians 12:11ff.)

These words of Saint Paul which close the letters to the Christians at Corinth, Greece, come very much to my mind as my family and I prepare to leave Charlevoix for an inner-city work in Kansas City, MO.

In the relatively short time we have been here, Charlevoix has been a good place for us to be and to do the work for which we were called and sent to do.

One of the things which has struck me about this area in general is its wealth of natural resources for enjoyment, and the enjoyment those who live here take in them. The resources attract those who appreciate them, which leads to some growth of diverse, but somewhat like-minded, people who have chosen to be here rather than elsewhere.

Often in that choosing, and in living the choice out, we find ourselves becoming isolated because of distances to be elsewhere in the "regular rush" of modern American Society. There is also a quiet insularity that develops which encompasses both mind and spirit, in which we loose touch with regular, progressive spiritual growth within our spiritual communities.

Raising the issue, I can offer you no obvious solutions other than to be aware of the difficulty of the north, to make the harder choices of inviting into your life the turmoil of spiritual challenges and growth within your own spiritual community, to attend and encourage others to attend out-of-the-north meetings of various kinds and return with the challenges to established ways and growth presented, and to love one another with that holy love that seeks always the good of the person loved even at a high cost to self!

As the dangers of living in the north can be great, so too can be the blessings we can bring to the development of solutions to the spiritual issues we face as American people in a world of conflict.

In closing I refer again to the Scriptures: Philippians 3:13-16.

God's blessing be with you all!

Rayders ready to take to court

by FRAN MARTIN

The Rayder basketball team, coached by Jim Kanine, will launch their 1987-88 season at East Jordan Friday night.

Their first home game will be played Tuesday, Dec. 8, against Harbor Springs. Their first conference game will be played the following Friday against St. Ignace.

The JVs will play East Jordan at 6 p.m. Friday with the varsity game following. Home JV games start at 6:15 p.m.

Coach Kanine has not named his starters. "I will make that decision later in the week after we have scrimmaged at Kalkaska," he said.

Not having seen his own team in action against an outside opponent or seen any of the team's opponents in action except on films from last season, Kanine said he felt Charlevoix should be competitive this season.

"It looks as though the teams (in the league) are pretty well balanced which should result in a lot of good basketball," he continued, adding that he would be disappointed if Charlevoix wasn't a strong contender for the title (now held by Cheboygan).

Seven seniors including one transfer are among candidates for starting position with six juniors from last season's JV team rounding out the list.

Strong contenders for starting assignments are Scott DeYoung, 6'4" center and forward, who was named to the 1987 MVP team in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference, and Chad DeVries, 6'3" who received honorable mention on the same team as juniors.

Of DeYoung, Kanine said "in my 13 years of coaching he's as good as any athlete I've seen. He's an outstanding player that does everything well." DeVries, he said, is an under-rated player and one of his key players this season. He goes to the glass all the time, is a good shooter and passer, gets others to work well and is the team's best rebounder.

Candidates for guards are Dan Drury, 6'2" who saw plenty of action last season and who is presently recovering from a serious ankle sprain suffered three days before practice started; Owen Phillips, 6'1", and Marty Joy, both of whom lettered last season.

Kanine said he had not been able to evaluate Drury at this time because his ankle is still at only 90 percent. However, after seeing the films he's certain that he will be back doing what he does so well by the time Friday rolls around. He said that Drury is capable of driving to the basket, is a good rebounder and a solid defensive player.

Phillips he rates as the best guard he has at the present adding that he is a "complete player", doing everything well. He's quick, a very good offensive player, penetrates well, can block shots, plays at both ends of the court and a good leader.

Joy, 5'9", will fill in at a guard position. He is solid on defense, a good ball handler and pretty good passer.

Roger Smith, 6'2", Kanine rates as "Charlevoix's best kept secret." An under-rated player, he's a great shooter-rebounder, plays defense well, a real asset.

Cory Battle, 5'7", a transfer from Harbor Springs, will not be eligible until the second semester then he'll be pushing somebody for a starting position, Kanine said. He's the quickest player on the floor, small but an excellent ball handler, an impact player and among the best defensive player Kanine added.

The juniors, up from JV ranks under the tutelage of Dick Swenor, Kanine feels are, for the most part, a year away from reaching their potential. They are Matt Cunningham, at 6'1" and 200 pounds, the biggest of his players whose forte' will likely be a defensive rebounder; Mike Himebauch, 5'10 and 140 pounds, a player with a lot of skills he does well including being a good shooter against a zone defense, a consistent player.

Others are Bob Jess, 6'0", the third best jumper on the squad, second best offensive rebounder, a good compliment player who will make things happen; Dave Miller, 5'7", who is recovering from a bad thigh bruise who is quick, strong and under-rated as an offensive player; Shawn Putman, 6'1", another player who will be pushing somebody for a starting position, a competitor who plays big, he's good on offense, a good defensive rebounder; Dylan Stewart, 5'11" who does everything well and when he gets stronger, will do everything even better. He's a good shooter but, Kanine added, he needs to get stronger.

Of the team as a whole, Kanine said, they've been well schooled in basketball, they're smart, they work hard, they are competitive. They have all the qualities that should result in a well-rounded unit.

COACH: Greg Bryen

Wrestlers anticipating top-notch season

The Rayder wrestling team, coached by Greg Bryan, will open the 1987-88 season Thursday when the team travels to Onaway to take on the Cardinals and the St. Ignace Saints.

The Rayders will be going into competition with nine returning lettermen from last year's 19-9 team.

This season promises to be an exciting one, according to Bryan, who said the Rayders have more solid experience than at any time during the eight years he has been Rayder Coach.

"In fact, it looks as though we will be able to fill all 13 weight classes for the first time in my experience as coach," he said.

Two state qualifiers will be back – Derek Dutcher (198 pounds) and Toby Young (98) both seniors. Regional qualifiers Jason Whitley (138), Scott Novotny (112) and Jamie Montieth (145) all juniors, give the Rayders a solid base.

Jim Tilton (198) senior, had over 30 wins last season. Sophomore Brian Livingston (119) and senior Steve Hopkins (156) are looking good in pre-season practice," Bryan said, and Brian Darrah, a freshman and national freestyle qualifier, should help.

"We've got the material for a great season and it will be especially exciting considering the new finals format," which will be similar to the basketball play-offs, Bryan said.

The final four teams in each of the four enrollment classes will be going to the Kellogg Center in Battle Creek for the finals.

The Kellogg Corp. is supporting high school wrestling this year and has donated $50,000 to help defray traveling and housing expenses for the qualifying teams, Bryan said.

"If everyone stays healthy, and we maintain the enthusiasm the team is now showing during preseason practice, we should be contenders at any level," Bryan said.

Other candidates are freshmen and others either new to the sport or to the school.

Among the freshmen are David Agnes (98), Matt Harbison (112) and Mike Phenix (138).

In the 167-pound class are freshmen Andy Wynkoop, sophomore Franklin Benson, and juniors Robin Merwyn and Scott Niswander. Sophomore Jim Marquardt is a heavyweight.

The team's next outing will be the Glen Lake Invitational meet on Saturday, Dec. 5 followed by a double dual at Cheboygan with Sault Ste. Marie on Thursday, Dec. 10.

NOTICE TO CUSTOMERS OF ISLAND TELEPHONE COMPANY
Concerning Purchase Of Your Telephone And Accessories That Were Owned By The Company Prior To January 1, 1983.

Island Telephone Company will be transferring its embedded customer premises equipment (CPE) to a deregulated activity. This is being done in conjunction with the Federal Communications Commission requirement that each state detariff CPE of Independent telephone companies by December 31, 1987. Island Telephone Company will continue to rent CPE to the present customers who are still renting the CPE that they had prior to January 1, 1983. The rental charge for this CPE will be the same for the present time as is currently being charged, including free maintenance and repair service.

The MPSC requires that the CPE be offered for sale to the customers of the company at the same price that it is being transferred to the deregulated activity.

Eligible customers may buy the following equipment at the price shown:

1. Standard telephone with rotary dial, $5.00.
2. Dial in handset telephone with rotary dial, $6.50.

For additional information and for information on multi-line phones, key systems, and special equipment, please phone our business office. This offer and these prices are good only for telephones that were in place prior to January 1, 1983. This offer and these prices will be available for forty-five (45) days after this notice. For customers who choose to continue renting telephones as they have done in the past, they need not do anything at this time. If you have questions or wish to find out if you are eligible to purchase your phones please call our business office at 517-845-7999.

Obituaries

George J. Drenth

George J. Drenth, 71, retired Ellsworth businessman, died Friday, Nov. 27, at his Banks Township home.

Funeral services were held Monday at the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church. The Rev. Leonard T. Riemersma officiated. Interment was in the Ellsworth Cemetery.

Dr. Drenth was born in Banks Township on May 27, 1916, the son of Jacob and Bessie (VanderArk) Drenth, and was raised in the Ellsworth area. During World War II he served with the U.S. Army Air Force in England.

On May 5, 1949, he married the former Martha Holwerda at Grand Rapids. They returned to Banks Township to make their home.

Following the war, he and his brothers, Harvey and John, founded the Drenth Bros. Brikcrete Co. He was retired as an active member but remained associated with the business. He was a carpenter and mechanic and was well known for his many mechanical devices he invented.

Drenth was a member of the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church and had served as an elder and a deacon. He and his wife volunteered to work at disaster sites through the Christian Reformed World Relief Committee. They had returned recently from a disaster area in the south.

Surviving are his wife, Martha; a daughter, Mrs. Patricia Taylor of Saginaw; one brother, John of Ellsworth; three sisters, Marge Drenth and Mrs. Greta Vail, both of Ellsworth and Mrs. Betty Klooster of Grand Rapids and many nieces and nephews.

The family suggests memorials to the Ebenezer Christian School. Envelopes for this purpose are available at the Hastings Funeral Home which was in charge of arrangements.

Shirley A. Germaine

Shirley A. Germaine, 52, Charlevoix business woman, died Nov. 27, 1987, at Little Traverse Division, Northern Michigan Hospitals, Petoskey.

Funeral was 11 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 1, at the Collon Funeral Home, Caro. The Rev. Barry Sweet officiated and burial was in Indianfields Township Cemetery, Caro.

The former Shirley Ann Frank was born Sept. 23, 1935, in Ferndale, the daughter of Ford and Lena Frank. She moved to Charlevoix from Rochester 18 years ago and established a yarn shop, "Leisure Time Yarns."

She was a member of the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church.

In 1953 she married Don Ellis and in 1973 she married Edward Germaine.

She is survived by her husband Edward; seven children, Frank Ellis of Troy, Cheryl Ellis of Davison, Mark Ellis of Irvine, Texas, Nancy Ellis of Petoskey, Mrs. Steve (Donna) Curiel of Connecticut, Charles Austin and Joanna Germaine, both at home; four brothers, Olan Frank of Caro, John Frank of Arizona, Ralph Frank of California and Ford Frank of Lapeer; three sisters, Mrs. Keith (Beatrice) Brandon of Auburn Hills, Mrs. Bert (Jo) Elliott of Caro and Mrs. Leo (Mary) Burleson of Lansing; many nieces and nephews.

Two brothers and two sisters preceded her in death.

Visitation was at the Collon Funeral Home. Memorials, directed to the funeral home, 302 S. State St., Caro, Mich. 48723, will be made according to the wishes of the family.

Jack W. VanLoo

Jacob W. (Jack) VanLoo, 62, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 28, 1987, at Little Traverse Division, Northern Michigan Hospitals.

Memorial services were held Nov. 30 at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. The Rev. Larry Grooters of Community Reformed Church officiated.

Mr. VanLoo was born March 2, 1925, in Berkley, the son of Adrian and Mary (McKenzie) VanLoo. He was raised in the Berkley area. During World War II, he served in the U.S. Navy.

In 1952, he moved to Antrim County and in 1964 to Charlevoix. He was a sales representative most of his adult life. He was also an avid golfer and outdoorsman.

On Aug. 7, 1976, he married the former Dorothy A. Kane in Charlevoix, where they made their home.

Survivors include: his wife; six children, Mrs. Russell (Linda) Brown, Mrs. Sherry Martin and Mrs. Dale (Sandra) Meredith, all of Charlevoix, Mrs. Rodney (Susan) Johnson of Berkley, Penny Kane of Petoskey and Michael Kane of Cheboygan; 13 grandchildren; his mother, Mrs. Adrian (Mary) VanLoo of Charlevoix; and four brothers, William and Roxy of Charlevoix, Wylle of Warren and James of Oden.

He was preceded in death by a son, Michael A., in 1980.

Margaret J. Woods

Former Charlevoix resident Margaret J. Woods, 88, of Coldwater, died Nov. 26, 1987, shortly after being admitted to the Community Health Center in Branch County.

Services were Dec. 1, at the Free Methodist Church in Coldwater, and 2 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 2, at the Free Methodist Church in Wolverine. Burial was in Silver Lake Cemetery in Wolverine.

The former Margaret J. Clark was born Feb. 1, 1899, in Charlevoix, the daughter of William H. and Sarah S. (Odell) Clark.

She resided in Wolverine and Coldwater before moving to Hillsdale in 1942. She resided in Hillsdale nearly 40 years before returning to Coldwater in 1983.

She is survived by three daughters, Dorothy Waterman of Wolverine, and Glema May Lewis and Shirley Ann Sussex, both of Coldwater; five grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her husband, George F. Woods, in 1985, and a sister, Della May Sly, in 1986.

Arrangements were handled by the Putnam Funeral Home in Coldwater.

Marie Hilton

Mrs. Marie Hilton, 86, died Saturday, Nov. 28, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral services will be held at the Winchester Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 2. Pastor Robert Bellairs of the Norwood United Methodist Church will officiate. Interment will be in Brookside Cemetery.

Born in Austria-Hungary Aug. 30, 1901, the former Marie Klusak, daughter of Frank and Marie Klusak, came to the United States with her parents at the age of nine years. She was raised in the Norwood area. In 1920 she went to Idaho with her parents and on Nov. 25, 1920, she married Orville Hilton at Caldwell, Ida.

That same year they returned to Michigan and lived in Detroit until 1925 when they returned to Charlevoix. In 1927 they moved to Norwood Township where they made their home.

Mrs. Hilton was a member and past worthy matron of Charlevoix Chapter No. 72, Order of the Eastern Star, attended the Norwood United Methodist Church and was a former member of the Barnard Grange.

Surviving are her husband, Orville; a daughter, Mrs. Elsie Joyce of Charlevoix; three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the Norwood United Methodist Church. Envelopes for this purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Gladys P. Funk

Gladys (Hilbert) Palmer Funk, 90, died Nov. 27, 1987, at the Montgomery County Geriatric and Rehabilitation Center, a nursing home in Pennsylvania where she was a resident for a few weeks.

Memorial services will be 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5 at the Charlevoix Church of God. The Rev. Bruce Hamilton will officiate.

The former Gladys Hilbert was born in Bingham, Mich., the daughter of James and Florence Ida Eldridge Hilbert. Since 1969 she has lived with her daughter and son-in-law, The Rev. Charles G. and Florence J. Struthers of Norristown, Pa. She was formerly a resident of Traverse City and Charlevoix.

Mrs. Funk had worked in the Munson Medical Center in Traverse City as a registered practical nurse for many years. She was currently a member of the Church of the Loving Shepherd in West Chester, Pa.

For many years she was active as a Sunday school worker and president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in Charlevoix.

In addition to her daughter Florence, she is survived by one son, Benjamin E. Palmer D.O. of Lachine; four grandchildren; 11 great-grandchildren; one great-great grandson. She was preceded in death by two husbands, William C. Palmer and John G. Funk.

Funeral arrangements were handled by Huff & Lakjer Funeral Home, Derstine and Cannon Avenues, Lansdale, Pa.

Arthur Krulik

Arthur Krulik, 77, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 30, 1987, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral arrangements are pending at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. A complete obituary will follow.

Joyce L. Sadler

Joyce L. Sadler, 63, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 27, 1987, at McLaren General Hospital in Flint.

Funeral was Dec. 1, at Reigle Sunrise Chapel, 4358 Richfield Road, Flint. Sam Bickley officiated and burial was in Flint Memorial Park, Mt. Morris.

The former Joyce L. Hill was born Jan. 5, 1924, in Detroit. She moved to Charlevoix from Flint in 1977.

She had worked as a medical assistant for Dr. Steinman and Dr. Hennessy (now a Charlevoix resident) for 27 years.

She was a member of the Pilgrim Chapter No. 447, Order of Eastern Star.

Mrs. Sadler is survived by: her husband, Rodney D. Sadler; one daughter, Linda Joyce Crystal of Burton; and one grandson James Crystal; her father, Norman Hill of Burton; her mother, Mrs. Rose Collier of Burton; two sisters, Barbara Belanger of Burton and Geraldine Black of Davison.

The family suggests memorials to the American Cancer Fund.

An Eastern Star Service was held Monday at the funeral home.

Getting in the yuletide spirit

Mitten Tree donations sought to aid needy kids

The Mitten Tree has returned to the First State Bank lobby to accept gifts to be given to children and teenagers in the community.

The Charlevoix Women's Club sponsors the service.

The tree is placed in the lobby at the bank so people can donate mittens, gloves, caps, hats or scarves to be given as gifts through the annual Christmas Project.

"In 1986 more than 50 items were given," said club president Lucy Witthoeft. "They were turned over to the Christmas Project, wrapped as Christmas gifts and included in the Christmas food baskets for area families."

Witthoeft said sizes suitable for young teens are needed as well as those for smaller children.

Everything contributed is used Witthoeft said, adding that purchases must often be made to supplement the donations.

If there are extra items, they are taken to the elementary school where they are given to children in need of mittens, a cap or scarf.

St. Mary holds annual luncheon, mini-bazaar

The spirit of Christmas will reign Friday, Dec. 4, at St. Mary's Parish Center when members of the parish host their annual Christmas luncheon and mini-bazaar.

The luncheon, to be served in the parish center, will be held from 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. The menu features hot casseroles and salads, homemade breads and rolls, dessert and choice of beverage. Tickets will be $4.

Karen Campbell is general chairperson. She will be assisted by members of the parish.

St. Mary's Rosary Altar Society will sponsor the mini-bazaar that will feature handcrafted arts and craft items. There will also be a sweet shop with home-prepared goodies.

The bazaar will also be open 4:30-6:30 p.m. Saturday Dec. 5, and from 10 a.m.-noon Sunday, Dec. 6.

Parking is available at the rear of the school.

Area chorus set to perform original music

Sounds of Christmas will be echoing in the sanctuary of St. Mary's Church at 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 6, when the Charlevoix Area Chorale and an instrumental ensemble will present the annual "Festival of Carols" under the direction of Ellen Addington.

"This will be a fitting beginning to the Christmas holiday season," Addington said of the concert which will include many treats.

Among them will be three compositions which are being introduced for the first time.

The first is a Willa Hutson carol, "A Song of Christmas." Hutson was collaborator with Alfred Burt in composing the Burt Carols, some of which will be sung by the audience during the concert.

Elizabeth Humphrey, local composer has written a carol for the occasion, "Under the Stable Light." Humphrey will be the concert's organist and accompanist.

The third composition will be "An Advent Suite for Brass" written by Harbor Springs composer Tom Woehrmann, which is also being performed for the first time.

Traditional carol arrangements presented by the chorale range from the Plainsong, English, German and Appalachian to contemporary carols as well as selections by the instrumental ensemble.

Joann Dannecker will be the soprano in "Lullaby on Christmas Eve" by Christiansen.

The audience, chorale and instrumentalists will join in the presentation of favorite carols of the season.

Members of the chorale and ensemble come from Charlevoix as well as Eastport, Central Lake, Torch Lake, Norwood and East Jordan.

The "Festival of Carols" is sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association. A free will offering will be received with the proceeds going to the Community Food Pantry.

Cookie Walk lets shoppers select own assortments

Bethany Lutheran church will sponsor its Christmas Cookie Walk at the Church Saturday, Dec. 5.

The shopper may purchase a one-, two-, or three-pound decorated tin and then fill it with cookies of choice. The tins are priced at $3, $4 and $5 each.

The Cookie Walk will be held from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Goodbye event set for Episcopal rector

An open house is planned from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 6, for the Rev. Richmond F. Thweatt and his family at Christ Episcopal Church Rectory, 109 W. Lincoln. People of the community are invited to stop by and have a last cup of coffee with the Thweatts before they leave Charlevoix for Kansas City, Mo.

Thweatt has served Christ Church the past 16 months as interim rector, and he is moving to become the vicar of St. Mary's and St. George's Episcopal Church, an inner-city congregation.

Mrs. Thweatt has become a member of the Charlevoix Women's Club and the Newcomers Club. Their daughter, Jennifer, is an eighth grade student in Charlevoix Middle School.

Parking lot dedicated

Most-dangerous deer-car areas cited

To people driving around the Charlevoix area recently, it's no secret this is a big season for deer.

The animals cross the roads singly and in herds paying no attention to oncoming traffic. It is up to the motorist to beware.

Sheriff George T. Lasater has issued a warning to motorists to be alert, noting there are two or three car-deer accidents in the county every day, resulting not only in property damage but personal injury.

One year not long ago a man was killed in a car-deer accident.

The sheriff has pinpointed four areas near Charlevoix where deer cross the road frequently:

– On U.S. 31 near Island View and Faculak Road,

– On U. S. 31 near Big Rock,

– On M-66 between Wickersham Road and Ironton,

– And on Boyne City Road between Quarterline Road and Brown Road.

The sheriff also gives the following instructions to motorists involved in a car-deer accident; Treat the accident as any other accident; report it to the nearest law enforcement agency (insurance companies usually request an accident report); request a permit from the investigating officer if the driver wants to keep the killed deer.

Laws governing a "highway killed deer" are as follows: The killed deer may be released by the investigating officer, with the driver of the damaged vehicle having first priority; non-residents of Michigan who kill a deer in an accident are not eligible to receive the deer unless they intend to remain in the state for 30 days; killed spotted fawns may not be released by the investigating officer; if more than one deer is killed in a single accident, the motorist is eligible to receive only one deer; the killed deer, or any part of it, may not be given to anyone other than the person to whom the investigating officer releases it; possession of a highway-killed deer is limited to 30 days.

State OKs dock plan for Star

The state waterways commission has approved a city request to change Round Lake docks for a new Star of Charlevoix paddleboat.

A group from the city travelled to Lansing on Tuesday, where the state agency unanimously approved the proposal.

The quick approval delighted the group, said City Manager Mike Wiesner. They had hoped for approval later in the day but received it at the end of their presentation.

A group of local investors is proposing to return – with help from Star Lines Corp. – the cruise ship to Charlevoix after a one-year absence.

For visibility, safety and damage-prevention reasons, the Star backers want to park the paddlewheeler with its side to the Round Lake marina shore.

This requires 3½ city docks to be removed – docks the Star would replace at its expense by lengthening other city docks.

City council last week gave its blessing to the proposal.

Attending Tuesday's waterways meeting with Wiesner were Mayor Ralph McRae; Jacquie Merta, executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce; Harold Krutsch, president of the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau; and Arch Wright, representing the investors' group.

Also at the presentation before the Department of Natural Resources' waterways board were Star Line president John McGoff and three other Star Line officials. Star Line would operate the ship and would be a partner with the local investors in ownership.

Now work can begin on getting investors, Merta said after the approval. Backers of the proposal could not give potential investors a prospectus until they knew the cost of the ship and dock work.

The group is facing a Jan. 1 deadline to have the deal in place.

Decision on hotel plan put off

City council opponents of a Pine River Channel hotel plan attacked Monday on several fronts, delaying a decision for at least two weeks.

Council member Shirley Roloff's allegations that proper procedures were not followed finally put a temporary halt to consideration of a site plan for a 21-unit hotel on Park Avenue.

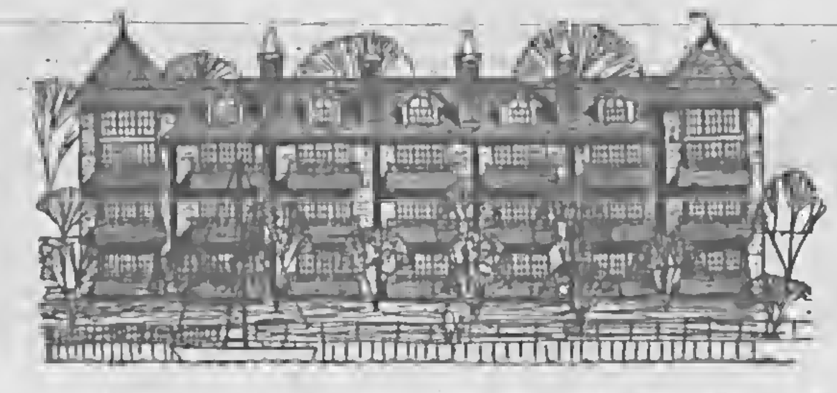
Roloff's motion to return the plan to the planning commission and the zoning board of appeals before council consideration was approved with the mayor breaking a 3-3 tie.

Council member Norm Probert, meanwhile, looked for shortcomings in the site plan itself, asking questions about lot line setbacks and parking.

And Mayor Ralph McRae called on council to withhold any decision because an earlier-approved 11-unit condominium on the same site is the subject of a lawsuit.

The hotel proposal has been at the center of a six-month controversy over multiple-family construction around the city's waterways.

Lawyer Don Berlage submitted four plans for the property about the time a petition drive garnered 800 signatures of people calling for a halt to lakefront multiple-dwelling construction.



The condo under construction and the proposed hotel would have the same look from Pine River Channel.

In September, the council approved the plan for an 11-unit condominium apartment building. The hotel plan is essentially the same.

The planning commission recommended approval of the hotel site plan after the zoning board of appeals overturned its ruling that a hotel was not an allowable use in the commercial-scenic zone.

The zoning board's interpretation and its approval of chimney and story variances are the subject of a lawsuit against the city and Berlage by neighbor David Miles with the financial backing of Water Air Team Charlevoix Inc. (WATCH).

Berlage appeared bemused by the events Monday night, saying the maneuvers were "part of the game."

Berlage several years ago sued the city in a zoning dispute that led to formation of a zoning board of appeals separate from city council.

"Politics and litigation make strange bedfellows," he said, noting that he and the city are on the same side in Miles' lawsuit.

It was that lawsuit McRae suggested the council could get embroiled in if it acted on the plan.

"If it (council) did not approve the site plan, we could not become a party of the same suit," McRae said. "On the other hand, if we did approve the site plan, the council would have equal standing with the ZBA.

"Contrary to the advice of the city attorney, the council should stay out of this situation."

Council did not go against the advice of its attorney in this regard, but did so when it approved Roloff's motion.

"I do not know that there would be any basis for city council to have this remanded back to the planning commission so that it first goes to the zoning board of appeals, particularly in light of the fact that the zoning board of appeals has already met, considered and decided the issues," said attorney Jeff VanTreese.

The council's role is to review the recommendation of the planning commission, VanTreese said, reiterating an earlier written opinion.

Roloff's complaint was that the proposal did not travel through city hall according to a roadmap spelled out by council in September.

She said the plan should go to the planning commission, then to council, then to the zoning board.

The plan was earlier tabled by council because the planning commission refused to act on the site plan until the zoning board ruled on variances.

Planning commission chairman Walt Hufford asked Roloff what further she would like the planning commission to do with the plan.

Bridge Street's future: 3 lanes and no parking?

A three-lane, two-way Bridge Street with no parking on either side is being recommended by the state highway department.

The recommendation follows a summer study of traffic problems requested by city council. Any change in traffic patterns would be up to city officials.

Highway officials compared six alternatives with a computer. The city's request was for a study of Bridge Street, specifically excluding State Street from a possible one-way scheme.

The report is being taken by City Manager Mike Wiesner to the Downtown Development Authority today and to the planning commission next week. Then it will be presented to city council, which already has received copies.

The state recommendation calls for three lanes, with the center one for turns. Southbound "right lane must turn right" at Park Avenue and "no left turn" into the marina drive just south of the bridge are included.

Advantages to the recommendation, the report says, are a 73 percent decrease in summer vehicle delay, a separate lane for left turns, elimination of parking maneuver friction with through traffic, easier access to the marina for southbound traffic, easier access to off-street parking, directing one lane off bridge to off-street parking at Park.

Also, it eliminates the left-turn prohibition at Clinton, allows greater ease in maneuvering onto wider U.S. 31 lanes from cross streets, eliminates travel on gutter pan and draining structure, provides more storage for snow removal, and reduces rear-end accidents and removes potential for parking-related accidents.

The study says rear end and parking-related mishaps accounted for 131 of 187 accidents between Belvedere and Park during 1983-86.

Disadvantages to the plan, the highway department says, are the

AROUND THE TOWN

There's a new road in town – sort of.... In order to create a buildable lot off Park Avenue, an alliterative roadway was dreamed up....

The problem was that Diane Pace wants to build a house on a parcel that is landlocked between Park Avenue and the Pine River Channel.... But there is no access, so the city wasn't sure if the property could be built on....

After rummaging through various sections of the zoning ordinance, the zoning board of appeals determined that a lot doesn't need frontage on a street as long as it has access, defined in the ordinance as a place....

An easement Pace plans to obtain from the lot her property would be split away from satisfies that requirement.... So, on plans which city council approved for the lot split, city planner Gerry Harsch dubbed the easement Pace Place.

More accolades are being presented to the Operation Petunia watering truck and its driver-booster, Dale Boss.... Boss has received word from Ford Times magazine that the brightly decorated, converted Ford truck will be featured in a future issue of the publication....

And Boss received a standing ovation at Monday's council meeting after council member Norm Probert congratulated him for his efforts in promoting the community.

1,800 asked for North Point donations

Around 1,800 letters have been mailed to potential donors in the North Point dunes area purchase attempt.

The solicitation is the major mailing for this year, said project coordinator Tom Lagerstrom of the Little Traverse Conservancy.

The conservancy, along with a host of local organizations and individuals, is attempting to raise $700,000 within three years to buy the property.

More than half that amount is being sought from the state Land Trust Fund, which is expected to make a decision in January.

The North Point application passed an important hurdle last week when the state's list was pared back and the conservancy's request remained among those under consideration.

Lagerstrom said the mailing was made to local people, resorters and others with an affiliation with the area. The list was prepared from recommendations by finance committee members, from tax rolls and from previous lists for other conservancy projects.

The finance committee is made up of members of several area civic organizations and a number of individuals.

Lagerstrom is hopeful of increased donations in the next couple weeks, following the mailing. He said the mailing was made at this time so donors could take advantage of 1987 tax laws and could spread gifts over three calendar years.

The largest donation received so far is a $50,000 gift from Medusa Cement Co., which occupies South Point.

The total raised so far, he said, is $52,100, noting that these donations were made before solicitations began.

PRESERVE

NORTH POINT

Those who have donated or pledged money besides Medusa are Back Door Antiques, James and Ginny Campbell, Julius and Rose Elzinga, Jan Glass, Jeff and Cara Hochbalter, Donald and Joan Jadwin.

Also, Andrew Lonyo, Linda McElroy, Bruce and Suzanne Miller, Galene and Tom Ramsey, Carol Sullivan, and Janice C. Witherbee.

In addition, the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful board has authorized a $1,000 pledge, which is not yet included in the total.

Although KCB has a policy which prohibits making donations to other projects, the board unanimously decided Preserve North Point was an exceptional cause, president Bruce MacArthur said.

Conservancy personnel will be in Charlevoix on Friday night to discuss the project at the annual meeting of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

The informal presentation will include photos and brochures, along with people to answer questions, Lagerstrom said.

The chamber meeting, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Grey Gables, is open to chamber members, their staffs and their guests.

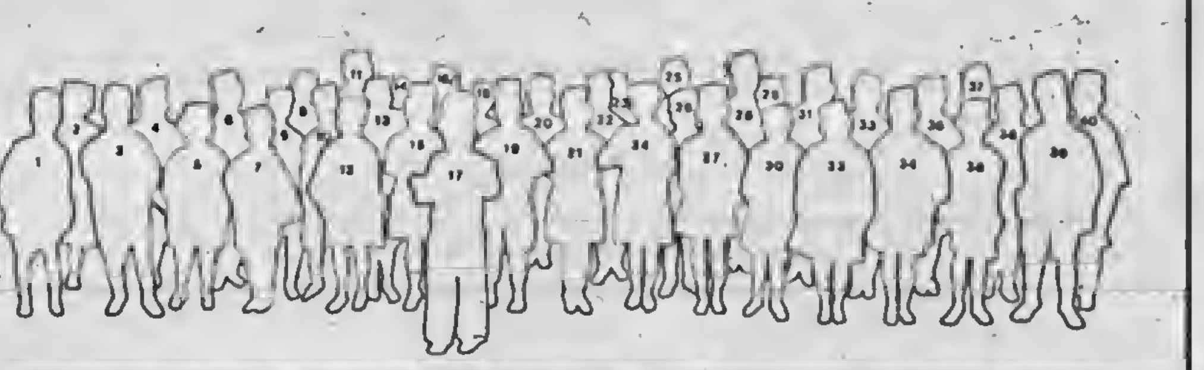
Charlevoix Yesterday



Almost five years ago, in April, 1983, the Courier ran a "Charlevoix Yesterday" picture of a children's band posed in front of the old elementary school, which is now used for middle school classes.

The picture intrigued local resident Tom Carey, who was one of the band members. He and his wife, Esther (also a band member), undertook the job of identifying all 40 of the children, an undertaking in which they enlisted the help of many of their classmates.

Bob and Laurie Gill found a good print of the picture, which had been taken by Earl Young, and Max Hosmer provided a sketch to make identification of the children easier.

The class was the first grade class of the elementary school, taken in the spring of 1928. This was the first year a first grade class was taught in this building, according to Carey. There were no wind instruments in the band, he said, just tambourines and other racket-making objects.

Mothers of the children were given patterns to make the capes and caps, which were blue and orange, for the important concert.

The names of 39 of the 40 children in the picture are listed here. Many of them are still active in Charlevoix affairs.

IT'S BEGINNING TO LOOK A LOT...

Andy Bultman, owner of Rocking Horse Toy Store, puts up Christmas decorations as the community gets ready to begin its holiday celebration.

Yule activities kick off this weekend

All sorts of events will be happening in Charlevoix on Saturday, Dec. 12, as the community launches its observance of Christmas.

A brunch at Charlevoix Elementary School from 10 a.m. until noon for kids and parents will also offer the youngsters an opportunity to meet Santa and have their picture taken with him courtesy of Xi Epsilon Gamma and Beta Mu chapters of Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

At the same time, the youth groups of First Congregational Church will open Santa's Secret Shop from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. so younsters may do their Christmas shopping. Gift items ranging from 25 cents to $8 will be offered for sale at the shop at the elementary school.

There will be a children's movie for 25 cents at Cinema III, courtesy of the Merchants' Division of the Chamber of Commerce.

After the movie, the kids may go to the Market Mall to talk with Santa and have their picture taken with him or go to East Park and place their homemade outdoor Christmas ornaments on the community Christmas tree.

The Charlevoix utility department's "cherry picker" will be there to assist. At the same time, the "Lost Chords," a choral group from the elementary school, will sing carols under the direction of Marina LaBlance.

The official lighting of the community Christmas tree in East Park is scheduled at 7 p.m. A procession of the community choir to East Park at 7 p.m. will be followed by the lighting of the tree and the announcement of the winners in the window decorating contest sponsored by the Merchants Division.

A traveling trophy will be presented to the overall winner. The windows will be judged on Thursday evening. The crowd will join with the choir in the singing of Christmas carols. Refreshment will be served by J.R.'s and Wildwood.

Stores will begin their holiday hours, remaining open until 9 p.m. nightly except Sunday until Dec. 23.

Entries in the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful-sponsored home decorating contest are still being sought.

Judging will take place Friday, Dec. 18, at 5:30 p.m. To be judged, call Jackie Krutsch at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce office by Thursday, Dec. 17.

County court's child care costs cut but still high

by PEG OHLE

Although the cost of Child Care in Charlevoix County has decreased $179,500 in the last three years, expenditures for the current year may exceed the county's budget allotment.

Recognizing this situation, the County Board's audit committee recently refused to okay several counseling bills presented by Juvenile Court and asked Probate and Juvenile Judge John Murphy to appear before the board to explain why Child Care costs were not being kept within budget figures.

County Commissioner Don Smith, liaison to Juvenile Court, reminded Judge Murphy and Juvenile Court Administrator Brad Campbell that the county had "capped" expenditures for Child Care at $104,000 and that was supposed to be it. At the end of October, however, the Child Care fund was about $60,000 in the red, with two more months remaining in the fiscal year. Much of the deficit is due to counseling fees, according to Smith.

The total budget for Child Care this year is $260,000, with the State of Michigan supplying funds not provided by the county. Here lies the difficulty, according to Judge Murphy: The state, by virtue of its substantial support, lays down the rules by which Child Care is provided, and if that care costs more than the county and state budget, it is up to the county to pay the bill.

"Things are more complicated now than they used to be," Judge Murphy told the County Board. "We are seeing a lot more child abuse and neglect. If we keep the child with his family, the parents usually need counseling. The child also needs counseling because if he doesn't get it, his experiences could affect him for his entire life."

Judge Murphy added that his department is now limiting the number of counseling sessions to 15. "You have to have a series of sessions," he explained. "It's like antibiotics. It doesn't help if you don't get enough."

In addition to abused and neglected children, Juvenile Court is responsible for delinquent children. Many of these children do not go through the court process at all; rather they are put under the supervision of the court's Diversion Worker for guidance. Those who do go to court may be kept at home on probation and-or receive the help of the court's In-Home Care Worker. Then, if necessary, the child is given counseling help. For more serious cases, there is foster care or a boys' or girls' training facility.

Each one of these services costs proportionately more," Murphy pointed out, "but our function is to help kids grow into happy, useful adults."

Smith complimented Murphy and Campbell on their decreasing costs, especially for foster care, but noted again his concern about counseling fees.

"The county board is the taxpayers' representative," he said, "but sometimes it looks like we are just passing out blank checks."

Commissioner Ralph Harmon added, "It's getting to the point now that we don't know where the money is coming from."

Looking to the future of child care costs, Commissioner Tom Breakey said, "Morality is down the drain. Unwed motherhood is accepted and their kids become juvenile court problems."

A solution for the county would be for the state to raise its "cap" and contribute more toward the cost of child care, Smith believes.

However, he was told by the state representative heading the social services committee that the state thinks the present 'cap" system is working well.

Murphy and Campbell will now put together some figures for the county board indicating just how much extra money juvenile court will need between now and the first of the year.

Opinion

Doing what's proper

In a move appropriate for Pearl Harbor Day, members of city council staged a sneak attack Monday. In this case, the victim was more prepared. But that didn't make the assault any less offensive.

Armed with personal notions of what is just, the mayor and a council member chose to ignore the city zoning ordinance, ignore the city attorney and ignore propriety.

From the beginning of a public hearing on Don Berlage's hotel plan, it was clear Mayor Ralph McRae, Shirley Roloff and Norm Probert had no intention of deciding the issue before them.

That issue was clear: Declare that the site development plan met all the requirements of the city ordinance or that it did not.

The ordinance is specific on what conditions must be met, and Berlage has spent the past six months before planning commission, zoning board, council and city staff meeting those conditions.

Whether individuals or groups don't like putting a hotel on the channel or don't like Berlage was no longer at issue.

But rather than act on the plan, McRae and Roloff attempted to short-circuit the procedings. Probert, to his credit, at least attempted to shoot holes in the plan with specifics from the ordinance.

Roloff lobbied for bouncing the plan back to the planning commission because a council policy, adopted after Berlage submitted his plans, had not been followed – at the same time directing the planning commission to not follow its own policy.

McRae urged that no action be taken to stay out of a lawsuit the city is already in, after being told by the city attorney that taking no action was not legal. And he accused the city planner of willfully circumventing council with an "illegal act."

Eventually Roloff prevailed, gathering enough votes to delay consideration, saying she just wanted to make sure things were done properly.

That would be a nice concept for her and the mayor to remember the next time the plan comes before council.

Legislative void

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

If anyone today were in the business of writing Greek tragedies, he couldn't pick a better subject than the fall of Sen. Basil Brown (D-Highland Park).

Brown, as you know, pleaded guilty recently to charges that he delivered both marijuana and cocaine to a prostitute in exchange for sex.

The prostitute actually didn't have a great to do with the case, aside from the fact that Brown claimed police put her up to it in an effort to involve him in illegal drug trafficking.

Nonetheless, Brown pleaded guilty to both charges literally minutes before his case was to go to trial. The jurors were sent home and sentencing has been set for Jan. 4. He could draw a hefty fine, a prison term or both.

After pleading guilty, Brown knew that he would have to leave the state Senate — a post he has held for the past 31 years, making him the longest-tenured member of Michigan's upper house. After all, it would be unseemly for a convicted felon to continue making laws for his fellow citizens, most of whom are god-fearing, law-abiding citizens who would rather commit adultry than take a puff of pop or a snort of coke.

Brown's resignation is effective Jan. 4 — 90 minutes before sentencing. The delay will make him eligible for a larger pension than he would have received if his retirement were effective before the end of the year.

So there you have it. All the elements of a Greek tragedy: A figure of public renown, a competent lawmaker most of his career, who was brought to his knees by one fatal flaw beyond his control — an addiction to alcohol and drugs.

To the ancient Greeks, that senario was the essence of the word tragedy and the definition still hold true today, despite the fact that we have corrupted the word to cover a host of minor calamities — ranging from a chipped finger nail to a fender-bender in the parking lot.

Tom Schweigert of Petoskey, a former senator who also served a term as lieutenant governor in the 1970s, had a lot of respect for Brown's political acumen during his own stay in the Senate. At the time of one of Brown's earlier run-ins with the law, I think it was a drunk-driving charge, Schweigert commented that part of Brown's problem was that he was suffering through a perpetual identity crisis. He never knew exactly who he was.

And Schweigert probably was pretty close to the truth.

Although Brown is very light-skinned, he was born into a black family and usually considered himself black. He lived in a black neighborhood, most of his constituents were black and he didn't hesitate to champion black causes if they had any merit at all.

Yet a lot of people didn't realize Brown was black. According to the Detroit Free Press, he sometimes found himself in a group of whites when some bigot would rip off a racial joke — not realizing Brown considered himself a black.

Another time Brown was congratulated for his nice tan. Brown responded that he got his tan from his mommy.

Such incidents certainly would be disconcerting, even for someone who stands 6-foot-1 and weighs more than 200 pounds.

Roger Craig, a friend and former state senator who shared a house with Brown during the 1969-70 session, believes Brown turned to booze as a means of blurring the racial lines that caused him so much discomfort.

Regardless of the reason, Brown's departure will leave a void — both physical and historical — in the Michigan Legislature.

He certainly will be missed by Senate members both white and black, many of whom contributed generously to his defense fund after his arrest.

In a sense, they are all members of the chorus in this particular Greek tragedy.

Why WATCH is backing condo lawsuit

Editor,

WATCH Inc. is providing support in a lawsuit challenging decisions made by the City of Charlevoix's Zoning Board of Appeals in regards to a proposed development on the Pine River Channel.

The purpose of this support is not to prohibit the developer from making a reasonable use of his property. The purpose of WATCH'a support of this suit is to focus attention on the poor and improper decisions made by the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Many of the recent development projects which have raised concerns with the citizens of Charlevoix can be traced to decisions made by this board.

Zoning and Planning statutes in the State of Michigan essentially allow a community to set its own reasonable standards for development. In Charlevoix, the will of the community is supposed to be accomplished through the development, adoption and amendment of a master plan and zoning ordinance by the City Planning Commission and City Council.

The role of the Zoning Board of Appeals is to allow variances from these standards only in those cases where "practical difficulties" exist. In order to grant a variance all of the following must be demonstrated:

1. That the owner(s) cannot use the property in a manner conforming with the ordinance.

2. That the property problem the owner(s) faces is unique, and not shared with other property owners.

3. That the granting of the variance would not change the essential character of the area.

4. and, that the problem is not created by action of the applicant (i.e. that is not self-created).

In making a decision the Zoning Board of Appeals is not to take economic considerations into account.

Furthermore, any decision made by the Zoning Board of Appeals cannot be overturned by any body of city government. The only recourse for appeal is through Circuit Court.

If one looks at the project in question, it appears not to have met any of the above criteria.

The property in question is in the Commercial Scenic District. Uses in that area are basically retail uses such as florist shops, boutiques or clothing stores, etc. Properties in this district also can be used in accordance with the multifamily and professional office sections of the ordinance. All of these uses could have been accomplished without need for variances. In addition, similar uses can be made if they are deemed similar by the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Setback problems faced by the particular piece of property are also faced by all other properties in the district so this certainly cannot be considered unique to this parcel.

It also appears that this is a self created situation. The only reason the variances are required is because the developer has proposed a project whose scope is larger than the property can handle.

Even though no practical difficulties were demonstrated, the Zoning Board of Appeals gave dimensional variances for the project. In addition, the Board also ruled that a Motel-Hotel was similar to a clothing store, bank, florist, shop, etc. Ignoring the fact that there is a Motel-Hotel District already in the ordinance. The Zoning Board of Appeals would have been on better footing to recommend to the developer that the property be rezoned to the Motel-Hotel District as opposed to making the liberal determination that they made.

These decisions are only the most recent examples of the poor decisions made by this body. They have made similar decisions on other large projects. This opinion is shared by the city's own planning and zoning consultant. Mark Wycoff, professor in the School of Urban Planning at Michigan State University, in a recent meeting held with Charlevoix City officials, stated that by their very nature variances should be extremely difficult to obtain. In his opinion decisions by the Zoning Board of Appeals have been too lenient. Mr. Wycoff is recognized statewide as an expert on zoning and planning matters.

In addition, if one looks at the record it appears that variance requests are much more likely to be granted when a large development project is involved. This is in contrast to the record of decisions made when only an individual and single family residence are involved. In these situations variances usually are not granted.

The existing situation undermines the whole planning and zoning process. What good is an ordinace when its provisions are consistently ignored by the Zoning Board of Appeals? The current debate on building heights, setbacks, view corridors, etc., is meaningless since the Zoning Board of Appeals will grant variances almost on demand.

WATCH Inc. feels the citizens of Charlevoix must be made aware of the present situation and hopes that they will demand that their City Council appoint members to the Zoning Board of Appeals who are or are willing to become knowledgeable about planning and zoning matters and appear interested in making decision consistent with the provisions and spirit of the comprehensive plan and zoning ordinance.

In the meantime, WATCH Inc. will support actions challenging poor decisions made by the Zoning Board of Appeals whenever an opportunity exists.

Community can do without any more buildings

Editor,

I have not become involved in building issues in Charlevoix because money speaks louder than a single voice. People with money will continue to purchase property from those who wish to sell it. Mankind seems possessed with covering our world with concrete and buildings so that they can line their pockets.

Here in Charlevoix we are battling the same issue, and soon we won't have a blade of grass left. I do not mind the remodeling of any business already established in Charlevoix. I have a flair for design and I like modernization. I am against new buildings in our town.

I have watched children play on the green grassy slopes next to Burnside's. I have watched families have picnics on the lawn. Ducks have happily waddled through the grass. Venetian fans couldn't have a better view from this beautiful grassy area that many towns would envy.

Let's leave the park as a spot that is natural as God made it, and maybe in the summer we can put out a few picnic tables. Bathrooms in this area would take away from the park's naturalness.

I hope that is all the improvements that are going to be done with Hoffmann Park on the channel. Can't we have a natural park without concrete? Next someone will want a gazebo and other manmade stuff, and God's natural beauty of what he created will begin to be hidden from view. Wooden steps would have been better than concrete.

I can't believe we have another condo that is to be constructed. I was not happy about the construction of the last one, and how could anyone ever agree to the size of that monstrosity? As I said before, progress will continue. We can't fight it. Money is bigger than us. Soon Charlevoix will become the big city most of us left behind. Where will we move to when we make Charlevoix like what we left behind?

We gossip a lot in this town so how about channeling that gossip to your councilperson and put pressure on them to stand up for our view on issues. We complain a lot about our local, state and federal government, but our government is a representative of the people. If the people stand up for their rights the government can change.

If the people would vote, the people would not be a slave to the system and only a select few will make their voices heard, isn't that a shame. Whatever happened to the America that 's worth fighting for? Don't forget Charlevoix is part of America also.

Beacons of Blessing

by the Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum
First Congregational Church

Christendom has once more embarked on its annual Advent journey to Bethlehem, to that place where Christ is born anew each year on Christmas Day.

No matter how many times we have been there, it's always a journey that we look forward to. We are drawn to Bethlehem as if it were our own home, which, of course, it is in a very special way. For the One who came to life there is the very same One who gives life to us, not physically in the sense of our earthly parents, but spiritually, in the sense of the One who is the author and creator of all things.

There is in each of us kind of a "homing instinct" which beckons us to return to our place of origin, and that instinct is especially strong at Christmastime. We sing about it:

"There's no place like home for the holidays,

No matter how far away you roam..." and

"I'll be home for Christmas, if only in my dreams..."

But where is our true home? We generally associate home with some tangible, identifiable, geographic locale where we go to celebrate the good times, the place where, as Robert Frost once wrote, "When you go there, they have to take you in."

But there's another kind of "home" that we have – an intangible, invisible, non-geographic place where we go to find our rest and peace. As one person defined it, that kind of home "is where you tie one end of the thread of life."

During the days leading to Christmas, may each of us prepare ourselves to come home to that place were life begins and ends, to that place where God is. May we prepare ourselves to come home to the stable of light, the manger of life, the cradle of love. In plain and simple words, may we come home to Christ this Christmas season.

An old gospel hymn leads us on our way::

"Coming home, coming home,
Never more to roam.
Open wide thine arms of love;
Lord, I'm coming home!"

Martin-Priest wedding

Leigh A. Priest of Canton and Larry D. Martin of Charlevoix were married at Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix on Nov. 28.

The bride is the daughter of Leonard R. Colwell of Whitmore Lake and Mrs. Donna Richard of Southfield. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Margaret Martin of Charlevoix and the late John J. Martin.

The Rev. Larry Grooters officiated at the double ring service in the presence of their immediate families.

The couple was attended by Sue Brzenzinski of Hemlock, cousin of the bride, and Allen J. Veenstra of Hillsdale.

A dinner reception followed at the Edgewater Inn.

The couple is at home at 46953 Spinning Wheel Dr., Canton, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Barry Wimmer

Ice-Wimmer wedding

Yolande A. Ice and Barry J. Wimmer exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, Oct. 17, at First Baptist Church of Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Gilbert and Gloria Ice of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Richard and Anita Wimmer of Ishpeming.

The Rev. Thomas Black officiated at the double-ring rites at which the bride was given in marriage by Ronald Ford, a friend of her family.

Approximately 100 guests were present at the afternoon ceremony, for which the church was decorated with candelabra, a unity candle, and peach-colored baskets of assorted flowers.

The bride wore a gown of white satin fashioned with a high collar, off-the-shoulder flounced neckline, lace-trimmed bodice, and sheer illusion net yoke.

The bodice was adorned with sequins and simulated pearls, and the puffed sleeves were trimmed with lace flounces. The skirt and chapel-length train were trimmed with Chantilly-type lace.

The bride's headpiece was a satin hat trimmed with polyester flowers, Venise lace, pearls, net, and streamers. She carried a bouquet of mixed flowers, including peach and white carnations, daisies, lilies and baby's breath.

Jill Dishong assisted the bride as maid of honor, and Alida Klooster, Karla Ice, sister of the bride, Kimberly Hogan, and Carol Kerr were bridesmaids.

They wore peach-colored satin gowns with stand-up collars, sweetheart necklines and point d'esprit lace on yokes and sleeves.

They also wore open-crowned hats trimmed with flowers, pearls, net, streamers and satin ribbon.

Their bouquets were similar to that of the bride, but smaller in size.

Aaron Dishong served as best man, and Neil and Gerard Wimmer, brothers of the bridegroom, George Dixon, and Kevin Morrison were groomsmen. Chuck Klooster and Gilbert Keith Ice Jr. were ushers.

Music was provided by pianist Elaine Dvoracek.

The bride and groom hosted a reception at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall following the ceremony. They were assisted by April Meadows, Bud and Evelyn Hull, and Kris Williams.

A dinner for members of the bride's and bridegroom's families was held the evening before the wedding.

The newlyweds are both attending college and making their home in Charlevoix.

Senior citizens schedule annual holiday dance

Senior citizens in the area will celebrate the holiday season with a dance at the American Legion Hall on Saturday, Dec. 12, beginning at 8 p.m.

Jasper and His Tag-a-Longs will provide the music for waltzes, fox trots, two steps and square dance numbers.

Tickets to the dance, with refreshments included, are $5 a person. They are available from the Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center, phone 547-5361, or may be bought at the door.

All senior citizens and their guests, young and old, are welcome to attend.

A feature of the dance will be a drawing for a handmade afghan, the proceeds from which will go into the center's building fund account.

Dinner takes seniors to three communities

A special holiday treat for area senior citizens is the Progressive Dinner sponsored by county Senior Centers on Friday, Dec. 18.

The occasion will begin with appetizers at the Charlevoix Center at the V.F.W. Hall at 11:30 a.m., followed by dinner and a musical program at the East Jordan Senior Center and dessert at the Boyne City Senior Center.

Charlevoix senior citizens may drive to the V. F. W. Hall, leave their cars, and take the Transit bus for the trip to East Jordan, Boyne City, and return, or they may board the bus at Pine River Place. However, reservations must be made for the bus trip. Call the Senior Center at 547-5361 or the Transit Authorrity at 582-6900.

- ☐ Popular sailing port in Maine.
- ☐ Thin protective sheath for the penis, usually of rubber, used to prevent venereal infection or as a contraceptive.

IF YOU HAD TO THINK ABOUT THAT ONE before answering, you're probably not alone. For years, much of society has been hush-hush about the whole question of birth control and sexually transmitted disease, afraid someone might be offended on moral or religious grounds.

But suddenly, everybody's promoting condom use. It's in the papers and on TV. Even the Surgeon General (who we used to only hear from on cigarette packs) is pushing for more and earlier sex education, and wider condom availability.

It's no wonder, when you consider that more than 179,000 Americans will die of AIDS by 1991, and that this year alone more than a million U.S. teens will become pregnant — nearly 3,000 each day.

Planned Parenthood has worked for years to bring talk about sexuality and birth control out in the open where it belongs — in the family room, at church, and in the classroom.

We're also the oldest and most trusted voluntary family planning agency in the country. It's not surprising that when people think of convenient, affordable and strictly confidential reproductive health care, they think of us.

At Planned Parenthood, we believe now more than ever the time has come for honest, open discussion. Young people need to know how pregnancies happen, and how to prevent them. They need to know how sexually transmitted diseases are spread, and that short of abstinence, a properly used condom is the best protection against them.

Sure, some people think the answer is to continue trying to hide the facts from young people, but there's just too much at stake. Today, keeping young people in the dark could literally cost them their lives.

Service club aids yule project

The Charlevoix Lions Club has made a $500 contribution to the Charlevoix Christmas Project and the Salvation Army has made a $50 donation to the project so less fortunate families will receive a complete Christmas dinner and gifts for the children of the family.

Don Meggison, representing the Lions Club, made the organization's donations to the project to Mary Helen Riggle and Lucy Martin of the board of directors of the Community Food Pantry which is in charge of the Christmas project.

The Community Food Pantry is sponsored by the churches of the community through the Charlevoix Ministerial Association which also sponsors the Rainbow Shoppe. Both are staffed by volunteers from the participating churches.

The Salvation Army, which serves this community, made a contribution to the project because it also is a religious organization, said Clarence Rabach, who represents the Salvation Army in Charlevoix.

In 1986, 155 households received food and gifts for Christmas.

Trees go on sale

The Charlevoix Lions Club is holding its annual Christmas tree sale at Edwards of Charlevoix IGA on Petoskey Avenue.

Trees starting in price at $16 will be on sale 4-8 p.m. weekdays and noon-8 p.m. weekends. Pine and spruce trees ranging up to 20 feet in height are available.

As a board of appeals they are permitted to grant a variance only when all of these conditions are demonstrated:

1. The owner cannot use the property in a manner conforming with the ordinance.
2. The problem with the property is unique and not shared with other property owners.
3. The problem is not created by the applicant.
4. Granting of the variance would not change the essential character of the area.

County GOP prepares to pick state delegates

by PEG OHLE

The Republican presidential race will take on local significance Jan. 14, when members of the Charlevoix County Republican Convention meet to select delegates and alternates to the state convention.

The 28 delegates will soon receive a letter advising them of the time and place of the county convention, according to County Clerk Jane Brannon.

They were all elected to their posts at the August 1986 primary and will continue in office through the state convention, which will be held early in 1988.

At the state convention, delegates and alternates to the Republican National Convention in New Orleans will be selected from among the county delegates attending.

At the national convention, presidential and vice-presidential candidates for the 1988 general election will be selected.

Aspiring presidential candidates George Bush, Jack Kemp and Pat Robertson have already made several mailings to local delegates in an effort to win their support.

Delegates must name the presidential candidate of their choice before going to the state convention.

However, presidential candidates receiving greatest support from the Michigan convention do not always go on to become president. In 1984, Bush received more votes than Ronald Reagan at the state convention.

Members of the Charlevoix County Republican Convention eligible for selection to the state convention if they still live in the same precinct are:

Donald Smith, Ronald Geer and John Haggard of Charlevoix Township; F. Earl Muma, Robert Timms, Barbara Timms, Donald Voisin and Bonnie Bellows of the City of Charlevoix; William Huber and Donald Hufford of Hayes Township; Bruce Lanphar of Norwood Township; Kevin Green of St. James Township; and Lyle W. Harper, William D. Sanderson and Dorothy G. Sanderson of Eveline Township.

Also, William H. Ohle and Margaret A. Ohle of Bay Township; Delbert E. Nixon of Evangeline Township; Barbara Elliott and Eileen D. Laurie of Melrose Township; Glenn D. Piepenburg of Boyne Valley Township; Randy Witten, Charles W. Inman and Betty A. Inman of South Arm Township; Harrietta B. Jackson of Wilson Township; Galen W. Seiler of East Jordan; and Arthur Rouse of Boyne City. Casimir Toton, also elected from Boyne City, is now deceased.

Twelve other Charlevoix County residents are also members of the County Republican Convention by virtue of their county office.

They are County Clerk Jane Brannan, Treasurer Joan Balch, Register of Deeds Charlene Gaskin, Prosecutor Kraag Lieberman, Surveyor Mary Feindt, Drain Commissioner Clayton Healey and Sheriff George T. Lasater, as well as five county commissioners, who became eligible as a result of a court decision last week.

Earlier this fall, the State Central Committee ruled that only persons selected as delegates could seve in that capacity. The decision was appealed in Kent County Circuit Court, where Judge George Boucher heard the case.

Political watchers believe this decision will be to the advantage of Bush, who has the support of most "regular" Republicans, including those elected to county office.

Auxiliary readies baskets for patients at Grandvue

The Auxiliary of the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, packaged and distributed baskets of fruit for patients at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

Katie Curtis, auxiliary president, said "Everyone remembers at Christmas time. We do this at Thanksgiving time each year at Grandvue because we think it is important to remember them at other holidays, also."

The project is financed jointly by the post and the auxiliary. A total of 110 baskets were delivered at Grandvue and to shut-ins in Charlevoix.

Tree light sale aids hospice

The Eta Nu chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority will hold a "Tree of Lights" fundraiser for Charlevoix County Hospice Inc. throughout the holiday season.

The 18-foot tree, decorated with colored lights, will be located outside Stafford's One Water Street Restaurant in Boyne City.

"The object," said event chair Mercedes Mathers, "is for participants to purchase a light on the tree either in honor or in memory of a person or group. The tree will be lit at 6:30 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 18."

Proceeds from the Tree of Lights will be used to provide hospice patient care in Charlevoix County.

Donations for a light range from $3 for a white light up to $25 for a gold light. The names of persons or groups honored by a light, and their sponsors, will be posted on One Water Street.

Anyone interested in contributing to the Tree of Lights may pick up an order form from One Water Street (drop box available), Boyne area merchants, chambers of commerce in Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan, the Charlevoix County Hospice or Eta Nu members.

Students ready for yule concert at St. Mary

"This is a story you should know about the little creatures of long ago and how they told the world of God's great gift." This is the story students at St. Mary's School will tell at their Christmas cantata at 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 13.

"Angels, Lambs Ladybugs and Fireflies" by Betty Hager and Fred Bock tells the Christmas story in a new and fantasy sort-of-way, director Jeanne Lignell said.

The entire student body makes up the cast of characters with Jill Dreyer, Katie Fletcher, Lisa Borths and Steve Kang as soloists.

Narration will be by Maureen Oleksy. Lignell at the piano and percussionist Scott Kelly provide accompaniment.

A reception will follow at the Parish Center.

Need a Doctor?

For most of us, the answer is yes.

We need a doctor who can help us stay well, one who can guide our care when we're ill. We need someone who is there for us and our family in an emergency.

Finding a doctor who meets your individual needs is not always easy. That's why it's important to find a doctor before you need one when you have the time and energy to make a careful choice. Now, there is a new, free service that can help you with this important decision — HealthSource Physician Referral.™

At HealthSource Physician Referral, trained staff will personally answer your call and give you the names of physicians whose location and hours are most convenient for you. Computerized files help the staff supply other information you may want about a physician's background, education and special interests.

Your call will be answered 24 hours a day.

Obituaries

Millard Hand

Millard R. Hand, 87, of Resort Township, died Dec. 5, 1987, at the Emmet County Medical Care Facility, Harbor Springs.

Funeral will be 2 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 8, at the Stone Funeral Home, Petoskey. Pastor Bruce Hamilton will officiate and burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery, Petoskey.

Mr. Hand was born July 8, 1900, in Marengo, Ill., the son of Warren and Kathleen Sheldon Hand. He moved with his family to the Bay Shore area in 1901.

He married the former Alta Bailey in 1920 and she died in 1945.

In 1959, Mr. Hand married the former Eva Marshall and she also preceded him in death.

Mr. Hand was a Resort Township farmer for many years, retiring in 1962.

He is survived by: eight sons, Gail of Parma, Mich., Merle, Clifford, Louis and Millard all of Charlevoix, Robert of Afton, Jeremy of Traverse City and John of Decatur, Ill.; four daughters, Mrs. Alton (Jean) Brown of Barryton, Mrs. Francis (Kathleen) Schantz of Melvindale, Mrs. Donald (Edith) Kellogg of Conway and Mrs. Earl (Carmen) Walte of Morley; 62 grandchildren; 60 great-grandchildren and 1 great-great grandchild.

He was preceded in death by a son, Warren and two daughters, Betty and Vera.

The family suggests memorials to the Emmet County Medical Care Facility or the Community Church of God in Charlevoix. Envelopes for those purposes are at the Stone Funeral Home where friends may call 5-9 p.m. today.

Arthur Krulik

Arthur Krulik, 77, died Monday, Nov. 30, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral services were held at the Winchester Funeral Home Friday, Dec. 4. The Rev. Bruce Hamilton of the Community Church of God officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Born in Charlevoix Nov. 10, 1910, the son of Frank and Barbara Krulik was raised here and attended the Charlevoix schools. On Sept. 14, 1949, he married the former Gladys A. Ostrum at East Jordan. They always made their home here. A meat cutter by trade, he was employed at A&P stores in the area until becoming employed by the city of Charlevoix. He retired in 1975 after 22 years with the cemetery and street departments.

He was an avid fisherman and golfer, having learned the game while a caddy at the nearby Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course, formerly the 18-hole Chicago Club course. He was named to the Golfer's Hall of Fame on two occasions for having hit holes-in-one at Antrim Dells and at a Marion, Ind., course.

Surviving are his wife, Gladys A.; one daughter, Mrs. Audrey Shepard, of Marietta, Ga.; four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The family suggests memorials to the Community Church of God or the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Envelopes for this purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Emil Olach

Emil A. Olach, 70, a former Charlevoix resident, died Tuesday, Nov. 24, 1987, at San Diego, Calif.

A memorial service was held at San Diego Tuesday, Dec. 2. A memorial mass will be celebrated at St. Mary's Church later this month.

Born in Charlevoix, the son of Edward and Marie Olach, Mr. Olach graduated from Charlevoix High School. An upholsterer by trade, he owned and operated a shop in Flint before going to San Diego where he lived and operated a shop for the past 20 years.

Besides his wife, he is survied by five daughters; one son; his mother, Marie Olach of Charlevoix; two sisters, Edith Close of Charlevoix and Dorothy Laurent of Flint and two brothers, Clement and Vincent, both of Charlevoix.

Area cemetery gives pets 'more fitting' burial

by PEG OHLE

Years ago, when a pet cat died of old age or a poodle puppy wandered out into the road to be hit and killed, the owners picked up their bodies, carried them to a shady spot in a field or yard and buried them.

Sometimes they also planted some daisies or other flowrs and erected a wooden marker.

That's the way people said "goodbye" to their pets then, and it's what most pet owners do today.

However, some people are now burying their pets in a more "fitting" manner.

In the Yellow Pages of the local telephone book, there is a heading, "Cemeteries — Pet," and under it the words, "Burials, Cremations, Caskets, Markers," all available at Donto Pet Cemetery Service on Barnard Road in Marion Township.

Donna and Tony Wojan, proprietors of the Donto Pet Cemetery and Donto Kennels, say their pet cemetery is indeed an integral part of their pet care center.

"We really started the cemetery for our own pets, then people whose pets died while they were with us asked if we could arrange their burial, and finally we branched out to serving the general public," Donna Wojan said.

The cemetery is located in a corner of the Wojan property. Each grove is marked with a granite stone bearing the pet's name and dates of birth and death.

In preparation for burial, the Wojans sell a line of caskets, complete with coverlet and pillow. "Of course, some people like to bury their pet with its own blanket," Donna noted.

There is also a service for those who want their pets cremated. This begins with picking up the body at home or at the veterinarian's, cremation, and returning the ashes in an urn if so desired.

The Donto Pet Cemetery is only one of two in northern Michigan, according to Donna. "A friend of mine has one in Elk Rapids, but that's the only other one I've heard about.

Most pet cemeteries are in or near large cities because people there usually rent or move a lot and don't have a yard of their own for burial of their pets," she said.

State recommends parking ban on Bridge Street removal of parking from both sides of the street and the requirements for turn radius improvements and traffic signal modifications.

Talk of removing parking is already upsetting some Bridge Street merchants, with at least one saying it would put him out of business.

The highway department's second choice would be basically the same, but would leave parking on the west side of the street.

The advantages would be about the same – with a 61 percent decrease in vehicle delay – but the disadvantges would be greater, the study says.

Those disadvantages, the study says, are reduction by only half of the parking-related accident potential and possible long-term damage to drainage structures along the northbound curb.

Other alternatives studied by the highway department were:

– Do nothing. Advantages: Maintains maximum existing on-street parking; requires no action or cost. Disadvantages: Most restrictive to traffic flow; virtual stoppage of all traffic often caused by left turns; traffic friction and accident potential high; no left turns at Clinton; does not reduce accident potential.

– Four-lane, two-way road with no mandatory turns or prohibited turns. Advantages: 74 percent decrease in vehicle delay; easier access to marina; no turn prohibitions; easier access to off-street parking; reduces parking-related accidents. Disadvantages: No more capacity than recommended alternatives because of left turns from left lanes; poor visibility for left turns; parking removed both sides of street; left turns onto U.S. 31 more difficult; requires radius improvements.

– Three-lane road with two northbound and one southbound lanes, no parking either side and right-turn-only southbound at Park. Advantages: Maximum (74 percent) delay decrease; easier access to off-street parking for northbound traffic; parking friction eliminated; potential parking-related accidents eliminated. Disadvantages: No separate lane for southbound left turns; removes parking on both sides; requires radius improvements and signal modifications; Inside northbound lane operates essentially at left-turn lane; left-turning vehicles not removed from through traffic.

– Three-lane road with two northbound and one southbound lanes, no parking on east side and right-turn-only at Park. Advantages: Fifty percent delay decrease; easier access to off-street parking for northbound traffic; parking friction eliminated on east side; reduces parking related and some rear-end accidents. Disadvantages: No separate lane for southbound left turns; removes parking on one side; requires radius improvements and signal modifications; inside northbound lane operates essentially at left-turn lane; left-turning vehicles not removed from through traffic; parking-related accident potential one-half of plan above.

During an Aug. 13 review, highway engineers said, northbound traffic took longer to clear after the bridge closed than did southbound traffic.

"Vehicles near the end of the northbound back-up did not always clear the bridge before its next opening, 30 minutes later," the report states. "Southbound 'backed-up' traffic always cleared the bridge during the three bridge open-close operations witnessed."

According to bridge-tender logs, the bridge is up for an average of 3 to 4 minutes, with one July opening lasting for 10 minutes.

Hotel decision delayed

She said one thing would be to review the landscape plan, which the planning commission directed city planner Gerry Harsch to review.

Voting with Roloff to return the plan to the planning commission were Probert, Earl Muma and the mayor. Voting against the action were Bob Timms, Bill Haggard and Bill Bellows.

After the council vote, debate continued with resident Bill Supernaw deriding the council's inaction.

"Inaction will get you a lawsuit just as much as action will...You are denying somebody his rights," Supernaw said.

Supernaw said the council has attempted to divorce itself from the other boards it appointed to work with it when the city should be taking a united stand.

Rayders roll to easy win in basketball debut

The veteran Rayder basketball team, making its debut under coach Jim Kanine, got off to a good start with a 79-55 win over East Jordan.

"Overall I was satisfied with the team's execution of the game," Kanine said. "Their intensity was good after the early part of the game. The man-to-man defense worked very well.

"Their defense created a lot of scoring opportunities and made things happen for them. I think we pressed a little too early but when we settled down and got into our game, we did all right."

The Rayders got off to a slow start, trailing 15-12 at the end of the first period. As the second period got underway, Scott DeYoung started to hit and poured in 11 of the Rayders' 24 points as they took over 36-27 at halftime.

As the second half got under way, the Rayders outscored East Jordan 21-17 to take a 13-point lead into the final period.

The Rayders had 29 field goals including two three-pointers (shot from 19 feet nine inches or more) by Drury; 19 of 34 free throws and made 25 personal fouls.

The Red Devils made eight three-pointers, including five by Dan Pepin and nine two-point buckets. Then shot 13 of 25 from the line and made 25 personal fouls.

DeYoung led the Rayder scoring with 24 points, Shawn Putman scored 14 and Drury had 12. Pepin, with 20 points, was the only Red Devil in double figures.

DeYoung had 14 rebounds, DeVries nine and Putman eight. Owen Phillips made eight assists.

Chad DeVries, recovering from an ankle injury, and Roger Smith, with the flu, were not at full strength, and Dave Miller, who had a head injury, was not dressed for the game.

Grapplers finish 4-1 in Glen Lake tourney

The Rayder wrestling team defeated four of five opponents at the annual Glen Lake tournament.

The team met five of the seven other teams in the tourney and defeated four, losing only to Kalkaska by a 48-28 score.

The Rayders posted wins over Sault Ste. Marie 41-20, Benzie Central 39-33, Petoskey JV's 41-30 and Glen Lake 51-18.

"As a team we were up and down all day. We did not match up well in a couple weight classes against Kalkaska which made the difference," coach Greg Bryan said. Jamie Monteith and Jason Whitley did extremely well, Robin Mervyn did an outstanding job in the 185-pound class for us, the first time he was in the lineup, with his upset win over his Benzie Cnetral opponent which gave us a slim victory over them."

Bryan said the team looked a little flat against the Petoskey JV's after losing to Kalkaska.

Four wrestlers were 5-0 with five pins for the day: heavyweight Derek Dutcher, 198-pounder Jim Tilton, Jason Whitley (167 pounds) and Jamie Monteith (155).

Finishing with 4-1 records were Robin Mervyn (185), who had one pin, and Scott Novotny (126). At 3-2 were Steve Hopkins (145) with three pins, and Brian Darrah (132).

Brian Livingston (119) finished the event at 2-3, while Mike Phenix (138) was 0-4 and Matt Harbison (112) 0-2.

Fowler wins top award for Alma field hockey

Meg Fowler, Alma College field hockey player from Charlevoix, is the recipient of the Coach's Award in that sport for the 1987 season and has been named co-captain of the Scot team for 1988.

Fowler, a junior who also co-captained the Scots this season, was a first team NCAA Great Lakes Region selection and was named to the All-Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association (MIAA) Second Team.

She was third in the league in scoring with 15 goals and also had two assists. In games against all opponents she was Alma's scoring leader with 19 goals.

Alma finished second in the MIAA with a 9-2-1 record and had an overall mark of 11-3-3. The Scots' only losses with to MIAA champion Calvin (2) and the the University of Notre Dame – all by a single goal.

Wrestlers rusty but victorious in season-opening matches

The Rayder wrestlers got off to a slow start in their first outing of the season but picked up the intensity, coach Greg Bryan said, to beat Onaway and St. Ignace.

"We looked especially strong on our feet, taking 18 takedowns to our opponents' four," Bryan said.

The Rayders defeated St. Ignace 42-47 and Onaway 56-18.

The Rayders gave up two weight classes, 98 and 105 because of illness and ineligibility, Bryan said.

The results against St. Ignace follow:

112-pound class: Matt Harbison of Charlevoix won by forfeit.

119: Brian Livingston won by a pin in 1:05 over Kirk Lupnitz.

126: Scott Novotny won an 8-5 decision over Dean Jenkins.

132: Jeff Alden lost by a pin in 1:49 to David Becker.

138: Brian Darrah lost by a pin in 1:30 to Jason Frazier.

145: Steve Hopkins won by a pin in 5:02 over Nick Brown.

155: Jason Whitley won by a pin in 3:20 over Jeff Bisel.

167: Jamie Monteith lost a 5-3 decision to Ken Hardy.

186: Andy Wynkoop won by forfeit.

198: Jim Tilton won by a pin in 5:51 over Chris Marshall.

Heavyweight: Derck Dutrcher won a 6-1 decision over Scott St. Andrews.

In the Onaway meet the Rayders could not fill the 98- and 105-pound weight classes. Results follow:

112: Harbison by a 13-7 decision over Wayne Bentley.

119: Livingston by forfeit.

126: Novotny was victorious.

132: Darrah by a pin in 2:22 over Rob Stevenson.

138: Alden won by a pin in 1:26 over Chad Shier.

145: Hopkins by a pin in 1:25 over Matt Dunn.

155: Whitley won by a pin in 3:50 over Shann Kimber.

167: Monteith won by a pin in :56 over Nate Schroeder.

185: Wynkoop lost by a pin in 1:06 to Cory Kococki.

198: Tilton won by a pin in 3:38 over John Stump.

Heavyweight: Dutcher won by a pin in 2:45 over Tom Leach.

Dyco gets 1st win, Depot 1st loss in A play

Dyco Tool posted its first win by handing Depot Restaurant its first loss while Kit Carson Lumber downed Medusa and Pat McKeown Ford defeated Nanny's to remain undefeated in the A League of Charlevoix Independent Basketball.

Dyco Tool jumped to a 27-16 first period lead over Depot but trailed 43-42 at halftime before grabbing a 61-48 advantage going into the final period and taking the win 81-70.

Randy Holecheck paced the win with 29 points followed by Tex Drenth with 26, Brian VanderArk with 14 and Kevin Swanson with 11. Dean Hicks had 26 points, Tim Hartwick 13, Rob Spencer and Mark Guitar 11 each for Depot.

Carson Lumber took command early in its 90-76 win over Medusa, leading 26-23, 59-36 and 67-57 by quarters.

Vince Left with 27 points, Roger Crain with 23, Tim Carey with 15 and Barney Way with 10 led the scoring for Carson's. Dick Swenor with 23, Dave Storm with 10 and John Murphy with 12 were Medusa's top scorers.

McKeown Ford remains the only undefeated team in the league after defeating Nanny's 115-64 with little effort.

Mark Long with 33 points, Cliff Hass with 24, Kim Thomson 16, Brian Shorter 14 and Gary Drury 13 gave the victors leads of 30-14, 62-28 and 89-46 at the quarters.

Mike Bodzick had 21 points, Tom Burley 16 and Brad Behrendt 10 for Nanny's.

Bank, pub, inn win in B

The Weathervane trounced Wojan Aluminum 84-49, First State Bank edged Marsh Construction 49-41 and Villager Pub defeated Paul Bunyan Lanes 62-56 as the teams of the B League returned to the court after a two-week layoff.

Wojan jumped to a 14-8 first period lead but the advantage was short-lived as Weathervane took over 31-26 at halftime and 53-35 going into the final period.

Joe Miller led the attack with 35 points with Tom Lalley adding 17 and Steve Leazier 11 for Weathervane. Tom Morrison had 24 points and Mike Herriman 2 for Wojan.

First State handed Marsh its first defeat of the season with a 17-12 final period. First State took a 13-11 first period lead only to have Marsh knot the score at 24-24 at halftime. First State held a 32-29 scoring advantage in the third period.

In the low scoring game, Ike Boss had nine points for the winners. John Marsh had eight for Marsh.

Villager led Bunyan 17-10, 35-25 and 49-39 by quarters before taking the game by six points.

Dave Cole had 27 points and Larry Skippergosh 11 for Villager. Rick Bartz had 16 points, Scott Blanchard 15 and Pete Sweeney 12 for Bunyan.

JVs open with victory

The Charlevoix junior varsity basketball team defeated East Jordan 75-45 in the season opener.

Coached by Dick Swenor, the team rolled to a 20-10 first period lead and never looked back as they led 33-21 at halftime and 54-34 going into the final period.

The Rayders outscored their opponents 30-20 from the floor and connected on 15 of 30 free throw attempts. They had 19 personal fouls. East Jordan's field goals included one three-pointer and they made seven of 15 from the line. The team collected 23 fouls.

Webb Friedly led the scoring with 20 points followed by Chad DeYoung with 18 and Jason Parrish with 11. Ted Sherman had 19 points for the Red Devils.

Pornography foe speaks to area groups

Bill Johnson, state coordinator for the National Federation for Decency in Michigan, will be the guest speaker at a meeting to be held at the Assembly of God Church on M-66 at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 9.

Johnson will address the meeting on his mission as coordinator of this group which is dedicated to cleaning up pornography and obscenity.

The new film "The Winnable War" by Dr. James Dobson which relates the fight against pornograph and how it can be won, will be shown.

Johnson has been a public school teacher for 16 years and, for the past two years, president of the Newagyo County chapter of the National Federation for Decency. He has a BS degree from Michigan State University and a master's degree in Religious Education from the Grand Rapids Baptist Seminary.

"The pornography problem has grown because good people have done nothing. It is time that the public become aware of how widespread the problem is and join in doing something about it" is the message Johnson brings.

Thursday, Dec. 10, Johnson will show the film and address a joint meeting of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association and the Petoskey Ministerial Association at the Community Church of God, Charlevoix.

Light bulb sales help fund 4-H

4-H members from all over Charlevoix County are selling five-packs of light bulbs for $3.50 each.

The money earned will enable the 4-H Council to continue and expand programs. The funds will also allow the council to give more scholarships for 4-H events such as Beaver Island Camp and MSU Exploration Days.

Anyone interested in buying light bulbs, may contact a 4-H member or call the Cooperative Extension Service office at 582-6232.

Which way? City seeks traffic input

Getting agreement on a solution can be hard when people can't agree on whether there is a problem.

So city officials are asking the public to tell them if major changes in traffic flow are needed on Bridge Street.

Prompting the debate is a report from the state highway department that suggests the city adopt a three-lane, no-parking proposal to free up summer traffic.

Any move is up to the city, though. And officials aren't ready to make a decision.

The ramifications of their decision could be monumental, many fear. Loss of business, loss of small-town atmosphere, loss of parking – these are some of the arguments put forth by opponents of a major change.

So far, proponents have been more silent. A couple residents have suggested one-way traffic and several people have asked about minor changes.

"I still see the question as 'do we want to improve traffic flow to a major degree or don't we?' " says City Manager Mike Wiesner.

The Downtown Development Authority, which asked for the state study in the first place, already has decided it doesn't like the recommendations and is drafting its own.

When the planning commission discussed the report, they were unable to agree on what or where the problem might be – citing the bridge, two northbound lanes merging into one at Belvedere, non-local traffic on the U.S. highway and the traffic light at Clinton as possible culprits.

In an effort to get resident input, Mayor Ralph McRae has asked the six council members to call 50 people each, asking if they want a change and, if so, what it should be.

The Courier, too, is asking for opinions. The state's six studied alternatives and a handful of others are listed below and an informal ballot is to the right.

9 alternatives for Bridge Street

The state highway department studied six alternative methods of relieving summertime traffic problems on Bridge Street.

And other alternatives have received attention since the report was sent to the city.

Here are capsulized looks at nine possibilities.

2. Three lanes with no parking on the east side. Center lane for left turns only. No left allowed into marina just south of bridge. Southbound right lane must turn right at Park. Northbound left turns allowed at Clinton.
3. Four lanes with no mandatory turns or prohibited turns. No parking on either side. Left turns allowed from center lanes.
4. Three lanes with two northbound and one southbound. No parking on either side. Right-turn-only southbound at Park.
5. Three lanes with two northbound and one southbound. No parking on east side. Right-turn-only at Park.
6. One way northbound on Bridge Street, with all southbound traffic routed onto Park, then State.
7. Traffic lanes as is. Right southbound lane must turn right at Park. Remove parking to allow shoulder-side passing of cars turning left.
8. Other. Some suggestions so far: move traffic light to Park and Bridge; switch bridge raising to 15 and 45 minutes after hour. If selecting 8. on ballot, please specific suggestion.
9. Leave everything alone.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

What needs to be done about summer traffic problems on Bridge Street? A lot? Nothing? Charlevoix officials have been wrestling with the question since the state recommended turning main street into a three-lane thoroughfare with no parking. The first question being asked is: Should major changes be made in Bridge Street traffic flow? The second: If so, what? Alternatives from the state report and from city hall meets are listed at the left. Look them over and select the one you most favor. But first, start with the primary question ....

A. Should major changes be made in the Bridge Street traffic flow?
☐ YES ☐ NO Why?______________________________

B. What alternative do you most favor? (Pick a number from list at left) ______

Ironton Ferry: Repair, museum funds sought

by PEG OHLE

The Ironton Ferry, long on history and tradition, is short on money.

The water craft which chugs people and vehicles across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix at Ironton is ending the year with a balance of $32,400 but faces expenses of over $100,000 as it goes into dry dock this winter for its five-year overhaul.

Recognizing these facts, County Commissioner Ralph Harrmon last week asked the County Board to authorize application for a grant from the State Department of Transportation to help cut the upcoming deficit. Harmon is a member of the Transportation Authority, which operates the ferry. He noted that a few years ago funds were available from the State Department of Transportation for ferry operations and had been received by those operating to and from both Drummond and Neebish Islands in the Upper Peninsula.

The Ironton Ferry has been a drain on county finances for some time. Fares have increased considerably over the years to the present $1.25 per car per crossing (slightly lower by ticket book), but so have major expenses such as labor, insurance, maintenance, and Homeowners may not have to pay 60 percent of the cost of replacing sidewalks in front of their houses, after all.... City council is seriously considering eliminating special assessments for sidewalk repair when it replaces all the beat up walkways in town....

Sidewalk repair is on the agenda for next year's portion of the five-year program of improvements to streets, sidewalks, sewers and water main that began this year.... Roads all around town were repaved this year....

Normally homeowners pay 60 percent of the cost for sidewalk work.... But council members say they are paying double since four mills are being added to tax bills.... At $2 per square foot for repairs, the city would have to make up about $144,000 the 500 or so affected property owners would have to pay.

Water levels dropped another two inches during October in Lakes Michigan and Charlevoix.... That makes November's reading by the Army Corps of Engineers 23 inches below last November's, which was the all-time November monthly high....

The lakes are still considered high, though.... The all-time November low was in 1964, when the lakes were 42 inches (that's 3½ feet) lower than they are now.... The six-month forecast calls for continued lowering, with another three-inch drop expected by the end of December.

Discovery of 25-year-old opening leads to $25,000 Big Rock fine

Discovery of a 10-inch opening in the interior of the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant will cost Consumers Power Co. $25,000.

That is the fine being proposed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for the security violation, which the NRC says has existed since the plant was opened in 1962.

Big Rock spokesman Charles MacInnis says the utility does not plan to appeal the fine, which is one-half the normal minimum.

The NRC says the fine was reduced because of "the utility's prior good performance in the area of security."

This is the first security violation found at the nation's second oldest operating nuclear plant, MacInnis says.

All but one other plant in operation more than five years has been fined for security violations, MacInnis says, with fines sometimes reaching the half-million dollar mark.

MacInnis describes the unsecured area as a 10-inch opening hidden by ceiling tiles in an interior portion of the plant.

"It would be virtually impossible for an average adult to pass through and reach a vital area of the plant without injury," MacInnis says.

The opening was never used, MacInnis says, noting it is in an inaccessible location. A person would have had to get inside the plant before reaching the area in question, he says.

The NRC says the unsecured area "existed in a barrier between the plant's Protected Area (the area surrounded by the plant's security fence) and a Vital Area (that area inside buildings containing the reactor and safety systems)."

MacInnis says it is up to the utility to find security problems and correct them. The NRC mostly looks at documents during a security audit, he says.

He calls Consumers' searches for weak spots in the security system "pretty aggressive," noting that the utility has had army personnel go over the facility.

The opening was discovered by Big Rock employees who reported their finding to the NRC, MacInnis says. The plant celebrated its 25th anniversary this year.

Boy saved, 2 die in trailer fire

A house trailer fire that claimed the lives of two women remains under investigation by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

The trailer was on U.S. 31 near Murray Road in the Bay Shore area of Hayes Township.

Victims of the fire were Catherine M. McSawby, 53, and her daughter, Jennifer L. McSawby, 23.

Catherine McSawby's grandson, Travis Stuebing, 6, was rescued through a window by a passing motorist. Travis, son of Lorri McSawby, was staying at the home overnight.

He is reported in satisfactory condition in Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The trailer home was owned by Ron Stoneham of Charlevoix and rented to Jennifer McSawby.

Edwin White, cab driver for Lancer Cab Co. of Petoskey, discovered the fire about 11 p.m. Tuesday Dec. 8. Flames were shooting out and most of the structure was engulfed in flames, he said.

Travis was at a window in the south end of the trailer when he was pulled from the fire by White and David Makee, a security guard at the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant, who was enroute to work.

The Charlevoix Fire Department was called by nearby neighbors but too late to extinguish the flames and attempt to rescue the women. The victims apparently were trapped in the north end of the trailer home, which was completely destroyed.

Bands hold yule concert

The high school and middle school bands present their annual Christmas concert in the high school gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 17.

The seventh and eighth grade bands from the middle school and the high school band will play Christmas numbers and a variety of selections ranging from marches to Dixieland.

The seventh grade band will play "Gettysburg March" by Eric Osterling; "As Lately We Watched," a traditional carol; and "Paraphenalia Polka" by John Edmondson.

The eighth grade band will play early American "March of the Minutemen;" "Idyllwild Fantasy" by John O'Reilly; and "Jazzberry Jam" featuring clarinetist Jackie Brewster.

The high school band will play "Americans We" by Henry Fillmore, a medley of Christmas carols arranged by Gustav Holst entitled "Christmas Day"; and "Dixieland Concerto" by John Warrington. Members of the Dixieland group are Michelle Seibert on clarinet, Mike Stargardt on tenor sax, Lisa Smith on trumpet, Bill Crook on trombone, Sean Henne on tuba and Brian Stilson on drums.

SPIRITED SATURDAY

Decorations and declarations filled the air as area kids made yule ornaments and told their secrets to Santa. Ornament making was one of the activities at the annual Brunch with Santa, where Keye Beatty (below) helped kids put together beaded wreaths. Lori Darrah went to the top of the community tree in East Park in the city's cherry-picker to plant a decoration (right) while Santa talked with kids in the Market Mall.

Donations rolling in for dunes purchase

It's been a generous week for Preserve North Point, the effort to raise $700,000 to purchase the lakeshore dunes area for preservation as a park.

Little Traverse Conservancy, which is coordinating the fund-raising attempt, received more than $27,500 in pledges and donations in the past week.

More than 1,800 solicitation letters were mailed the week before, prompting some of the gifts. A number of others came during the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce annual meeting, which conservancy staff members attended.

Checks for $1,000 each from Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and the Charlevoix Garden Club were presented to conservancy director Tom Bailey. And pledges of $3,000 from Pat McKeown Ford and The Clothing Company, of $10 for each are sold in 1988 from Davis Chevrolet and of a $3,000 time share from Dick Georgi were made, several of them on the spur of the moment.

The conservancy has now raised $79,500. A state grant of $400,000 is being sought. A decision on that should be known in early January.

Contributors in the past week have been:

Guardians of North Point (gifts of $1,000 or more): Charlevoix Area Garden Club, The Clothing Company, Davis Chevrolet, Virginia Finney, Richard E. Hayes gets court fight aid

by PEG OHLE

Hayes Township is breathing a little easier as it looks forward to a possible Michigan Supreme Court hearing of its appeal of a State Court of Appeals decision on the validity of a portion of its zoning ordinance.

The pressure of the high cost of the hoped-for hearing was lifted with the announcement that environmental interests have pledged the $10,000 the hearing could cost.

At its monthly meeting, the township's supervisor, Paul Hoadley, told his board that the Three Lakes Association of Antrim and Kalkaska Counties had pledged $5,000, WATCH (Water and Air Team of Charlevoix) had pledged $4,000, and several individuals had contributed another $1,000 toward legal expenses.

The Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council has also offered fund-raising and legal research help.

The request to the supreme court to hear the case followed a September ruling of the court of appeals that "shoreland protection" provisions of the township zoning ordinance go beyond the authority granted under the Michigan Rural Township Zoning Act.

Specifically cited were the provisions which limits both docking to "not more than one (1) mooring, slip or dockspace (for a power-operated boat) for each one hundred (100) feet of the lake frontage"; and another which states that any development "which shares a common lakefront or stream area may not permit more than one (1) single-family home, cottage, condominium or apartment for each one hundred (100) feet of lake or stream frontage in such common lakefront or stream area."

The litigation over the legality of the zoning ordinance began over two years ago when Fox & Associates, owners of 338 acres with 2,800 feet of Lake Charlevoix shoreline, sued the township, calling its ordinance unconstitutional because the Rural Zoning Act did not give the township the right to regulate dock space on water or to limit riparian owners' access to the lake. Fox's proposed development plans for the property did not meet these specifications.

The appeals court agreed 3-1 that the Rural Zoning Act had to do only with regulation of land development and structures.

Fox's property is on Oyster Bay and was formerly owned by Camp Charlevoix, a boys' summer camp. The long legal battle over its development has been watched by townships and land developers throughout the state, with its final determination seen as a precedent-setting decision.

So far, Hayes Township has spent about $50,000 (mostly contributed) to support its zoning ordinance in the courts.

Opinion

Burnsides project needs rethinking

Letters to the editor:

Editor,

We have some thoughts to express regarding the council's consideration of revamping the park for the benefit of the "Developers?" of Burnside building into a multihousing project. A business plan that has as its major criteria for success the use of someone else's money and property smacks of the arrogant attitude of "What's yours is mine and what's mine's my own."

The "Developers?" have said their plan will improve the visitor impression of the city when approaching from the north. It will certainly help to ease the tunnel syndrome feeling that will be felt once the new motel is completed.

The rendition made of the Patio? design is pleasing but should be considered to be built parallel to Bridge Street. It could contain benches permanently mounted for leisure viewing of the harbor and street. The telephone booths could be placed in less conspicuous locations and overall the area improved. This is the only plus side in this project.

Now for the negative. The "Developers?" say the cost of changes will be repaid in increased taxes on the improved property. The improved property belongs to the city and is not on the tax rolls. If the city attempts to increase the property taxes, the "Developers?" will squeal like stuck pigs.

There is nothing in the "Developers?" plans that is a guarantee to the city that clients in their building won't be more fudge or ice cream dispensers whose customers will feel they have the right to crowd and litter the area as they please. These same people think they can take up as much space as is available. If you doubt this statement then you need to try and walk Bridge Street when the food dispensing shops are open. Why isn't there some sort of policing of this area? The city needs to place lines on the sidewalks to show these businesses the area they must use, and there should be fines for any encroachment. We will hear the owners say it's bad for business; it's a damn site worse for the town's image.

If the council goes along this with proposal, they have opened the "cookie jar." What is to prevent some future "Developer?" owner of the other two buildings abutting "Our Parks" deciding they want a patio too. The precedent is set so "Go Baby Go."

I feel the "Developers?" should be told to design their property to provide a mall-type entrance which can be done by removing the stair-way entrance now available on Bridge Street. Put this entrance in the rear where the occupants will have direct access to parking. The mall entrance also adds security to the shops by providing another door that can be locked after business hours.

The "Developers?" need to rethink their project. Most certainly in the area where the taxpayer shoots first. This is for their own monetary benefit and is their responsibility to put up or shut up. If they construe this statement to mean if they pay for it all it becomes a good idea, they are dead wrong. The present proposal stinks, no further time should be spent in its consideration.

Charles C. Papineau

There has been no talk of converting Bridge Park or the Burnsides building in to a multihousing project. Charlevoix Development Co. is proposing to convert the building into five shops facing Bridge Park, with a patio-like sidewalk constructed by the city along the edge of the building that faces the park.

Misconceptions cleared up on baby boy's condition

Editor,

I'm writing this letter to clarify some things about the disorder our son Cody has been diagnosed as having. It is a rare genetic disorder called Osteopetrosis. This disorder is associated with dense, brittle bones, progressive deafness and blindness and severe anemia beginning in early infancy or in utero. Children affected with osteopetrosis usually die in infancy or early childhood. As of 1982, there have been 50 cases of osteopetrosis reported worldwide. The only measure that's been reported to be curative in several patients is bone marrow transplantation from an appropriately matched donor. My husband and I and my step-son Kyle are all being tested as possible donors, however they've indicated that one of the parents will probably be the donor.

While Cody was in Ann Arbor, the doctors who took care of him, who are specialists in hematology, contacted specialists from the University of Iowa about Cody's case and about a possible bone marrow transplant for him. The doctors in Iowa are specialists in bone marrow transplantation and the University of Iowa has had the most successes with this procedure. They would like to see us immediately after the first of the year for a consultation. The doctors at Mott Children's Hospital have stabilized Cody for the time being so that he could be home over the holidays. That's all the information we have at this point. We will learn everything we can about the transplant before we decide what to do.

Evidently, there has also been some controversy over whether or not Cody has health insurance. I would like to clarify that also. We do have some health insurance and Cody is receiving some benefits from other organizations to help cover his medical expenses. Also at this time, we the family would like to thank everyone who has given donations to aid our travel expenses back and forth to Ann Arbor and who are now collecting to help us get to Iowa where we could be for four months or longer waiting to see if the transplant worked.

The outpouring of love and compassion we have received from everyone in Charlevoix has been overwhelming - from our closest friends to people who have heard of our crisis through their church. You never realize how wonderful a small town can be until 8 people show up at your store on the day of your open house to help you fill orders - or a prominent businessman's wife offers to make you a casserole! Lots of people have sent cards or called to offer an ear to listen or a shoulder to cry on - and sometimes the people you don't think of as friends, turn out to be the closest friends you have - right down to offering to feed the dog.

This is a very difficult time for us, and we want everyone to know that every prayer and every hug makes this an easier burden to bear. We're sure that God hears our prayers, and when the time comes, he'll make the right decision for our baby Cody.

In the meantime, Charlevoix, thank you for all of your support, friendship, thoughts and prayers. On top of all the condos and controversy, the spirit of the people of Charlevoix always shines through!

Avoiding deer

EDITH GILBERT

We missed hitting a deer on Charlevoix-Petoskey Road the other night by the flick of a tail. "That tears it," I said to myself and rushed into Meyer Hardware in Petoskey and spoke to Dave Meyer himself.

"Yes, we carry the deer alert device," Dave told me. "We introduced the Sav-A-Life warning to our area about four or five years ago, thanks to a tip from Reg Sharkey, outdoors writer for the Petoskey News-Review. People think pretty highly of them around here."

"Like who?" I asked.

"Well, check with Parker Motor Freight, Consumers Power, the sheriff department for starters," he suggested.

And I did. This is what they tell me. John Parker has had them on his trucks for three years and thinks they are 90 percent effective. (The Austrian company that makes the Sav-A-Life deer alert claims 80 percent effectiveness. The only time they don't work, they caution us, is if a deer is already moving and runs into the side of your car. If the deer is ahead of you, he will hear the ultrasonic sound waves and stop.)

Next I checked with the Emmet County Sheriff Department, and Sgt. Fred Scott says they have them on some of their fleet and he thinks they are most worthwhile. He also has a set on his own panel truck. The Charlevoix Sheriff Department does not use them, but Chris Bandy of Consumers Power Co. told me that three mail delivery trucks have had them for four or five years and accidents have decreased.

There are 20,000 deer-car related accidents in Michigan every year and Charlevoix and Emmet are the two worst counties in the state. The plus factor about this animal warning devices is that it works as well with dogs, cats, skunks, whatever.

If you're looking for a last-minute Christmas gift, you may find Sav-A-Life deer alert in Charlevoix at Ace Hardware or Holiday Station, if they're not sold out. The $20 you spend may save the life of that special person – and that special person may be you.

New York and Chicago would be proud to have a show as fine as the one now on view at the McCune Arts Center in the exhibition Gallery. Everyone who was at the opening was as impressed as I was. It's called the Invitational Fabric Show – an unfortunate title. Better something like "Silks and Saran Wrap" or "The Eight Faces of St. Nick in Soft Sculpture" or "From Insects to Tapestry." You'll see what I mean as we tour the gallery...

From the moment you walk into the gallery, the show is a "wow!" To the right hangs a magnificent Gobelin tapestry hanging imported from Poland. It's on loan through the courtesy of Hilda's of Iceland.

You'll see an antique photograph framed in bobbin lace and an off-white, hand-woven stole to which the purple and blue dye is sponged in as it is woven, giving a shadow effect. It's Japanese technique called ikot.

There's a purple silk rain suit, whose front is woven with tightly coiled Saran Wrap, that is fascinating to contemplate. Just the thing to wear to a space launch.

There's a crazy quilt with feather stitching and hand-painted design, as well as a grey silk suit made of strip quilting in the manner of the log cabin design, in a blend of grey and lavender.

We can't omit mentioning the wall hanging that shows a boatload of Laotians crossing the Mekong River. This is done by an ancient method called reverse applique that originated in China.

There are several Charlevoix area artists represented in the show including Wendy Midener Froud, Lori Bolt, Christa-Maria and Nancy Koucky. Many of the items are the finest example of the artists' work and therefore, not for sale.

This outstanding show will be on view through January. Any group of 10 or more people may arrange for a privately conducted Docent tour, please call the Art Center, 347-4337. Otherwise, just come and browse yourself, or bring your children.

Achoo! The flu

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

The flu!

It strikes without warning - with all the subtlety of a Mack truck and can lay you just as low.

In retrospect, there may be some warning signs, if you know what to look for: fatigue, loss of appetite, a general malaise.

But nothing prepares you for the onslaught of the bug itself, which comes as a total surprise.

I came down with the flu sometime Saturday night. I remember waking up in the wee hours surprised that a person could ache in so many places at the same time. The ears, the forehead, the neck, every joint, every muscle and assorted organs.

By dawn's early light, the symptoms had intensified and Judy wasn't sure she should call the hospital or Ron Winchester.

She tried the hospital and the nurse said not to worry - the waiting room was filled with people with the same symptoms. She recommended Tylenol.

"If you're going to get Tylenol," I told Judy, "get me some laced with cyanide. There is no point dragging this thing out any longer than absolutely necessary."

But somehow Sunday passed. I have a feeling that I kept slipping in and out of consciousness. At one point I remember a small boy's voice crying: "Beatrice, Beatrice! Willie, Willie!" When I came to I remembered that those were the names of my mother's two hired girls - the ones who used to take care of me when I was a little kid - more than 50 years ago.

It is odd that some corner of my fevered brain remembered what a solace Beatrice and Willie were when I suffered an earache or any other of the myriad diseases to which childhood is heir.

Influenza - or grippe, as it used to be called in similar times - is no laughing matter. In uncomplicated cases, mortality is negligible - unless it is accompanied by viral pneumonia.

Yet since the 16th Century, no less than 31 influenza pandemics have been recorded. A pandemic is a very widespread epidemic. The most deadly pandemic in modern times occurred in 1918, with an estimated 20 million deaths worldwide. In the United States alone, a half million people died, usually following the complication of bacterial pneumonia.

However, the culprit viruses - A, B and C - were isolated in 1933, 1940 and 1950 and vaccines are now available. However, the viruses have a way of mutating, witness the Asian flu (1957-58) and the Hong Kong flu (1968), meaning that absolute protection against the flu is almost impossible. However, the vaccine is still recommended for persons with chronic respiratory and coronary diseases.

...

I see by the papers that the Charlevoix City Council is thinking about doing away with the independent zoning board of appeals - the body that approves or disapproves variances in building projects - and turning that function over to the council itself.

From where I sit, this would be a very bad move. Moving the task back into the political arena would put the council under undue political pressure from which the present appointed board is immune.

Furthermore, the council - judging from its weekly deliberations - already has more work than it can handle.

Under the old Fourth Class Cities Act, of course, the council did act as the board of appeals, which was a very unhealthy situation. The new home-rule charter attempted to divide the powers and provide a badly needed system of checks and balances, a system the present council finds distasteful.

Fortunately, such a change will require an amendment to the charter which means a public vote.

If the council actually decides to put the question on the ballot, I hope you'll think twice before giving the council more clout than it already enjoys.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by the Rev. Lowell Anderson
Charlevoix Assembly of God

Choosing a name for a new baby is always a matter of great interest. It's seldom less than a matter of hours, or at the most a few days, after the doctor confirms that a woman is pregnant that thoughts and discussion begins regarding the name of the baby.

It's not uncommon for little girls, years before their child-bearing age, to be overheard discussing what they'll name their babies when they grow up. Often their dolls are given those names.

The familiar Christmas story in the Gospel of Luke shows us that the selection of a name for the One to be born as Savior was a matter of consideration from the moment the Angel Gabriel appeared to the Virgin Mary.

The name of the Messiah takes a prominent place in the announcement. "You will be with child and give birth to a son," the Angel told her, "and you are to give him the name Jesus." He will be great and will be called the "Son of the Most High." Luke 1:31 & 32.

"So the Holy One to be born will be called the Son of God." Luke 1:35. Jesus Christ came as the Son. As a human, flesh-and-blood Son of Mary Jesus was 100 percent man. But He was not only her son, He was and is the Son of God, 100 percent God!

The title "son" not only reveals a lot about Jesus Christ himself, but it reveals a lot about God the father. The whole meaning of the name son focuses in Jesus Christ's relationship to the father. Jesus Christ came from the father and his mission on earth was to reveal the father.

Garden club new officers are installed

Charlevoix Area Garden Club officers for 1988 have been installed.

Mrs. James Ledahl was installed as president to succeed the outgoing president, Mrs. David Fowler, who is the installing officer.

Others elected are Mrs. Joseph Morris, first vice president; Mrs. Raymond Slone, second vice president; Mrs. Tim Moore, recording secretary; Mrs. Frank Ochs, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Franklin Curtis, treasurer.

The close of the fiscal year marked the end of garden projects for the season. Two were in conjunction with the middle school and high school.

At the high school Derith Lane, Slone, Ochs, Pearl Rose and Nancy Porter worked with members of the National Honor Society to clean out existing plantings and began planting of a flowering crab tree, four spirea and four burning bushes. The bronze statue was re-positioned.

Assisting were Ellen Pearl, Amy Kelly, Roger Smith, Kerry McKeown, Eric Richardson, David Salmonson, Jill Austin and Heather Dietrich of the National Honor Society.

The middle school program is being carried out by the sixth grade science class of James Jinsky and a club committee of Joanne Curtis, Lois Lewis, Ledahl, Jolyn Hall, Joyce Hosmer, AnnaBelle Webb, Slone and Virginia Woods.

Grange has visitors

Barnard Grange, host of the 1988 state convention, was visited by three members of the state executive committee.

They were William Raymond of Pickford, chairman of the state executive committee; Wilma Howe of Empire, state treasurer; and Alex Cottle of Pickford, state treasurer.

Legion ready for party

The annual Christmas party for members of Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, and its auxiliary will be held at the post home at 1 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 20.

Members of both organizations, their children and grandchildren, 12 years and younger are invited to participate in the event. Santa will pay a visit.

Those attending are asked to take a dish to share. Table service will be furnished.

Reservations are to be made no later than Friday, Dec. 18, by calling Katie Curtis or Nancy Wood.

At a business meeting contributions were approved for the Chapel of Four Chaplains, the American Legion Auxiliary Emergency Fund and the Veterans Hospital at Battle Creek.

VFW selects project

The VFW Children's Home at Eaton Rapids has been targeted as the organization's prime project for 1988, Corrine Rogers of Central Lake, district president, told members of the auxiliary of Post No. 1153.

Fund raising for vans to carry the home's children will take place during the year.

Rogers completed her annual inspection and complimented the membership. She presented a citation from the state auxiliary office for the unit's work in membership, Buddy Poppy program and for selling 1987 cancer pins.

"condom"

THERE IT IS AGAIN. That word. You know, the one nobody used to say out loud, and certainly not in front of the kids. All of a sudden it's everywhere. Even on TV.

Maybe it's because more than a million teenagers in the United States will become pregnant this year. For many, that means shattered dreams and the beginning of a lifetime of welfare dependency.

Or it could be because, according to the National Centers for Disease Control, five million Americans will be carriers of the AIDS virus by 1991. It's no longer just a disease of homosexuals and drug abusers.

And maybe it's because short of abstinence, a properly used condom is the best protection there is against AIDS. Or because, with dwindling contraceptive options for women of all ages, the condom is a safe, effective method of birth control.

Planned Parenthood has been educating people about the health benefits of condoms for years, even though some folks would have you believe that talking about birth control right out in the open like that is downright evil, and that problems like teen pregnancy and AIDS will go away if we all just try hard enough to ignore them. In fact, some folks are shocked and outraged that women have the right to use birth control at all.

Fortunately, those folks don't make your health care decisions. You do.

Planned Parenthood offers a full range of convenient, affordable and strictly confidential reproductive health care services. Naturally, we carry a wide selection of condoms and other birth control supplies at reasonable prices.

We believe every individual has the right to make well-informed decisions about their health care. So if you want straight answers and quality medical care, call or visit your nearest Planned Parenthood. You see, unlike some folks, we believe that what you don't know can hurt you.

They're looking for a good argument

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

Bob Sell (left) and F.L. Dammann write notes and sift through file boxes of information while listening to debate arguments delivered by a Traverse City student.

"Peace is grounded on the recognition of human rights," said Bob Sell, Charlevoix High junior quoting Elliott Abrahms, U.S. Under Secretary of State for Latin American Affairs.

"In El Salvador there have been 40,000 deaths of non-combatants. There have been 3,300 detainess in Chile. We have proven our case."

Sell looked directly at the debate judge.

He was defending a case just presented by classmate F.L. Dammann during a debate sponsored by the Northern Michigan Debate League. Three two-person teams represented Charlevoix: varsity – juniors Jason Wiser and David Salmonson, Seli and Dammann; novice – freshman Stacy LeCureux and junior Max Goss; and varsity alternate – Chrissy Dillon. Other debate team members, not debating include: varsity – senior Hal Chase and junior Kirsten Joy; and novice – Patty Brannan, Sandy Fershee and Amy Shupert.

High school students across the United States this year are debating how to increase political stability in Latin America.

The affirmative two-person teams present and defend myriad plans to accomplish that goal. The negative teams look for holes in the plans and flaws in their opponents' debate techniques.

Charlevoix's team, part of the performing arts department, joins the fray every year. They debate from September through February.

Last year, when the issue was U.S. farm policy, Charlevoix's Jennifer Seli, Valerie Barnes, Lori Gleason, Dammann and alternate Bob Sell went to the state championship.

During this "swing" debate each team had to switch between affirmative and negative positions.

In the first round, Seli and Dammann presented their affirmative plan against a Traverse City negative team. In the next round they had to attack another school's affirmative plan.

At the same time, Salmonson and Wiser were in negative position against another Traverse City team. And the novice team of LeCureux and Goss began the day in the negative position, switched to affirmative then back to negative.

A successful affirmative debate team combines a good plan with good speaking ability and a thorough understanding of debate technicalities. There are specific requirements against which each team is judged; and the teams are quick to make loud issue whenever the opponent misses on a technicality.

The affirmative team must prove this year that U.S. policy in Latin America is causing harm, that the team's plan will solve that harm and that it has few, if any, disadvantages.

Debate is formal. Each team member is assigned specific times to speak, cross-examine and rebut. The only time the debaters argue side by side is during the few moments of cross-examination, when one side attempts to pin down and force issues.

When Wiser cross-examined a Traverse City opponent, his finger drummed the podium. "You read a quote saying Pinochet does not intend to step down. I tell you our policy will force him to step down." Wiser's voice carried absolute authority.

He turned toward his opponent. "Please restate that disadvantage now. You can't deny there are human rights abuses. Right?" Before the Traverse City debater could answer, Wiser answered for him. "Right? Yes. Okay."

Varsity debates speak with confidence and speed, trying to make all their points before the timekeeper stops them. Opening statements are 8 minutes for each debater. Less time is allowed for cross-examination and rebuttals. Each team is allotted seven minutes for preparation during the debate.

Novice debaters approach the subjects and technicalities more tentatively. LeCureux and Goss listened, ruffled through a large card file and looked baffled by a Traverse City argument that an open immigration policy would ease Latin American tensions. When their turn came to answer, they challenged whether the approach was "topical" and proceeded to debate recently passed immigration law.

At the end of a day of three-hour debates, students huddled to rehash issues, laugh over their own gaffs and delight in obvious successes.

"I knew nothing about Latin America at the beginning of school," Goss admitted.

"In my first debate this year, I called Guatemala 'guacamole'," said Sell, laughing.

"If we didn't know it in September, we know it now," Chrissy Dillon said.

Three months into the season the debaters speak with familiarity of the policies of Chile's Augusto Pinochet, the points of difference between Nicaragua's Scandinistas and Contra rebels, the contrasting governments of Brazil and El Salvador.

They are gearing up for the series of state-wide competitions beginning in January, which could see them back in Ann Arbor for the state finals.

The results: Both varsity and novice debaters took third place among eight schools. Each Charlevoix team won two and lost one debate.

"Those are excellent results," said coach Connie Ford.

"We use league debates to adjust our teams," Ford said. "We do not become concerned about league standings because we are learning who debates best in which positions."

Break-in at school

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department is investigating breaking and entering at Charlevoix Elementary School sometime during the night Thursday. Cash was taken.

The break-in was discovered when the school cook reported for work at 7 a.m. Friday. The break-in occurred sometime after 11 p.m. Thursday.

Obituaries

Elizabeth Corp

Elizabeth Jane Corp, 61, died Monday, Dec. 14, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

A memorial mass will be celebrated at St. Mary's Church at 11 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 17. The Rev. James K. Gardiner will be the celebrant. The rosary will be recited at St. Mary's Church at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 16.

The former Elizabeth Jane Nowland, daughter of Ernest P. and Mary (Beattie) Nowland, was born in Charlevoix April 3, 1926. She attended Charlevoix schools.

She later married Leon J. Corp who preceded her in death Dec. 22, 1959. She always resided in Charlevoix. She was a member of St. Mary's Church.

Surviving are a son, Alfred J. Corp of Ellsworth; three daughters, Dianna Wright of Grand Haven, Mrs. Robert Borths and Roberta J. Corp, both of Charlevoix; 10 grandchildren and a sister, Amy Mathers of Flint.

Catherine McSawby
Jennifer McSawby

Catherine M. McSawby, 53, and her daughter, Jennifer L. McSawby, 23, died Tuesday, Dec. 8, at their Hayes Township home.

Joint funeral services were conducted at Greensky United Methodist Church on Friday, Dec. 11, by the Rev. David W. Yingling. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery. A wake service was held at the church Thursday, Dec. 10.

Mrs. McSawby daughter of William and Anna (Ehos) Sands, was born in Charlevoix on March 21, 1934, and always lived here. She married Alex McSawby June 11, 1962. He preceded her in death Dec. 19, 1985. She attended Greensky United Methodist Church.

Surviving are two daughters, Lori McSawby of Charlevoix and Tina Wiser of East Jordan; three sons, Gary Coudron of Jackson, Randy Coudron of Lake Charles, La., and Curtis Beyer of Boyne City; 10 grandchildren; her mother, Anna Sands, and a sister, Marie Sands, both of Charlevoix.

Jennifer L. McSawby, 23, was born in Charlevoix on July 13, 1964, daughter of Alex and Catherine M. (Sand) McSawby, and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1983.

She is survived by two sisters and three brothers, her grandmother, aunt and 10 nieces and nephews.

The family suggests memorials to Greensky United Methodist Church or Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department. Envelopes are available at Winchester Funeral Home which was in charge of services.

Saints edge by Rayders

Charlevoix's basketball team fell victim to St. Ignace's quickness as they dropped their opening game 69-65.

"St. Ignace did what we thought they would do... use their quickness to compensate for their lack of size, go for the basket, go around us at every turn," coach Jim Kanine said.

"On offense we struggled at times. When we did get through (their defense) we had trouble getting it (the ball) in."

"Charlevoix was always down by two or four points; we were seldom even, and when we were we couldn't hold it. Late in the game, we had several opportunities but never seemed able to carry them through."

Kanine said the game pointed out a number of weaknesses that must be remedied.

Charlevoix stayed in the game during the first period but got in early foul trouble. From then on, the Rayders were forced to play the Saints' game. The visitors went up by two at halftime.

Though the Rayders pulled even going into the second half, they were unable to go ahead as the quarter ended 46-43. The teams played even, with each scoring 23 points in the final period.

A three-point field goal in the first period and one free throw by St. Ignace made the difference in the outcome.

Both teams scored 26 two-point field goals. Charlevoix made 13 of 23 shots from the line and committed 23 personal fouls. St. Ignace made 14 of 24 free throws and had 19 personal fouls.

Scott DeYoung scored 21 points to lead Charlevoix.

David Miller (4) battles with a St. Ignace player for a loose ball during the Rayders' first league game of the season. The Saints won the battle by four points.

JV basketball season opens with pair of wins

The Charlevoix JV's did not waste any time in taking charge of their game with St. Ignace – scoring early and increasing the lead to 65-46 at the final buzzer.

The Rayders outscored the Saints 29-18 from the floor as they led 14-9 at the quarter, 26-19 at halftime and, after a 25-point third quarter, 51-39 going into the final period.

The Saints made 10 of 33 shots from the line and committed 22 personal fouls. The Rayders hit on only seven of 20 foul shot attempts and had 25 personal fouls.

Webb Friedly had 19 points and Chad DeYoung 11 while seven other Rayders scored.

Earlier, against Harbor Springs, the JV's rolled to a 50-26 win.

The Rayders outscored the visitors 9-7 in the first quarter, 29-15 by halftime and 39-23 going into the final period.

Webb Friedly with 18 points, Jason Parrish with 12 and James Corwin with 11 led the scoring. Charlevoix scored 20 field goals and made 10 of 21 free throw attempts as they were called for seven personal fouls.

The Rams committed 21 personal fouls while scoring 11 from the floor and four of five free throws.

Easy time with Rams clears bench

The Rayders, defeated old adversary Harbor Springs 64-38 as coach Jim Kanine emptied the bench with 12 players seeing action.

"We took them out of their game," Kanine said of the game in which Harbor struggled to get its offense in gear.

"Our defense worked better than I thought it could. Our offense requires a lot of work and adjusting if we are going to control the game."

The Rayders struck early with forward Scott DeYoung pouring in five of the Rayders' eight field goals in the first period.

Substitutions started early in the game with four players scoring two buckets each as the Rayders scored 21 points to Harbor's seven in the second quarter for a 37-20 halftime lead.

As the second half got under way, Owen Phillips scored three field goals as Charlevoix built the lead to 20 points at the three-quarter mark.

With the starters resting, the bench contributed eight points in the final period.

Chad DeVries accounted for 13 rebounds, DeYoung for six and Matt Cunningham for five. Phillips made five assists and Marty Joy four stalls.

DeYoung scored 16 points and Roger Smith 11.

Freshmen begin season with win

The Rayder freshman basketball team opened its 1987-88 schedule with a 64-33 win over non-league rival Central Lake.

Ryan Smith and Denis Mailloux teamed up to score 10 points each for Charlevoix as everyone saw action.

Wrestlers lose tough match on final event

Charlevoix wrestlers split with Sault Ste. Marie and Cheboygan.

The Rayders defeated Soo 51-24 and lost to Cheboygan 39-30.

The team had a good night, filling 12 of 13 weight classes but it was not enough to control a fired-up Cheboygan team coach Greg Bryan said.

After easily defeating Soo the Rayders found themselves in a seesaw pinning match right up to the 198-pound event.

The Rayders lost the showdown match when Derek Dutcher was injured when he was thrown from the mat to the gym floor. Dutcher was leading 9-2 at the time.

Steve Hopkins (145 pounds) and Jim Tilton (198) were missing from the line-up because of illness or injury Bryan said.

Charlevoix had 30 takedowns to Cheboygan's four.

Results of the Sault Ste. Marie meet:

Depot upsets McKeown in A League basketball action

Depot Restaurant upset Pat McKeown Ford in A League action in the Charlevoix Independent Basketball League.

In other games Nanny's dumped Medusa 91-79 and Dyco Tool beat Kit Carson Lumber 89-75.

McKeown got off to a fast start with a 24-20 first period lead. Depot, however, came back to take a 46-38 halftime advantage and continued to lead by a 64-60 margin going into the final period.

Dean Hicks with 26 points, Matt Tims with 17 and Rob Spencer and Tim Hartwick with 15 points each led the attack for Depot. Mark Long had 31, Cliff Hass 23 and Gary Drury 12 for McKeown.

Nanny's came through with an unanticipated win over Medusa as they jumped to a 19-15 first period lead and built it to 44-36 at the half and 54-50 at the three-quarter mark.

Mike Bodzick with 31 points, Tom Burley with 21, Mike Albert with 17 and Kevin Griffin with 16 were Nanny's top scorers. John Murphy with 19, Dick Swenor 17 and Dan McKenzie 15 were Medusa's leading scorers.

Dyco was in control at the quarters by margins of 19-11, 48-26 and 68-48.

Bob Suher scored 38 points and Randy Holecheck 18 for the victors. Vince Left scored 23 and Roger Crain 20 for Carson's.

Weathervane gets first loss, Wojan first win in B League

First State Bank handed Weathervane its first defeat of the season and Wojan Aluminum posted its first win in B League action.

First State had to overcome a 41-39 third quarter deficit to defeat Weathervane 59-56.

Jeff Leaman had 15 points for the victors. Joe Miller had 19, Steve Leazier 11 and Tom Lalley 10 for Weathervane.

A 29-19 lead at halftime over Paul Bunyan Lanes spurred Wojan Aluminum to a 42-33 third period advantage and an eventual 52-51 victory led by the Morrisons, Tom who had 15 and Gene who added 10. Rick Bartz had 24 for Bunyan.

Marsh Construction took a 15-4 first period lead over Penny Logging and never relinquished it as they forged to 31-14 halftime and 46-29 third quarter leads.

Ron Chamberlain set the pace with 14 points for Marsh. Brad VanderArk and Bill Roloff had 11 points each and Scott Swanson 10 for Penny.

Freshmen, sophomore grapplers finish 3rd in Cheboygan meet

Rayder freshmen and sophomore wrestlers attended a frosh-soph meet at Rogers City for the first time in 10 years and placed third place in the meet.

Brian Livingston (120 pound) lost a closely contested 4-2 match to a St. Ignace wrestler to miss taking a first.

Livingston had a two-one record for the day. Brian Darrah also took second place with a one-one record.

Placing third with one-two records were Matt Harbison (115), Mike Phenix (135), Jeff Alden (130), Andy Wynkoop (150) and Jim Marquardt (200).

Franklin Benson (150) had an 0-3 record for the day.

COOKIE MASTERS

Every year for the past 18, Dave Phillips has helped area pre-school children make and bake holiday cookies. He uses Leo Fairbanks' recipe, which Phillips says stays moist even when a lot of flour is used. And the kids at Charlevoix Co-op Nursery can use a lot of flour. Keith Patrick gives his hands a good dusting (above) after rolling dough, while Landon Brown (right) gets a hand from Mike Greeley of the parents' council. Jennifer Mosoryak is engrossed in her work (left below), as Phillips works with Christopher Smith (back) and Nathan Browa.

Financial help sought for ferry fuel.

The ferry dates back over 100 years, when it was established by Eveline Township as a horse-drawn means of getting wagons and goods from one side of the South Arm to the other at a cost of five cents a trip.

Substitution of a bridge for the ferry has been a subject of conversation through the years. In 1975, then County Planner Bill Mercer applied to the Federal Economic Development Administration (EDC) for a grant to pay for a feasibility study of such a bridge. The grant was not forthcoming, but discussion of the bridge highlighted the fact that the South Arm breaks the county into fragments, tied together by the Ironton Ferry which operates only eight or nine months a year. A bridge, it was pointed out, "would unify the county, increase job opportunities, expand the commercial market, decrease travel time for police and ambulance runs, and generally make transportation more convenient."

As far as is known, no serious consideration of a bridge has taken place since that time.

Harmon also told the County Board that the Road Commission and the residents of Ironton want to complete the project of building a small glass-enclosed museum structure to house the first engine to propel the ferry across the South Arm, and other ferry memorabilia.

Three years ago, ground was broken for the structure which had been designed by Charlevoix architect Lou Orlowski. The State Department of Transportation gave area residents permission to build the museum on the state-owned triangular parcel of land between the two branches of Ferry Road leading from highway M-66 down to the ferry.

The cost of the "Ferry Museum" at that time was estimated at approximately $5,000, to be paid for by volunteer donations and labor. However, no aggressive money-raising campaign was ever undertaken and the project went into hibernation.

"Something is going to happen to this engine if it isn't put where it belongs," Harmon said. "Because of the history connected with its long service on the ferry, it and other historic items should be put where people can see them."

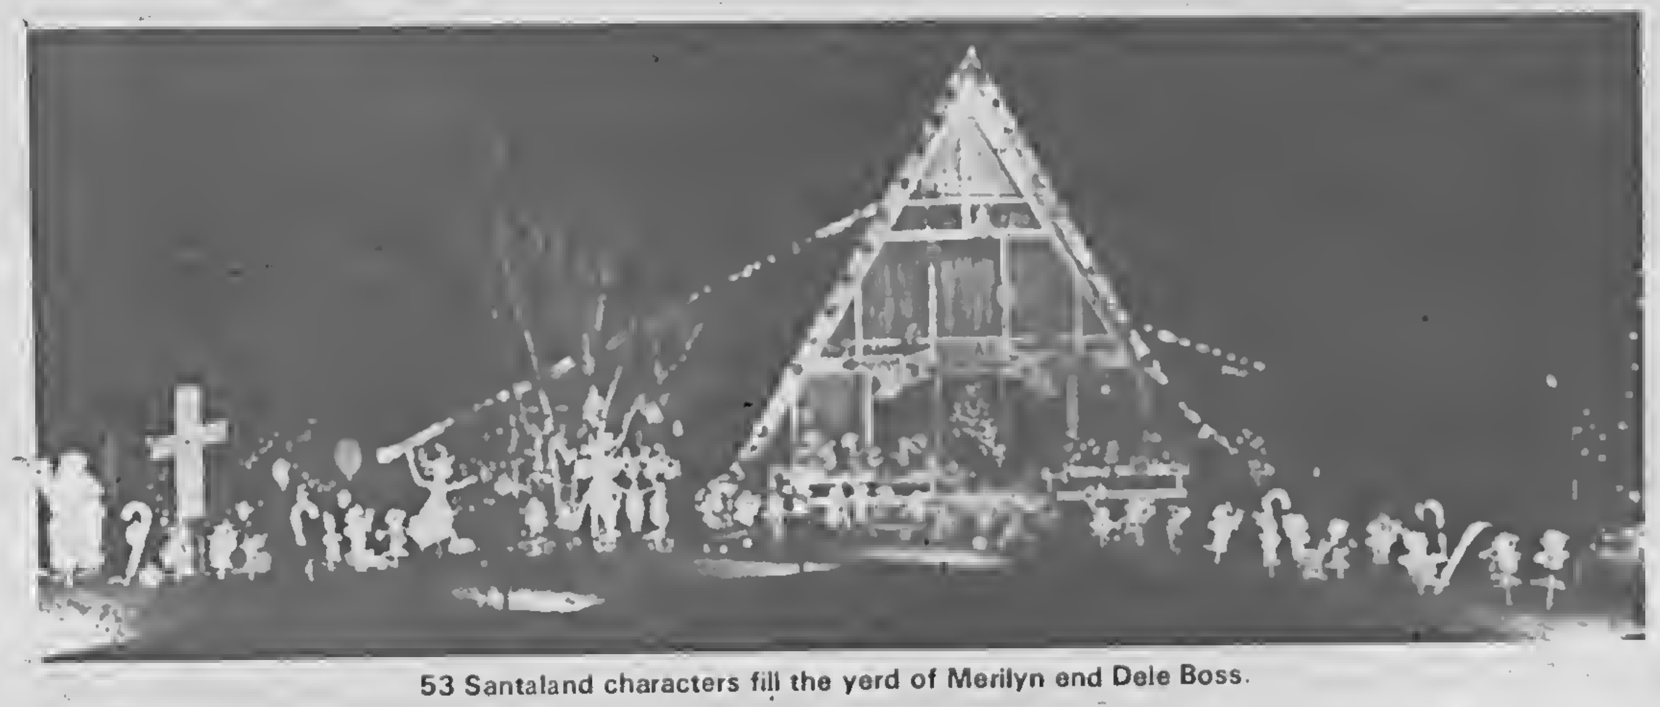
Santa's Workshop discovered in North Point neighborhood

by FRAN MARTIN



53 Santaland characters fill the yard of Marilyn and Dale Boss.

One of Santa's elves.

As if by magic, Santa's Workshop has appeared at the home of Marilyn and Dale Boss on Maple Street in Charlevoix Township.

And, as if by magic, Santa, as big as life, is in control of activities in his workshop where 51 of his elves are busy readying toys of every description, entertaining workers or cavorting up the front of the Bosses chalet.

Also in place are Rudolph, with his nose so bright, ready to guide Santa on his Christmas Eve journey and three others of Santa's "team."

A kitten plays among the workers. Little mice all dressed for northern Michigan weather, scamper about searching for a taste of cheese, and a host of little birds twirl in the wind from the branches of surrounding trees.

The Bosses lighted Christmas tree inside the house forms a backdrop for this scene from the cathedral windows of the chalet. Recorded Christmas music adds the final touch to the storybook picture.

The magician is Marilyn Boss, who said she thought about the project for a number of years and last summer decided now was the time to bring it to reality.

When most people were enjoying an afternoon at the beach, she was busy in the yard, taking advantage of the good weather, to bring out her jigsaw and, one by one, cut out the 121 pieces that comprise the display.

Eventually, she was forced to move inside where her living room and, later, her dining room, became her paint shop as he gave each of her make-believe elves an expression all his own and "dressed" each in bright shades.

A large sign across the front of the chalet identifies the scene as "Santa's Workshop."

To complete the picture are two scrolls. The first is a Christmas greeting from Marilyn and Dale Boss, and the other lists the names of small children in the North Point area and those of Boss grandchildren who will visit during the holidays.

The display is lighted from 5:15 to 9:15 each night. Maple Street is located at North Point between Mercer Boulevard and McSauba Road.

Miscellany

Building

The Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection recently issued permits to:

Oscar Stroud (for Charlevoix Township), to construct wellhouse on U.S. 31 South, between Barnard and Bell's Bay Roads, Charlevoix Township.

Drayton Builders (for David Keen), to construct airplane hangar at Charlevoix Airport, Charlevoix.

Births

Recent births at the Charlevoix Area Hospital included:

A daughter, Elizabeth Joy Palmer, born to Alden and Glorya Palmer of Central Lake on Nov. 25.

A daughter, Amanda Rae Johnson, born to Steven and Karen Johnson of Charlevoix on Nov. 29.

A son, Jeremy Craig Houck, born to Maxwell and Janice Houck of Boyne City on Dec. 1.

Elsewhere, a son, Timothy Robert Armstrong, was born to Daniel and Candy (Olson) Armstrong of Euless, Texas. Grandparents are Robert and Agnes Olson of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Armstrong of Port Huron.

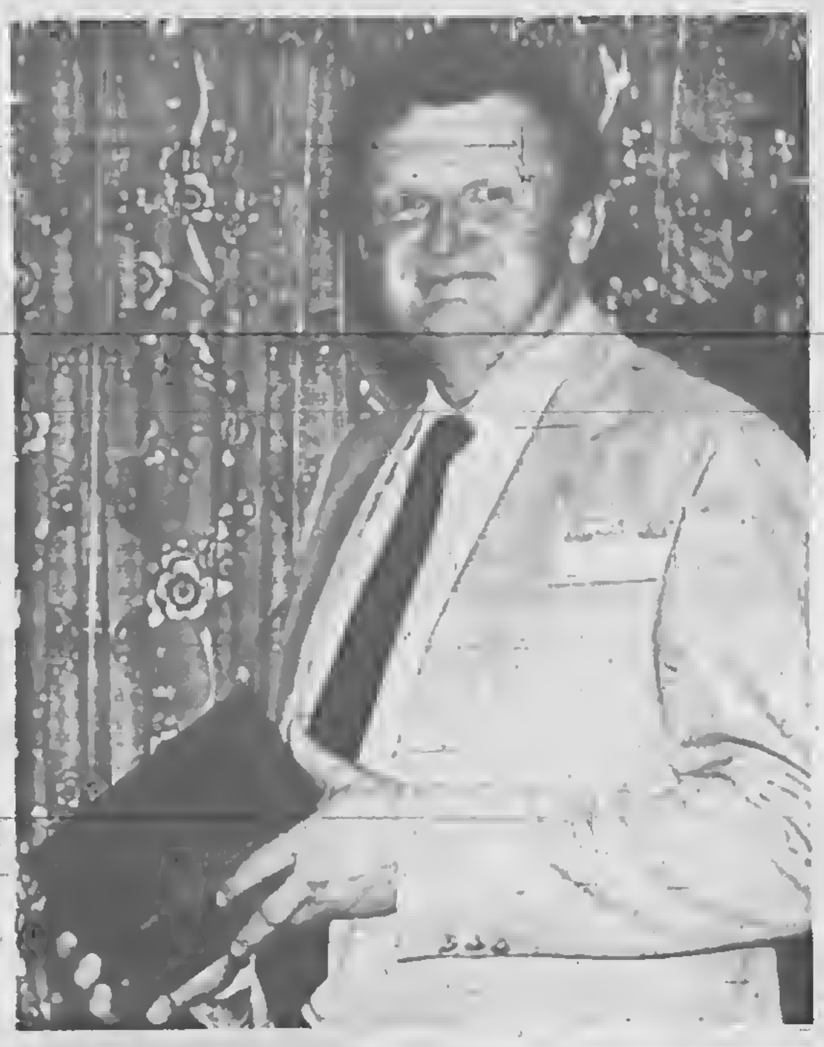
Marriages

The Charlevoix County Clerk recently issued marriage licenses to:

Ralph David Rosenthal, 27, of Charlevoix, and Laurie Diane Smith, 20, of Petoskey.

Robert Harvey Smith, 37, of St. James, and Jeannine Marie Connaughton, 24, of Petoskey.

CHAMBER THANKS



Dale Boss was given a surprise award by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce during its annual meeting. Boss (right) promotes Charlevoix every chance he gets by taking the Operation Petunia watering truck to event around the state. Next year, he says, he's going to drive the truck and city float to a Chicago parade right after the Detroit Thanksgiving parade. Bruce Reid (below) accepted an award thanking Medusa Cement for contributing $50,000 to the Preserve North Point campaign.

Regina Shafer, director of nursing at Bortz Health Care in Petoskey, has been named administrator of Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

The county Social Services Board had more than 50 applicants for the position.

Shafer succeeds Ronald Conkle who resigned after 10 years following a period of personal differences with the board.

Shafer's credentials include a bachelor's degree in education from Michigan State University and an associate degree in nursing from North Central Michigan College. She is now enrolled in the master's program at Central Michigan University and is a licensed registered nurse and a licensed nursing home administrator.

She has been at Bortz over six years. Before that, she was employed as a nurse at Little Traverse Hospital and did substitute teaching in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. She is married to Robert Shafer, who teaches in Pellston.

There is also an opening for a head nurse at Grandvue. That opening is posted there in the hope a present employee may be interested in the job. If not, Shafer says, a nurse from Bortz may fill the vacancy.

Shafer told the Courier, "I really feel confident about Grandvue."

"I toured the facility after my first interview and talked to employees and looked around," she said. "I noticed a lot of pride and felt the community support. It is a good facility. It even smells good."

AFTERSHOCK?
Stock 'crash' has little affect on area Christmas shoppers

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

Any impact of a declining national economy caused by the October stock market plunge will not be felt in Charlevoix for several months, local experts say.

And the "crash" appears to have had little or no impact on pre-Christmas business, say merchants.

Pre-Christmas sales vary. A few stores report better-than-last-year sales; several stores report a decline.

Most downtown merchants complain Christmas is not a boom time for them, with some saying they feel something could be done to better promote shopping in Charlevoix.

Shoppers complain that stores are not open nights and weekends and that many items are not available in Charlevoix.

On balance, however, Charlevoix has so far appeared to escape whatever crisis exists.

"We generally lag the economy by a few months," observes Louis Hollow, president of First State Bank of Charlevoix. "There's the old saw that says what happens in Detroit we don't feel for six months, and it's usually corrected by then."

Hollow predicts a general slowdown in six months, "depending on the responsiveness of the government."

Hollow adds, "We are a tourist economy. For years and years this town has catered to resorters, not tourists. The resorters still have the money when times get tough. The more dependent we are on tourists, the more we will react to economic cycles.

"Tourists fly through town and, if they are on a budget of say $500 and they don't have the $500, they might just stay closer to home," Hollow warns.

As for this Christmas season, merchants are in agreement with Mike Greeley at Wharfside Market sho says, "I don't think there has been an impact on the local economy from the stock market crash.

"People are still spending as much for entertaining as they ever have."

However, some store owners, like Jeannine Wallace at Shop of the Gulls and Jim Mabee at The Clothing Company, voice a concern that Charlevoixans tend to shop out of town.

"They have no compunction about telling us they are shopping in Traverse City," Wallace says, laughing.

"One woman came in last week. She said she was on her way to Traverse City but her husband told her the roads were too bad. So, she said, she was forced to shop in Charlevoix."

Mabee attributes a current drop in retail business to lack of snow, intense competition from large Traverse City merchants, and the fact many local retailers do not stay open nights and weekends, making it difficult for people who work to shop locally.

Despite all that, some businesses report increasing sales. At the Apple Tree, Mike Holmes says no one speaks of the stock market, they simply buy "because it is Christmas."

Radio Shack's business is up, says owner Bonnie Lenhart, who adds, "I'm waiting for other stores to stay open nights so I can shop in Charlevoix."

Sales are up at the Rocking Horse Toy Co., where Kathy Bultman says Charlevoixans are purchasing high-quality toys such as wooden trains and smaller stocking stuffer-type items.

A slight shift in Charlevoix's buying habits has been noticed at Sears, according to Joe Trojanek. "We're a little bit up over last year, maybe 10 percent, only some of the big tickets sales may be off. People may not be bying as many stereos, VCR's and large appliances. They are buying more small items."

Koucky Gallery is enjoying an improved Christmas season, although Chuck Koucky reports most

Readers say alter bridge traffic lanes

Area roads scholars are more than 3-1 in favor of making major changes in Bridge Street traffic patterns.

But they are far from agreement on what changes should be made, returns from a Courier poll indicate.

One thing that has made this informal poll stand out differently than similar recent ones is the small number of responses. As of Tuesday, there were less than two dozen responses.

The state Department of Transportation has recommended the city eliminate parking and turn Bridge Street into a three-lane (center one for turning).

That was one of six alternatives the state studied at the city's request. Two more alternatives and a space for other suggestions were included on the Courier ballot.

The ballot's first question was: Should major changes be made in the Bridge Street traffic flow?

Among the Yes replies were these:

"I hear more complaints about summer time traffic than about anything else and several have told me they shop in Petoskey rather than buck the downtown traffic."

"The 'merging lanes' southbound off the bridge and northbound at Belvedere are unfair, uncontrolled, maddening and irrational."

"Only if proven feasible by the state highway department."

"Congestion slows the flow."

"Terrible trying to get home from work."

"People are avoiding town because of the traffic. We don't need that."

"It's a mess. Main reason is loading and unloading trucks parking alongside of parked cars."

"I do not think traffic jams win friends or favorably influence

AROUND THE TOWN

Need a last-minute gift or one that displays local pride?.... Those Charlevoix license plates that helped raise funds for Keep Charlevoix Beautiful are available again.... A new batch is just in....

The red and white I Love Charlevoix the Beautiful license plates are $5 at Accents by Burlew, Charlevoix County State Bank, First State Bank of Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.... More than 1,000 were sold in a one-night door-to-door effort a few years ago and they continue to be popular, with more than 1,000 sold since.

The barbed wire may be coming down – or not going up at all.... After the zoning board of appeals gave the OK for use of barbed wire at a business and during discussion of the wire's use at the football field, it was discovered that the board may not have the authority to let it be used at all....

Normally, the board can grant variances from the provisions of the zoning ordinance to property owners with special circumstances that require leniency.... But in the case of barbed wire, the ordinance says "there shall be no" strands in the city, except at the industrial park.... A city attorney decision is awaited....

The board gave Ron's Mobil approval to put barbed wire atop a fence surrounding an auto storage yard used by police and insurance companies to secure wrecks and impounded vehicles.... And the school district has asked for the OK to put barbed wire on part of the fence around the football field.... There is already barbed wire at the track – has been for years – but a portion of the fence was moved, prompting the need for city approval.

CHRISTMAS THEN:
Simpler celebrations filled Northland in earlier years

by PEG OHLE

The celebration of Christmas is now more than 2,000 years old. The manner in which this birthday is celebrated has changed greatly through the years, with each part of the world adding its own customs.

But no matter where Christmas is celebrated, there is always at least one special feature of the occasion: religion, family togetherness, feasting and gift-giving.

The recorded history of life in northern Michigan goes back only a couple of hundred years, but a little digging brought forth some reminiscences of Christmases past.

In 1883, northern Michigan was full of lumber camps operated by business barons who depended upon crews of hardy, hard-living lumberjacks to cut the trees and transport them to the mills.

One such lumberjack was John W. Fitzmaurice, who in his book, "The Shanty Boy, or Life in a Lumber Camp" describes the Christmas of 1883, which be spent in a camp near Hubbard Lake.

As might be expected, this celebration centered on feasting:

"There was venison, cooked in three different forms; wild turkey; wild duck; partridge pie, big as a bushel basket; cold and hot corn beef; pork and beans; corn beef hash; cod fish with drawn butter; pigs feet; potatoes, sauerkraut; boiled cabbage, beets; onions; pickles; apple, mince, lemon pie; apple and current pudding; tea, with milk and glucose sugar; bread and cookies.

"The afternoon was spent in the various methods of amusement incident to camp. Some reading, others letter-writing, one mending his socks, another putting a fore and aft deck in a pair of pants, with a dissecteed grain bag. Cards and music were in vogue, the latter represented by a violin and two mouth organs, furnishing entertainment for a number engaged in the exhilarating excitement of 'stag dance.'

"In the far corner, the everlasting creaking of the grindstone kept up an accompaniment to the general hilarity, thus forming the necessary connection between work and play."

Ten years later, on Dec. 27, 1893, George A. Weaver, a missionary for the American Sunday School Union, reported in the Petoskey Record on a Christmas celebration he had witnessed in Horton Bay:

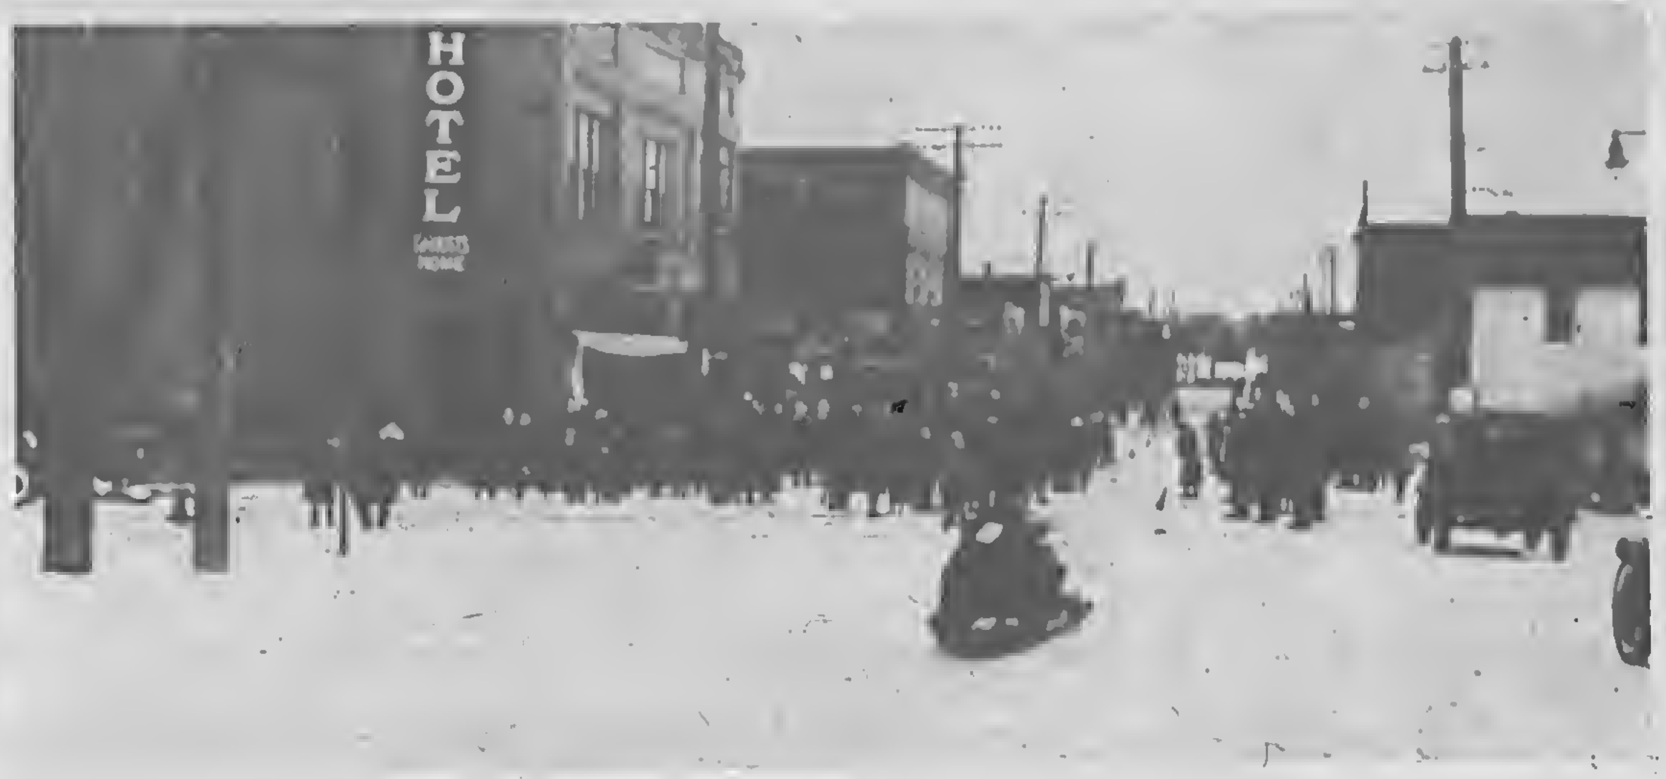
Growth alliance gets grant

A $51,300 matching grant for the Antrim-Charlevoix Community Growth Alliance has been awarded by the Michigan Department of Commerce.

The Antrim-Charlevoix CGA is located in Boyne City and is headed by Richard Beagle.

CGAs are regional public and private sector economic development coalitions created by Gov. Blanchard in 1985 to improve communications and services between state and local units of government.

They are made up of local persons representing business, elected offices, chambers of commerce, higher education, labor, utility companies and development firms.



Charlevoix Yesterday

For many years, winter in Charlevoix meant sled races down the South Hill on Bridge Street to Antrim Street. Snowplowing was probably not the No. 1 priority in those days. (Photo courtesy Mrs. ‹ ‹nneth Gerritsen)

TO PURCHASE ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES AT 7-ELEVEN

COME OF AGE.

Alcohol abuse is a serious problem, particularly among people who are not of legal drinking age. The 7-Eleven stores in this area want to help do something about this problem. We want to assure that the laws regarding the sale of alcoholic beverages to those not of legal drinking age are upheld in our stores. We are asking our customers who are age twenty-five and younger to have a driver's license or military identification available for inspection when purchasing alcoholic beverages from us.

We try to be good neighbors and to live up to our responsibilities as a corporate citizen. This is not the first time we have been involved in community concerns. We've been involved with you in the Mothers March of Dimes. We enlisted your aid in the fight against muscular dystrophy and, through your generosity, 7-Eleven stores have raised over $35 million to fight this crippling disease.

Now we ask your cooperation and support in helping us adhere to the law. If you come to 7-Eleven to purchase alcoholic beverages, please come of age.

Our concern is people.

Love in your heart puts the Spirit of Christmas in the Air.

All of us are wishing you and your family the real blessing of this Christmas season - the joy of giving, the love of a happy heart, and the spirit of peace and thanksgiving. May this spirit of Christmas continue in your home throughout the new year.

Beauty can be preserved without a falling behind

Editor,

I have resided in Houston, Texas for some 7 years now and have received the Charlevoix Courier for about 3 years. I am a 1978 graduate of Charlevoix High School and thought I would write ya'll a quick letter concerning the new "Bridge Park" project.

Charlevoix to me has always been one of the most scenic, relaxed and innovative towns I've ever been in. The reason I say innovative is because Charlevoix, unlike many other towns, examines city, and county oriented projects so closely, that only the most complete, outstanding, and innovative projects are accepted. Keeping Charlevoix the beautiful, just that!!!

In the past years I have read and talked with my mother Marcia Trimper, about the wetlands projects, and the over-abundance of condos in the Round Lake area. I feel that these projects are in definite need of a very good watchdog, so to speak, as they are truly looking out for what's best for Charlevoix, and the surrounding areas. Yet, when it comes to the Bridge Park situation I firmly feel that the space in question will not be harmed to the point of, as quoted, "theft of sacred parkland for the benefit of private profit." Give me a break! This area has always been a rather stagnant area. It has never been included in the Venetian Festival, as far as I can remember back, except or a nice spot to sit if you want the fireworks' ashes to drop on you. Nor has it been really included in many of the other unique Charlevoix "goings-on." In actuality, the only time I remember it being used is when the girls used to sit and wait for their boys to come in off the Sundew when that majestic ship was harbored in town, not exactly sacred part space!

Why not allow some new innovative businesses to come to town, after all, Burnsides has never really been the hot spot in the fashion world, nor is the outside of the building the most architectural wonder of our world. I think that boaters passing through Round Lake, and folks traveling through our fair city, would really appreciate the fact that our city planners can use space so well... or maybe we should just tear the whole thing up as the old song says... and put up a parking lot. Don't ya'll think that the park area in front of the proposed new stores would be used a lot more and in the long run, be better groomed if that area has highlighted? Why not let Dale Boss do some real fancy petunia work in that area, making it the center of the whole "Charlevoix the beautiful" theme?

Remember, folks, beauty can be preserved, even made more beautiful, without falling a century behind.

Thanks for listening to a concerned, yet somewhat frustrated citizen on leave of absence!

Hart of controversy

Clockwise

BY BOB CLOCK

When I heard that Gary Hart had re-entered the Democratic presidential sweepstakes, my first reaction was "Who does he think he's kidding?"

However after about two seconds of sober reflection, I had my answer:

He isn't kidding anyone.

In fact Hart, despite his widely reported extra-marital escapades last spring, could well become the Democratic nominee — and the next president of the United States.

Preposterous? Not by a long shot.

In fact, Hart comes very close to the mainstream of present-day American morality; shaped by a diet of marital infidelity, promiscuity and soaring passions on TV and the movies. Strange as it seems, Hart's capers with Donna Rice actually may enhance his chances of winning the Oval Office.

Although it cannot be proven mathematically, there probably is a very strong connection between a person's charisma (read sexuality) and his ability to attract votes — from both sexes. Politics today really has very little to do with who wins important elections.

Hart's worst mistake to date was not committing hanky-panky with a pretty young model half his age but dropping out of the race.

I still cannot believe he knew so little about his fellow Americans that he would allow a little tongue-clucking by the press to force him to abandon his presidential ambitions.

Was he dishonest by initially denying any impropriety? Good Lord, no! In the name of John Wayne, the lady's reputation was at stake!

A generation ago, Hart's philandering might have cost him his career. But Americans today appear to be more tolerant of sexual indiscretions, having come to the conclusion that what a fellow — or a girl — does in private doesn't have an awful lot to with their competence outside the bedroom.

Of course, such shenanigans make titillating gossip, but they aren't really relevant to one's overall performance in the workaday world.

I am not going to go into the long list of public figures who have served their country admirably despite questionable sexual ethics. You know who they are as well as I do.

And the United States has scarcely cornered the market on sexual rascality. You'll find lotharios around the world. Fortunately, most of them are more circumspect (read less honest) about their extra-curricular activities than Gary Hart.

Helping Hart along in his campaign is a slate of other Democratic hopefuls who are about as exciting as tap water. If nothing else, Hart has rejuvenated the Democratic presidential selection process that was all but dead on its feet.

If Hart does emerge as the Democratic winner, he shouldn't have much trouble beating the pants off either George Bush, who bears too many scars of the Reagan Administration, or Robert Dole, who appears to be gaining favor with Reagan himself — an association that could be devastating.

If Bush wins the Republican nomination, he will still be faced with task of overcoming the so-called "Wimp Factor" — the public's widespread perception of him as a wishy-washy Mr. Goodbody who doesn't know how to assert himself.

We had such a president in Jimmy Carter, a decent, god-fearing man who was our penance for having elected Richard Nixon — twice.

Of course, no one knew at the time of the 1975 general election that Carter would let the nation's defenses fall apart, allow the economy to run amok and permit double-digit inflation to ransack our paychecks while he prayed for our souls over grits and gravy.

So much for "The Wimp Factor."

It's one problem self-assertive Gary Hart doesn't have to deal with. Just ask Donna Rice.

Out of the Blue

Heaven on earth there'd be today —
Our Father's will being done —
If only like Tiny Tim we'd pray,
"God bless us EVERY ONE!"

Beacons of Blessing

by the Rev. Robert H. Piller
Bethany Lutheran Church

The hearts of Christian people throughout the world are at this time dwelling upon the wondrous story of that first Christmas Eve. And what a resplendent spectacle is unfolding before our wondrous eyes in the simple language of that story!

Lowly shepherds in shepherds' garb, dumbfounded, stupified, bewildered – they form the first Christmas audience. An angel of God, in all the glory and brilliance of heaven, the first Christmas messenger. A multitude of angels, the first Christmas choir. And the words, "Unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord," the keynote of the first Christmas sermon ever preached to dying sinners.

It is the eternal power and divine eloquence of this simple yet tremendously important message which has perpetuated Christmas and which still electrifies the hearts of Christians wherever the glad tidings are repeated. "Unto you is born a Savior."

Unto YOU; you who were born in sin; you whose life is a record of transgression and iniquity and are therefore under the wrath of an offended God; onto YOU is born this day in the city of David a Savior, a Redeemer, an Emancipator, which is Christ the Lord, the promised Messiah, the Emmanuel, the God-with-us, the Mighty God!

As long as that message remains true – and it will remain forever true, Christmas will never lose its power. Christmas will never cease to bring that peace, that hope, that joy of which the angels sang – that peace, that hope, that joy which – thank God – are ours today. Surely, no matter what our circumstances may be on this most holy day, we have every reason to lift our hearts in fervent prayer and say:

"Oh holy Child of Bethlehem,
Descend to us, we pray.
Cast out our sin and enter in,
Be born in us today.
We hear the Christmas angel
The glad great tidings tell;
Oh, come to us, Abide in us,
Our Lord Emmanuel!"

Letters to the editor:

Real-looking toy guns can lead to tragedy

Editor,

Law enforcement officers across the state, and across the country, are becoming increasingly alarmed about the use of toy guns in criminal acts.

Several incidents have occurred in Michigan in the past few months that could have ended in tragedy for teenagers and police officers.

The situation requires creative solutions, but lawmen and lawmakers should get together to work on an answer to this problem. To let the situation continue is only to invite tragedy.

With Christmas coming, we request that parents take a close look at purchases of toy guns for children that look too much like real ones.

Community generosity shows

Editor,

On behalf of all who are working to preserve Charlevoix's North Point, I am writing to thank members of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce for their tremendous financial support. Many Chamber members made substantial commitments to the project at their annual meeting last Friday (Dec. 12). We are most grateful to Davis Chevrolet, Pat McKeown Ford, The Clothing Company, Richard Georgi, Dr. David Strawbridge, and to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and the Charlevoix Area Garden Club for their donations. And, naturally, the award given to Medusa Cement Company for their support was well deserved.

We are also grateful to the Chamber itself for inviting us to participate in their annual meeting.

The donations announced at last Friday's Chamber meeting and those that are yet to come show that the businesses in Charlevoix are supporting the purchase of North Point all the way. That is great news for a community that will benefit from the creation of a public preserve at North Point for generations to come.

These businesses deserve the thanks and support of all who are working to preserve North Point, and I am pleased to have this opportunity to thank them on behalf of the Little Traverse Conservancy and the Preserve North Point project.

Thomas C. Bailey

It should not be so easy for law to be amended

Editor,

Since I have been attending council meetings in Charlevoix it has become apparent to me that a great deal of the council's time is consumed in considering requests for variances.

Our council is a group of men and women whom a majority of the people have elected to make laws (ordinances) to protect us. A variance, and I quote this newspaper, is permission given to an individual in a specific case to break the law.

But, as I understand it, the council (whom we elect) doesn't have much choice. After the various panels and boards and commissions (whom we do not elect, rather they appoint) have verified that a request for a variance has followed the regulations, the council has not alternative but to approve the request and grant the variance.

No individual in any specific case should be allowed to achieve prosperity at the expense of the majority of the people who have made it very clear that the proposed variance is against their wishes, their prosperity and their happiness.

If that is democracy in practice doesn't it look as though there is a screw loose somewhere that need tightening down, or even replacing?

I wish I could get a variance instructing the board of appeals, the panels, the commission and the council to uphold the laws which they have made for our protection, rather than allowing them to abandon those laws and to grant variances to break them.

One of the reasons our constitution continues to be the oldest written government in the world is because the smart men who wrote it made it difficult to amend.

Why does our city government make it so easy for individuals to amend (break) our city laws so promiscuously with their (our) government's approval?

Lyla Arvilla

City council does not act on requests for zoning variances; the zoning board of appeals has sole authority in deciding zoning questions. Several members of council are upset about zoning board decisions and have asked the city attorney to research putting a city charter amendment on the ballot. Such an amendment would allow council members to sit on two bodies so they could appoint themselves to the zoning board.

Old house comes to life

Editor,

If you should be coming down State Street, take a good look at the old Nellie Myers' house at the corner of State and Garfield. It sure needs commenting on. First time in 60 or 70 years it really comes to life. The young people worked real hard to make it theirs.

Pischner-Kindt engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Pischner of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter, Lisa Marie, to Steve Kindt. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kindt of Ossineke.

The intended bride graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1982 and from Alpena Community College in 1987. She is presently employed by Alpena General Hospital. Her fiance graduated from Alpena High School in 1982 and is employed by Ossineke Industries.

The wedding will take place June 11.

Tony and Mary Jo Zazueta

Buday-Zazueta wedding

Mary Jo Buday and Tony Zazueta exchanged marriage vows on Saturday morning, October 3, at St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey

The bride, who has been living in Sacramento, Calif., is the daughter of Edward and Joan Buday of Charlevoix. Her bridegroom, also a resident of Sacramento, is the son of Robert and Marilee Zazueta of San Luis Obispo, Calif.

The Rev. Robert Leonhardt, O.F.M. officiated at the double ring ceremony, and the readings were pronounced by the bridegroom's sisters, Robin Zazueta and Joilynn Carlin, both of San Luis Obispo. Approximately 90 guests were in attendance.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding gown as well as her mother's headpiece and veil. The gown featured a stand-up collar, lace bodice with pointed tip lace sleeves, hoop skirt over net with lace inserts, and chapel-length train. The veil was of bridal illusion net attached to a semi-crown of white simulated pearl flowers. The bridal bouquet was made up of an assortment of fresh fall garden flowers.

Ann Buday of Lansing assisted her sister as maid of honor, and Angela Buday of Charlevoix served as junior bridesmaid. The maid of honor wore an ankle-length gown of wine-colored lace over daphne rose satin, fashioned with a close-fitting bodice with stand-up collar, long lace sleeves, and dropped waist with flared skirt. The gown was made by the bride's (and maid of honor's) mother.

The junior bridesmaid wore a dress of daphne rose lustrous lace over satin made with a round neckline with satin piping, dropped waist with satin cummerbund and bow, and full skirt.

Both attendants carried bouquets similar to that of the bride's bouquet.

Jeff Wonsley of San Luis Obispo served as best man. Ed Buday, Jr. of Manville, N. J. and Daniel Buday of Evanston, Ill., brothers of the bride, were ushers.

Organ music for the ceremony was provided by Marilyn Ross.

The bride's parents hosted a reception at St. Mary's Parish Hall in Charlevoix following the wedding ceremony. They were assisted by Kathleen and Maureen Buday and Nancy Rajewski. The latter baked the wedding cake and presented it to the bride and bridegroom as a gift.

The rehearsal dinner, a California barbeque, was held at St. Mary's Parish Hall, hosted by the bridegroom's parents. All out-of-town guests and members of the immediate families were invited.

The new Mrs. Zazueta is a graduate of the University of Detroit and is employed by Coldwell Banker Residential Mortgage Services Inc. in Sacramento. Her husband is a salesman for Test Equipment Corp. in Mountain View, Calif.

Following a wedding trip to Calgary, Alberta, Canada, and the Banff and Lake Louise area, the newlyweds are at home at 6780 Gloria Ave., Sacramento.

Obituaries

Linda J. Adams

Linda J. Adams, 51, of Kalkaska died Tuesday, Dec. 15, at Munson Medical Center in Traverse City.

Memorial services were held Saturday, Dec. 19, at First Congregational Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum officiated.

Miss Adams was born in Charlotte on Aug. 3, 1936, daughter of Milton and Dorothy Jane (Palmer) Adams. In recent years she had lived in Kalkaska.

She is survived by her parents who live in Charlevoix, and two sisters, Jane Hawkins of Traverse City and Martha Jane Adams of Levering.

The family suggests memorials to Bergmann Center.

Harold M. Patterson

Harold M. Patterson, 80, of Ellsworth, died Thursday, Dec. 17, at Meadowbrook Medical Care Facility in Bellaire.

Funeral services were held Sunday, Dec. 20, at Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth. The Rev. William Lyons of Wesleyan Church officiated. Interment was in Ellsworth Cemetery.

Mr. Patterson was born Feb. 14, 1907, in Ionia County where he was raised. On Oct. 19, 1945, he married Mary Kinner in Ann Arbor. They always lived in the Ellsworth-East Jordan area and lived in Ellsworth since 1949. He was employed at various places during his working years.

Surviving are his wife; a brother, Benjamin, also of Ellsworth; a sister, Irene Hartsuff of Cement City, and several nieces and nephews.

Mary Margaret Renkiewicz
Eugene Renkiewicz

Eugene B. Renkiewicz, 36, and his wife, Mary Margaret Renkiewicz, 33, died Tuesday, Dec. 15.

A funeral mass was celebrated at St. Mary's Church on Friday, Dec. 18. The Rev. James K. Gardiner was celebrant. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery. The rosary was recited at Winchester Funeral Home on Thursday, Dec. 17.

They werre married in Petoskey and lived in Horton Bay until 1980 when they moved to a farm in Hayes Township.

Mr. Renkiewicz was born in Boyne City on Oct. 11, 1951, son of Edward X. and Sophia E. (Picarski) Renkiewicz Sr. He grew up in the Horton Bay area and graduated from Boyne City High School in 1969. During the next two years, he served as a paratrooper with the 92nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N.C.

He was employed at Will-Flow Corp. as a grinder for the past 14 years. He was also shop steward. He was a member of St. Mary's Church.

He is survived by two daughters, Heather M. and Laura A., at home; his parents, five brothers, Edward X. Jr. of Horton Bay; Michael of Saline, Richard of Canton, Rudolph C. of Ypsilanti, and Raymond of Ironton; and five sisters, Bernadine McNeely of Brown Deer, Wis., Dolores Renkiewicz of Las Vegas, Nev., Virginia Bryan of Cadillac, Patricia Renkiewicz of Petoskey and Mary Dieffenbach of Tampa, Fla.

The former Mary Margaret Nortley was born at Tecumseh on Oct. 18, 1954, daughter of Joseph and Ethel (Eversol) Nortley Sr. She was raised in Saline and was a 1972 graduate of Saline High School.

She was employed on the custodial staff at Bendix-Courter Operations in Boyne City for the past year.

Surviving are two daughters, her parents, five brothers, Joseph Jr. of Winston-Salem, N.C., Gerald and Thomas of Saline, Gregory of Charlevoix and Michael of Charlotte; and three sisters, Karen Risner of Tecumseh, JoAnn Leutheuser of Ann Arbor and Linda Seyried of Walled Lake.

John R. Wieland

John R. Wieland, 85, of Charlevoix, died Wednesday, Dec. 16, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Funeral services were held at Barnard Methodist Church on Saturday, Dec. 19. The Rev. Robert Bellairs officiated. Interment was in Ellsworth Cemetery.

Mr. Wieland was born in Hudsonville on Dec. 31, 1901, son of Peter and Mary (Speyers) Wieland. He moved to Banks Township with his family in 1907. On April 3, 1926 he married Gerdena Steenhagen in Grand Rapids. They lived on a farm in Ellsworth until 1951 when they moved to a farm in Norwood Township. He retired in 1953.

Mr. Wieland was a member of Barnard United Methodist Church; a director of the Charlevoix County Soil and Water Conservation District for 21 years; a member of the board of directors of the Ellsworth Farmers' Exchange and the Michigan Milk Producers Association; and a member of the former Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors; Antrim County Farm Bureau, Charlevoix County Farm Bureau and Barnard Grange No. 689.

Surviving are his wife; two sons, Richard of Ellsworth and Thomas of Charlevoix; eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to Barnard Methodist Church or an organization of one's choice. Envelopes are available at Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth.

Mirror image

Federal plans for the south pier (left) would make it a mirror-image of the north pier, completed in 1982. The lighthouse would be straightened.

Pier plan includes lighthouse straightening

Plans for renovation of the south pier into Lake Michigan call for moving the structure but leaving the lighthouse section intact.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers intends to begin work on the pier next year. Construction of a walkway from the bridge to the fisheries station was begun this fall.

When the work is completed, the south pier will resemble a mirror-image of the north pier, with rock backfill surrounding it to cut wave action.

The question mark shape of the north pier will be repeated in reverse on the south pier – which will start 65 feet further south than the present pier.

The construction will result in loss of some beach area and could reduce fishing sites.

A 12-foot walkway will be built out to the lighthouse section, which will be repaired but left in its present location.

The Corps plans to remove the lighthouse, then replace and level it. The structure now tilts about seven degrees.

Being removed and replaced is 240 feet of concrete pier. The present pier is narrow, has no side rails and is crumbling.

Work on the revetment along the south shore of Pine River Channel began in the fall. The grassy area was dug out and rocks were used to form a base.

In the spring, a concrete walkway similar to the one of the north side will be constructed.

The city is putting in decorative street lights. The Corps put in the lights on the north side, but no longer includes lighting in its shoreline walkway work.

An under-bridge walkway, similar to the one constructed on the north side of the channel, is in the Downtown Development Authority's future plans.

Arts council gets donation from city coffers

Crooked Tree Arts Council will be receiving $1,000 from the city budget next year to continue activities in Charlevoix.

The two-county arts council also received $1,000 this year.

Crooked Tree plans to increase its offerings in Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan, president Edith Gilbert of Charlevoix says.

This year, art programs for children and adults at the library attracted more than 50 participants and more than 200 students were bused by the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey.

Along with more instructional programs, Gilbert says, the council will sponsor an April 16 concert by the New Reformation Dixieland Band. That performance will be held at First Congregational Church.

Ribbon reminders fight drunk driving

"Let's change the meaning of the expression 'tying one on' " is the request being made by the Charlevoix Chapter of MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Driving).

MADD is asking drivers to tie a red ribbon to the left front door handle, rear view mirror or antenna of their car as a sign they support Mothers Against Drunk Driving in its hope for a less-violent holiday season.

Ribbons are available at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department in Charlevoix and city police offices in Boyne City and East Jordan.

Wrestlers disappointed by showing in tourney

The Rayder wrestling team finished a disappointing fifth in the annual St. Ignace invitational tournament, said coach Greg Bryan.

The Rayders had 74½ points to finish fifth behind the first place Grayling Vikings with 210½ points, Gladstone with 175½, Kalkaska with 116½ and Cheboygan with 82.

The Rayders entered the tournament minus wrestlers in three weight classes. And Jason Whitley (145 pounds) was injured in the semi-finals and defaulted before the final match, settling for second place.

Grayling came on strong with nine finalists, Bryan said adding that Grayling is definitely the team to beat in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference with the strongest squad he has seen in years.

Bryan said Jim Tilton (198) did an excellent job, finishing second after losing in the finals on a pin in 2:30. He won two earlier matches on pins.

Jim Marquardt at heavyweight was a surprise, finishing third after not being seeded in the tournament. He won his first match and then lost to the eventual champion. He then came back with two victories and took the consolation finals with a pin in 1:30.

Scott Novotny (119) also had a good day. Seeded fourth he won the consolation finals to place third. His weight class was stacked with excellent wrestlers Bryan said. Novotny survived one overtime match in the first round and then lost to the eventual champion on a pin in 3:25.

Jamie Montieth (155) also wrestled above his seed, finishing third after losing a tough 8-7 decision in the semi-finals.

Whitley (145) seeded first, wrestled in excellent form, winning his first two rounds easily. However, the injury sustained in the semi-finals kept him off the mat in the finals.

Other wrestlers, their weight classes and results follow: Matt Harbison (112), 6-2; Brian Darrah (126), 0-2; Chad Thorp (132), 1-2; Mike Phenix (138), 0-2; Robin Merwyn (185), 0-2.

Rayders rally, but lose in final minute

The Rayders, after holding a come-from-behind two-point lead with four minutes to go, lost their basketball game to Petoskey 60-56.

The Rayders trailed at the first two intermissions and were down as much as 12 points at one time but came back to knot the score 38-38 at the end of the third quarter.

"With four minutes remaining, we had worked our way to a two-point lead," said coach Jim Kanine. "Things were looking good for us until we had three mental lapses in our zone defense which hurt us dearly."

The Rayders opened the second half with a surge that saw them outscore the Northmen 16-10 to tie the score.

But three quick three-point field goals from Petoskey's Tracy Piehl and two shots from the free throw line in the last minute wiped out the Rayders' last chance.

Petoskey made 16 two-point field goals, six three-point buckets and 10 of 12 free throw attempts. The Rayders scored on 19 two-point field goals, two three-point shots and 12 of 17 from the free throw line. Charlevoix had 10 personal fouls. Petoskey had 14 personal fouls.

Chad DeVries led Charlevoix in rebounds with 19. Scott DeYoung and Roger Smith had nine each. Dan Drury and Owen Phillips each had four assists and Phillips had three steals.

DeVries had 17 points, DeYoung 14 and Phillips 10 for the Rayders.

Big early lead earns win for JVs

The Rayder JVs rolled to a 79-60 win over Petoskey.

Pouring in nine field goals in the first quarter, four of them by Webb Friedly, the young Rayders had an 18-10 lead at the end of the first eight minutes.

Charlevoix outscored Petokey 19-16 in the second quarter for a 39-26 lead as the first half drew to a close.

As the seocnd half got underway, the Rayders scored eight field goals to Petoskey's 10 points that included three three-point field goals.

With four players off the bench seeing action for Charlevoix, Petoskey outscored the visitors 24-22. However, this did little to trim the Rayders' 21-point margin.

The Rayders scored 32 field goals and hit on 15 of 21 free throws while collecting 16 personal fouls. Petoskey had 16 two-point field goals, five three-pointers and 10 of 17 from the line. The team had 18 personal fouls.

Four of the five Rayder starters were in double figures, Friedly, with 17, Jason Parrish and James Corwin 16 each and Chad DeYoung 11.

Grapplers get 2 easy wins before yule break

Charlevoix wrestlers easily defeated Elk Rapids and Mancelona –pinning the Elks 67-16 and Mancy 51-24.

The team's record was 9-2 going into the St. Ignace tournament and the holiday break.

Wrestlers with undefeated seasons before the weekend tourney were Jason Whitley (11-0 record at 155 pounds), Jim Tilton (9-0 at 198 and heavyweight), Derek Dutcher (7-0 at heavyweight), Toby Young (6-0 at 105) and Chad Thorp (4-0 at 138). Jamie Monteith was 10-1 at 167 pounds.

"The team looked good but we lacked several weight classes as some grapplers were unable to attend because of the snow," coach Greg Bryan said of the Elk Rapids meet. "However, it was a chance to prepare for the St. Ignace tourney."

Results were:

112 pounds: Toby Young won on a pin in 1:06.

126: Scott Novotny won by a 4-1 decision.

132: Brian Darrah won on a pin in :43.

138: Chad Thorp won on a pin in 3:12.

145: Steve Hopkins won by a 15-3 decision.

155: Jason Whitley won on a pin in :12.

167: Jamie Monteith won by a 15-6 decision.

185: Robin Mervyn won on a pin in :55.

198: Jim Marquardt won by forfeit.

Heavyweight: Jim Tilton won by a 14-1 decision.

The 98-, 119-, and 195-pound weight classes were double forfeits.

Against Mancelona, Charlevoix won 10 of 13 matches.

"The team looked sharp. Mancelona was out-gunned by our boys but it offered an opportunity for us to try out some moves and prepare for future meets," Bryan said.

Results follow:

98: David Agnew lost by a pin.

105: Mancelona won by forfeit.

112: Toby Young won by a pin in :18.

119: Brian Livingston won by a pin in 1:10.

126: Scott Novotny won by a 17-8 decision.

132: Brian Darrah won by a pin 1:35.

138: Chad Thorp won by a pin in 1:30.

145: Steve Hopkins won by forfeit.

155: Jason Whitley won by a pin in 1:20.

167: Jamie Monteith won by a pin in 2:10.

185: Robin Mervyn lost by a pin.

198: Jim Tilton won by a pin in 3:50.

Heavyweight: Mancelona won by forfeit.

Freshmen lose close contest

The Charlevoix freshman basketball team dropped a close game to Petoskey 51-46.

After holding 36-34 lead after the third period, the Rayders were outscored 17-10.

The teams played to a 12-12 tie at the quarter with Petoskey up 26-23 at the half.

Ryan Smith paced the scoring for the Rayders with 12 points with Paul Wakulat adding 11 and Eric McElroy 10.

McKeown leads A League at break

Pat McKeown Ford continues to lead the A League of Charlevoix Independent Basketball as the teams take a break for the holidays.

McKeown defeated Dyco Tool 84-72, Nanny's beat Kit Carson Lumber 95-72 and the Depot Restaurant defeated Medusa Cement 107-86.

A good third period during which they outscored Dyco 23-12, gave McKeown the victory. Dyco Tool took a 25-17 first period lead and held a 53-46 advantage at halftime.

Cliff Hass with 37 points, Mark Long with 21 and Brian Shorter with 12 paced the McKeown win. Randy Holecheck had 28, Tex Drenth 21 and Kevin Swanson 10 for Dyco.

Tom Burley with 27 points, Glen Morse with 20, Mike Bodzick with 19 and Mike Spence with 10 joined forces to give Nanny's a win over Carson. Nanny's had to overcome a 26-24 first period deficit, outscoring Carson 33-21 in the second period to go ahead 57-47 at halftime and 75-58 going into the final period.

Bo Boss had 9 points, Mitch Westoff 15 and Tim Carey 11 for Carson.

Everyone got into the act as Depot Restaurant led Medusa 31-19, 54-41 and 77-64 by quarters.

Dean Hicks canned 38, Burt Moeke 16, Tim Hartwick 15, Rob Spencer 12 and Mark Guitar 10 for Depot. Dave Storm had 28 points, Dick Swenor 18, Dan McKenzie 15 and Bernie Ward 10 for Medusa.

The teams will return to action Jan. 7.

Standings as of Dec. 17 show McKeown Ford at 5-1, Depot Restaurant 4-1, Nanny's 3-3 and Dyco Tool, Kit Carson and Medusa at 2-4.

Bank unbeaten in B League

First State Bank, with a 5-0 record, lead the B League of Charlevoix Independent Basketball as the teams take a holiday break. Action will resume Jan. 6.

First State defeated Flight Deck 57-50, Villager Pub beat Wojan Aluminum 71-53 and Penney Logging defeated Weathervane 71-53.

Jeff Leahman with 20 points led First State, which held 16-14, 32-23 and 46-31 leads at the quarters. Rich Bartz had 17 points and Scott Blanchard 14 for Flight Deck.

Villager Pub held an 18-16 first quarter lead, a 35-31 halftime advantage and 51-41 lead at the three-quarter mark.

Dave Cole poured in 26 points and Jeff Green added 12 to the winning cause for Villager. Jeff Brodine, Bob LaPeer and Tom Morrison had 10 points each for Wojans.

Penney Logging jumped to a 24-8 first period lead and, seeing an opportunity for an upset, battled to a 44-29 halftime advantage before being outscored 22-13 in the second half.

Brad VanderArk had 19 points, Scott Swanson 14, Scott Gibbs 13 and Dan Allore 10 for Penney. Tom Lalley had 15 and Steve Leazier 14 for Weathervane.

Standings through Dec. 16 show First State Bank at 5-0, Marsh Construction 4-1, Weathervane and Villager Pub 3-2, Penney Logging 2-3, Wojan Aluminum 1-5 and Flight Deck 0-5.

Holiday spirit benefits North Point

The holiday spirit of giving is aiding the effort to keep the North Point dunes area in its natural state.

Preserve North Point, the Little Traverse Conservancy-backed attempt to raise $700,000 in two years, received $7,675 in pledges and donations in the past week, bringing the total to date to $87,275.

This week members of the finance committee are delivering 180 letters to area businesses, asking for donations. A letter to professional people will be distributed later.

The finance committee is made up of area people and organizations volunteering to help raise funds.

Early in January, the conservancy and other organizations spearheading the fund drive will know whether the state Department of Natural Resources will chip in with a $400,000 grant.

of the improved sales are coming through telephone orders from established downstate clients.

"We knew ahead of time that Charlevoix has never done a big Christmas business, so we didn't expect a whole lot for Christmas," Koucky says. "Most of our major sales are out-of-town, but locally our Christmas ornaments are doing very well."

Koucky says he has asked some of his clients about the stock market "crash." What he learned was that most had spread their investments and did not seem particularly concerned. Koucky had just finished selling a $2,500 sculpture by telephone.

A new factory outlet shop at Bullfrog Candles is doing a surprising business, according to owner Bill Stewart, even though "it was very noticeable our retail store customers ordered later than normal and in smaller amounts.

"Also, they have reordered candles more frequently. They did not say why, but the conclusion I've come to with my sales reps is gifts shops are far more cautious than a year ago. They are scared to death of getting stuck with inventory at the end of the Christmas season."

Automobile sales reports are mixed. McKeown Ford experienced increase business in used car sales and in its service department, while luxury car sales have declined and four-wheel-drive sales have held steady. Davis Chevrolet reports no decline in new car sales, a significant interest in trucks and four-wheel-drive vehicles and no noticeable rise in used car sales.

Charlevoix's resort economy has not reflected the national economy's downturn. Hotel and motel reservations are about even, although Jack Uhrick of the Lodge says advance reservations may be slightly off. Sales of hotel-condominium units appear to be untouched.

"I think real estate might be the thing to invest in," says Jon Hisey, developer of the Edgewater Inn.

Real estate salesmen say November is always a slow month, following the surge end of summer sales. Suzi Reis of Vacation Properties Network says she has heard of no sales falling through because of the stock market.

"I don't think we are going to see an impact until next year, if at all," Reis says. "I've had clients who sold stocks before Oct. 19 in order to close a deal. They were thrilled. Instead of losing money, they have a second home."

Real estate is one of the investments financial consultant Tom Bickersteth recommends his clients use to balance their portfolios, but Bickersteth wonders about the future market for such investments in Charlevoix.

"Next year may be a tough year to market condominium-hotels, if people don't have disposable income," Bickersteth predicts.

Banker Hollow says the economic future depends on the government "getting the house in order," adding that "with an election year, they will delay dealing with the problem.

"But we can't keep postponing. It may be easy to say, but we have to look at the entitlement programs and defense. How much defense do we really need? How many missiles, how many hydrogen bombs?

"And maybe some of the things we deal with under Social Security should be part of the general budget," he continued.

Island boat halting for winter

The motorship Beaver Islander will close out its 1987 season Thursday December 24, when it makes its final trip between Charlevoix and the island.

"This will bring to a close one of most successful seasons," said business manager Mike Green. "You will remember we got an early start, about the first of April, because of the mild winter, and we will have made 305 round trips when the season ends." Green said passenger traffic was up, construction has kept freight loads up and a mill on the island has cut a lot of lumber which has been shipped off.

"Everything combined we've had an excellent season," Green said.

Of the 305 trips, 110 were made by the smaller South Shore which operated on the run during May and two weeks of June while the Beaver Islander was in drydock having new engines installed. That boat also operated some during the summer.

Island Airways will continue to serve the island during the winter.

Readers agree on traffic change -- but not how visitors."

From those voting No came these comments:

"Changing the flow would not improve traffic conditions. The problem is the bridge going up too often."

"Route U.S. 31 traffic via old P.M. Railway bridge."

"The travelling public expects it. They have other routes to avoid Charlevoix. Local traffic is bothered only two months of the year."

Comments on each of the nine listed alternatives follow.

1. Three lanes with no parking on either side. Center lane for turns only.

"Seems to be the safest and least complicated. Provide clear directions and easy access to public parking areas. Perhaps could be limited to the summer months."

"Bridge is too narrow."

"I agree with the many advantages listed by the state highway department and feel the disadvantages are minor. This plan should be given a two-year trial, at least. Merchants objections are not realistic."

(Voted for 1 or 2) "Downtown merchants should be reminded they are not the only business functions in this area. There are others, including service companies such as our employer's, that must use Bridge Street at a major transportation route. The current situation causes untimely crosstown service to our customers and hazardous pedestrian and vehicular traffic flow. Adding forecasted area growth to this already deplorable situation, without major traffic flow revisions, is unquestionably a very poor choice."

2. Three lanes with no parking on east side. Center lane for turns only.

No votes so far.

3. Four lanes. No parking on either side.

"Three will move the traffic best. The city should also think of the fact that over 3,000 county residents outside the city are affected by the present problem."

4. Three lanes, two northbound and one southbound. No parking either side.

No votes so far.

5. Three lanes, two northbound and one southbound. No parking on east side.

"This should ease flow but still allow for some parking. It is very important to have large, highly visible signs instructing cars to the large parking lots we have. Also it is very important to have safe pedestrian crossing areas. This should be No. 1 consideration."

6. One way northbound. All southbound traffic takes Park to State.

(Voted for 6&7) "One (minor) reason is that if a van is parked at end of area by bridge, one cannot see oncoming traffic from the north while trying to make a left turn. One has to pull way out in order to be able to see. Also, consider having a policeman to direct traffic at peak time."

7. Traffic lanes remain as is. Right southbound lane turns right at Park.

"If all cars in right hand lane going south turned right a lot of congestion would be eliminated. The only tieups we have are with Bridge and we can't change that."

8. Other suggestions.

"I think Bob Miles' idea of a Zilwaukee Bridge or my idea of a tunnel would suffice. During World War II, a plan was suggested by the State Highway of the joint purchase of an added lane on the east side of Bridge Street when the Palace Theater burned down. The rebuilding of the theater made the cost too excessive as the state required lobby space and the seating capacity would be minimized and would put them out of business. The other buildings had room enough to set back."

"Out of every hour, traffic has only one-half hour or less to cross bridge. Change the bridge raising to once an hour, if this would not break any state laws, except for emergencies."

"I would like to see a hold on the bridge maybe from 4 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. (five days a week) so people having to get home from work can without being held up by bridge two or three times."

"Interns from state universities as traffic controllers at key intersections during peak traffic periods. Bridge operator should have control of traffic light."

"Should build walkway arcade on both sides of street from Park to Antrim and take about 10 feet from each store. Leave second floors for roof – rest would be covered. Sidewalk would be parking area and streets for traffic. Good for rain and snow."

9. Leave everything alone.

"Leave Charlevoix as Charlevoix has always been. That's why."

Star in water; investors sought

Six months after it was due to arrive in Round Lake, the new Star of Charlevoix is finally in the water.

Work on the ship isn't completed yet, though, and neither is work of a local group working to bring the paddlewheeler to town.

Work is continuing on a number of fronts to ensure the return of the boat this summer. The absence of the Star from Lake Charlevoix this year may have cost the city 20,000 visitors, backers figure.

The Star did not operate in Charlevoix this year because the boat was not completed in time. In 1986 about 35,000 people rode the vessel, with more than half apparently coming to town primarily for the cruise.

A local group has been working since September to bring the ship back.

Their immediate task is to round up 20 investors of $7,500 each for the $150,000 local share. A bank loan and an equal share from a group of Star Line investors make up the rest of the $700,000 needed for the endeavor.

So far, there are six committed investors.

Jon Hisey, Harold Krutsch and Doug Shaw are seeking investors from a list of potential participants and from other interested persons.

Anyone with questions about investing may contact Hisey at Edgewater Inn, Krutsch at Weathervane Terrace or Shaw at Bridge Street Inn.

Work on a redesign of city dock space is being handled by Star Line, with the city of Charlevoix working on applications for permits from the state Department of Natural Resources and National Army Corps of Engineers.

City Manager Mike Wiesner and Phil Lutzi, former area Star manager who will be returning this year, inspected the docking site after the state Waterways Commission gave its OK for marina changes.

Star Line will be removing some docks near the end of Clinton Street and replacing them with extensions on other docks. At the same time, the city hopes of extend other docks between Antrim and Clinton.

Wiesner says the cruise ship firm may have to construct a loading platform over the water or come up with some other way of handling passengers.

Lutzi, Hisey and Jacquie Merta, executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, have checked out possible office and food preparation facilities. The sternwheel paddleboat does not have a kitchen aboard.

Construction of the boat at a shipworks in Myrtle Beach, S.C., is half-a-year behind schedule. Star Lines employees have taken over the work.

The Star group has a five-year contract with the city which calls for free rental of dock space in exchange for marina renovation, which could cost $90,000 or more.

County budget going up 5 percent

by PEG OHLE

It will cost just under $4 million – $3,925,003 to be exact – to operate Charlevoix County in 1988.

This is the amount the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners was to present at a public budget hearing today.

It is an increase of $219,923, or 5.86 percent, over the 1987 budget of $3,705,080.

It will cost $610,417 to operate the judicial arm of government in 1988. Last year, it cost $476,062.

Circuit court's budget is down $4,230, but district court is up $6,872, probate court is up $16,127, and Friend of the Court is up $5,936.

This year's public safety budget is $814,955, down a bit from last year's $816,421. The sheriff's department shows a decrease of $14,716, but jail operations will cost $10,122 more than in 1987.

Human Services, which includes placements in state institutions, Services to the Aging, and veterans affairs is budgeted at $120,811, up $2,127 from last year.

General county government will cost $908,402 in 1988, compared with $820,362 last year. Major increases in this department are $20,450 for elections (1988 is a general election year) and $21,842 for building and grounds.

Capital outlay for 1988 is listed as $58,060, compared with $51,874 last year.

Operation transfers show a greater increase, from $631,271 to $729,597. These are monies that are received by the county, held, then paid out – such funds as those for district health, mental health, child care, social services and the transportation authority.

The county's six commissioners will have $92,600 at their disposal to cover salaries and expenses. Last year, their budget was $91,100.

In the "other" department, a substantial drop in allowances for contingencies (from $167,627 to $25,000) largely accounts for a department decrease from $699,307 to $589,161.

As in past years, property taxes will provide most of the county's operating funds. Other monies will come from charges for services, state grants, licenses and permits, fines and forfeits, and interest and rentals.

Grand jury set to begin drug probe

by PEG OHLE

Seventeen Charlevoix County men and women have been impaneled to serve on a grand jury to investigate criminal activity involving alleged violations of the Controlled Substance Act and the Income Tax Act.

They will begin their work Jan. 1, according to Sheriff George T. Lasater.

The 17 persons, whose names will not be revealed, were selected last week from among a large group of prospective jurors in the courtroom of Circuit Judge Richard M. Pajtas.

They will serve for a period of up to six months, looking into allegations, hearing the prosecutor's evidence and issuing indictments in those cases they believe show evidence of crime.

The grand jury, the first ever impaneled in Charlevoix County, was created at the request of Prosecutor Kraag Lieberman and Lasater.

In their petition asking for the grand jury, they noted that during the past year, local police agencies and the Straits Area Narcotics Enforcement Agency (SAFE) have conducted intensive investigations into drug trafficking activities in the area.

"As a result of these investigations," the petition continues, "vast amounts of information on drug trafficking activity have been obtained in the form of documentary evidence, eyewitness accounts, controlled buys by police agents, surveillance accounts, and disclosures made by informants, cooperating witnesses, and by persons actually under charge for drug offenses."

Holiday matinee

Christmas in Northland: A century ago

"Many children have heard and read of the great Ferris Wheel of Chicago (World's Fair), but the children and parents of Horton Bay and vicinity had their attention called more closely to it last Saturday night, when at 7:30 o'clock the doors of the schoolhouse were unlocked and about 200 people passed in to view the imitated Ferris Wheel.

"It was built under the supervision of Messrs. Stroud and Dilworth and was about 12 feet high, with two fans about two feet apart with 16 boxes swinging in between representing the seats.

"It was turned by a crank and lighted by candles. Everything was so exact that the wheel would balance and stand still whenever it was stopped. While these gentlemen were spending time and money in erecting the wheel, many other hands were busily engaged in making and buying presents. Horton Bay has a Sunday School of 75 members. The exercises of the evening were well rendered, as the children were carefully instructed by their school teacher, Miss Goaller.

"The wheel did not cease turning during the whole exercise. As the distribution of presents began, Messrs. Stroud and Dilworth called the names, one standing on each side of the wheel, taking the prizes as the wheel revolved. I have seen many wheels turn round and round, but never before have I seen a wheel turn out more joy than this one did in so short a time.

"There was not a sad face to be seen, nor a single one forgotten; 369 presents were given out. Of all the Christmas entertainments I have ever attended, the Ferris Wheel of Horton Bay excelled all. Horton Bay is a small village, but not dead by any means."

(It is not known whether this Ferris Wheel appeared in other Christmas celebrations, or whether it had only a one-night stand.)

Bernice M. Chappel, author of "In the Palm of the Mitten, a Memory Book of the Early 1900's," recalls a Michigan Christmas of that era:

"The custom in our German-American family was to spend a large part of Christmas Day with uncles, aunts, and cousins in Grandma and Grandpa Klein's home. With husbands, wives, children, and my grandparents, about 30 of us gathered each Christmas in the big farmhouse on the hill across from our home.

"Grandma refused to allow anyone to bring food, so for days before the celebration, she prepared for the dinner. Huge batches of cookies, fruitcakes, and mincemeat pie were baked and stored in the cool basement in the cupboard-like safe. Squash was cooked. Several loaves of homemade bread were broken into small pieces and placed in paper sacks to later be mixed with onions, sage, milk, and other seasonings, resulting in a spicy stuffing for the half dozen large Plymouth Rock hens which Grandma dressed and hung up on the enclosed back porch. Because her oven was too small to hold six roasting hens, we baked half of them at our place.

"Preparations for the yearly celebration must have been a Herculean task for Grandma. Besides responsbility for the food, she cleaned the house and polished windows and furniture until everything was immaculate. However, her house, like most others, were bare of holiday decorations and there was no Christmas tree. The few gifts were handmade. Grandma started sewing and knitting soon after Christmas in preparation for the following season's celebration. Mittens, socks, mufflers, pot holders, and aprons – more than 30 handmade items consumed an enormous amount of time. Each family also received a crock of homemade apple butter.

"We children restrained ourselves until Grandma had said the blessing in German, after which the family did justice to the bounteous Christmas feast. When noise from the children's table became annoying to the adults, the door between the two rooms was closed. When we had eaten ourselves into a state of discomfort and no one could swallow another mouthful, the children went to the parlor, where the men relaxed while the women cleared the table and washed the dishes."

At about the same time, in Emmet County, Beatrice Schmitt (Henshaw) and her family celebrated Christmas on Christmas Eve. She writes about these times in her book, "Backward, Turn Backward, Recollections of a Childhood in Northern Michigan:"

"At our house, Santa never came down the single-flu chimney in the dead of night; he was a common sense sort of fellow who brought our presents in grain sacks which he dropped off in a snow bank, usually near the barn, and then hurried off to make his other deliveries.

"It was (brother) Carl's job to make the rounds and sound the alert. 'He's come, he's come' were the magic words and we would dash to meet him at the door, dragging the well-filled sacks through the snow. With squeals of delight and no concern for the snow trail which we were leaving on the floor, we would dump the presents into a beautiful pile in the middle of the living room. Mamma would be standing by, beaming with pleasure over the happiness she had wrought, and Papa would be smiling too, now that Advent was over and the joyous season begun.

"Before the opening of our gifts, the candles on the tree would be lighted briefly and the kerosene lamp turned down while we sat there in what Papa said was to be a few moments of silent prayer.

"I don't know about the others, but I had done enough praying that afternoon (at confession) and I was mesmerized by the scent of new-cut spruce, entranced by the majesty of our tree, strong-limbed and tall, bedazzled by the ornaments shimmering in the flickering light of the candles, and enraptured by the pile of presents so mysteriously magnificent in the dimly-lit room.

"Interspersed with our gifts were boxes and bags of all manner of sweets – home-made fudge and peanut brittle, molasses taffy and caramel popcorn, also something which Mamma considered essential for hanging on the tree – store-bought ribbon candy and peppermint sticks. For these and the makings for our Christmas goodies, she had bartered black walnuts at Fochtman's Department Store.

"Presents opened, admired and tried on for size, it was time to get ready for church again. Mamma would have some bricks heated and these she would slip into old woolen socks and put them at our feet when we were tucked in under the buffalo robe on the floor of the cutter.

"Mostly we dozed and the hour that it took us to get to Petoskey seemed only a matter of minutes. The church bells would be ringing out through the frosty air as we drove through town and we could sometimes catch a glimpse of the glistening steeple, rising heavenward above the lighted stained glass windows.

"As Papa opened the massive oak doors of the church for us, the words of the choir singing, 'Oh, Come All Ye Faithful' came floating out as if it were meant especially for us... Before taking us to the family pew, as the service had not yet started, Papa would guide us to the area which had been magically transformed into an almost life-like nativity scene flanked by spruce and pine trees."

That's the way our forebearers who grew up in northern Michigan celebrated Christmas. No television Christmas specials, no long-distance phone calls from family and friends around the world, no holiday ski trips, and no prepared foods to pop in and out of a microwave oven.

But they, like most of us today, acknowledged the religious significance of the day, gathered together as families, ate too much, and gave to the limit of their resources.

Long-time members of zoning panel removed by council

Two charter members of the city zoning board of appeals have not been re-appointed to the controversial panel.

Ted Felter, chairman of the five-member board, and Charles Scherping have served on the commission since it was reconstituted following a 1982 court case.

The zoning board has been the subject of charges by Mayor Ralph McRae, council members Shirley Roloff, Earl Muma and Norm Probert and a group of residents who say the panel is too lenient in granting variances to the zoning ordinance.

Led by McRae, they have been looking for ways to influence the decisions of the zoning board.

Rebuffed as illegal by the city attorney have been efforts to make written recommendations to the zoning board and to appear before the board.

They have also talked about launching a city charter amendment drive to reinstall the council as the zoning board.

The charter forbids any member of council from serving on another board, a prohibition that was upheld in the 1982 court case.

Now they may have found a way to have people more in keeping with their position voting on zoning matters. Scherping and Felter's second terms expire Dec. 31 and council has voted not to reappoint them.

Instead, alternates Larry Sullivan and Kevin Whitley have been appointed as permanent members. Two new alternates will be named later.

The two newest members have demonstrated a greater reluctance to grant variances than their predecessors. They have both been alternates since summertime.

"We've been told a dozen times if you want to control the ZBA, you have to control the appointments," McRae told council before it voted.

Council member Bill Haggard supported the current members, saying, "Why change? It's working." He said the board is following the law, whether individuals like their decisions or not.

Bill Bellows' attempt to reappoint the incumbents was seconded by Bob Timms. They were joined by Haggard in voting for the pair, while Roloff, Probert and Muma voted against the motion. McRae broke the tie with his negative vote.

Timms then voted with Roloff, Probert and Muma for installing the alternates as panel members.

Several names for new alternates were brought up, but council decided to interview candidates before making a decision.

Council also expects at its Monday, Dec. 28, meeting to interview candidates for a vacancy on the recreation commission. Toni Felter is resigning because of a time-consuming commitment she has made to a work-related organization.

Appointments to the tax assessment board of review were put off until January because of a charter stipulation that council members on the board be appointed in that month.

The third member, a resident at large, will also be appointed then, as Lynette Webb's three-year term is expiring. Council members are appointed for one year.

Appointed by the mayor to the compensation commission, which sets wages for elected officials, was Timms. The council member, who was defeated in the November election and leaves office at the end of the month, will replace Jeannine Wallace, whose five-year term is expiring.

Barbara MacArthur was reappointed by the mayor to a three-year term on the shade tree commission.

Student expelled for school break-in

A Charlevoix High School student has been expelled for the remainder of the semester after being charged with breaking into the school and doing some damage.

He was also ordered to make restitution for the damage. The expulsion ends January 22.

In other action the school board approved payment of $2,649 in interest on the remainder of bond debt owed on a 1968 bond issue for the elementary school. In July the school district will make final payment of $105,250.

The district's only outstanding bond issue at that time will bond debt on a 1978 addition to the high school that enclosed a breezeway.

Vets aide gives up second post

Ron Geer, who has been working for Charlevoix County in two capacities, that of Veterans Affairs Counselor and Soil Erosion and Sedimentation (Act 347) Officer, will devote full time to his Veterans job beginning January 1.

"The average veteran of World War II is now over 67 years old," Geer explained, "and they need more help than I can provide in just three days a week."

Geer began serving in the dual capacity in 1975, when Act 347 became law. Before that, he served as Deputy Drain Commissioner and Drain Commissioner, bringing his years of service to the county up to 18.

Before joining the county's work force, Geer worked for the U. S. Department of Interior's Bureau of Fisheries and Wildlife, a job which he says trained him well for his environmental work with the county.

County officials have not yet decided about the future of the Soil Erosion department. It has been operating within the Building Code department because it is closely allied with many building projects for which Soil Erosion permits are required.

However, there is now some thought that Soil Erosion might more logically be attached to the Charlevoix County Soil and Water Conservation District, a federal agency headquartered in Boyne City.

Last week, Al Herceg of the Soil Conservation District told the County Board of the success the St. Joseph County Soil Conservation District had had in administering Act 347 in that county.

He said that when the County Engineer retired, there was no other county employee on the payroll qualified to administer the Soil Erosion Act, so the county went to the Soil Conservation District for help. The district had a certified employee who could administer the act, and the county entered into a contract with the district to do the work.

Storm mishap kills couple from Hayes

A tractor accident during the area's first winter storm Tuesday, Dec. 15, claimed the lives of a Hayes Township couple, Eugene B. Renkiewicz, 36, and his wife, Mary Margaret, 33.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, the couple's pick-up truck was stuck in a snowbank on Quarterline Road and they went to their farm home on Burgess Road for a tractor.

The tractor, on which both were riding, left the road and went over an embankment, rolling over and pinning them under it.

The Charlevoix Fire Department's "jaws of life" machine was required to remove the couple from the overturned tractor.

They were transported by Charlevoix ambulance to Charlevoix Area Hospital where they were pronounced dead.

The accident was reported by a nearby resident, Sheriff George Lasater said.

A trust fund has been established for the couple's two children.

Checks may be mailed to First State Bank of Charlevoix, 111 State St., Charlevoix 49720.

CONFRONTATION CELEBRATION

It was a year when city residents banded together. And it was a year when they chose up sides.

Perhaps 1987 was just another typical year in Charlevoix – a year of celebration and a year of confrontation.

Adults drew a battle line at the channel, with skirmishes fought in City Hall. Teenagers competed in out-of-town arenas, returning often with medals of victory.

Here's a look back at the major happenings in Charlevoix during 1987 – starting with some accomplishments of the younger generation.

AND THE WINNERS ARE...

With brains and bodies, Charlevoix High students brought home considerable honors, including two team state championships.

– The performing arts team captured its fourth straight Class C-D state title with its presentation of "Oklahoma" at state competition. The drama students were judged third best in Michigan among all schools, regardless of size. This was the fifth time in the state finals for the troupe.

– The boys cross country team ran away with the state Class C trophy for the third time this decade. Pat Rajewski was the second fastest individual runner and Scott Miller was fifth. Charlevoix's girls were 13th best in the state.

– Lauren Pace brought home a state skiing championship medal with her first place finish in the slalom event. She also finished fifth in the giant slalom.

– Edward McLenon received the best of show award in the junior division of the Michigan Industrial Education Society state contest with his Queen Anne table. Returning with first place awards were Denis Mailloux for a wall clock, Matt Starguart for a floor clock and Joe Prevo for a machine-crafted hammer.

– Jason Whitley was the top runner in the 300 meter low hurdles at the state track meet and the 800-meter relay team placed fifth.

– Charlevoix's tennis team placed third in state competition, three wrestlers qualified for the state meet and five teams from O-M (Odyssey of the Mind) regionals qualified for state competition.

– Sean Henne placed third in a statewide essay contest saluting the bicentennial of the American Constitution. Two of this essays received regional awards and were entered in the state finals.

BEEFING UP THE SHOULDERS

Anybody who has ever been to Charlevoix in the summer knows the place gets a little crowded. And anybody who is around in the other three seasons knows those crowds melt faster than August snow.

Efforts to extend the tourist season into what people in the hospitality industry call the "shoulder seasons" of spring and fall are starting to show some results.

The opening of conference rooms at the Edgewater Inn has greatly enlarged the available space for groups wanting to hold their business and social meetings in Charlevoix. And plans for Pointes North Inn (that's the new name for Rysberg Inn) include space for conference rooms.

Talk of even further expanding convention-type space led to discussion by a group of community and government leaders with a national expert.

And Charlevoix will be host to at

Charlevoix High produced three state champions in 1987. Lauren Pace captured the state slalom title as a junior, but is out of action now following knee surgery. The dramatic arts team came home with its fourth straight Class C-D crown when it presented "Oklahoma" at state competition. And the boys cross country running team earned its third state Class C championship in six years.

Traffic talk: Lots of ideas, no accord

"We could be here for two days and not get a good conclusion." – Mayor Ralph McRae.

"Set your sights a little wider. You're working in a bushel basket." – Dale Boss.

"Do something. At least try." – township Supervisor Oscar Stroud.

"Is parking a bigger problem than traffic flow?" – Jim Mabee.

"I really don't see that big a problem." – council member Shirley Roloff.

"Try one plan for two months of the year and see if it helps." – council member Bill Bellows.

If a discussion of Bridge Street traffic produced any agreement, it was only that there should be further discussion.

City council's work session Monday was devoted to the state highway department's study of Bridge Street traffic and recommendations to increase vehicle flow.

The meeting drew supervisors from two nearby townships, business people and several other residents. But they were unable to draw any conclusions.

A public hearing will be scheduled, probably in the third week of January.

The state studied, at the city's request, six alternatives – from doing nothing to eliminating parking on one or both sides of the street, from making two lanes of traffic with a middle turn lane to making four lanes with unlimited turning.

One alternative the city told the state not to study was turning Bridge into a one-way street with southbound traffic one-way on State. That possibility now is receiving attention.

Dale Boss delivered an impassioned talk on how a one-way scheme could work, with southbound traffic diverted down State to Garfield. His plan includes removal of a house to allow smooth traffic flow as the highway merges near St. Mary Church.

"Let's make a two-street town out of this," Boss said.

Planning commission chairman Walt Hufford said the city's master plan includes a proposal similar to Boss's.

Out-of-towners have their say on Bridge Street
PAGE 7

But several people said the city is faced with a two-month problem and tinkering with traffic flow could lead to long-term headaches.

John Haggard said in the 1950s "you could shoot a cannon through downtown" without hitting anything. Removing Bridge Street parking would again make the city look "like a dead town," he said.

Jim Mabee, former head of the Downtown Development Authority, said that board asked for the study to aid in placing curbs, gutters and walks in an upcoming sidewalk project.

Gene Steele, current chairman of the DDA, said that board would prefer changes in turn lanes, signs and lights over the major revisions proposed in the state study.

But City Manager Mike Wiesner said he thinks those kinds of changes will not bring significant improvement to the traffic problem.

Some at the meeting were not even sure there is a problem.

"It's not a big problem – just two months," said council member Bill Haggard. "I'd rather see this (heavy traffic) four or five months of the year."

Council member Norm Probert promoted the idea of putting a police officer on an elevated stand to direct traffic and to add to the attractiveness of the city.

Former mayor Ken Staley said serious consideration should be given to constructing a highway tunnel, while McRae suggested a local traffic-only bridge where the rail bridge used to be.

Jacquie Merta, executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, said shortening the hours the bridge can be opened by boat command would help. Wiesner said the city is asking, through the highway department, that the Coast Guard make such a change.

Whether to make changes on the U.S. highway is council's decision.

AROUND THE TOWN

Those appraisers the city hired last summer to check out all the residences in town have issued a preliminary report.... Property assessments will rise an average of about six percent....

That just about how much the county equalization department said the city was under-assessed, says City Manager Mike Wiesner.... The equalization department was proposing to attach a "factor" to property tax notices to bring the assessments in line....

A hearing will be scheduled so owners can get problems with such things as measurements and descriptions ironed out with the appraisers.... The annual board of review is the time to question the assessed values assigned to individual properties.

The Kiwanis Club is the first of the area's traditionally all-male service organizations to include a woman in its membership.... Jacquie Merta, executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, was asked to join and accepted....

The Lions and Rotary have discussed the move, but have not taken any action.... A federal court ruled Rotary could not discriminate against women, which prompted the others nationally to reconsider their long-standing policies.

SOME HEADLINES AHEAD.... Those recommendations for shoreline zoning restrictions will be discussed by the city planning commission in January.... The proposals were written by a seven-person committee appointed after the summer-long battle over efforts to halt waterfront multiple-unit buildings....

Word will be coming from Lansing next week on whether Little Traverse Conservancy will get $400,000 to go toward the purchase of North Point.... Even though more than $100,000 has been raised through donations already, the state Land Trust Fund grant money is vital to the two-year effort to collect $700,000 to complete the purchase of the 28-acre Lake Michigan site.

Hudson woman saluted by county

Marlene Guerin of Hudson Township has been honored with a plaque containing a resolution by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners recognizing her selection as a "Michigan 150 First Lady."

Guerin was nominated by her neighbors based on many "significant and unrecognized services to her community," many of which have to do with her services as a volunteer firewoman.

Guerin was one of 150 women in the state named a "Michigan 150 First Lady" as part of the state's sesquicentennial celebration.

Christmas display damaged

Santa came on Thursday night. The Grinch showed up Saturday.

About one-third of the 10,000 Christmas lights on the huge display at Ivan and Lucy Witthoeft's house were damaged or taken.

"It would take my crew of electricians from 10 to 12 hours to repair or replace the display," Ivan Witthoeft said. Witthoeft owns Charlevoix Electrical Service.

The display is an annual highlight of the holiday season and has been expanded each year.

On Sunday busloads of senior citizens were disappointed when they visited the Old Orchard Road residence on their annual tour.

In addition to the damage to lights, several evergreens were torn out by their roots.

Financial aid workshop set at high school

The counseling staff at Charlevoix High School will host its annual financial aid workshop for junior and senior students and parents in the study hall at 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 7.

Charles Bentley, who heads the staff, said, "It is obivous, with the increasing cost of a college education, most families are in need of some kind of planning and assistance."

Clifford Denay, director of financial aid at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey will be present to explain some of the avenues open to parents and students. Bentley and Toni Felter of the counseling staff will join with him in discussing federal, state and local programs for aid.

Topics such as Pell Grant, Michigan Comprehensive Scholarship, Parent Loan Program, Direct Student Loan Program and College Work Study Program will be discussed.

The process for applying for financial aid will be covered as well as the various forms that can be used to enter the program.

A computer program will assist families in gaining an estimate of their expected contribution. The base for financial aid is the year previous to college application. Therefore, parents are asked to take an estimate of 1987 tax information or a copy of 1986's.

The following information is needed to provide an expected family contribution: adjusted gross income, taxes paid, mother's wages, father's wages; IRA-KEOGH payments, married couple deduction, untaxed income, medical expenses, student income, student untaxed income, estimated student income for 1987, student assets and savings, parents cash and savings, market value of home and mortgage balance, other investments and debts.

Need a Doctor?

For most of us, the answer is yes.

We need a doctor who can help us stay well, one who can guide our care when we're ill. We need someone who is there for us and our family in an emergency.

Finding a doctor who meets your individual needs is not always easy. That's why it's important to find a doctor before you need one when you have the time and energy to make a careful choice. Now, there is a new, free service that can help you with this important decision — HealthSource Physician Referral.™

At HealthSource Physician Referral, trained staff will personally answer your call and give you the names of physicians whose location and hours are most convenient for you. Computerized files help the staff supply other information you may want about a physician's background, education and special interests.

Your call will be answered 24 hours a day.

Summer in Charlevoix means an almost endless stream of major events. The annual petunia planting (upper left) brought out 800 pairs of helpful hands, and the Waterfront Art Fair (upper right) brought out thousands of bodies. Pete Welz (above right) shows the effects of a rough day in the finals of the Michigan Amateur. least two major shoulder-season conventions in 1988 as the state Grange and Keep Michigan Beautiful come to town in October.

The absence of the Star of Charlevoix this year was felt heavily by the business community after the summer rush was over. A group of business people – working with the Chamber of Commerce, the Convention and Visitors Bureau and city officials – has persuaded Star Line to bring the ship back in the spring.

Construction delays forced cancellation of the season (the boat still isn't ready but it's finally in the water). Then Star Line decided to take the new paddlewheeler somewhere else – before the local group started negotiations to become part owners.

If the local group can put together 20 investors with a total of $150,000 in the next few weeks, their four-month dream to bring the Star back should come true.

In the Star's absence, a Petoskey man began an effort to secure another ship for Lake Charlevoix cruises, hoping to be ready by Color Tour time. After obtaining contract approval from the city, though, a time problem in getting dock alteration approval from the state grounded that attempt.

WATER, WATER...

The city's two problems with water dried up about the same time as a new water treatment plant began pumping and lake levels began a rapid decline.

Back in October 1981 it was discovered that there was TCE – a suspected cancer-causing chemical once commonly used as a solvent and cleaner – in groundwater and drinking water.

The discovery led to efforts to remove the chemical from the municipal water supply and to find the source. Eventually a secondary stream of TCE and a similar product, PCE or PERC, were measured in the water, too.

With the help of the federal Superfund program, the city built a three-million-gallon a day, state-of-the-art water treatment plant on the Lake Michigan shoreline. Water pumped out of the lake replaced TCE-laden ground water last spring. And a grand opening ceremony and open house were held in October.

Possible sites of contamination have been pinpointed as the city has been peppered with test wells. But no removal action has been taken because the old municipal water system is no longer in use.

High water levels threatened many homes along Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix in 1986, and claims by experts of continued rises brought fears and sandbagging. This year, though, the water has dropped as quickly as it rose – and is now two feet lower than it was one year ago.

Stepped up boardings of pleasure boats by the Coast Guard upset area boaters as the summer season got underway. The guardsmen, under orders from Washington, were looking for drugs in the same manner as in coastal waters – with guns at the ready.

After several weeks of pressure and publicity, the Cleveland district office ordered the searches cut back to a level more reasonable for Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix – to the relief of local boaters and local guardsmen.

HAPPY BIRTHDAYS

Three of the area's larger employers celebrated landmark anniversaries this year.

Big Rock Point nuclear power plant – the second oldest operating facility in the nation – had its award-winning silver anniversary spoiled a little by a fine from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Coming off a record-setting year, Big Rock opened its doors this summer as several hundred people toured the plant. The Consumers Power plant received awards for having the highest efficiency of any General Electric turbine plant, for its best radiation safety record ever and for its highest electrical output ever in 1986.

At the end of the year, though, the NRC fined the plant $25,000 – half the normal minimum because of its excellent past record – for a security breach. A 10-inch opening that was not sealed when the plant was built a quarter-century ago was discovered inside the facility.

Another high-profile firm, Medusa Cement Co., celebrated its 20th anniversary at South Point. Medusa capped the year by giving a $50,000 check to the Preserve North Point project.

Also capping a quarter-century in the area was the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, which provides specialized schooling to students in the two counties.

None of these institutions could match the longevity of Greensky Hill United Methodist Church. The oldest continually operating Indian church in the state received a state sesquicentennial celebration award. The church has been in Hayes Township since 1833, with the present building dating to 1840.

AN EVENTFUL YEAR

The summer visitors' season got off to its traditional blooming start as about 800 people showed up at curbside to plant 50,000 petunias in about an hour in May.

Operation Petunia, which has grown into a model for other communities around the nation, grew into a minor headache this year, though. A bumper crop of weeds threatened to strangle the flowers.

The call went out for volunteers to "adopt a block" and hundreds of hours were put in by paid weeders just to keep up with the problem. Some blamed the hot, dry weather; others said it was the fertilizer.

Meanwhile, a section of the bed along the city golf course went unweeded – and weedless. A petroleum-based weed "blanket" was doing its job. So next year, the entire five-mile petunia bed will be covered with the 18-inch wide substance - at a cost lower than this year's weeding bill.

The 25th consecutive Michigan Amateur golf tournament at Belvedere Golf Club came with a cloud overhead. The cloud wasn't from the weather, but from the Golf Association of Michigan thinking of taking the event elsewhere.

There was pressure within the GAM to rotate the prestigious tournament among several sites. And the Belvedere's contract would expire after the 1988 event.

The tournament and course rated rave reviews and a group of local people started making plans to entice the GAM to return.

In August the GAM sent a letter to Belvedere requesting a contract for 1989 – but in October it announced the tournament would be played in Jackson that year.

People were sardined into the East Park area for their annual vis-

DON BERLAGE and RALPH McRAE are opponents who ended up on the same side – sort of – in the city's condo controversy. McRae, who owns a condo in Florida, led the forces opposing any more multiple-housing units near the waterfront. Berlage, who is building a hotel or condo (yet to be determined) on Pine River Channel, was the most outspoken opponent of McRae's proposals. By the end of the year, though, they were both parties of a lawsuit filed by Berlage's neighbor against his firm and against the city. Said Berlage: "Politics and litigation make strange bedfellows."

DALE BOSS will go anywhere and do just about anything to promote Charlevoix. So when the chance to be in the Michigan Thanksgiving Parade in Detroit came along, he jumped in the Operation Petunia watering truck and hauled the Chamber of Commerce float on a 500-mile, 24-hour round trip. He received a plaque from the chamber and a standing ovation from city council.

WENDY VOISON was crowned Venetian Festival queen in the heat of the summer, not knowing her next assignment would be on a cold, windy day in Detroit. Representing Charlevoix in the Thanksgiving Day parade, she spent a chilly morning waving and "wearing my perma-grin."

PATTI JO RESCH and GLADYS GUERCI were sitting at home when they heard screams. Running to a nearby building, they found a badly burned man trapped in an upstairs fire. As Resch braved the smoke and flames to pull him out, Guerci ran to get help. The pair's heroism earned them the first Jack Mol Award, named for the city police chief who died this year.

DENNIS HALVERSON is accustomed to police uniforms. The former Traverse City policeman is the son of an ex-chief of the Michigan State Police. Halverson was named city police chief following the death of Jack Mol. Then Ritchie Davis, who attended Charlevoix schools through sixth grade, was named as the new head of the state police.

Letters to the editor:

Sheriff's kindness eases family tragedy

Editor,

On Dec. 15, our family suffered the loss of our brother and sister-in-law in a tragic accident. This loss was compounded as the young couple left orphaned two young daughters. To inform the girls of the loss of their parents fell upon the shoulders of Sheriff Lasater.

This difficult task was handled by him with great care and concern, making an already difficult day for the family less burdensome. For his professional service rendered with kindness, our family is eternally grateful.

This community is enriched to have such a dedicated person serve its citizens.

It's time to take down 'the Beautiful' signs

Editor,

I can't stand it anymore! And the rest of you Charlevoix residents shouldn't either! For God's sake, wake up!

I fell in love with Charlevoix about 10 years ago and shortly thereafter bought a home here. Ten years ago. You city council and zoning board members may remember way back then. It was before the channel-choking blight of the Edgewater Inn. and before the view-violating monstrosity of the fast-approaching Pointes North Inn. And before the charming vista of Round Lake became a condo-crammed casualty that smacks of Hong Kong harbor.

For years I have watched in amazement and exasperation as big city developers fly their private jets into our airport and bamboozle city officials into granting zoning exceptions and ordering variances.

"What's that, zoning board members? Our building is actually going to be 20 feet higher than the site plan we submitted? Oops! Our pencil must have slipped. Oh, well...you won't make us change anything just this one li'l ole time, now will you?"

Then they pour out the concrete, cut down the trees, obscure the views and take the money and run. And as they jet-set their way back home to the bank, they most likely chuckle to themselves about how they pulled another fast one over on the "hayseeds" that run the town of Charlevoix.

When in God's name (and he was the original Charlevoix developer), are you city fathers going to stop, look and listen?

On Dec. 9, WATCH paid for a half page announcement in this newspaper to spell out very clearly why the Zoning Board of Appeals is failing in its responsibility with regard to the proposed condo development on the Pine River Channel. Do you city officials think WATCH does this sort of thing just because it likes to see its logo in print? Do you think 800 Charleviox residents sign a petition to stop this insane carnage of this town's charm just because they need the penmanship practice?

The officials charged with the care of this city should be ashamed at their callous indifference to the zoning laws that were established to protect the very reason that brought us here in the first place: Charlevoix's natural beauty. They are methodically destroying the land and water upon which we depend for our peace of mind, and in many cases, our livelihoods. Out-of-towners don't come here to enjoy condominiums and parking lots, you know.

Well, it's almost over now. Just about every square foot of "condo-able" space has been scarfed up, rezoned and built upon.

Walking into town from the north on Bridge Street you can't even see Round Lake anymore until you reach the bridge itself. Instead, we're treated to the breath-taking beauty and picture postcard panorama of the Edgewater Inn.

Anybody interested in staying at the Weatherane? Bring your camera to capture some gorgeous sunrise shots of the back of Pointes North Inn...just the kind of placid, picturesque nature for which Northern Michigan is so famous.

And how about some camping out near Oyster Bay? It you wait a little while, maybe a new home owner will move his car and let you pitch your tent in his parking space. (Unless Hayes Township officials have the sense to see what's happening here and realize that cancer spreads.)

If the Pine River Channel, one of our last remaining views, does indeed become raped by yet another condominium, I have a suggestion for the men and women we elected who have continually violated our trust: You might as well finish the job. Pass a resolution to take down all the "Charlevoix the Beautiful" signs and replace them with ones that read, "Miami Beach North.".

Fishing for old photos

Editor,

In a September issue of your newspaper, above the heading "Charlevoix Yesterday," you had a picture of five fish tugs which went to salt water to try their luck, later returning to your harbour. The caption refered to a fisherman named Mike Shores.

For the past 20 years, my wife and I have been compiling a history of the commercial fishing industry all over the Great Lakes. We are most anxious to procure copies of any early photographs of the commercial fishing industry in the Charlevoix area. We would gladly pay any costs of reproducing photographs or written material and postage.

Downtown lights sparkle

Editor,

I would like to comment on the beautiful decorations in the business district of Charlevoix. It is truly a twinkling fairyland. Also thanks to the merchants for following the theme and decorating their windows. I am sure it brings joy to everyone who lives here as well as those passing through. Thanks to all who are responsible.

Beacons of Blessing

by the Rev. Broce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Are you familiar with that wonderfully nagging thing about your personality sometimes known as your conscience? That little voice that seems to sit on your shoulder and boller in your ear can make or break your day.

If you get up, look at your schedule and think, "Oh, it's going to be a terrible day," then that little voice says, "if terrible is what you want, terrible is what you get!" Boy does the world fall apart. But if you get up, praise the Lord for the opportunities and the challenges that lay ahead, you have opened your mind for God to work and for His Spirit to bless you.

Your faith in Christ can be one of two things to you. It can be an obligation. If that's the case, it's nothing more than a religion, an empty ceremony that gives you no help at all. To me, that really isn't faith. Or it can be a source of real joy.

Now I grant you there are days when it seems hard to smile, seems hard to find any good at all. But my friends, who are we anyway? Whose side are we on?

We are sons and daughters of God. We are on the Lord's side. Though our faith may slip, our confidence weaken, Jesus never fails. He is just as strong, just as sure, just as able to bless, love, heal and help as He ever was. Such care doesn't depend on Him. It is His promise to the faithful. It depends on you.

You can find some very special moments in the new year. You can see the hands of God at work in your own life if you really try and that should make 1988 your best year ever.

Another no-win war

Clockwise BY BOB CLOCK

A story on the Nicaraguan Contras by Steve Stecklow and Andrew Maykuth which appeared in Knight-Ridder newspapers Sunday should be required reading for every U.S. congressman before another cent is voted to support that country's rebel army.

Of course, the charges should not be accepted at face value. However, they are so serious they certainly merit further study; and if there's a whiff of truth to them, the United States has no business backing such a ragtag band with Yankee dollars and Yankee arms.

The two reporters claim that after more than six years of fighting and more than $200 million in U.S. aid "many of the Contras remain an aimless army, wandering across Nicarague, deliberately avoiding direct contact with the Soviet-supplied government troops."

Stecklow and Maykuth also charge that the Contras do not hesitate to attack unarmed civilians, including pregnant women and children, and are rapidly alienating the peasants whose support they must have in order to stage a successful revolution.

Perhaps the most serious charge is that the rebel army really doesn't want to fight and prefers to zero in on so-called "targets of opportunity," including power lines, trucks and farm cooperatives that are poorly protected.

The writers also note that despite U.S. support, the number of Contra rebels is decreasing, from an estimated 10,000 to 12,000 early this year to between 8,000 and 10,000 in November.

And no wonder. The Contras are "up against an army that is better trained, better organized, more mobile, more aggressive and at least six times larger."

I repeat, the report demands further substantiation. But if it is true, the United States has chosen to support an army that cannot win, just as we did in Vietnam.

How much better it would be if the United States, rather than bankroll the destruction of Nicaragua's infrastructure and the murder of innocent civilians, opted instead to lend its massive support to the legitimate government of President Daniel Ortega, which I believe is not nearly so cozy with the Soviet Union as the Reagan Administration would have us believe.

The truth is we have been so busy harassing Ortega we haven't given him a chance to show his real colors.

"IACOCCA WATCHERS" will be happy to know that a new "unauthorized biography" of Chrysler Corp.'s chief executive is off the press.

The author is Peter Wyden who ostensibly sets out to correct the image of Lee Iacocca as presented in the auto magnate's own autobiography, Iacocca, ghost-written by Bill Novak.

But Wyden's book, The Unknown Iacocca, promises more than it delivers, if this was, in fact, the author's intent. Instead of setting the record straight, Wyden pretty much substantiates the Iacocca saga, with a few minor discrepancies.

For example, Wyden plays up Iacocca's basic shyness, which does not come through in Iacocca's own book. Fortunately, shyness is no crime and can, in fact, be quite an engaging personal characteristic.

The main difference between the two books is that Wyden's opus is far more detailed, better researched, better written, and far more readable than Novak's cliche-ridden prose.

Iacocca should send Wyden a thank-you note for doing the job the way it should have been done in the first place.

Don't get me wrong. Iacocca was fascinating reading for anyone interested in the auto industry and the people who make it move.

But if you liked Iacocca, you'll love The Unknown Iacocca.

The book, of course, is particularly timely because Iacocca —despite his frequent disclaimers —is still being noised about as a possible Democratic presidential contender in 1988.

The Unknown Iacocca is available at the Charlevoix Public Library. Or it will be as soon as I return my copy and pay my fine.

Out of the Blue

The list keeps growing —
It can scarce be recited
Ere one more Reagan buddy
Gets himself indicted!

Sing of Charlevoix at New Year's time

EDITH GILBERT

January is a wonderful month. Not only is there downhill and cross country skiing, ice fishing and sledding, for the active lover of the out-of-doors, but it's also the time to clean out ones' desk files, or sit in front of the fire pitching old letters and bills.

The job of cleaning out drawers always makes one feel so virtuous, and sometimes the reward is also a chuckle. We came across an old bill from the Weathervane Restaurant dated 1963 – a dinner for 2, including tax and tip, was $17.35. Those dinners would be double today, and who knows what they will cost tomorrow?

The month of January was rightly named by the ancient Romans after Janus, the god with two faces, one looking back at the past as well as forward to the future.

And we look back, foods traditionally associated with New Year's include roast pig (Hungary), ham (Sweden), shortbread (Scotland), herring (Germany and Scandinavia), black eyed peas (American South) and Bigos (Poland).

In Charlevoix, I recall friendly gatherings, with lots of good food, on New Year's Eves past, including smoked whitefish, of course. There were many open houses and private parties, with guests from everywhere. Sometimes we were dressy, but most often, dress was casual and we wore our best apres ski outfit. One thing for sure, there always was great music. This included someone at the piano or guitar and a lively quartet singing old-time barbershop songs.

The best song was saved for last and was sung by everyone just before the party ended. It always brought tears of nostalgia to more than one grown man's eye. It is sung to the tune of the Irish ballad, "Little Bit of Heaven" and the words are as follows:

"Tis a litie bit of Heaven
Mixed with land and lake and sky
It nestles in the valleys
With Lake Michigan close by.
And when the angels found it
Oh, it looked so sweet and fair.
They said, "Suppose we leave it
For it looks so peaceful there!"
So, they sprinkled it with birches
Just to make the pine trees grow
O'er all the land you'll find them
No matter where you go.

Then, they dotted it with blue lakes
While the angels sang for joy,
And when they had it finished
Sure, they called it 'Charlevoix'!"

As we celebrate New Year's Eve, crowded with memories of the year past and heady with anticipation of things to come, let's all look to the future and lift our voices and sing the Charlevoix song together, with the hope that Charlevoix will remain the Little Bit of Heaven that we all love.

Construction boomed north of the bridge in 1987, and plans for construction south of the bridge caused a boom of protest. The Rysberg Inn, newly renamed Pointes North Inn, got underway (background) as the Edgewater Inn (right) was nearing completion. City Planner Gerry Harsch explained where sites for possible future construction might be (above) during one of the several debates over shoreline buildings.

The protest arose as plans for a hotel or condo on Pine River Channel were announced during a mayoral campaign to block further construction along the waterways. Still to be considered is a proposal to re-do part of Bridge Park as a walkway to allow renovation of a store side into five store fronts.

Smith

DAVE SMITH put away his maroon towel after six years as Charlevoix High basketball coach. The high school principal stepped down with a set of statistics that will be hard to beat: a 119-win, 25-loss record including 1983's 24-game win streak; four 20-victory seasons; five district championships; one regional title; four league crowns.

AMY McKINNEY and BETSY HAGGARD wore the crown and sash of royalty for Charlevoix High. McKinney was named winter homecoming queen for the 1986-87 school year, with Doug Bergmann as king. Haggard was crowned fall homecoming queen for the '87-88 school year, with Dan Drury selected as king.

its to the Waterfront Art Fair, Venetian Festival and Hobbycraft Show. Up to 30,000 people were in town for the Venetian festivities.

PRESERVING NORTH POINT

A community-wide effort to raise $700,000 to buy the North Point dunes area was launched by the Little Traverse Conservancy and several local organizations.

North Point is a 28-acre site with a half-mile of Lake Michigan frontage and a large wooded area adjacent to the city's Mount McSauba recreation area. The site was the center of controversy when 120 condominium units were proposed there in 1985.

With two years to complete the purchase, the conservancy is seeking donations from individuals, companies, foundations and the state. An answer to a request for $400,000 from the state Land Trust Fund is expected early in January.

Local contributions are approaching $100,000 already, with the largest gift being a $50,000 check from Medusa Cement Co., which occupies South Point.

STOP AND GO

Work to provide more off-street parking hit stride this year within the Downtown Development Authority's construction of a 60-space lot where the Erber Building was on Clinton between Bridge and State.

The city also is buying the property adjacent to that lot for possible future use as a parking facility.

A state study of traffic flow on Bridge Street recommends elimination of parking through the downtown section. Immediate reaction from merchants and the Downtown Development Authority was to look for another alternative.

A five-year program to upgrade the city's "infrastructure" got underway with repaving of 3½ miles of streets.

Next year's projects include sidewalk replacements throughout town. Still to come are sewer and drain reconstruction at trouble spots.

The Downtown Development Authority plans to re-do sidewalks on and near Bridge Street next fall, too.

THE CONDO WARS

The second Battle of Pine River began with a volley fired by the mayor in late spring. And the battle still rages.

Petition drives. Lawsuits. Charges of impropriety. Ignoring attorney's advice. Four site plans for the same piece of property. The battle has had just about everything.

Things began to heat up when Mayor Ralph McRae proposed a ban on construction of any multiple-unit housing – commonly called condos – around Round Lake, Lake Charlevoix, Lake Michigan and Pine River Channel.

His effort was backed by a petition carrying 800 names of people opposed to lakefront condo construction, but its various forms were turned back by the city attorney and planning commission as illegal or impractical.

Emerging as a leading opponent of a condo ban or moratorium on site approvals was lawyer Don Berlage, who owned two prime parcels along Pine River Channel.

Soon the debate turned from general to specific as Berlage submitted a proposal to put a hotel on those parcels. He said he was hurried into doing something with the property because of the anti-development faction, though he wasn't sure what the building would be.

In order to build a hotel on the site, Berlage asked the planning commission to decide if one was allowed on commercial-scenic zoned property. Twice the planners voted on tie ballots against approval, and Berlage appealed their decision to the zoning board of appeals.

He also submitted plans for a nine-unit condominium, an 11-unit condo and a 21-unit residential club on the site. The hotel would also be 21 units.

The zoning board – which has come under heavy fire for granting variances to zoning restrictions on several projects – reversed the planners' decision and said a hotel could be built on the Park Avenue site.

Meanwhile, the 11-unit condo plan won approval in a compromise worked out in the zoning board and planning commission. In return for moving the building back from the channel to preserve a viewing corridor from Hoffmann Park, height and width restrictions were eased.

City council reluctantly approved the condo site plan, but balked at OK'ing the hotel site plan when it came up for approval. Both buildings have the same exterior footprint.

Citing a council policy enacted in September, the council sent the matter back to the planning and appeals boards for review against attorney's warning that they had no legal footing.

He has asked them to reconsider their decision but so far they have not. And the planning commission and zoning board are waiting for further instructions.

Foundation work had begun on the condos when neighbor David Miles filed suit against the city and Berlage to try to stop construction.

The council is looking at ways of re-establishing itself as the appeals board and removed two long-time members when their terms were up for re-appointment.

Council was the appeals board until 1982 when the city lost a lawsuit that pointed out a city charter prohibition against council members serving on other boards. That suit was brought against the city by Berlage in a dispute over a carport.

McRae's call for a condo ban eventually worked its way to council, which took city planner Gerry Harsch's suggestion to appoint a committee to come up with recommendations for lakeshore zoning law changes.

That panel included two council members, two planning commissioners, two members of the petition drive group and Harsch. They have submitted a number of recommendations aimed at preserving view corridors to the water, limiting height along the waterfront and slowing construction on the shoreline.

These recommendations are now in the hands of the planning commission, which intends to discuss them in January.

Out-of-town readers favor Bridge Street changes

The Courier's request for reader opinions on Bridge Street traffic isn't causing much congestion at the post office.

Maybe it's the holiday season or maybe, as one city official thinks, it's that people don't think there's much of a problem to solve.

Whatever the reason, response has been much slower than for previous questionnaires.

Last week, we heard from mostly year-round residents. This week's mail is almost exclusively from out of town.

Of the dozen responses in the past week, 10 think major changes in traffic flow are in order; two do not.

The ballot's first question was: Should major changes be made in the Bridge Street traffic flow?

Among the Yes replies were these:

"Parking creates hazards and semi trucks have been seen parked also for deliveries. More parking is needed off Bridge Street."

"It's too congested and dangerous."

"I think there are people who avoid Charlevoix because of the traffic congestion. For people who do come to Charlevoix, the visit is less pleasant because of traffic frustrations."

"The stop and go backups are very frustrating to travel cross town or through town."

"It's a mess. The business people aren't being very realistic. How can tourists stop and shop when cars are bumper to bumper on Bridge Street with no place to park? Tourists aren't shoppers anyway."

"To improve being able to get through town Memorial Day-Labor Day."

"Too much through traffic. You can't do much in the short run, but you need a long range plan, i.e. No. 10."

"But what would you do with the cars that are parking there now?"

From those voting No came these comments:

"Charlevoix has no decisive leadership – can't settle these things by committee. Town can't even decide on toilets. Charlevoix needs a professionally done downtown plan and then follow it."

"I'm sorry, but I can't understand why you think you have a real problem. Some of us downstaters spend longer, going slower, every day going to work. And that's on an expressway. Did you ever consider that some of us regulars enjoy going slow through your paradise? It ain't broke... so please don't fix it."

Comments on each of the nine listed alternatives follow.

1. Three lanes with no parking on either side. Center lane for turns only.

"In all my years visiting, I've never used the on-street parking (Bridge Street). It is just too inconvenient trying to find a space, holding up traffic, etc. So bite the bullet, ban parking and get traffic moving."

2. Three lanes with no parking on east side. Center lane for turns only.

"Because to me it sounds the most reasonable and will leave the beautiful east side wide open so all can see the harbor."

"This will allow the downtown area to expand to State Street. It is a street which is attractive and can be easily improved. People who pass through town on State Street may have an even greater desire to stop and look."

3. Four lanes. No parking on either side.

"It will permit safe turns and not create a problem on State Street."

"It would make for a better flow of traffic going both ways."

4. Three lanes, two northbound and one southbound. No parking either side.

No votes either week.

5. Three lanes, two northbound and one southbound. No parking on east side.

"Right lane southbound has to turn right at Park. Does not totally eliminate parking on Bridge."

6. One way northbound. All southbound traffic takes Park to State.

No votes this week.

7. Traffic lanes remain as is. Right southbound lane turns right at Park.

No votes this week.

8. Other suggestions.

"Build another bridge where the railroad bridge was. The local people would use it."

"Make 31 through Charlevoix "Bypass 31." Route the main highway from Eastport through East Jordan to M-75 at Boyne City. Meanwhile, you're probably better off to one-way per No. 6 so long as there's a light at 31 and M-66."

9. Leave everything alone.

One vote this week with no comment.

Obituaries

Collis 'Pete' Cantine

Martha Cantine

Collis "Pete" Cantine, 78, and his wife, Martha Cantine, 72, of Grosse Pointe Farms and summer residents of East Jordan for 40 years, died Dec. 21 in Syracuse, N.Y.

They were struck by a van as they walked across a highway. They were enroute to spend the holidays in Salem, Mass.

Memorial services will be held at Grosse Pointe Farms Presbyterian Church at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 5.

Both were teachers, Mr. Cantine an art instructor at Noland Junior High School and Mrs. Cantine a kindergarten teacher at Marquette Elementary School, prior to retirement.

The couple was well known in the East Jordan area where they were involved in local activities. Mr. Cantine worked on the Portside Art Fair in East Jordan for many years.

The couple is survived by two daughters, Nancy Britton of Salem, Mass. and Elizabeth Cantine.

The family suggests memorials to the Foundation for Exceptional Children, 16 Lakeshore Rd., Grosse Pointe Farms.

Elden J. Hofman

Elden J. Hofman, 78, of Ellsworth, died Sunday, Dec. 27, at his Banks Township home.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, Dec. 29, at Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth. The Rev. Walter Freel of the East Jordan Baptist Church officiated. Interment was in Atwood Cemetery.

Born in Banks Township on Nov. 2, 1909, the son of William and May (Tromley) Hofman, was raised in the Ellsworth area.

On April 4, 1932, he married Anita Nyland at Atwood. They made their home on a farm in Banks Township except for the early 1940's to early 1950's when he was employed in Detroit as a tool maker. Mrs. Hofman preceded him in death in 1959. On June 16, 1963 he married Mabel Nachazel.

He was employed at Lamina Products in Bellaire until he retired in 1971.

Surviving are his wife, Mabel; a son, Russell Hofman of Ellsworth; three step-sons, Joseph, Edward and John Nachazel, all of Ellsworth; a step-daughter, Connie Marshall of Traverse City; five grandchildren; two brothers, John Hoffman of East Jordan and William Hoffman of Ellsworth; and several nieces and nephews.

Ski, volleyball seasons ready to open

All-stater sidelined by knee surgery

The Rayder ski team will host the first meet of the season at Boyne Mountain on Thursday, Jan. 7.

Participating in the meet will be four other teams of the Northern Michigan Ski Conference – East Jordan, Kalkaska, Bellaire and Grayling.

The girls' team has already been hit by injury. Lauren Pace, senior state champion, is laid up with a knee injury suffered while racing in Duluth. The injury required surgery coach Erik Lundteigen said.

"We will have to wait a while before we'll know when or if she will be able to ski with us," he said.

Other letter winners returning are Allison Hall, also a senior; junior Carla Hoffman, whose Bahnhof-Jake Smith scholarship sent her to a 10-day ski camp at Stowe, Vt., and sophomore Cynthia Boydston.

Other candidates for the team are sophomore Susie Healey and freshmen Heather Keller and Allison Boyer.

The boys 'team will be more experienced.

Wes Cumberland, a junior who is recovering from a fractured wrist received in November while skiing in the west, heads the list of letter winners.

Others are senior Heath Moore, juniors Dan Bickersteth and Charlie Witthoeft, and sophomore Jake Smith who also received a scholarship to the Stowe camp.

Other strong candidates are sophomore Chris Seymour and junior Matt Miller, Lundteigen said.

"We don't have the experience and depth that I'd like but it will come. I see a lot of enthusiasm and desire among the younger candidates who will develop into good skiers. It will just take us a little longer," he said.

Six letter winners returning for netters

The Charlevoix volleyball team will launch its 1988 season on Monday, Jan. 4, when it hosts Central Lake. Two days later Michigan-Huron Shores Conference play gets underway against Cheboygan.

The Rayders will boast six returning letter winners when they return to the court, according to coach Brenda Bryan.

Among the candidates are four seniors – Laura Bartley, Shelly Crain, Carla Henry and Michelle Siebert – and two juniors – Bille Jean Habel and Becky Melke.

Things are looking up for the junior varsity squad also, Bryan said, adding that seven new candidates have joined the group which looks as though it will develop into a strong team.

"They are anxious to learn and are catching on real fast so we should be competitive," Bryan said.

Leading this group will be Jodi Kluczynski, a returnee who has improved a lot since last season, Bryan said. Two others who have joined the JV squad are Cookie Lundy and Trisha Sutton who are demonstrating abilities and should develop into strong players.

Rayders get untracked with first league win

The Rayder basketball team got back on track by posting its first conference win, 59-34, over Boyne City.

"They played the kind of ball I was confident they could play. They went into the game more relaxed than any other time; they were confident," coach Jim Kanine said.

"Danny (Drury) and Owen (Phillips) had things under control. They ran the offense well, played great defense.

"Danny got off some key shots. Roger (Smith) did a great job on (Mike) DeSchryver, holding him to eight points. They just went out and let it happen.

"If we can get our act together out front, we will be tough."

The Rayders had lost their first two conference games.

The Rayders held a 15-13 first period lead with Chad DeVries and Drury scoring two buckets each.

In the second quarter, Charlevoix outscored the Ramblers 10-8 for a 25-21 halftime lead.

Following the intermission, the Rayders put on the pressure and held the Ramblers to a three-pointer by DeSchryver and two-pointer by Jim Abney as Charlevoix increased its lead to 42-26.

In the final period five of seven players off the bench scored for the Rayders.

"Everything seemed to falled into place. DeVries controlled the boards, the guards improved, Smith kept DeSchryver where he wanted him," said Kanine.

"Scott DeYoung was not at his best but he did share scoring honors with DeVries, with each having 11 points. Drury and Smith had nine points apiece with the remainder scored by five other players.

The Rayders made 24 field goals, one three-pointer and eight of 16 free throws. The team committed 21 personal fouls.

Boyne City had only eight two-point and two three-point field goals and made 12 of 20 free throws while committing 15 personal fouls.

DeVries had 16 and DeYoung 14 rebounds. Drury had five and Phillips and Smith four assists each and Smith had four and DeYoung three steals.

Freshmen defeat Boyne

The Rayder freshmen defeated Boyne City 45-40.

Coach Barry Anderson said the Rayders took a 13-6 first period lead and remained ahead by three points, 21-18 at the half. The lead was four points, 29-25, going into the last period.

Denis Mailloux had 12 points and Corey Ostrum 11 for the Rayders.

House without a home finds resting place on Beaver Island

by FRAN MARTIN

"I think I'll call it the Barge House. What do you think?"

Paul VanHise said Monday of a house he has moved 294 miles from Holland to St. James harbor on Beaver Island.

The house saw its beginning on the lakeshore of Lake Macatawa in the fashionable Central Park section of Holland in 1907.

VanHuis decided this fall to move the 1,128 square-foot, 1½-story house across the inland lake to Park Township. The township zoning administrator, however, decided the house did not meet township zoning rules and would not permit it to be taken ashore.

Meanwhile, the 29- by 60- by 5-foot barge the house sat on was needed by the Coast Guard so the house was moved to a larger 32- by 110-foot barge.

At that point Ernie Martin, Beaver Island commercial fisherman who had decided to buy a barge and transport supplies and equipment from the mainland to the island, made an offer for the barge to Joe Walsh of Lake Michigan Contractors.

But what to do about the house occupying the barge? Martin supplied a solution by offering a lot he owned on the island as home for the house and as partial payment for the barge.

VanHuis agreed to move the house to Beaver Island to the lot Martin was offering while Walsh agreed to sell the lot he was getting from Martin to VanHuis so Martin could have the barge.

The barge, towed by Walsh's 68-foot tug Shirley Jo, traveled from Holland to Northport where the night was spent at the harbor.

The tug and tow were 15 miles out of Northport on the 40-mile trip to Beaver Island when forced to return because of high seas.

Edward Wojan of Wojan Realty on the island said the tug and tow just missed going aground when entering the harbor at St. James when the tug lost its power.

Martin went to the rescue with his tug and took the disabled tug and barge in tow just as they were about to go aground. The barge has been towed to Martin's dock on the harbor.

Trees along Donegal Bay Road were being cleared to allow the trailer on which the house is mounted to be moved to the north end of Beaver Island.

County workers get pay hikes

by PEG OHLE

Employees of Charlevoix County will begin the new year with an increase of four percent in their pay checks.

The salary hike was announced during last week's budget hearing conducted by the board of commissioners, at which a budget of $3,925,003 for county operations next year was adopted.

County employees in management positions and their salaries for next year are:

Clerk Jane Brannon, $23,622; Register of Deeds Charlene Gaskin, $21,275; Treasurer Joan Balch, $21,938; Prosecuting Attorney Kraag Lieberman, $45,011; Sheriff George T. Lasater, $30,998; Undersheriff Dale Boehm, $26,974; Equalization Director Joan Blanchard, $26,177; Planner Larry Sullivan, $26,288; Building Code Official Howard Carson, $22,808; Building Maintenance Manager Michael Webb, $20,575; Civil Defense Director Earl Muma, $19,155; Veterans Affairs Counselor Ronald Geer, $15,862; Whiting Park Manager Philo Sumner, $6,860; and Drain Commissioner Clayton Healey (part time), $4,795.

The three judges, all of whom serve both Charlevoix and Emmet counties, will receive Charlevoix County supplements to their state salaries as follows: Circuit Judge Richard M. Pajtas, $16,285; District Judge Harvey C. Varnum, $15,400; Probate Judge John Murphy, $20,915. In addition, Murphy will receive $2,820 as the county's prorated share of his local salary.

Charlevoix Probate Court Juvenile Officer Brad Campbell will receive a supplement of $9,341 to his state salary.

Medical Examiner Dr. Reed Freidinger will receive a salary of $625 plus $75 a call within his area and $100 a call outside his area.

The six members of the board of commissioners – Larry Matthew, Ralph Harmon, Oral Sutliff, Tom Breakey, Don Smith and Bud Heeres – will each receive $175 a month salary plus $70 per diem for committee meetings.

They will receive their salaries whether or not they attend the regular county board meetings.

The three members of the Charlevoix County Road Commission – John Kujawski, Delbert Ingalls and Richard Fochtman – will each receive a yearly salary of $1,680 plus $55 per diem for committee meetings.

Employees working on a grade and level schedule will be paid on the basis of their job responsibilities and length of employment. These salaries range from the lowest entry level of $6,587 to a possible $23,849.

Employees on the management grade and level schedule will be paid on the basis of the lowest entry level salary of $15,313 to a possible $28,051.

Full-time county employees work 35 hours a week and receive fringe benefits that may amount to as much as 15 percent of their salaries. Part-time employees working 30 hours a week or more receive prorated fringe benefits. Those working fewer than 29 hours a week receive no fringe benefits.

Seniors seeking site for new center

by PEG OHLE

Sherry Black of the Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center is hoping for a miracle in 1988.

She is hoping that somewhere, somehow, there will be a building available for the center to use to carry on its many educational, recreational and social activities.

The Senior Citizens Center has been housed in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall for the last two years.

Black says that "although the VFW members have been 'kindness itself,' it is still not the same as having a place of one's own.

"We find it difficult to display many items that the seniors work on, such as crafts, bulletin boards, announcements materials, and other items. We are guests in that building and rules and regulations must be obeyed.

"As we grow, and we are growing, and we add more classes to our program, more projects are being organized. It is difficult to find enough space for what we are doing."

Activity began to pick up last year when Black began teaching adult education classes in the center and started to become involved in other center activities.

Participants in the nutritional lunch program have increased in number and many events with other senior centers have been scheduled.

There have been progressive dinners and luncheons with groups from East Jordan and Boyne City, a Christmas light tour, a "Spring Thaw" luncheon and fashion show at Boyne Mountain with senior citizens from Emmet County, health and exercise classes, formation of a bowling league, bridge lessons, and a bus trip to Nashville.

Coming up are a St. Patrick's Day party, a hayride, and rides on the Senior Center float in local parades.

Black and senior center members have raised several hundreds of dollars through raffles, show sponsorship, bake sales and just "plain hard work," she says.

The center has received some funds from the City of Charlevoix, Hayes Township, the Rainbow Shop, the United Way, and the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, which remodeled the portion of the VFW Hall the senior center uses.

Black said she would appreciate any ideas anyone might have about a possible location for the senior center. The telephone number is 547-5361.

Tootsie Roll sales aid Charlevoix House, Bergmann

The quarters and dimes and nickels local residents paid for Tootsie Rolls this past year were translated into dollars when two local groups received Christmas checks.

The Bergmann Center and Charlevoix House were the recipients of $350 and $336, respectively, from the Charlevoix Chapter of the Knights of Columbus, which sells Tootsie Rolls as a means of raising money for charitable contributions to the mentally handicapped.

Knights of Columbus Grand Knight Leonard Staley and Tootsie Roll sales chairman Chester Otmanowski handed the checks over to Jim McCallum of the Bergmann Center and Sam Kaufman, representing Charlevoix House.

Anne Pfluefke, who with her husband John is houseparent at Charlevoix House, was also present.

Bergmann Center is a sheltered workshop which supplies daily work activities for approximately 42 mentally handicapped persons, and Charlevoix House is a group home teaching independent living skills to six mentally handicapped persons.

Both are operated under the jurisdiction of Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services, of which Kaufman is director.

Tootsie Roll sales are the main fund-raising project of Knights of Columbus chapters throughout Michigan, according to Staley.

In addition to groups like the Bergmann Center and Charlevoix House, the sales provide contributions to the Special Olympics, which is also supported locally by the Masons and Oddfellows.

Altogether, about 300 handicapped persons are helped by Tootsie Roll sales in the area, Staley said.

Otmanowski said the 75 local Knights of Columbus members will again be out selling Tootsie Rolls the week before Easter.

Jim McCallum of the Bergmann Centar and Sam Kaufman, rapresenting Charlevoix Housa, recaiva Tootsla Roll checks from Leonard Staley and Chaster Otmanowski of the Charlevolx Chapter of Knights of Columbus. Each year tha Tootsie Roll sala is a major fund-raislng campalgn for tha Knights of Columbus organizations around the country.

58th annual cribbage tourney set

The 58th annual Mason-Oddfellow cribbage tournament will take place at the American Legion post home with the Oddfellows as hosts on Thursday, Jan. 7.

Sites will alternate between the post home and the Masonic Temple during the 10-week tournament.

Hugh Mayne will captain the Masonic team; Bruce Rinehart will head the Oddfellow contingent. The Oddfellows are defending champions.

The losing team will host the winners at a dinner at the close of the tournament in which all cribbage players are invited to participate.

Anyone interested in playing in the tournament is invited to be at the American Legion post home at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 7.
